THE LOCK-KEEPER'S DAUGHTER.—During a sentimental walk along the river a husband thinks that he does not reign supreme in the heart of his wife, and in order to get rid of the man he is jealous of he pushes him into the water, and the current carries him along. At the lock the keeper's daughter is plying the heavy gates when she suddenly perceives the body of the drowning man. She swims to his rescue, and helps him to the bank. Tended and cared for in the humble home of the keeper, the young man realises when the hour comes for him to leave such a safe shelter that he loves the girl who has saved his life, and the end of the story is that he marries her.

THE BEWITCHED MANOR HOUSE.—In this we get some clever trick scenes. There lived in the Middle Ages a princess whose name was Berthilde, and she was a godchild of the Elf Queen. A malevolent Spirit, very powerful and jealous of the possessions of the queen, thought he would persecute the princess. One day, Berthilde having ventured upon his domains, the Spirit changed her and her servants into hideous monsters. The queen was not powerful enough to prevent this, but she had foretold that it would happen, adding that the enchantment would cease the moment a handsome young prince should go to the enchanted manor house and vanquish the evil spirit. One fine night the Knight of Marjoram is riding along with his faithful servant when he sees a group of demons dancing in the moonlight. The knight and his valet ride to the castle, and visit the deserted rooms without meeting any human being. In the dining hall elaborate dishes fly about them, but it is in vain that they try to catch them. Soon, however, the monsters which inhabit the place come to the knight, with the evil spirit at their head, and Sir Marjoram, after a few clever passes of his sword, kills his enemy. Princess Berthilde and her servants are then changed back to their former selves, and the knight, falling in love with her at first sight, asks for her hand, which is granted to him.

Gaumont Co.

VOLCANIC CHIMNEY.—The members of a family are greatly disturbed owing to the fact that the fire will not burn. The sweep is called in, and, after having swept the chimney, such a tremendous draught is created that all the occupants and furniture are promptly drawn through the grate up the chimney. Even passers-by in the street are not safe. They are seen being drawn through the window, turning somersaults and various other evolutions before disappearing up the chimney. The next scene shows the top of the roof and the chimney, which has now changed to a veritable volcano. The people and furniture are blown violently from the flue and fall in a heap on the ground. The furniture catches fire, and paterfamilias is seen violently attempting to extricate himself, when the firemen arrive and rescue him.

PROMISCUOUS PROPOSALS.—This subject illustrates how love is no respecter of persons, and the way various people succumb to this malady is very amusing.

Edison Manufacturing Co., Ltd.

COCOA INDUSTRY, TRINIDAD, BRITISH WEST INDIES.—"Home-keeping youths have ever homely wits" asserts the immortal bard; but in the days of the moving picture he can no longer plead excuse, for he can now travel, seated in a plush opera chair, visit all countries, and see the operation of numerous industries. The Edison Co. here offer the busy, studious man an important and interesting picture showing the complete operation of the cocoa industry in the British West Indies. The picture commences with the planting, and then, by various stages, the whole process is followed, until we see the resultant product loaded into the ships. We are next introduced to the workers enjoying their amusements. First we have the snake-charmer and his beautiful daughter, then the peculiar stick fights of the natives, and so on through a holiday carnival. After this we are shown a reception at which the guests are being served with hot cocoa; and thus our trip is ended, with an increase of knowledge at a small cost and no inconvenience.

A STREET WAIF'S CHRISTMAS.—This story tells of a crippled child of wealthy parents who is saved from being killed by a runaway team by Marie, a waif of the streets. Recognising no social distinctions, the children become firm friends, and Ronald presents to Marie his toy Jester. This she hugs to her bosom and wanders about. Ronald now writes to Santa Claus, asking him for a little sister. Marie writes a letter to Santa Claus on a frosted window pane, asking him to grant Ronald any request he may make, then sinks unconscious in the snow. She now dreams that the Jester has come to life, and summons a chariot from Fairyland, in which they go to Toyland. Here she is greeted by Santa Claus, who gives her a hearty welcome and invites her to go with him on his round of visits. A beautiful doll is taken along. Marie wakes and finds herself in a warm bed in Ronald's home, his father having found her in the snow, and against the chimney stands the empty doll's box. Upon looking into this she finds some beautiful clothes, which she puts on. Thinking to surprise the people, she gets inside the box, and when it is opened Ronald is sure Santa Claus has granted him his wish. As no one claims Marie, Ronald's father adopts the girl, and the children are both made happy.

SAFETY ANIMATED PICTURES AT CROYDON.—A most interesting demonstration was given at the Large Public Hall on Wednesday morning (says the Croydon Citizen) by Mr. Ernest Mansell, proprietor of the King's Service and Graphic Animated Picture Entertainments. There were present Superintendent Dane, chief of the Fire Brigade, Mr. E. C. Grigsby, secretary at the hall, and representatives of the Croydon Press. Mr. Mansell's object was to practically demonstrate the absolute safety of the cinematograph machines he is using with all his companies. The machine, which is guaranteed fireproof, and enclosed in an iron operating house, is one of the absolutely latest and most improved productions of Messrs. Wrench and Sons, of 50, Grays Inn-road, W.C., and in the hands of Mr. Fred Kenway, an expert of five years' experience, chief operator and electrician to Mr. Mansell, it was most conclusively shown that to fire the film on this machine is quite impossible. In front of the arc light is a sliding shutter of iron and asbestos, and between this and the picture film is an automatic shutter which rises as the operator begins work and falls directly he stops. The film passes through a special fireproof film-trap, and by this invention no more than two inches of film can be fired, and even under conditions of the grossest carelessness, which an expert for the sake of his own reputation would never risk, all that can happen from exposure to the heat of the light is that the above-mentioned length of film is fired, and is immediately and automatically smothered by the fire-box and completely prevented from spreading by the safety film-trap. A further safeguard is a shield preventing a broken film from passing over to the heated lantern body. An attendant is always on duty ready to lower the shutters on the operating box to entirely enclose the apparatus from the public. As well as these precautions, every possible appliance is also to hand in case of emergency, and Superintendent Dane, at the request of Mr. Grigsby, showed the excellent fire-extinguishing arrangements connected with the building by bringing the hose ready for use in 30sec. Asked his opinion, Superintendent Dane said that the machine just exhibited by Mr. Mansell was the best he had ever seen anywhere.

THE Palace Theatre, Sunderland, of which the general-manager is Mr. Henry N. Phillips, has been leased to the New Era Bioscope and Vaudeville Co., Ltd., and reopened on Monday as a picture palace, the two inaugural entertainments being a great success. The special interesting pictures included views of Palermo before the earthquake, Jack Johnson, the pugilist, in training, and other films, all of which were well received. The resident-manager is Mr. Fred J. Reece.

SOCIETÀ ITALIANA "CINES," LTD., ROME.—The Società Italiana "Cines" has just completed the reorganisation of the establishment for the production of cinematograph films, under the direction of Mr. Carlo Rossi, who has furnished the company with his perfect machinery. In a few days the "Cines" Co. will open a branch in London at Dacre House, Arundel-street, Strand, W.C. for the sale of their new productions, which will be of fine photographic quality, and the subjects most original and interesting.

THE "Cines" Co. intends to put on the market, regularly, dramatic, historical, and comic subjects, which have been arranged by well-known authors and carried out by first-class artists of Rome and Paris, and will be produced amidst the beautiful, natural, and romantic scenery for which Italy is famous. The firm will do no hiring.

Sheffield Winter Fair.

CHRISTMASTIDE and New Year are great popular festivals in Steelopolis. As far as the somewhat limited space at the command of the Corporation permits, there is always a big fair at Christmas time. This year the big shows were Messrs. Farrar and Tyler's two superb cinematograph theatres, and a similar concern (the Palace of Delight, Mr. John Proctor, proprietor); Pattison's mechanical promenade was a big attraction, and most deservedly so, for a show that won the public patronage on merit alone.

SHEFFIELD FAIR is always rich in its array of machine novelties. These included motor-car sets by Messrs. J. W. Waddington, G. T. Tuby, W. H. Marshall, Hull and Proctor, Gavan, Shaw, Amos, and Williams. The other novelties provided were shooting jungles, rifle ranges, and batteries, by Lieske, Burton, Lever, Bentley and Richards; houp la circles and stalls by Johnson, Shaw, Peters, Smith, Illingworth, and Calver; throwing games and cokers by Burgess, Doubtfire, Illingworth, Johnson, Ashcroft, Livey, Steward, Fawcett, and Middlebrook.

Bolton New Year Fair.

A BIG success in every way was this fair. The principal shows and machines were Kemp's, Payne's, Clark's, and Norman's cinematograph theatres; Sedgwick's and Chipperfield's menageries; T. Wortley's two side-shows; Pattison's mechanical promenade; Braham's temple of magic; West's midget ponies; Blakey's mystic shows; P. Collins's haunted castle and Brooklyn cakewalk machine; the machines of the Mitchell family, the Holden family; and the single-sets of John Green and John Whiting; George Cornwell, Mrs. John Cornwell, Holmes, Sedgwick, Jewell, and Hughes and Martin provided shooting ranges; and Messrs. Shuttleworth and Holmes, juvenile roundabouts.

No doubt the tremendous popularity of roller skating at the present time, along with the fact that there is to be a roller skating championship, in which £400 is offered in prizes, has turned the thoughts of speculation towards the possibilities of a roller skating rink as a money-making proposition. As this craze is but a periodical one, quick action must be taken in the opening of a new rink, and the purchase of roller skates is one of the first items that demand consideration. To the man who intends starting a rink the immediate delivery of a good quantity of roller skates is an imperative matter. It is interesting to note, therefore, that Messrs. Brown Brothers, Ltd., of Great Eastern-street, E.C., carry a large stock of roller skates, and are thus in a position to supply any quantities immediately. Their stock includes the well-known Winslow-Union, and other makes, in all sizes.

PERHAPS the most remarkable fact in connection with the great success that has been achieved by the mammoth skating rink at Olympia is that the patronage bestowed upon it has shown a gradual and steady increase numerically ever since the day it was first opened. In proof of this it may be mentioned that last Monday the figures touched a record, for no fewer than 7,763 passed through the turnstiles on that day. This is truly an eloquent proof of the wonderful popularity now attained by this popular pastime.

THE next event of importance will be a skating Cinderella on the evening of Tuesday, Jan. 19. On this occasion it will be necessary for all skaters to appear in regulation evening dress, and a "barn-yard" carnival, a complete novelty in this country, will be held at Olympia on Feb. 2.

THE first Fancy Dress Skating Carnival of the season will be held at the Crystal Palace on Wednesday evening next. Judging will take place at eight, after which Professor Powell will give a cakewalk on skates. Subsequently there will be a march past of all the competitors, and the awards and prizes will be distributed. Prizes will be given to ladies and gentlemen for the most handsome, most original, and advertisement and comical costumes. Prizes will also be given to boys and girls.

THE Skating Gymkhana at the Crystal Palace will be held on Saturday next. The events will include a one-mile handicap, wheelbarrow, hurdle, obstacle, and sack races, and musical chairs. Competitors' entrance will be free.

MR. EDITOR,—SIR,—In your notice of Fun City, Bath, in yesterday's Era you say: "The band is that well-known combination the 'Scarlet Ladies' Orchestra.'" The statement is incorrect, as it is my "Poppy" orchestra that is playing there.—Yours faithfully, W. WATSON, 14, Gladstone-terrace, Brighton, Jan. 3, 1909.

A CAPITAL game of rink hockey between Goys' and Sylvans was witnessed by a very large crowd at the Crystal Palace on Saturday. Mr. Green, the rink superintendent, was the referee. The result was a win for Goys' by three goals to two.

Owing to the extraordinary success of this production in the country, as shown by its enthusiastic welcome at this week, together with the splendid Notices and business done,
MURRAY KING AND CLARK
will prolong their Original Tour.

WANTED, Feb. 15, March 1, and onwards, to Easter; also Autumn dates, starting Aug. 2 Apply, KING, Devonshire Park T., Eastbourne.

Hull Daily News says: Seldom has the Theatre Royal resounded with more boisterous laughter than it did last night, when Mr. Murray King and company presented "Toddles." The play was exquisitely staged.
Eastern Morning News says: "Toddles" is screamingly funny. He provokes laughter throughout the play, and there are times, after a long spell of continuous side-wracking, when it is positively a relief to have him off the stage. But he is soon on again, and the smiles quickly develop into convulsive laughter. The play is quite as funny as a pantomime. Mr. King is an ideal Toddles; no one who really enjoys a good laugh should miss seeing him. He has been with us before, but we shall remember him as Toddles.

WANTED, Wanted, Known,
Sir,—
I inserted an advertisement, asking for Music Hall Artists in the last week's issue of "The Era." May I say that I am absolutely astounded at the number of replies I received to my small advertisement, no less than 270 Artists favouring me with applications. May I by this means thank the many artists who sent in their terms, as it is impossible for me to reply to each individual. I thank all for their very kind promptitude in responding to my advertisement.
I remain, yours faithfully,
ALFRED BALL.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. B. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON, Empire Palace, Leeds.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER, The Empire, Liverpool.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to n ote that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.

Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR ALL THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to Co-operative Offices, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled.

IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities.

ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

The Hit at the National Theatre was made by a National Song.

WILKIE BARD'S Drury Lane RIOT!

"PUT ME UPON AN ISLAND WHERE THE GIRLS ARE FEW."

What the Press says:—

The Weekly Dispatch:—Mr. Wilkie Bard is discovered sleeping peacefully among a pile of fabrics in the Alderman's shop. He wakes up, and sings a "catchy" Suffragette song, which threatens to be one of the popular ditties of the ensuing year. Its refrain is:—

Put me upon an island where the girls are few,
Put me amongst the most ferocious lions of the Zoo;
You can put me upon the treadmill and I'll never, never fret,
But for pity's sake don't put me near a Suffragette.

It is one of those haunting refrains that we know are going to be an obsession.

The Daily Mail:—Mr. Wilkie Bard has two great songs in the piece. "Put me upon an Island" he plaintively asks in the first, and he repeats its refrain with all the more fervour when he is surrounded by a band of violent ladies, for they give good reason to sing, "But don't put me near a Suffragette."

The Umpire:—But his Suffragette song is a gem.

The Daily Mirror:—Two of his songs get as much applause each as anything else in the Panto. One is about Votes for Women, "Put me upon an Island where the Girls are few."

The Daily Express:—One of his songs, "Put me upon an Island where the Girls are few," was rendered with rare and great comic restraint.

And a host of other notices too numerous to mention.

CHOOSING HER FIANCÉ.

Code Word, "FRICASSEE."

BY MR. DANIEL RICHE.

Miss Mabel hesitates between three suitors, equally rich, well-bred, and agreeable. She says that she will choose the one who accomplishes for her sake the most uncommon feat. One of them, a tall, strong man, jumps from the top of a six-storey house, and lands safely in the street. The second has an aeroplane flight, and he beats the long-distance record. The third gentleman starts in a motor-car, wondering the while how he could win Mabel's love. He sees on the road a poor old beggar and his little grand-daughter in tears. This so moves him that he carries them to the hospital, where they will be cared for; and his kind heart wins him the day.

RIP'S INHERITANCE.

Code Word, "FRICHE."

BY MADAME MAXIME VILLEMAR.

Acted by Messrs. Desfontaines and Chelles, and Mme. Gabrielle Fleury, of the Odéon Theatre, Paris.

Rip is the sole heir to a colonel, who, before answering the last call, pins his will inside the dog's collar. The poor animal, having been turned out of the house by an unkind butler, wanders about the streets dejectedly until a little boy, having pity on him, takes Rip home with him. The two are good friends, and they share each other's pleasures; but one day the dog is stolen by an individual who thinks he will receive a shilling from the police for bringing them a "stray dog." Rip breaks away, however, and arrives home just as his masters receive the news that they will be sold up, for they are poor folk, and the head of the family is an invalid. The porter's wife tries to send the dog away, for such animals are not allowed in the house, but the boy clasps his friend's collar, which snaps in his hands, thus discovering the will that will stop the distraint. The heir, not being of age, his benefactors will enjoy the fortune and pet him as much as they can.

GOOD FRIENDS.

Code Word, "FOURNAISE."

Mrs. Bond and Mrs. Share meet in a shop, and exchange their usual greetings and bits of gossip. They buy, unknown to each other, the same kind of material, and choose the same fashion for their new dresses. When Mrs. Bond realises that her gown is exactly like that of her friend, she sobs loudly and trampies on the unlucky garment. Her old lady's-maid picks up the limp thing, and makes herself a present of it. Presently Mrs. Bond receives from Mrs. Share an invitation to tea, and a brilliant idea strikes her. Her old maid will go, with the new dress on, and Mrs. Bond will enjoy herself. And so she does when she sees poor Mrs. Share a prey to hysterics on perceiving the old maid, who looks a perfect grotesque copy of herself.

CATCHING CROCODILES.

Code Word, "EXTRAIT."

An interesting scene of South African life. Half-naked savages, perched on trees along the river, shoot the crocodiles with European guns. Then they tow them on shore, and have them carried on camels' backs to their village, where they perform wild dances as a sign of rejoicing for the capture of the huge animals.

THE BEWITCHED MANOR HOUSE.

Code Word, "FREGATE."

Princess Berthilde, who lived in the Middle Ages, was a godchild of the Elf Queen. A malevolent spirit changed the princess and her servants into hideous monsters for having trespassed on his dominions. The Queen had known for a long time that it would happen thus, adding that the enchantment would cease with the arrival of a young prince at the manor, who would vanquish the evil spirit; and truly it happened as she had foretold. The Knight of Marjoram and his faithful servant came one night, and found the manor-house empty but for the elaborate dishes which flew about, but never within reach. At last the spirit appeared, with its suite, and the knight killed it, while Berthilde and her servants changed back to their former selves. The prince and the princess were afterwards married as a reward for Sir Majoram's gallant deed.

THE LOCK-KEEPER'S DAUGHTER.

Code Word, "FISSURE."

During a walk along the river a husband pushes the man he considers as his rival into the water. At the lock the keeper's daughter, seeing the drifting body of the drowning man, swims to his rescue and helps him to the bank. Tended and cared for in the humble home, the young man realises when the hour comes for him to leave such a restful shelter that he loves the girl who has saved his life, and the end of the story is that he marries her.

THE LEGEND OF THE FORGET-ME-NOT.

Code Word, "FRIMOUSSE."

A note is slipped into Rosine's hand while out in the wood with her old aunt. This makes her watch at her window on her return for her sweetheart, the dashing guardsman. Mrs. Greedy, the aunt, having surprised the two exchanging a few words, the boy runs away, and collides with an old marquis coming to court the girl. Mrs. Greedy is sweet on the old man's money, but nothing can make Rosine give up Philip, and the young people decide on eloping together. They have the start, but, instead of putting a greater distance between them and their pursuers, they stop to pick flowers along the river. Their enemies, arriving behind them by surprise, Philip is so astonished that he loses his balance and falls into the water, which ripples a little, and now large patches of forget-me-nots cover the place of the accident and form the words "Forget-me-not."

A TROUBLESOME TWITCHING.

Code Word, "FLECHE."

Mr. Rude in this story is afflicted with the awkward habit of putting out his tongue when he least wants to. On his way to a specialist he gets into trouble for putting out his tongue in the face of everybody. After a few magnetic passes the man of science commands him not to indulge in this pastime again, but Mr. Rude must be a refractory subject, for he now shows his tongue more often than ever.

THE FISHERMAN'S FIANCÉE.

Code Word, "FACADE."

The villain here never thought that a madwoman would end his life so suddenly, when trying to carry away her daughter, a young girl of the coast, after securely fastening on to a rock her fiancée, a stout Norman lad; and this is just what occurred, for the mother had enough reason left in her to understand that the good-for-nothing townsman was trying to force her to do something which was not to her liking. Now that the young couple are rid of the "gentleman" they feel more happy, for they realise that the shadow of a crime does not come between them.

TRAGICAL ENDING TO A SHROVE TUESDAY.

Code Word, "FIL."

It is to be hoped that small bickerings between members of a family will rarely end in the same way as this did. Mr. Rave, meaning to have a good time, goes to the masked ball, leaving his wife at home; but the lady is suspicious, and she also betakes herself to the ball. Seeing that her husband is flirting with a masked girl she approaches the young lady and makes love to her, for it must be said that Mrs. Rave had disguised herself in man's attire. On his return Mr. Rave means to punish the impudent young man, and, after hastily summoning the witnesses, he unwittingly kills his own wife, whom he has mistaken all the time for a boy.

and put you in the way of getting it. This business run by

BRAINS AND ABILITY,

not by an unlimited amount of public invested capital. We do not read all the advertisements in the papers and pick out the best lines, as others do. We do not send round to our opponents to learn how to conduct our business. We know

THE ENGINES OF THE CAR ARE KNOCKING AGAIN.

Why have not some of our opponents used our motto

SLEEP EASY IN YOUR BEDS?

Because they have not.

THE DREADNOUGHT,

The finest Bioscope in the market.

You must agree with us that

THE BEST IS NOT TOO GOOD FOR YOU.

Then why not go where you can obtain it? Success does not inflate our heads. We are accustomed to it? We do not go round to showmen with our hats in our hands, saying, "Please, sir, cannot we supply you. We are very big people," but have built up our present enormous business from the recommendations of showmen we have served so well in the past. We do not cut prices to obtain new customers, give them a fine programme for a week or so, and then say, "Anything will do for them now."

WE ALWAYS GIVE YOU THE BEST.

EXTRAORDINARY RESULT

FROM AN ADVERTISEMENT.

Dear Sir,—I inserted an advertisement last week in "The Era" advertising Messrs. Barney and Berry's celebrated Phantom Skates. You may guess my satisfaction at the successful result of my speculating in your advertisement columns when I tell you that I have sold no less than 2,700 pairs of these Skates, the sale of which I directly trace to the advertisement in the last issue of "The Era." Yours faithfully,

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERAMAN.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr H. Jackson Withers.—Miss Marie Dagmar's company opened here to a crowded house on Monday. Miss Dagmar gave a fine interpretation of Tisbe; Mr. Roy Fortescue submitted a powerful performance of Angelo; the rôle of Lady Katherine was sustained with excellent effect by Miss Margaret Frame; Mr. Carthage Caldcleugh furnished a capital study of Homodei; and Mr. Ed. E. Louis gave a vigorous and effective performance of Rudolph. Miss Lallah Shelton was good as Eulie, and much fun was caused by the efforts of Mr. Frank Etheridge as Victor and Mr. Tom J. Taylor as Nobbo.

ABERDEEN.—H. M. THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The Prodigal Son, as admirably played by Mr. George D. Day's company, draws crowded houses this week. That powerful actor Mr. Albert Ward gives a splendid impersonation of Oscar Stephenson; Mr. Alfred Goddard makes a manly Magnus; Miss Dorrie Roberts is excellent both as Thora and Elin; and Miss Pearl Gardner as Helga Neilsen portrays with much skill the part of the villainess of the drama. All the other characters are capably represented.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Mr. Fred Karno's company appears in a delightful musical farce, The Dandy Thieves, which is rapturously applauded from start to finish. The cast includes some very able comedians, among them Mr. George Hester as Sergeant Lightning; Mr. Ernest Freshwater as Lord Easem, alias Flash Jack; and Mr. Charles Usher as the Universal Provider; while Lady Maud is most vivaciously impersonated by Miss Aggie Morris. Mr. Fred Earle, comedian, is very popular; the Vays produce a deeply-interesting slum scena; Hewett and May appear with success in a novel musical act; Ellis and Ellis dance and sing admirably; and Mr. Reg. Beauchamp shows a good deal of promise as a comedian.

ALHAMBRA MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. John Sinclair.—The company for the week includes such popular favourites as Cambo, the "man monkey," a capital instrumentalist and ventriloquist; Miss Jennie Stuart, a vocalist of talent; and Mr. R. F. Roberts, a good comedian and remarkably expert one-legged dancer. A deeply-interesting hour's entertainment by cinematograph is given by Mr. Kennedy.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Managers, Messrs. R. Calder and C. Montague.—A bright and attractive spectacle, Peggy's Birthday Party, continues to run with unflagging success, and, in addition to other artists, those exceedingly popular entertainers, Miss Marie Rose, comedienne and dancer; Mr. Jack Marson, vocalist and raconteur; and Mr. Archie Murray, coon comedian, are included in the company. Mr. Calder's cinematograph display is well worth the seeing.

ABERTILLERY.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. J. Seaborn.—Mr. Frank M. Thorne's company in The Woman Pays had a warm welcome on Monday. Mr. Frank M. Thorne, the author of the piece, handles the part of Mickey Maloney in a capable manner; Mr. Phil Harper gives a fine impersonation of Sid Armstrong; Roger Marchant finds a competent exponent in Mr. J. Davidson; Madge Armstrong is ably portrayed by Miss Maud Russell; and Miss Kate Blair contributes a pleasing study of Nell Morland; Mr. Beresford Innes is successful as Cyrus Treadgold; Luke Morland is satisfactorily presented by Mr. Dunlop Stewart; Miss Anena Walton is a humorous Polly Stokes; and Miss Florence Thorne a successful Tabitha.

THE PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs. E. and H. Tilney; Manager, Mr. E. Pryce.—Miss Harriet Greet's company is here in The Sign of the Cross. Mr. Leonard Yorke gives a clever interpretation of Marcus; Miss Hazel Dent makes an ideal Mercia; Nero finds a capable exponent in Mr. Edward Clowes; the parts of Tigellinus and Licinius receive justice from Mr. G. Osmond Tearle and Mr. Rupert Carlton respectively; Glabrio is capitally portrayed by Mr. Donald McAdams; Miss Effie Dane is successful as Stephanus; Berenice is presented effectively by Miss Florence Maber; and Favius and Titus are played impressively by Mr. G. Edwardes and Mr. W. Parkin.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company are presenting The Power of the Cross here this week. Mr. George A. De Gray submits a powerful impersonation of Baron Curzola; Mr. Robert Hall ably sustains the part of Gerald Fairfax; and Mr. Alexandra J. Haviland's portrayal of the brother, Dr. Leslie Fairfax, is deserving of the highest praise; Mr. Gilson Brooke is very successful as the banker, David Kingsley; Mr. T. Bowron is an effective Benjamin Hawke; and Mr. Tyrone Power was extremely amusing as Timothy O'Dowd; Miss Annie Hylton portrays with telling effect the rôle of Margaret Seaton; Miss Stella Carmichael gives considerable proof of ability as Rita Lascelles; Miss Phyllis Vaughan plays with charm and feeling as Blanche; and Miss Etta Turner makes a vivacious Dolly Gray. The play is admirably staged.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Heading the bill here is Francis Gerard, the Herculean juggler, who manipulates cannon balls, shells, &c., with marvellous dexterity; Coram, the popular ventriloquist, is deservedly applauded; Bert Tyrell, Tyrolean vocalist, is much appreciated; and the Sisters Trentanovi are responsible for a most graceful transformation gymnastic act; Sidder and Dunbar, in a comedy musical act, prove entertaining; Probyn and Bates appear with success in their comedy skit, The Dude and the Soubrette; Alex. Kennedy scores as an actor-vocalist; Mr. and Mrs. Shelly in a refined comedy duologue supply much amusement; and some interesting films on the Bioscope conclude.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Gladwin.—The Girl with the Angel Face—a drama that is claimed to have connection with the Druce mystery—is a change from a good run of comedy. Mr. H. Naylor Grimston impersonates the Squire with ability, whilst as old Jasper Death Mr. F. J. Evison proves himself a clever character actor. Miss Mildred Carr is a buxom and blythe Mollie; Miss Phyllis Dailley portrays the rôle of Ena with suitably pathetic results, and shows capable acting; Miss Florrie Green in the title-rôle combines youthfulness and wickedness as the conspiring temptress, and works hard; Mr. Austin Mortimer plays the conventional villain Arkwright with fair results; whilst as the clergyman Mr. Dobell Lyle is excellent. Messrs. Guy Routh, Dicky Bird, J. L. Mann, and others in small parts do well. The drama is effectively staged and dressed.

ARBROATH.—ARBROATH THEATRE.—Mr. Lawrence Brough and a talented company appeared here on the evenings of Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, in the farcical comedy The Lady of Ostend. As Matilda Carbury Miss Bessie Harrison looked and played the part of Dick's mother-in-law to perfection; Miss Maud Buchanan played with becoming dignity the part of the seemingly-injured wife; Dick Wortles found an able exponent in Mr. Aubrey Cheshire; Tom Mowbray made a very amiable father-in-law; the Baron de Longueville was cleverly acted by Mr. Lawrence Brough—it was a smart and careful bit of acting; and Mr. Watkin Wynne looked every inch the prizefighter in the part of Toby Knockitt. The other parts were in good hands.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—With the withdrawal of the pantomime, in consequence of prior arrangements, we have a week of drama, with Mr. Frank Lindo and company in Home, Sweet Home. Mr. Lindo sustains the part of Stephen Armitage, a young fisherman, with great ability; Miss Marion Wakeford gives a sympathetic interpretation of Joan; Mr. D. Lawrence Doyle is really excellent as David Armitage; as the unscrupulous Private Secretary Mr. Leo R. Neilson is an adept at delineating those shades of human character which are opposed to all the virtues; Mr. Norton Shields does good work as the Duke of Ancaster; and Mr. Richd. Walsh is well fitted to delineate the varied passions which are paramount in Dick Redmayne the fisher lad.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Burslem.—The fairy pantomime Cinderella, produced by Mr Sidney Cooper and the Tally-ho Trio, is being produced here. Miss Jessica Brooke is a dainty little Miss, light of foot and sweet of voice, as Cinderella. She sings and dances well. Miss Madge Daly as Prince Charming has plenty of the necessary dash in manner and vivacity and boldness; Miss May Maddison is also a good Dandini; Mr. Harry C. Momber is really comical as the Baron's Page; Mr. Gus Drake is Lord Verisoft; and Messrs. Newham and Latimer as the Ugly Sisters do some amusing business in a very original and diverting manner; Baron Doonaught (Mr. Eric Farr) and Graham and Ceesam (Mr. Wm. Doust and Earle Chaste) are Brokers' Men, but the three named form the Tally-ho Trio, and give examples of tuneful harmony; Miss Ida Scott is a dainty Fairy Godmother.

THE NEW PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. Owen.—The week's bill at the Pavilion offers amusement as well as instruction. The animated pictures are numerous and choice, and for the most part the films illustrate some amusing incident. The artists for vaudeville interludes are the popular Merrions in vocal, instrumental, and comedy business; Mr. Sidney Brandon, character delineator, gives some impersonations; the original Roxbys, Phil and Kitty, are also in the bill.

THE PICTUREDROME.—Lessees, Messrs. Weisker Bros.; Manager, Mr. James Marks.—The Picturedrome lessees and the manager, Mr. Marks, have achieved something smart in the reproduction of films of the late earthquake at Messina and Calabria. The spectacle is awe-inspiring. The firm's photographer did his work expeditiously, and the messenger arrived at Liverpool on Monday, and the films were shown on the screen at the Picturedrome in the evening.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manageress, Miss Ethel J. Hope.—Mr. Frederick Melville's play The Ugliest Woman on Earth is being presented by an excellent and well-balanced company. Mr. Philip Darien gives a forceful and finished rendering of the part of Jack Merriman; Mr. Leyton Cancellor proves himself a capable actor as Hubert Gold; a good character sketch is given by Mr. Leonard Thackeray as Antonio Luchesi; comedy has an able exponent in Mr. William De Brigord as Tom Redvers; Miss Beatrice Homer in the title-rôle has a trying and difficult part, which she sustains in admirable style, and scores an emphatic success; Miss Violet Macaree as Morita, Miss Nellie Jackson as Aggie Brown, and Miss Gertrude Harrison as Rose Courtenay are very good in their respective parts; a word of praise is due to Mr. Harry Leyton as Raggles; and Mr. Gerald Nolan as Dr. Carr. The play is admirably mounted, and under the stage-direction of Mr. Leonard Thackeray. Mr. Leyton Cancellor is general-manager of the company.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry Sanders.—A most interesting feature of this week's programme here is described by the wideawake management as a Trial Turn Carnival, open to all who have never had a week's salaried engagement at any music hall. Several valuable prizes are offered, and the first-prize winner will have the option of several weeks' engagements at Mr. Edwardes' various halls. There are numerous entries, and some really good talent has been found. In addition the following appear: Chant and Chant (lady and gentleman), in refined and pleasing comedy duologue and dance; Mr. Ben Jackson, expert banjoist; the Ringling Trio, in speciality act; the Sisters Todd-Buller, vocalists and dancers; Mr. Charles Lloyd, comedian; Miss Cissie Barwick, descriptive vocalist; Mr. Edgar Forrest and company in sketch Oh! My Mother; Miss Vera Guyon, vocalist and dancer; and Mr. Clayton's pictures, The Guardsman's Bride.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—This week the theatre is occupied by a company of Messrs. Buchanan and Stevens in Jack the Giant Killer. Miss Madge Allen as Jack makes a sprightly and vivacious "boy," and as the heroine Miss Lillian Errol is splendid. They have admirable support from a capable company, and the knockabout business is a prominent feature in the show.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood.—Mr. Allan Wilkie's company is paying a welcome return visit here this week, and on Monday played The Merchant of Venice. Mr. Wilkie gave a powerful rendering of Shylock, and Mr. Alexander Marsle as Bassanio met with a good reception; Miss Haidee Gunn was an effective representative of Portia; Mr. John Paley as Antonio and Mr. Ernest Digges as Lorenzo both acquitted themselves creditably; Mr. Jan Fleming was humorous as Lancelot Gobbo; and Miss Hunter Watts as Jessica well sustained the character. The Sleigh Bells, Julius Cæsar, Macbeth, Hamlet, and Othello are also billed.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Butterflies opened here on Monday, and was immediately popular. Mr. Harrison Brockbank as Puck gets through his heavy part with great success, his singing and acting being alike excellent; Mr. Edwin H. Wynne as Christopher Podmore is a distinct success; Mr. Johnnie Wilkinson as Yarker is full of quaint humour; the Peter of Mr. Alan Mudie is bright and sparkling; and Mr. Cyril Biddulph is well placed as Max Risdore. Miss Annie Heenan as Rodanthe is really bewitching; Miss Lilian Wesson's Elsie Podmore is full of life; and Miss Ada Davidson suits the part of Mrs. Dora Podmore to perfection. The dances are beautifully arranged and the choruses rendered in an admirable manner.

HIS MAJESTY'S.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Two Little Vagabonds is paying a welcome return visit here. Mr. George Denham—a satisfactory George Thornton—is supported in a clever manner by Miss Leonora Castille as Marion Thornton; Miss May Hart as Dick and Miss Josie Beltram as Wally are sympathetic.

TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—A capital programme here includes the Russian Imperial troupe, the Meuters, Sybil Montague, the Rangers, George James, and Vernon's Bioscope.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Owners and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ralph D. Fenton.—Some very fine and up-to-date pictures are drawing capital houses here.

BARRY DOCK.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden.—The Diver's Luck, presented by Mr. Andrew Emm's company, attracted a good house here on Monday. Mr. Harry Cullenford as Martin Faber is capable; Mr. Fred A. Marston as Barny Bown and Miss Pearl Noyle as Peggy prove effective in their respective parts; Mr. Wm. J. Miller gives a clever study of Tom Hall; Mr. Joe Rowland as Snowball is highly amusing; Maurice Wingate is ably depicted by Mr. C. Osborne; Helen Wingate is cleverly portrayed by Miss Dora Pass; Miss Kate Haslewood and Mr. Clifford Hamilton show to advantage as Daffodil and Bolter respectively.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Pantomime is holding sway here this week, Mr. J Bannister Howard having transferred from Cheltenham his production of The Forty Thieves. There is plenty of fun throughout, for which Mr. A. G. Spry (Ali Baba), Mr. Paddy Dupres (Mrs. Ali Baba), and Mr. Len Loan (the Donkey) are mainly responsible. Cassim is enacted by Mr. Chas. A. East, who also undertakes the arduous duties of stage-management successfully. Miss Nellie Barnwell is a sprightly Morgiana; a dashing Abdallah is found in Miss Olive Astor; and Miss Josie Farrington makes an engaging Ganem. Two ladies who put plenty of life into their work and can dance cleverly are the Misses Elsie and Mabella May as Hassan and Zebedia. There are a number of smaller parts and a large chorus, who do their evolutions with smartness. Mr. Hubert Bozetti is the musical director, and Mr. Herbert Austin looks after the front, in conjunction with Mr. L. A. Long, the local acting-manager.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Crowds are being drawn here this week to witness Minerva in her mysterious water-barrel trick, a performance that baffles all as to its solution. An illusion that equally puzzles the audience is that introduced by Venturini, entitled Daos. Kennard also bewilders by his clever conjuring; Lily Luraine plays upon a number of brass instruments in a way far above the average; Cosgrove and Burns, in their vocal and comedy act The Singing Academy, cause plenty of merriment; Mamie Morris, dancer and baton manipulator, finds favour; Chass Lewis proves himself a first-rate ventriloquist; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are always watched with interest.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Howes.—The Columbia Animated Picture Co. opened a return visit here on Monday last, a capital up-to-date exhibition of films.

BATLEY.—THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Whitty; Manager, Mr. Alfred A. Taylor.—Mr. Fred Granville's company opened here on Monday with Aladdin, a bright, entertaining production, full of fun and go, with tuneful music, capital scenery, pretty dresses, smart dancing, and popular songs. The company is one of all-round merit. Miss Minnie D'Aubyn as Aladdin is an attractive and capable principal boy, and Miss Belle Brocade is equally dainty and successful as Princess Badroulbadour. In the funny business Mr. Happy Attwood as the Dame scores heavily, providing endless amusement, and he is ably supported by Harley and Hardon as the Pekin Policemen. Others who meet with success are Miss Ethel Dunville, who makes an excellent Prince Pekoe, Miss Gladys Wells as Radia, Mr. Harry Kirk as Abanazar, Mr. Harry Keeble as Wun Lung, Mr. Herbert Lewis as the Emperor of China, and Mr. Harry Huttin as Wishee Washee.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Pantomime is this week followed by comic opera in the shape of The Dandy Fifth, which is admirably presented by the company of Mr. Clarence C. Corri. The cast is a strong one, and includes Mr. Percy Baverstock, whose impersonation of the "peppery" colonel is much appreciated. Mr. Arthur Radcliffe as Dick Darville gives an excellent performance; Mr. Charles Sims creates roars of merriment as Sergt.-Major Milligan; and Mr. Coningsby Brierley as Trooper Brown is remarkably versatile, and deserves the applause bestowed on him. Mr. Jack Robinson is capital as Sir Victor; Kate Lorimer finds an able exponent in Miss Una Palmer. Miss Nora Morra acts with verve as Polly; and Miss Maud Nichols as Mrs. Von Blitzen and Miss Dorothy Clarke as Antoinette are well suited.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. Seymour Hicks's company opened here on Monday in the musical comedy, The Gay Gordons. In the rôle of Angus Graeme, Mr. Stanley Brett was exceedingly humorous and decidedly smart; the rôle is one that fits Mr. Brett like the proverbial glove, and he kept the fun going merrily. A more delightful impersonation of Peggy Quainton than that furnished by Miss Maie Ash could not be desired, and she sang all her songs with the greatest effect; as the old showman, Nervy Nat, Mr. E. Statham Staples was simply inimitable, and there was not a dull moment while he was on the stage; the rôle of Edmund Siddons was funnily interpreted by a droll comedian, Mr. George Carroll; as Victoria Siddons Miss Lily Maxwell sang and danced with much acceptance; and the rôle of Charlotte Siddons was filled with conspicuous success by Miss Nellie Dade; as Archibald Speedy Mr. George Paulton was capital; and admirable impersonations of Andrew Quainton and Viscount Dalesbury were furnished by Messrs. Ernest Torrance and Edward Leith; Miss Ida Mann was charming as Janet M'Leod; and other characters were excellently sustained by Miss Connie St. Clare and Messrs. Paul Plunket, G. Dewey Gibson, W. Norman, and F. Adair. The specially augmented orchestra was under the skilful direction of Mr. K. Ernest Irving.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—Third week of Mr. Fred W. Warden's pantomime, Jack and Jill, and no abatement of patronage. Mr. Geo. Lashwood's songs, rendered by this capital comedian in his own inimitable style, are nightly cheered to the echo; while Mr. John A. Warden's topical song, "What a terrible thing it would be," with new and up-to-date verses, has been frequently encored; Miss Dorothy Ward has many admirers, and is always certain of a terrific reception. The pantomime concludes next Saturday, 23rd inst., when it will be transferred to the Theatre Royal, Dublin, for five weeks.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fred Willmott and Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—Mr. Harry Roxbury's pantomime Mother Goose is in the last week of its engagement here. The piece has been most successful, and no wonder, as it is most amusing. The comedians, Messrs. Harry Roxbury, J. W. Gallagher, Fred Hutchings, &c., are simply inimitable in their various rôles. Haley's Juveniles also appear, and their carnival scena has been received with acclamation nightly.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The Saxon Trio top the bill here, and amidst much excitement introduce their thrilling act, entitled The Living Bridge, in which they support a full-sized bridge while a motor-car full of people passes over it; a very pleasing performance is provided by the Strolling Players, whose act is an acquisition to any programme; Angelina's juggling feats are quite amazing; Les Voces sing with much taste and expression; and Leo Tell's mimicry of animals would, indeed, be difficult to excel; also here are Miss Frances Hanlon, comedienne; Stacey and Williams in their comedy act; and the Bioscope.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. William White.—This old-established theatre continues to draw large audiences with moving pictures. In addition Pueblo and Cropp, comedians, and Mr. Dan Henry, acrobatic comedian, appear with success.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Robert Wilson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—Pictures are also a feature of the programme here. Madame Isa Aitken, Scottish contralto, renders songs in pleasing style; and Mr. W. J. McNeice's Irish songs and dances have afforded much pleasure.

CLIFTONVILLE HALL.—General-Manager, Col. Fred T. Cummins.—The popularity of roller skating here remains undiminished, and Col. Cummins is ever on the alert for novelties to please his host of patrons.

BILSTON.—NEW ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson; Business Manager, Mr. S. Hadakiss Dawson.—Mr. Douglas Bruce's company is here with The Girl Who Lost Her Character, which meets with popular approval. Mr. K. McLean depicts the upright, manly young parson, Robert Everton, in an admirable manner, and Mr. Richard Ferris is equally successful with the opposite character of Captain Caversham. Miss Cecelia Dare, Miss Lydia Mannington, and Miss Cherry Veheyne render excellent service in their respective parts. The scenery is exceptionally fine.

DRILL HALL.—This house is occupied for a week by the Anglo-American Animated Picture Company, together with Mr. Will Hunter, singing ventriloquist.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—A fine performance of the musical play Miss Hook of Holland, given by Mr. George Dance's principal company, is filling the house nightly with large and fashionable audiences. Anything better than the rendering of Mr. Hook by Mr. Alfred Wellesley is seldom seen, and it is gratifying to observe that the sterling merit of the effort is thoroughly appreciated. Mr. Fred Lyne, a comedian of the first water, gives a humorous and clever portraiture of Simon Slink; Mr. Frank Crimp brings exceptional vocal and histrionic powers to bear upon the part of the bandmaster, Van Voyt; and Mr. Walter Balfour is well suited as Captain Paap. Miss Gertie Melville wins all hearts by a spirited and charming assumption of the title-rôle, giving her various songs with delightful grace and verve; Miss Cissy Sefton as Mina, participates largely in the success of the evening; and Miss Tattie Leonard is a commendable Gretchen. Mr. George Mudie, jun. as Ludwig Schnapps, and Mr. Tom Robertson as Lieut. de Coop accord valuable assistance. Subordinate parts are all in able hands, and the chorus is numerous and efficient. The piece is admirably staged, and the augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Evelyn Baker.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Mr. Fred Edwards and a capital company, including Miss Bertha Northern, are appearing in a smart sketch, entitled Kleptomaniacs, with distinguished success. The Lyons Trio of dancers and comedians are on a welcome return visit; and Dusty Rhodes, comedian and raconteur, and the Glenroy Troupe, in their terpsichorean entertainment, are renewing previous successes. Miss Daisy Mayer, a talented coon vocalist, is a general favourite. A fine combination also includes Miss May Audrey, vocalist and dancer; Mr. Tony Black, Scotch comedian; Mr. Phil Bransby, coster comedian; and Brown's Royal Bioscope, with some up-to-date pictures.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—A novel and daring cycling act by Wizard and Irene Stone, entitled The Globe of Life, is a strong attraction; and the extraordinary gymnastic feats of the Paul Kramer Troupe are also a leading feature. Elmer Spyglass is a baritone vocalist of ability; and the Five Broadway Girls are smart vocalists and dancers. Miss Marie Glenn, a charming vocalist; Dick Kendall, comedian; Indiana, and the Hippodrome Pictures are also entertaining.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Dick Whittington is drawing townsfolk and country visitors in happy throng, and bids fair to eclipse all previous Royal successes on this subject, which is saying much, for it is one that has in the past furnished this theatre with its greatest triumphs.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Boy Blue has made a hit, and a very palpable hit, too, for the management here, the house being crowded at every performance. Beauty of scene and richness of humour are both conspicuous here.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—Little Red Riding Hood has provided another success for Mr. Collingwood, who always seems to be able to go one better each year. Pretty scenes and merry fun, and, in sooth, large audiences, are the distinguishing features of this year's production.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Girl Who Wrecked His Home has elicited a favourable response here, with Mr. Walter Melville's company. Miss Louise Hampton's portrayal of Bertha Marshall continues to command the deepest sympathy, the suffering and remorse of the unhappy, misguided girl being made most poignant; Mr. Walner Gregory depicts the villainies of Leonard Kenyon in a lurid style; Mr. Fred Goddard repeats his popular impersonation of Jack Marshall, which commands applause at every turn; Miss Winifred Whyte shows a capital conception of the evildoer's rôle, Val Raymond; Miss Lulu Bowes is very charming and acts excellently as Winifred; and Mr. Alfred Richards, Mr. Francis Hope, Mr. Geo. P. Lester, Miss Ida Thompson, and Mr. Herbert Goddard deserve praise.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—Miss Lena Stanton and Mr. Harry Josephs' production of Robinson Crusoe has far exceeded previous pantomime records here, the three weeks allotted it by the management here having proved all too brief for the delighted public of Saltley. Mr. Joseph's production and Miss Stanton's impersonation of the hero, will be remembered with pleasure.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Robertson.—Messrs. Cullen and Carthy's clever and bright production of The Babes in the Wood, from the Smethwick Theatre Royal, is richly enjoyed here. The scenery and dresses are notable for their rare beauty, and Messrs. Cullen and Carthy's humour as the robbers has made the theatre ring with laughter. Miss Bessie Cohen is a tried artist, and her acting is delightfully true to the character of Robin Hood; Miss Ruby Royal is a sweet and melodious Maid Marion; the Babes are paragons as played by the Misses Dolly Cullen and Elsie Jordison; Mr. Arthur Stratton is very comical in his acting as the wicked Uncle; Mr. Tom Drew is an able and very humorous Dame; and there are others, in addition to the clever specialities of Les Belles Americaines, the Melbahs, and Little Clulev, &c.

PALACE THEATRE, BORDESLEY.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—The Midnight Wedding, with Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company, lends its attractions here for this week. Mr. Paumier is of the company, and as the hero, Paul Valmar, keeps the audience in a finely excited state with his dramatic and romantic acting; Miss Yvonne Orchardson as his vis-à-vis, Princess Astrea, is taken into great favour for her really clever acting of the part; Mr. F. Booth Conway shows all the subtlety and villainy of Captain Rudolf, and Mr. A. E. Winnington Barnes is clever in the accompanying rôle, Lieut. Eugene; Messrs. Jas. E. Page, Harry Richardson, and Algie Spalding keep up a goodly supply of humour as the rivals, and Miss Gladys Faunce is a capital support as Kathie.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—Fred Karno's company is proving an attraction here in the farcical absurdity The Football Match. Miss Marquis presents a stud of well-trained horses, whose performance is remarkable; the Sisters Urma display their acrobatic abilities on the trapeze with much skill; Falco and Edia have a smart Japanese act; Nellie Le Breton is applauded for her Dutch songs, as also is Nellie Farrell. The Eight Lancashire Lads and Bert Williams add to the fun of the evening.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—The attraction here is Mr. Van Biene, the well-known actor-musician, who presents The Master Musician, in which his 'cello rendering of "Home, Sweet Home" is repeatedly encored; Albert Whelan does an excellent turn, his imitation of popular music-hall artists is clever; the Weymotts are responsible for a little comedy, Semi-Detached, which is well played; Karl Ransch and Miss Lucie appear in an equestrian act far above the average; and good turns are done by Mina Denvil, the Brothers St. Claire, Dorothy and Alexander, Fred Keeton, and the Cape Girls.

HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Lyons.—Frank L. Gregory and his troupe of hoop rollers are decidedly clever here; the Australian Leslie Brothers' entertainment, Music Mad, is exceedingly funny; Gus Garrick is very popular; the Three Garganis are clever and humorous acrobats.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—The historical sketch Nell Gwynne is being presented here. The company is a good one, the acting all round being excellent. Lady Mansell's Juveniles show great merit; Gus Harris is a well-known Hebrew impersonator; C. H. Carlton has some smart illusions; and Victor Courtney, the Haverleys, Harry Taylor, Maudie Ford, and Heary and Francis complete the company.

ASTON HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton.—George D'Albert and his company present a sketch, It's Never Too Late to Mend, here. It has a firm hold on the audience. Plenty of amusement is caused by This Quartette; the turn is novel and good, and deserves the loud applause that greets it; Marcel and Boris are equilibrists of the first water; Dorothy Watson, who renders her songs at the piano, is warmly applauded; Kenneth and Kenneth have a smart comedy duo; the Brothers Ford are clever dancers; Amy Russell, who has a charming soprano voice, is heard to advantage; the Prinellas, in their farmyard scene, and Fritz Kronaw, the king of whistlers, complete the programme.

KING'S HALL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy.—Mlle. Evino presents a clever and refined trapeze act here, which is applauded; Savino, coloured musician, is highly entertaining; The Road to Life and The Curate's Honeymoon are excellent pictures.

CURZON HALL.—Hamilton's Excursions is drawing large audiences. The entertainment is a good one and thoroughly up to date, especially the pictures of the great earthquake. The panoramic views are magnificent. There is also an entertaining vaudeville programme.

QUEEN'S HALL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy.—This new place of amusement is making rapid strides. George Snow's Minstrels are a capital entertainment, while their sketch Tickle Me is funny. The Red Indian and the Child is an interesting picture story.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is here this week with The Old Folks at Home. Mr. Frank Liston plays the part of Lord Howard Kenilworth in a characteristic manner, and Mr. H. E. Herberte gives a well-studied portrayal of Andrew Ross; Mr. T. G. Vane (Hugh Lovell) and Mr. Arthur Dudley (Jock) are good; Mr. Eugene Santley (Christopher Robin) and Miss Clara Santley (Martha Robin) in the title-rôle present their parts with ability; Mr. Frank Kaffrey is funny as Ben Jolly, and is capably assisted by Miss Maude Grayson as Susan Giles; Miss Kate Frond portrays the part of Patricia Bathurst capably; and Miss Maud Warburton is an effective Dorothy.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The Blackpool Lyric Operatic Society has possession here this week, and under the skilful direction of Mr. E. Thornley Dodge, who is surely the last word as a coach and producer, is playing The Toreador. The theatre is packed at every performance, and ample testimony is shown in the orthodox manner of the audience's appreciation of the performance, which almost entirely redounds to the credit of Mr. Dodge.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner, Mr. T. Sergenson; Responsible Tenant and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—A tabloid version of Sergeant Brue is being given here twice nightly by Mr. Harry Benet's company. Mr. Dennis Lyndon is successful in the title-rôle; and Mr. Quiningborough causes amusement as Crookie Scrubbs. Lady Bickenhall is charmingly represented by Miss Ray Anderson. Messrs. T. S. Warren and Lister Morrah are also good in their respective parts.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—The place of honour in this week's bill is occupied by Fred Eustace and Co. in a clever sketch, entitled The Amber Light. Other contributors are Amerson and Baldwin, American jugglers; Bessie Benson, comedienne; Gwennie Hasto, a pleasing singer and dancer; Arthur Rose, in a vocal scena; Bros. Roland, equilibrists; the Oakes, novelty comedy duo; and Lily Flexmore, aptly described as the extraordinary girl. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope shows pictures of the Messina earthquake.

BOLTON. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.— Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—Mr. Charles Constant's pantomime of Aladdin, which has now entered on its third week, still holds the stage. Miss Lillie Blythe's singing, dancing, and acting in the title-rôle have made her very popular, and the company and production enjoy favour.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—An excellent company is engaged here, chief among whom is La Milo, who gives her beautiful representations of ancient and modern statuary, concluding with her famous impersonation of Lady Godiva, as given in the recent Coventry pageant; T. C. Edwards, Australian baritone; Edie Grey and company, in harmony and dance; Geo. French's troupe of comedy cyclists; the Snow family, grotesque skaters; Martin Henderson, blind English concertina soloist; Edie Veno, eccentric comedienne; the Four Eugenes, in their refined aerial gymnastic stage performance; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—At the head of the programme here are the Piccolinos, "miniature" cyclists, acrobats, dancers, wire-walkers, &c. Other clever turns are Clarice Clarke, character vocalist; Arthur Holland, refined character vocalist; F. A. Nartell, in extraordinary feats as an equilibrist; Austin and Cowan, vocal entertainers; Nance Elder, star comedienne; Alf Penny, comedian; J. Collinson and company, in a sporting sketch, entitled Who's Won?; and the Empire Bioscope.

BOOTLE. — MUNCASTER THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Wilmott; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—Top of the bill this week is a sketch entitled A Wheel of Fortune, played by Mr. Albert Lember and company. Mr. J. P. Carroll proves successful with his wonderful tambourine playing; a refined vocal and musical act is given by the Ellimans; Cliff and Kean gain favour with their dancing, and Pinkie Wilmott, owing to success, remains another week. The programme concludes with a fine series of pictures on the Bioscope.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—Joint Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Clifford King.—James Eadie and Cissie Ramsden, in their smart musical comedy duo Charlie's Visit, win golden opinions; the Hiatts are highly successful in their American comedy musical mélange; the Gilberts give an excellent turn in a smart tight-wire act, and show great agility in their movements; Harry Nation, as a character comedian, comes in for a good share of applause; Hettie Lee, comedienne and dancer, furnishes a very pleasing turn; Cissie Lupino, in a dancing act, keeps the attention of the audience, and deserves the encores she receives; Dex, comedy necromancer, is much appreciated. As usual, the Hippodrome Pictures, up-to-date, conclude the bill.

BOURNEMOUTH. — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, Messrs. David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—A hearty reception awaited Mr. Martin Harvey and his company on Monday, when The Corsican Brothers was presented. This popular actor is at his best in the dual parts, and easily held his audience interested throughout the play, at the close of which he had to respond to calls again and again. Strong support came from Mr. Alford Mansfield, who gave a realistic and carefully-finished study of the villain De Chateau Renaud; Mr. Albert E. Raynor as M. le Baron de Montgiron, Mr. George Cook as M. le Baron Martelle, Mr. C. J. Cameron as M. Favrolles, and Mr. H. Watson as M. Beauchamp were all excellent in their respective parts. Miss N. de Silva gave a clever rendering of Emilie de Lesparre; so did Miss Mary Rorke of Mme. Savilis del Franchi. The Breed of the Treshams is billed for the latter half of the week.

SHAFTESBURY HALL.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Kingston.—Mr. T. J. West's animated pictures are a great attraction, and include subjects of great interest and amusement. Mlle. Nina Lorenza renders piquant songs sung at the piano and tells quaint stories; Miss Annie Knowles' rendition of popular ballads on the tenor trombone should be heard by all.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Mr. Hart's beautiful pantomime Jack and Jill is delighting his patrons, and the company, having settled down to their work, leave absolutely nothing to be desired. Miss Dillon, the principal boy, and Miss Vera Vere, the principal girl, are graceful and full of vim, and Mr. Albert Le Fre, Mr. Jack Cromo, Mr. Charles Norton, and Mr. Josh Dixon are a very popular and versatile quartette of comedians, who elicit very hearty laughter. The beautiful scenery and costumes win unstinted marks of admiration.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Councillor Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—The success of Mr. Laidler's bright and gloriously funny pantomime, Red Riding Hood, is guaranteed. Miss Florrie Forde, as principal boy, has won her way to fame with her popular songs, and she has a charming partner in Miss Susie Belmore, the principal girl. Mr. Bert Byrne and Mr. Will Lindsay are very prominent amongst a hardworking and capable company of comedians, who never fail to keep the fun going. The fine stage effects elicit hearty marks of appreciation.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Limited; Resident Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—The famous Craggs are on a return visit with their remarkable acrobatic display in the funny sketch Billy, New Steward of the Channel Queen. Great applause and laughter greet them. Phil Parsons contributes an acceptable turn as a comedian. In a pantomimical sketch, Aladinette, Miss Mabel Bright (who is assisted by Mr. George Cooper) displays smartness and versatility in her assumption of some half-dozen characters. The Hartley Wonders give a clever exhibition of jumping. As comedians and rhythmic dancers Fayre and Manning are good. Lydia Yeamans (who is assisted at the piano by Frederick Titus) earns applause for her excellent vocalism, and elicits laughter with her clever child mimicry. Maggie Walsh, "the Lancashire singing mill girl," wins appreciation. In a musical mélange the clever Carina Sisters display artistic skill. An intensely dramatic and cleverly-acted protean sketch, Who is Guilty? by Theo Bouwmeester, is very warmly applauded; and there are some fine and stirring pictures shown by the Bioscope.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Mr. Fred Evered, a diverting lady impersonator, and Mr. Frank Sumner, a very fine cultured baritone vocalist, are prominent members of "The Nonentities," an entertaining concert party, which also includes an excellent quartette of vocalists in Miss Counsel, Miss Large, Mr. Oscar Mills, and Mr. Wolsey. Jack Ollive, in a very clever whistling scena, earns well-merited approbation. There is some clever ice-skate dancing by Hicks and Hunter. Roars of laughter greet the agile Gallimore Trio, in their excruciatingly funny pantomimic sketch. Sergeant Brennan is here again, illustrating the possibilities of "Diabolo" to great applause. Cissie Escalle is a bright and charming comedienne. The Garden Troupe are entertaining as national dancers. Great physical strength and remarkable agility are features of the fine acrobatic display given by the Three Stenarts; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are an interesting item of the excellent programme.

BRIDGEND. — TOWN HALL. — Manager, Mr. T. D. Schofield.—Mr. Ted Hopkins, the well-known Welsh comedian, paid a visit here on Tuesday and Wednesday with his company in Mr. D. V. Crossley's adaption of Babes in the Wood. As Lewis Bach and Evan Bach Mr. Ted Hopkins and his brother Mr. Dick Hopkins, gave amusing representations of the Robbers; May Hopkins made a pretty and graceful Robin Hood; Miss Ethel Rainsforth was a fascinating principal girl; Miss Marie Lawrence as Will Scarlet well supported Miss Hopkins; Miss Jean Beresford was an attractive Phyllis, and Miss Ellanene Gastella a capital Fairy. Mr. George Grant as Belinda and Mr. George Kelly as Baron Hardup contributed to the merriment.

BRIDLINGTON.—GRAND PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—The animated pictures continue a source of attraction, and the Biograph Trading Company showed a new series on Monday evening, one of the finest films being one representing scenes from A Tale of Two Cities. The variety turns this week include The Zeenas, in a clever triple-bar performance, in which the two show some smart comedy business as well as being well-trained balancers; Les Clercs give a remarkably fine show of juggling.

THE PALACE.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Delmar.—The patrons of this home of animated pictures are being constantly treated to novelties in humorous, historical, and other of the best cinematograph pictures, which Mr. Delmar has secured a reputation for producing to the best advantage.

BRIGHTON. — GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Aladdin is still attracting crowded houses here. Miss Aimée Roberts, a bright and attractive principal boy, has added a couple of new songs—"Just Someone" and "Oh! Antonio"—with marked success. Miss Blanche Marion is a dainty Princess and an agile dancer; Miss Addie (Slave of the Lamp) sings very artistically; and delightful dances are contributed by the Lottie Stone Quartette. Abundance of fun is provided by Mr. Edwin Garth (Widow Twankey), Mr. Frank Dunlop (Abanazar), Messrs. Bennett and Martell (Tip Pit and Wot Toe), and Mr. Leo Sterling (Emperor), who is also a skilled instrumentalist. The pantomime promises to have a record run here.

ALHAMBRA.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith.—Alice Hughes and company give a delightful performance of the musical comedietta Star of the Bazaar; the Three Gartis appear in a refined vocal and dancing act with great success; Campkin and the Whitworth Girls are much appreciated in their clever cycling turn; Albert Hall is an eccentric comedian; L. B. Athol sings with dramatic expression; Freda Fern is a capital comedienne and dancer; Marie Nestle is a dainty vocalist; Frank Lester, character comedian, is well received; Sylvene is a refined and clever equilibrist; Marjorie Maidment sings and dances admirably; and the Alhambra Picturegraph is interesting and amusing.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. J. Brown.—Maxey and Pete are excellent trick and comedy cyclists; the Radford Duo are entertaining mimics; Ariel and Astarte win hearty applause for their neat gymnastic act; the Brothers Horne are very popular in their comedy boxing sketch; Raven Wood, assisted by Miss Vivian Bell, gives a delightful and mystifying exhibition, comprising thought transmission and clever card manipulation; Ted Curtis and Piccaninnies submit a pleasing turn; Fred Edwards' company achieve success in A Nice Quiet Morning; Ray Maskell is a dainty comedienne and speciality dancer; Charles F. Aldrich, "America's most versatile performer," wins enthusiastic applause with his marvellous quick changes and impersonations; Fred Russell, ventriloquial humorist introduces "Coster Joe" with distinct success; and Brinn, juggler and cannon manipulator, is highly successful in Pastimes on a Battleship.

WEST PIER.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—Improved with new songs, dances, and jokes, the musical fairy play Sylvia in Sunland runs brightly and merrily. Miss Gladys Storey is a graceful and captivating Sylvia; Miss Alys Rees makes an attractive Spirit of Kindness; and Mr. Donald Calthrop is an admirable Chivvy. The comedy element is very ably sustained by Mr. George Howard (Jerry), Mr. Edmund Baker (Josher), Mrs. A. B. Tapping (Queen), Mr. Trevor Lowe (King), and Mr. J. Edward Pearce (Lord Chamberlain).

PALACE PIER THEATRE.—King's Royal Bioscope continues to prove attractive here. Prominent among the pictures are The Ass's Skin, descriptive of the well-known fairy story; a scene from The Tale of Two Cities; and the Drury Lane Harlequinade. Other films are of an amusing character.

COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford.—The series of animated pictures exhibited here still proves highly attractive. Baby's Chum is a telling story of canine sagacity; the Terpsichorean Rose is a picture of mystery; An Unlucky Shot is replete with sensational incidents; and the amusing films include Paddy Eats Horseflesh, One Minute too Late, and The House Decorator. The "real singing picture," The Taximeter Cab, is presented by the cinephone. The entertainment is rendered additionally attractive by the excellent turn given by Barrasford's Sable Operatic Minstrel Troupe.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Aladdin fully realises expectations, and crowded houses are being nightly secured, the matinées also being well attended. Miss Ouida Macdermott, with her fine voice, good presence, and dramatic style, makes an ideal exponent of the title-rôle; Miss Deborah Volar is pleasing as the Princess; she has some nice songs, which she sings well; Miss Topsy Sinden's exquisite dancing is exceptionally attractive; Miss Daisy Lloyd Wood scores a decided success as Mary Ann (from London); and the comedians, including Mr. Bransby Williams, Mr. W. H. Powell, Mr. Alfred Clark, are popular in their respective parts. The staging of the pantomime is in all respects equal to anything attempted here, which is saying much in the way of praise.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—Little Red Riding Hood is proving attractive, full houses being the rule at each performance. The production is of all-round excellence, the songs are popular, the scenery and dresses elaborate, and the dancing and singing clever. Full justice is done to their respective parts by Miss Ethel Hall, Miss Marie Free, Miss Daisy Dennis, Miss Violet Gillis, Miss Gertie Hall, Mr. Frank Hemming, Messrs. Crosby and Walker, Mr. K. Scott-Barrie, and Mr. Frank Victor. The smaller parts are all carefully played. The Sylvan Quartette are very competent dancers, and pleasing speciality dances are given by the Misses Lee and Clifton.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Maurice H. Hoffman and company head the programme with their dramatic sketch, The Sorrows of Satan, which obtains considerable appreciation from all parts of the house; Joe Almasio, jumping juggler, does a capital turn; the Three Pirmans provide a good comedy potpourri act; Arthur Woodville, light comedian, is successful; the Five Bom-Bays entertain with harmony, singing, and clog-dancing; Oakdene amuses as a comedy ventriloquist; Leo and Roland, equilibrists, are experts in their line, their ladder feat being very clever; Harry Ray and Lillie Culden please with their comedy act; and interesting animated pictures conclude the entertainment.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—The comedy duo Clark and Hamilton head the bill, and obtain well-deserved appreciation; the Four Burnells present a smart pot-pourri act; Adelaide Waldorf is a pleasing and expressive vocalist; Milton and Mora, comedy bar gymnasts, do a good turn; Beatrice Rene, comedienne, interests with various styles of vocal items; Buster Brown excels in his skating act; Harry Harris, comedian mimic, is successful; the Lewis family amuse with their vaudeville entertainment; and Tom Jones, Welsh comedian, scores with his smart songs and quaint patter. Interesting animated pictures conclude the performance.

COLSTON HALL.—The "Joseph" Poole myriorama continues to attract a large attendance at each performance. The panoramas, dioramic effects, and variety turns are all exceptionally good, and the orchestra is well up to the mark.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Excellent houses are enjoying the smart acting of Raffles by Mr. Leonard Boyne's company. Mr. Ellie Norwood shows much ability in the way he sustains the title-rôle. Harry Manders Bunny is well played by Mr. Harold West; Mr. R. W. Thomas is good as the detective Bedford; Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald is a charming Lady Ethel; Miss Lucie Milner ably portrays Gwendoline Conran; Miss May Brooks is very clever as Mrs. Vidal. Mr. Arthur Willoughby (the Earl), Mr. Cecil Brymer (Viscount Crowley), Mr. Dalziel Heron (Crewshay), Mr. Edwards (Goldby), Mr. Stephenson (Marion), Mr. Arthur Fitzgerald (Barraclough), Miss Agnes Knight (Lady Melrose), and Miss Dorothy Gordon (Marie) each do well in their various characters. The above was preceded by a one-act play by Mr. Eric Lewis, entitled A Lesson in Shakespeare, which gave Mr. Dalziel Heron, Mr. Harold West, and Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald a good opportunity of showing their versatility.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The boards here are occupied by Hardie and Von Leer's company in The Sailor's Wedding. Mr. C. W. Standing makes an excellent Gordon Drake; Mr. Cecil Klein a natural Sir Victor Lascelles; Mr. Hodgson Taylor a capable villain; and Mr. F. Finch Smiles a theatrically repulsive Giacomo. Miss Mary Pemberton is a charming Mary; Miss Winifred Pearson a sufficiently vixenish Lenore; Jack Hawkins and Bill Burns are humorously presented by Messrs. Pemberton and Ford; and Polly Clark is a lively personage by Miss M. Sadie.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The Five Mowatts, jugglers, in their surprisingly dexterous club-throwing, are greeted with applause, and the delightful tenor duets of Stewart and Morgan win much approbation; Beatie and Babs score a distinct success with dances and burlesque; Mr. Dave Samuels, American Hebrew comedian, has good patter and clever songs; the Musical Keiths contribute popular selections on xylophones; and Hans and Lux, eccentrics, are good at cross-talk. Mario, juggler, is smart, and the Imperial Chinaware Factory is shown by the Empire Theatrescope.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Lockhart's Elephants, introduced by Captain Taylor, give remarkable evidence of successful training and intelligence; Menotti is an extraordinary balancer and an expert rifle shot; May Henderson, coon vocalist, is full of life and vitality; Russell Brandon is a clever eccentric dancer, and J. H. Greener, singing pit lad, hits the sentimental taste with his songs. The Harvey Boys are responsible for continued laughter; H. C. Lovell and company present a well-dressed comedy sketch Mamselle Pom Pom; the Three Temples, operatic vocalists, are good; and For the Love of an Actress is illustrated by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body.—Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy's Dick Whittington company is drawing crowded houses here. Miss Beatrice Varley infuses dash and spirit into the rôle of Dick; as principal girl Miss Ida Brophy sings and acts extremely well; the Alderman Fitzwarren of Mr. J. Templar Ellis is an amusing effort; Sarah (Mr. Syd Crossley) and Idle Jack (Mr. James Kurry) cause continuous merriment; while the clever antics of Dick's feline friend, Mr. Jas. Stratton, are watched with gleeful interest; Princess Zorilda finds a pleasing representative in Miss Beatrice Moore, whose song, "A tiny seed of love," fairly brings down the house; Mr. Caryl B. Starrs, Miss Dolly Harcourt, and Miss Vera Dudley creditably fill their respective parts; clever dances are given by the Oowana Girls and Messrs. Herbert and Rennie; also marvellous juggling and balancing tricks by the Enrico Martialo Trio.

BURY (LANCS).—ROYAL, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Resident-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—Acceptable fare is presented this week by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company in The Bondman. The cast is strong and the staging excellent. A sound and powerful reading of Jason is furnished by Mr. R. Scrope Quentin, whose efforts are ably seconded by Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves as Michael; Mr. W. H. Rotherham, who doubles the rôles of Father Ferrati and Grandfather, is a character actor of decided ability; Mr. Wilfred Beckwith and Mr. Fred J. Waller give excellent interpretations of Governor Testa and Dr. Boni respectively; and Adam Fairbrother has a capital exponent in Mr. Oswald Lingard. As Greeba Miss Georgina Wynter is particularly good, and fully merits the applause accorded; Miss Madge Lanerton as Mrs. Fairbrother and Miss Lilian Mayne as the Housekeeper are capital. The remaining characters are ably portrayed by Mr. George R. Austin, Marshal of Police, and Miss Dorothy Radcliffe and Miss Julia N. Willis as the Callow Girls.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant Resident-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—Mephisto, in his bewildering illusory act, is the chief attraction here, and is most mystifying; a clever acrobatic display is given by the Four Rubys; Tennis and Laune are clever duettists; the Raymond Trio display ability on a variety of instruments; Will Mitcham, musical comedian, Tom Gott, in Yorkshire songs and stories, Edwards and Ward, comedy entertainers, Hillett and Hallett, patter comedians and dancers, and the Ottorgraph pictures are all acceptable items.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Wilson.—A good all-round bill at this house is headed by Rosie Ring and her String of Rosies. Dancing, singing, and a trapeze act are introduced successfully into her scena A Rose Garden. M. H. Thiessen has some cleverly-trained dogs; Yorkshire Tom is a good animal mimic; Will Sullivan, comedian, meets with a flattering reception; and Allsop and Beckwith are a popular comedy couple. The Recar Trio, lady acrobats, Three Rizarelis in a revolving trapeze act, Blarney and Kennard, comedians, the Sunbeams on wheels, Jim Cunliffe, comedian, Frank E. Solby, child mimic, and Vio Land, comedienne, complete an enjoyable programme.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—The charming musical play Havana paid an initial visit on Monday night, and was well taken up, the company being one of Mr. George Dance's. Miss Hebe Bliss as Consuelo was a striking success, having a very nice voice; Mr. Tom Seymour is always funny, and in Reginald Brown he had a part that suited him splendidly; Mr. B. Russell as the Hon. Frank Charteris introduces some good dancing; Mr. Cecil Parkes was all that could be desired as Jackson Villiers; Mr. H. C. Barry made a real good character of the Bo'sun Nix; Mr. Sidney T. Pease was excellent as Bombito del Campo; Mr. George Storey was highly amusing as the Don Adolfo; Miss Gladys Guy was very taking as Anita; while the Misses Helen Langton, Violet Dene, Kathleen Haddon, Beryl Gordon, Jose Sullivan, Maude Lennard, Rosa Sullivan, and Toni Seymour were all charming, and gave first-class assistance. Mr. Herbert Bryan is responsible for the production.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—On Monday night Messrs. Milton Bode and Robert Redford's pantomime Cinderella opened another week of its successful run, the crowded house showing with what popularity the performances are still being received. The magnificent scenery and dresses are the talk of the district, and eclipse by far anything yet attempted in this direction. All the artists have set down to the usual swing, and everything runs with a smoothness for which the management deserves high commendation. Miss Moya Mannering in the title-rôle has captured the hearts of everyone, singing her songs and dancing with charm and grace. It is quite agreed that Miss Ida Statham as Prince Florizel is the most capable principal boy the New Theatre has ever seen; her vivacious and easy manner, combined with a sweet style of rendering her songs, has made her a great favourite. The comedians are working together with distinct ability, Mr. Charles Hanbury as Dandini, Mr. Tom Fancourt as Ajax, Mr. T. W. Volt as the Dame Winnie, and Mr. George Brooks as Whimes making lasting reputations for themselves; the ugly sisters, Melpomene and Mehitable, Miss Nellie Lauraine and Miss Jennie Rubie respectively, are quite a success, and secure their full share of the general applause. Mr. Ed. H. Whitehall has his chorus well in hand, and uses his bâton with much skill.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—The thrilling sketch entitled The Yellow Fang is being presented here by Miss Mary Mayfren and company the skilful acting of Miss Mayfren and the sensational and interesting story unfolded, making the number the most successful on the programme; Albertus, the American eccentric, and Miss Jessie Millar, in an interesting club show are particularly versatile; a hit is made by Harry Grey, the Australian comedian; most entertaining and mystifying is the item given by Oswald Williams, who is assisted by La Barte; much applause is earned by Percy Hannan, a young American tenor; Gladys Mavius is responsible for delightful step-dancing; while the beautifully illustrated song of Master Frisby is sympathetically rendered. Great excitement is caused by the representation on the Bioscope of the Messina earthquake disaster. Other names on the programme are the Three Prestons, in their screaming absurdity The Liftman's Rise and Olive Armidale, a dainty soubrette.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Under the management of Mr. Rollo Balmain.—Mr. Charles Chard's up-to-date pantomime, Babes in the Wood, concludes this week at the popular Royal. On Wednesday a grand benefit performance was given for the Babes, Miss Lily Belle and Miss Violet Chard, while on Friday another benefit was accorded the hard-worked comedian and producer of the pantomime, Mr. Chard.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—At the head of a talented vaudeville programme is John Donald in a novel song-scena, entitled A Scottish Exile's Dream, his rendering of Scotch ballads being distinctly high-class; a pleasing and unusual turn is provided by Feldman's beau ideal troupe of juveniles in a pretty garden scene, the dancing and singing being exceptionally good; Paul Powell's electrical marionettes certainly deserve their high reputation; Mlle. Sidy Nirvanah presents with good effect her artistic poses in colours; the Milton Trio of vocalists, dancers, and paper-tearers are more than clever; Marie Grey, comedienne, Elroy, the armless wonder, and the Bioscope are also included in the bill.

CARLISLE.—H. M. THEATRES.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart McKim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey's company is here in Rollicking Rory. Mr. Chalmers Mackey in the title-rôle found ample scope for his rare fund of Irish wit and humour; Mr. J. P. McBride, though suffering from a severe cold, acted with spirit and a nice appreciation of the character. In the heavy part Mr. Edward Warden scored heavily, and Mr. St. John Stuart contributed a capital sketch of Shaun Brady. As the heroine Miss Nana Flensburg was a big success. Miss Adèle Liddon gave an excellent performance of Roos's mother; Mrs. Chalmers Mackey, too, filled her part with tact; and Miss Constance Bellamy—always a favourite here—sang as charmingly as ever.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Morgan.—The top and bottom of the bill are filled by F. V. St. Clair and Marie Collins, who are both on return visits; the former was in great form on the opening night, his rhyming allusions to local events—delivered in a style all his own—thoroughly delighted his audience, who cheered and encored him again and again. Miss Collins repeated the songs of her last visit. Zetta, a young lady with a distinctly taking style, gained applause for her clever wire act; Rene contributed a bright and clever turn; and Roy Beavis conjured to everyone's wonderment and delight. Langslow g and dancers; Bert Welch, ventriloquist; De Lilo and Metz, in a brisk, acrobatic display; Harry Friskey, a nimble and eccentric juggler; the Howard-Collinson company, in a knockabout scena, entitled A Little Bit of Dresden China; Godfrey James, the singing collier; and George Barnes's company in Fun on a Racecourse.

CHELTENHAM. — OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company, in The Catch of the Season, provide a bright sequel to the pantomime season this week. Mr. William Greene as the Duke of St. Jermyn's exhibits a keen sense of drollery, and acts and dances capitally; Miss Dorothea Clarke plays the part of Angela Crystal with individuality, as well as daintiness, and sings charmingly; Master Ernest Grata as the love-sick Page is a very clever little chap indeed; in the parts of the spiteful stepmother and her two passé daughters Miss Edna Eden, Miss Barry Eldon, and Miss Kate Robertson are excellent; Miss Grace Hampton is good as the genial Lady Caterham; Mr. Joseph Bruce is well placed as Lord Drandreary; Mr. Franklin Miles does well as Sir John Crystal; and Miss Claire de Vere is pleasing as the Duchess. The chorus is strong and attractive, and the whole of the music is under the capable direction of Mr. H. A. Dyer, Mus.Bac.

VICTORIA ROOMS.—Lessee, Mr. E. B. Shenton.—Boswell's Stage Circus is this week paying a visit here, and providing any amount of rollicking fun and entertainment. Chief of a number of interesting turns, Kame Yasuda, the Japanese acrobat, does some astonishing feats, and also revives Diabolo to a remarkable degree, and the beautiful ponies and dogs exhibit wonderful intelligence that speaks volumes for the skill with which they have been trained.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—The pantomime Puss in Boots continues to draw good houses in this the third and final week of its successful run. The Maples (Fred and Amy) add to the merriment of the show, which is the best of its kind ever seen in Chester.

CHORLEY (Lancs).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Santé.—Messrs. Jazon and Nightingale are the first to invade us with pantomime this year, and on Monday evening scored a great success with Aladdin. The scenery, by Mr. W. Todd, is bright and pleasing, the music catchy and up-to-date, and the cast good all round. Aladdin is undertaken by Miss Edna Latonne, who gives a brilliant and dashing portrayal; Miss Luna Lisle is responsible for a capital rendering of Princess Badroulbadour; the Emperor of China is in the capable hands of Clifton Hall; Walter Bishop scores as Abanazar; Mr. Percy Curry, the chief mirth provider, excels as Widow Twankey; Miss Cicely Darnton charmingly presents the Fairy of the Ring; the Sisters Brenton as Pekoe and Caramel respectively and Rex and Ford as Ping and Pong are good. There is a capital chorus and ballet, the specialities including Kavados, an exceptionally expert juggler; the Sisters Darnton, excellent vocalists; the Sisters Brenton, finished dancers; and Messrs. Rex and Ford, clever comedians. The production is under the management of Mr. Richard Nightingale.

COATBRIDGE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Coatbridge Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Commins.—The management has scored a success in bringing for this week Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy's pantomime company, in The Forty Thieves. Mr. Wal Croft, with his Scotticisms, delights the audience as Ali Baba; Mr. Reg. Ewen scores as Cogia Baba; Mr. Ted Wootten is favourably received as Cassim Baba; and Bossi, the donkey, is cleverly portrayed by Mr. Harry Alvey. Amongst the ladies, first place must be given to Mlle. Carita, who, with her sweet voice, as Morgiano captivates the audience from the start; Miss Mary Poulton gives a clever impersonation of Ganem, Ali's son; and Miss Isa Bell makes a capable Abdallah. The specialities are all excellent, and a word of praise is due to the Five X-Rays, who, in their acrobatic feats, keep the house in roars of laughter, and the Cavallotti Bros., in their original musical speciality, are thoroughly enjoyed.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company in the play At Cripple Creek opened a three nights' engagement here on Monday. Mr. Austin Milroy acted the part of Joe Mayfield with power and pathos, whilst the juvenile rôle of Little Tattoo was skilfully delineated by Baby Betty; Miss Agnes Verity played the part of Ann with much emotion; and Miss Daisy Carlton showed much dash in the character of Maggie. The villainous schemers Martin and Manuel were adroitly shown by Mr. Roy Jackson and Mr. Arthur North respectively; Mr. Reginald Harley-West was highly popular as Wakhetah, his timely warnings quite exciting the upper house; Mr. Horace Stewart and Mr. Will Hook introduced some effective comedy; and Miss Dorothy Lart made a charming Belle Gordon. The latter half of the week is allotted to a return by that great play with a moral, A Message from Mars.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Colchester Hippodrome Company; Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—King Luis and partner give a very fine exhibition of hand-balancing; the Alberto Troupe present some nice feats of equilibrium; George Grogie, the Sussex yokel, excels in his nonagenarian study; Allen and Austin provide amusement as comedians; Lily Kirton appeals strongly as a comedienne; and La Belle Margo gives an exhibition on the trapeze and slack rope. Pictures by Pathé form a strong order, and are gaining steadily in popularity.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Mr. Stephen Pritt's company opened on Monday with A Woman's Passion. Mr. Edmund Grogan plays with ability as Lord Hubert Vale; Mr. David McFarlane is a satisfactory Sir Randall Derrick; Mr. Archie Helsby gives a natural interpretation of the Gipsy Doctor; Vicary is in the clever hands of Mr. A. B. Douglass; Miss Emmie Barton effectively plays the part of Winifred Hamlyn; and as the Gipsy Queen Miss Nellie Lawson is very good.

DALY'S HALL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John Cattrell.—Mr. John Cattrell brings a new feature into the town in the shape of a twice-nightly show, the chief attraction being the Cinematograph. Amongst the best of the pictures are The Rag-Picker's Daughter and That Fatal Sneeze.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell.—Mr. F. R. Benson and company opened a two weeks' engagement here on Monday, in The Taming of the Shrew. To Mr. Benson was accorded a warm welcome. Mr. Benson's Petruchio is a fine conception; Miss Dorothy Green makes an excellent study of Katharina; Mr. W. Ribton Haines as Grumio is droll; Mr. H. O. Nicholson as Gremio is decidedly humorous; Miss Olive Noble is a captivating Bianca; Mr. E. A. Warburton an acceptable Baptista; and Mr. J. M. Johnston a successful Vincentio. Miss Foreman as the "lady with song" is admirable; Mr. Warlock as Lucentio presents a good study; and Mr. Guy B. Rathbone is also excellent. Romeo and Juliet, Hamlet, Twelfth Night, and Richard III. are also in the répertoire. Wednesday's performance was in aid of the Italian Earthquake Fund.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Thos. F. O'Brien.—A programme of all-round merit is provided here. Mr. Authur Watson and Flo. Stanley and their troupe of comedians and dancers, in the musical comedy sketch, entitled The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory, are capital artists, and are much appreciated; Great Scott, equilibrist and juggler, goes through a number of clever and exciting ladder tricks; Miss Mabel Johnson is a vocalist of much ability; Archie Roger, is a smart acrobat; Les Valencia, lady acrobats and dancers, contribute difficult feats; Evelyn Taylor, comedienne, sings catchy songs; the Maddison Bros. introduce an amusing boxing contest; and the Palascope continues to please.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company is here this week performing A Broken Heart. The play is effectively staged. Mr. Clinton Baddeley takes the part of Jack Barnard, the honest blacksmith, in a very effective manner; Miss Sheila Walsh gives an excellent interpretation of the character of Mary Barnard, the blind outcast; Stephen Raylton, the villain of the piece, is taken with great success by Mr. G. Moreton-Williams; other characters are played by Mr. E. Rawlinson as Josh Giles, Mr. Tom Armitage as Tony Tibbets, and Miss Daisy Rocheford as Little May.

HIPPODROME THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Stage-Manager, Mr. J. E. Wright.—Gustave Fasola, the famous Indian Fakir, is top turn this week, and gives a marvellous performance; Jessie M. Lyons and company give a dramatic episode, entitled The Broken Medal, with Miss Lyons in the principal part; the Czar's Royal troupe of dancers appear in a Russian whirlwind dance; Professor Lux's performing pets are a feature of the evening; Mr. H. Leslie Bell and company in a comedy vaudeville are amusing; Mabel Thorne, comedienne, sings a couple of good songs, as also does Mr. Dave Carter, the Irish tenor.

THE EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. George Dance; Manager, Mr. K. Draco.—Sweet Innisfail, by Walter Reynolds, is presented by his own company, and is well played, the scenery being very good; the Bros. Ashley again appear in a comedy boxing sketch; Spencer and Marks are clever comedians and dancers; Jack Hayworth obtains a good reception as a comedian; Ford and Hanson appear in a musical speciality act; and Connie Gilbert and Nellie Neal are capable comediennes. The Bioscope pictures conclude.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—This week we have Messrs. Battersby and Forbes' company, with The Empty Cradle. Mr. St. Clair Forbes as Kenneth Bloodworth, acts with taste and feeling; Mr. Claude H. Seaton as Carnaby Bloodworth deserves special mention; Miss Nancy Battersby wins complimentary recognition as Ida Boswell; Mr. Kenneth Scott is a humorous Hon. St. Clair Selby; Miss Connie Meadows is also extremely funny as Sarah Puddicombe; Mr. D. Urquhart as Sir Carnaby Bloodworth shows dignity and feeling; Mr. Fred Wells makes a capital gipsy; and Mr. Wallace Black as Little Misery wins much sympathy.

CREWE.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alfred Cuthbert.—Mr. James Welch's company in When Knights Were Bold is drawing capital houses here nightly. Mr. Henry J. Ford keeps the audience convulsed with merriment as Sir Guy de Vere; Mr. Vernon Sansbury is quite at home as Isaac Isaacson; Mr. Cecil Clayton is a clever Charles Widdicombe; Mr. Guy Lane as the Rev. Peter Pottlebury, D.D., is a typical dean; Mr. H. Agar Lyons is good as Sir Brian Ballymote; Mr. Talbot Homewood is a clever Wittle; and Mr. Reginald Hunter a diverting Barker. Miss Agnes de Lilana gives a highly effective rendering of Lady Rowena Eggington; Miss Ethel St. John is a successful Sarah Isaacson; Miss Mabel Younge makes a stately Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave; and Misses Ruth Bower, Leslie Blake, Marion Ryder, and Bessie Walters as Lady Millicent Eggington, Lady Marjorie Eggington, Kate Pottleberry, and Alice Barker respectively deserve praise. The Wrong Side of the Road is a delightful little curtain raiser.

CROYDON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. Roland Daniel; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—The success we anticipated for Mr. Roland Daniel's pantomime Dick Whittington has been realised and it has now entered upon its second edition with new songs and comic business. Mr. Fritz Hart has been exceptionally happy in his selection of the catchy melodies, and there is a wealth of splendour in the magnificent scenery and dresses. Miss Georgina Delmar's admirable rendering of the title-rôle has been received with every manifestation of approval; Miss Ethel Lawson sustains the part of Alice Fitzwarren with brightness and spirit; the coquettish ways of the Princess are prettily depicted by Miss Rhoda Ray; Miss Lily Laughton as the Fairy Queen renders her song "My sweet Egyptian" with expression; Miss Gladys Warren plays with warmth and perseverance as Tommy Turner; and the Lottie Stone troupe of ladies may be commended for their excellent dancing. Mr. Edgar Driver is great in his business as the Cat; Mr. Luke Forster is in his glory as the droll Alderman Fitzwarren; Mr. Percy Cahill has made a palpable hit as Jack Idle, and his antics evoke loud shouts of laughter; Mr. Fred Wornan is a jolly old Emperor of Morocco; Mr. Maitland Marler keeps the audience in a merry mood as Martha Mixitt, and his songs, "In a cheap excursion train" (with novel stage effects) and "I'm coming out as Salome," are welcome items; Mr. Fred Solo is active and amusing as Captain Taffrail; and Ben Bobstay is safe in the care of Mr. J. R. Val.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—The American Bioscope company continues to give an interesting and varied series of animated pictures and illustrated songs here. Mr. Fred D. Jones and Harry Lewis are the vocalists.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Walter Gibbons and Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—John Lawson and company in the graphic sketch Pigs in Clover causes a sensation; Adey Spencer is a charming character vocalist; Howe and Ardie are irreproachable comedy gymnasts; Rosie Archer is a clever mimic at the piano; Kisbey is a humorous patterer; Charles R. Whittle, comedian, sings in fine style; Phil and Nettie Peters are first-rate entertainers; Helen Charles is a real mimic; Ed. E. Ford, comedian, is quaint; the Gotham Comedy Quartette in mirth and melody are successful; and the new films on the Bioscope are pleasing. Mr. Eustace Jay is an admirable manager, and Mr. Sydney R. Axford is an excellent musical director.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Mr. Fredk. Mouillot's company opened here on Monday with A Message from Mars. Mr. Wallace Widdicome portrays Horace Parker in good style; Mr. William H. Brougham as the messenger presents the part in a capable manner; the tramp is well sustained by Mr. Norman Clark; Mr. Robert Grex is good as Arthur Dicey; Mr. Alfred Drayton makes an effective policeman; Miss Winifred Knightly is excellent as Miss Parker; Miss Rose Helene is charming as Minnie Templer; and Mr. Guy O'Neil a capital Dr. Chapman.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Theatre, Limited; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Hersee.—The Ten Loonies, in their hilarious musical sketch, are no strangers here; the music rendered is good, and the parts full of fun. Horace White's ventriloquial performance is well received; Shirley and Ransome in their coster episode; the Gladenbecks in a clever acrobatic performance; Wills and Mackenzie, from the D'Oyly Carte Opera Co.; Wilfred Burnard, character impersonator; the Three Sisters Dixon; and the Pepiscope pictures are other attractions.

DARWEN.—PICTURE PALACE AYD THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The Animated Pictorial Enterprises, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. A. Whitehouse.—R. Cameron Matthews and company, in their farcical comedy The Honeymoon Baby, create roars of laughter; Charles Woodward, comedian, gains applause with his songs and patter; the Brothers Idento give a fine exhibition of comic juggling; and Clarice Sefton provides some clever speciality dancing. Among the best of the pictures is the dramatic one Saved by Love.

PUBLIC HALL AND PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees, Messrs. Thomson, Leivers, and Bennett; Manager, Mr. J. E. Thomson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Kerrigan.—James Lowery, the singing furnaceman, proves a favourite; Cara Magda does some daring feats on the flying trapeze; and Dan Rodney is an amusing comedian. The pictures are well up to the standard set at this house.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—The pantomime Aladdin, which continues to run with commendable smoothness, will be withdrawn at the end of the week. A particularly strong local attraction has been provided this week by the engagement of Archie Goodall, an old Derby County football player, in his sensational act "Walking the Hoop." The performance is a truly marvellous one, and as a test of endurance and surprising muscular display has perhaps rarely, if ever, been surpassed. The pantomime will be succeeded by that charming play Peter's Mother, a dramatised version of Mrs. Henry de la Pasture's entrancing novel of the same name.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—Phil Rees and his stable lads are an attractive star turn here. The Hyde and Cody Trio are clever knockabouts; Les Currys, charming lady musicians; Prince Schaboo, a Hindo basso, renders his songs in good style; and Chiko, contortionist and equilibrist, Vincent, an acrobatic table expert, Lambert and Butler, comedians, and the Bioscope pictures are other items.

DEVONPORT.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Mr. G. King's popular house is nightly the rendezvous of crowds of young and old alike, and Robinson Crusoe from all appearances has firmly established himself in Devonport for some weeks to come. Various changes have been made since the initial performances, and the pantomime can now be voted one of the most attractive shows in the provinces.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—Mr. Fisher White's company, in a Russian episode entitled A Royal Heart, presents a stirring and dramatic episode, which receives plenty of appreciation from the houses. Mr. Scott Craven as the Grand Duke plays a prominent part. Charles Hera is a first-rate juggler and equilibrist; the Brooklyn Comedy Four supply plenty of amusement in Mirthful Mariners; Bert Errol is a smart female impersonator; Champney and Rowe furnish an amusing duologue, and Alice Blandford receives merited appreciation for her vocal efforts.

DEWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—Very welcome indeed is the advent here of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Draycott's répertoire company, the performance of no less than six different plays being characterised by exceptional quality and merit. Mr. Draycott deepens and matures as an actor, and his versatility has increased materially as one witnesses his finely-artistic comedy work in the rôle of Conn, the Shaughraun. In this he is most earnestly and loyally supported by his clever wife, who shows a sterling sympathy, emotional power, and effectiveness of action in the part of Clare Ffolliott. Very agreeable and suited to the character of Captain Molineaux is Mr. George Steel. The cast is particularly strong, and affords a support which contributes in the smallest details to the full realisation of the play, a fact amply borne out by the extremely cordial recognition of the audience. The plays in the répertoire are A Stolen Birthright, The Shaughraun, The Octoroon, The Colleen Bawn, East Lynne, and Shadows of a Great City.

DONCASTER.—NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—A White Man is being played here this week. Virile and breezy, with exceptionally fine declamatory powers, Mr. Frank E. Petley is an ideal Captain James Wynnegate, V.C., afterwards known as Jim Carson. The Earl of Kerhill, his cousin, loses nothing of interest in the hands of Mr. Harold J. Richardson. As the Dean of Trentham Mr. Louis Ashmeade has the bearing and general tout ensemble of ecclesiastical dignity. The Big Bill of Mr. R. A. Brandon furnishes a study. A meed of praise is due to Mr. Eric Hudson for his conception of Tab-y-wana, Peace Chief of the Utes. Prim, and elegant in old-time courtesies, Miss Gertrude Price scores a success as the Dowager Lady Kerhill, and a facile daintiness is observable in Miss Margaret Duncan's effort in upholding Lady Mabel Wynnegate. One of the most acceptable items is presented by Miss Margaret Fairleigh, who, as Nat-u-rich, betrays considerable attainments in the knowledge of native characterisation. Miss Eleanor May, as Countess of Kerhill, displays a winsome personality and natural charm, which constitute her a warm favourite.

DOVER.—ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. S. W. Winter; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. W. Holford.—A well-balanced programme is being presented this week, with the Arthur Bedini Trio as the star turn. These clever artists appear in a comedy pantomime act, their antics being highly amusing. Shrillo displays wonderful skill as a whistler; a pretty turn is given by Wilson's miniature circus, including Mlle. Rossini and her educated little dog Rosie, and Starlight, the smallest trained pony in the world. The Amio Trio have a novel Algerian act; Mlle. Ottini's sleight-of-hand work is neat and pleasing; Bert Woodward performs marvellous feats on a bicycle; and Fred Costin is a comedian with good songs.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—Robinson Crusoe, which has entered on the third week here, seems to have lost none of its popularity. Miss Winifred Hare is quite captivating as Robinson Crusoe, and Miss Elsie Molloy is engaging as ever as Polly Perkins. The eccentricities of Mr. J. J. Dallas as Mrs. Crusoe, Mr. Harry Lappo as William Crusoe, and Mr. Barney Armstrong as Will Atkins are most diverting.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—The Moody-Manners opera company has entered on a third week here, and on Monday Lohengrin was given. In the name-part Mr. Philip Brozel both sang and acted to perfection. Madame de Vere Sapio was in every way a charming Elsa, being heard to great advantage. Mr. Charles Moorhouse as Frederick of Telramund is deserving of high commendation; Miss Toni Seiter made a thorough success as Ortrud; Mr. Charles Manners delighted all with his singing and acting as the King; and Mr. R. Cliffe was also good as the Herald. The excellent chorus and orchestra under the conductorship of Herr Eckhold won distinction. The staging and dressing left nothing to be desired. On Tuesday evening The Bohemian Girl was again presented.

EMPIRE — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—The prominent attraction here this week is Joe Peterman's company in The Singing Servants. The Trefelyn-David Duo, in their vocal and musical scena, win unstinted applause, and Harry Bedford is a particularly good vocal comedian. Florence and Lillian, in a pleasing musical mélange, are well appreciated, and Crissie Cross sings well and dances neatly. As a comedy silhouettist Torbay is irresistibly funny; and Millie Payne, comedienne, sings in smart style. Ida Kathrina contributes pleasing vocal items, and the Empire pictures are, as usual, entertaining.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant Manager, Mr. H. A. Murpy.—The Juggling McBans take first honours here this week, their clever performance being received with shouts of applause. The Thompson-Carruthers company present with success a sensational novelty entitled The Master Card; and the Sisters Lytton, refined duettists, create a favourable impression. As a character actor and mimic Tom Stuart is a huge success, and capital coon singing and dancing are provided by Harold Heath, Forest and King, acrobatic dancers, meet with much approval, and Edmunda is very popular in his ventriloquial entertainment. Herbert and Lindon, comedians, are also prominent and well received; and Flo Warner, comedienne, contributes some pleasing items. The Bioscope depicting "Milliners' Pranks" completes the bill.

ROUND ROOM ROTUNDA. — The Irish Animated Photo Company are still here, and the constant change of pictures continues to attract crowded audiences daily. Among the films shown this week, which are both pathetic and humorous, are Sicily before the recent Earthquake, Realistic Scenes of Sicilian Cataclysm and Ruins of Messina, the Manœuvres of Italian Cavalry, An Exciting Motor Race, &c. The vocal items contributed by Mr. Patrick O'Shea (tenor), Miss Agnes Meehan (contralto), and Mr. Ralph Goggin in illustrated songs, together with the Grandpierre orchestra, add considerably to the enjoyment of the entertainment.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The excellent programme submitted here this week includes: The Stanleys, comedy entertainers; Harry Desborough, character vocalist; Miss Nell Glynn, coon vocalist and dancer; Gunn Cooke, tenor vocalist; Miss Queenie Swift, charming soubrette; Glynn and Glynn, vocalists and dancers; and the Cinematograph.

DUDLEY. — OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Mr. Horace Stanley and company in the successful play Guilty Gold are here this week. Mr. Stanley, the author-actor, in the part of Septimus Sweet is brimful of humour; Miss Kate Kilpack is smart and vivacious as Nancy Bright; Mr. Fred Wilberforce is sufficiently villainous as Ralph Bartlett; and a powerfully played part is that of John Middleton by Mr. Frank Seymour. Miss Cora Linda is pleasing and pathetic in the dual rôle of Elsie and Hettie; Miss Violet Crauford displays distinct ability as Rhoda Hampton; and Mr. T. Arthur Plummer receives deserved applause for a convincing and natural representation of a clergyman. The play is well staged.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manger, Mr. F. H. Waters.—An attractive programme here this week includes the following artists:—Leslie, Lyn, and Willie, three funny fellows, who are very musical; Bi Bo Bi, an eccentric and clever musician; Baker and De Sales in songs and dances; Gravetta and Parr, pot-pourri artists; Stan Aubrey, comedian and dancer; Miss Belle Harcourt, comedienne; and James Basnett, vocalist. The Empire pictures are new and interesting.

DUNDALK.—TOWN HALL THEATRE.—Proprietors, Urban Council.—This week Mr. Payne Seddon is presenting Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and her Shakespearean company, which opened on Monday night with The Merchant of Venice. Mr. Frank Cellier's impersonation of Shylock was a finished performance, and gained for him many recalls; Miss Florence Glossop-Harris was most charming in her interpretation of Portia, and at once won the high appreciation of the house; as Lancelot Gobbo Mr. Arthur Keane was capital; while Mr. A. D. Layland's Antonio was a distinct success. As Prince of Morocco Mr. Arthur Goodsall gave a very fine impersonation of the part, being both dignified and impressive; Lorenzo was always safe in the hands of Mr. Murray Kinnell; and Mr. Leslie Newman as Solanio was all that could be desired. As Jessica Miss Gertrude Gilbert was seen to decided advantage. The other parts were filled by a very excellent company while the scenery, costumes, and appointments were perfect.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Mr. Milton Bode's pantomime Robinson Crusoe entered upon its last week here on Monday evening, and throughout its three week's run splendid houses have been the rule. The tuneful music, the bright settling and pretty dresses, added to the clever work of a clever company, have all combined to make the pantomime an ideal holiday entertainment. Miss Jennie Lynwood as Robinson, by her attractive acting, Miss Lucy Coventry, as Polly, by her vivacious manner and delightful dancing, and Miss Rosie Bartlett, by her dashing performance as Lieutenant Bob, have all made themselves very popular with all parts of the house. The knockabouts, Keith and Merson, have made a huge hit, their comic business, which is entirely free from the slightest tinge of vulgarity, is excruciatingly funny. A return visit from this clever couple will be eagerly looked for and welcomed by Dundonians. The singing of the Georgia Troupe has always been received with applause, and an extra special word of praise should be accorded to the Six Lancashire Lasses, whose artistic and clever dancing has all along been a feature of the pantomime.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—Topliners here are Barton and Ashley in their bright and breezy comedy act Canal Boat Sal, which delights immensely. The selections from Il Trovatore by Ethel Pender-Cudlip as Leonora and Claude Anderson as Manrico is most enjoyable, their singing being superb; Frances Letty scores a brilliant success in her amusing and clever coon scena; Gertrude Moore's singing and dancing act has a capital reception; Madison and Webb in their clever and racy turn The Amiable Idiot and the Soubrette are great favourites; Harry Morris, whose make-up and witty patter are unusually good, proves very entertaining; Lozelle appears in a very attractive speciality, which is of a decidedly novel nature; Harry Vardon's ventriloquial turn has the merit of being up to date; and Dave Austin and company are successful in a laughable sketch. The Palascope completes a most attractive bill.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Licensee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts; Business-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—The curtain will ring down to-night (Saturday) on Mrs. Lillie Williams' successful pantomime Dick Whittington, the bookings for which have broken all records at this house. Miss Gertie Douglas has been an ideal Dick, and Miss Hetty Lind has charmed everyone with her delightful singing as Alice. Mr. Sam Thomson has achieved a terrific success as Idle Jack. A new song, "Arabella Brown," was introduced on Monday evening by Mr. Harry Loftus, and caught on at once; Miss Madge Goodall also introduced some fresh specialities in singing and dancing, which proved most enjoyable; while Miss Osceola Martinek gives a clever Spanish fandango in place of her former Indian dance. The Pickel Troupe of Acrobats have also been added to the company, which goes on tour with the best wishes of all who have enjoyed this brilliant entertainment.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Business-Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Some excellent pictures are shown this week by Mr. Newman. Among the films exhibited are Facing Death to Save a Child, The Gold-seekers, Two Pigtails, The Man with Many Faces, and Rum Kilns Ashore. In addition, variety turns are contributed by Ondra, an expert juggler and triple-bar performer, and Flo Dixie, a charming soubrette.

NEWMAN'S PICTURE PALACE.—Another fine programme of pictures is given this week, an entrancingly beautiful film being Barbara Freitchie. Another outstanding feature is a very pretty film showing beauty spots of old Devonshire; The Hero of Valmy, The Lock-keeper's Daughter, The Gold-seekers, Saved from the Sea, An American's Visit to Europe, and Adventures of Two Chinamen in London all prove popular. Splendid variety turns are rendered by Renot, the newsboy mimic, and J. T. Cooper, an A1 comedian.

KINNAIRD HALL.—Hamilton's Excursions continue to draw large houses here. The dioramic pictures are dreams of beauty, and under the expert guidance of Mr. Claude Howell the trip gives infinite pleasure to both old and young alike. There is also an enjoyable variety programme, which includes some very fine cinematographic views, the entertainment concluding with a very amusing sketch, The Haunted House.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Mr. Ian Maclaren's Shakespearean company is paying a return visit here this week, opening on Monday night with Hamlet. In the title-rôle Mr. MacLaren's portrayal is excellent, and is worthy of the highest commendation; Mr. Matthew Boulton makes a particularly strong Claudius; Mr. F. Stafford Dawson is a decided success as Polonius; and Mr. Guy Cunningham is well placed as Horatio. Miss Gertrude Littlewood is dignified as the Queen; Miss Katherine Harrington is a fascinating and pathetic Ophelia; and the other parts are in capable hands. The week's répertoire includes Twelfth Night, David Garrick, Romeo and Juliet, Merchant of Venice, and Macbeth.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Mr. Alfred Paumier and Mr. Walter Howard's capable company is appearing here in The Prince and the Beggar Maid. The play is proving attractive and interesting, the scenery is excellent, and the company, without exception, worthy of much praise. As Monica Miss Annie Saker is sympathetic and winning; Miss E. Walton is a brightly-interesting Viola, and Miss Ivy Millais is a complete success in the appealing part of Camiola. Mr. Walter Howard is happily placed as Olaf; Mr. Graeme Campbell as Michael gives a sound and finished performance; Mr. Ivan Cleveland is a judicious Hildred; Mr. Reginald H. Stephens a crisp and assertive Hector; Mr. Reginald Payne contributes good light comedy work as Karl; Mr. Francis Hawley is a dignified Bishop; Mr. Kendal Chalmers an expressive Nathant; and the remaining parts are played with care and credit.

THE ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; District-Manager, Mr. George Egbert; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Holloway.—Mr. Ben Nathan heads the bill here this week, and his clever impersonations provide genuine laughter. The sketch A Pair of Lunatics, played by Mr. Nathan and Miss Jenny Housley is highly diverting. Mr. Barney Ives is an expert illusionist; the Brothers Werds serve out abundant fun as American eccentrics; the Sarony Sisters are well received as whirlwind dancers; Miss Adah Payne sings with refinement; and new films are shown on the Bioscope.

THE PIER PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. E. Oswald Brooks' company is appearing here in The New Housemaid. Mr. Howard L. Tracy works hard and well as Bertie Rashleigh; Mr. Edward Mervyn is a gay and rollicking Peter Pinkerton; Mr. Reginald Hargreaves a pleasant and clever Frank; Mr. Archie Selwyn as Stiggles contributes the able work of an able actor; Mr. P. Ramsey Forman is an effective Mormsbury Doom; and Mr. Herbert Colley does well as Roseberry. A performance full of life and brightness is given by Miss Babs Stewart, an engaging Dulcie; Miss Dot Seilby makes her points cleverly as Caroline; Miss Renee de L'Estrade is a creditable Lucy Merton; Miss Caroline Carlton helps ably as Lettice; and Miss Marion Pollock takes her share capitally as Nellie Haddock.

ECCLES. — CROWN THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers. — John Tiller's pantomime company in Red Riding Hood is playing to crowded houses. One of the special features of the show is the splendid scenery and dress. Miss Decima Brook fits the title-rôle in a capable way, and renders several catchy songs in good voice; the singing of the Fairy (Miss Florry Page) is very much appreciated; Miss Maisie Jerrard makes a typical Prince Charming; Miss Emmie Franks is all that can be desired in the part of Tommy Tucker; Miss Louie Davies makes a chic Margery Daw; Mr. Howard Ward as Dame Crump fulfils his duties in first-class style. Much fun is caused by Messrs. Fred Russell, Will Lytton, and Walter Watson in the respective characters of Algernon Fitz, Baron of Kash, Johnny Stout, and Johnny Green. The Wolf is depicted by Mr. Dave Laird. The Poppy Quartette of Dancers are exceptionally smart.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. William M. Downie.—The engagement of Mr. George Edwardes's company in Havana, the closing nights of which are announced, has been a great success here. Miss Gertrude Lester has won golden opinions by her splendid singing and acting as Consuelo, and Mr. Gregory and Mr. W. H. Rawlins, by their admirable humour, have been of immense service to the play. Miss Luna Love's bright style has a never-failing attractiveness, and the other members of the company have all contributed to one of the best musical pieces that have been seen here within recent times.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—This week's leading turn has been provided by Bellew and Stock's company in the racing sketch An Outside Chance, which is made racy by Master Edward Garratt's appearance in the part of the precocious infant Goliath Higgins. Currie de Mar, not hitherto seen in Edinburgh, was also prominent in the bill, and her several songs, including "Lonesome Flossie," received due appreciation; George Robey and Victoria Monks appeared and sang, by deputy, through the medium of Gaumont's Chronomegaphone; the American Bioscope displayed some fine films; Albert and Edmund's troupe of some dozen agile performers romped briskly through a rough-and-tumble pantomime absurdity, entitled Neighbours; and the Schiavonis exhibited considerable skill as comedy acrobats, the feats of a lady member of the company being particularly startling. Characteristic comedian turns were contributed by Clif Ryland, who indulged in some quaint patter, and by Ernest Clifford, who put in some neat dancing; and the export juggling of Enzer, with the delightful singing of the Coloured Meisters, formed two of the most interesting and enjoyable items on the programme.

KING'S THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—Pantomime succeeds pantomime at this house, Mr. Fred Granville's company opening an engagement for twelve nights on Monday last with a version of Beauty and the Beast. The story is relegated to the background, but the piece is so full of bright business, and is so well acted, that the narrative matters very little. A band of excellent comedians, including Mr. Sam Foster, a very droll dering, winning loud applause from the audience; Mr. Charles Resti, in the character of Friday, introduced some finished conjuring in his amusing sketch, Komical Konjuring, this being the signal for much laughter; Mr. Ernest Sefton made an excellent comic villain as Will Atkins, playing his part with a spirit which left nothing to be desired, and at the same time he contributed largely to the success of the piece; he was ably assisted throughout by Mr. Walter Rousby as Billy Crusoe, who, with his mother, Dame Crusoe (Mr. Oliver J. Round), kept the fun ever alive. Viviana and company, in their success The Toy-Shop, amused all. The various dances were well executed, and the work of a large chorus most praiseworthy.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Gainsborough Theatre Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Leighton.—This week we have an excellent variety company working on the two-houses-a-night principle. The Reays give an artistic and clever turn as silver chain gymnasts; Polo and Florence, French equilibrists, are equally successful in a somewhat different line; Mabel Kessler furnishes a clever performance on the cornet and posthorn; and the rest of the company include Will Owen (Dame comedian), Dalton and Euston in Gratitude, Gladys Cooper, comedienne, and some excellent pictures on the Bioscope.

GATESHEAD.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager and Licensee, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Prolonging their stay for another week, Chas. Majilton's company of comedians have been adding to our gaiety with The Trippers and Round the Clock. Reski and Raski, in a grotesque tumbling act, are funny; Little Rose Pink, in song and dance, is very popular; Major Arnold, with clever magic, is appreciated; Paul Cavalli shows wonderful feats of strength; and George Lawrence, light comedian, Nellie Walton, the singing mill girl, and the Kingscope also furnish enjoyable turns.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. Robert G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Dixon.—Mr. Walter Melville's company, in The Soldier's Wedding, provides capital entertainment at this house. Mr. Wingold Lawrence is a manly Jack Brown, and a refreshing impersonation of an army officer is supplied by Mr. Beresford Whitcomb; Mr. Gerald Jordan is just villainous as Chas. Courtney; Miss Dorothy Richardson is a charming Nancy Lee; Miss Marie McAuly makes the most of her opportunities as Julie de Beauvrias; and Miss Mabel Lowe does well as Peggy Munroe.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—Cinderella continues to draw good houses here, and the young people's hearty laughter at its comical points is pleasing to hear. Mr. George Robey as Billy Buttons is the principal fun producer, and is ably seconded by Mr. Harry Dent as the Baron; Miss Violet Loraine has a powerful voice, and as the Prince of Floravia uses it effectively; Miss Iris Hoey as Cinderella sings and acts charmingly; Miss Edith Kirkwood, who impersonates the Good Fairy, is also a pleasing singer. Prominent promoters of fun are the trio of suffragettes enacted by Mr. Willie Garvey as Mrs. Kilkenny, ably supported by the Brothers Obo as Misses Pankie and Hardie Kilkenny. Mr. Vernon Booth as the Bad Demon rolls forth his denunciations of everything good in a sonorous voice; Miss Mag Hamylton as Dandini looks, sings, and dances pleasingly; and as the Chevalier Saltarello Mr. Paul Sundberg dances skilfully.

KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. Hugh Macfarlane.—The Waltz Dream is now running its fourth and concluding week here, and has fully justified its selection as the Christmas and New Year attraction. Mr. Robert Evett as Lieut. Niki has become a great favourite, and Miss May de Sousa's performance as the lady conductress of the band has gained much appreciation; Mr. Eric Thorne and Mr. Leslie Holland are comedians of much resource, and the fun of the opera has been much enjoyed. With Miss Ethel Cadman as the Princess and Miss Amy Augarde as the lady-in-waiting the vocal numbers are in excellent hands, and the gay dresses, the large and attractive chorus, and the augmented orchestra under Mr. Hamish McCunn, combine to make a notable production.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Carpenter.—Butterflies, now in its last week, continues to meet with undiminished popularity, thanks to the untiring efforts of an exceptionally talented company. Mr. W. Louis Bandfield as Widgery Blake plays as merrily as ever, and Mr. Blake Adams has made the character of Christopher Podmore one of his most popular creations; the vocal efforts of Mr. Richard Green as Max Riadore contribute considerably to the success. Another good portrayal was that of Miss Georgie Corlass, who has established herself a great favourite; Yarker, in the hands of Mr. William Spray, stands out prominently; and Miss Stella St. Audrie does meritorious work as Nora Podmore. Amongst others who add to the success of the play are Mr. Roy Sydney as Peter, Mr. Alfred Selby as Paul, Miss Alice Sands as Lalage, and Miss Constance Clive as Elsie Podmore. The chorus is well up to its work.

GRAND, LTD.—District-Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant.—Cinderella continues its prosperous career at this handsome theatre, giving unqualified delight to large and fashionable audiences at each performance. The production is a charming blend of the humorous, the spectacular, and the tuneful, with the humorous predominating, so that the ménage of Baron Debtington (Mr. George French), and his bulky spouse (Mr. Tom Conway) is responsible for a vast amount of merriment. In this connection much credit is also due Miss Kate Walbran and Miss Nelly Cozens, who give decided character to the ugly sisters; while clever work is done by Mr. Barry Lupino in the rôle of the page Capers; as Prince Casimir, the imposing figure and refined method of Miss Violet Halls show to advantage; and as Cinderella, the sweetness and simplicity of Miss Queenie Finnis' acting is all that could be desired; the Dandini of Mr. Whit Cunliffe is quite a gay personage, and in some of his songs the chorus is used with effect; Miss Olive Tempest makes a charming Fairy, and as the Duke of Whistbridge Miss Nellie Wigley sings and acts with much grace.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; acting-manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—To show the popularity of Diccory Dok here, it need only be mentioned that the Princess's is giving matinées daily. Miss Flora Cromer and Miss Ella Retford as principal boy and girl gain in public favour week by week; Mr. Peter Berningham's pawky Scotch humour never fails to raise roars of laughter; and another favourite comedian is Mr. Syd Walker as Professor Pillbox; Misses Edith Haley and Maggie Fraser are a most popular couple of vocalists, and the audience never tire of them; the opposing demon and fairy are well represented by Miss May Beatrice, who declaims her lines well as Discord; and Miss Ivy Proudfoot, who, as the fairy, shows herself to be a vocalist of much ability. A word of praise is due to Messrs. Charles Stevens and Harry Brett for their clever work as knockabout comedians. The Irish songs and dances of the Sisters Bartholomew go extremely well. Mr. Ainslie Burton as the Dame and Mr. Harry A. Griffen as the Baron have worked up a lot of new and funny business, ably assisted by Mr. Walter Dale as Sparkle. The splendours of the scenes—Beneath the Sea and the Palace—result in calls for Mr. Waldon and the scenic artist, Mr. J. C. Boutor, at every performance.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Woman and Wine is being presented here this week by Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmond's company with realistic effect. Miss C. St. Elmo takes the part of the notorious Marcel Rigadout, and infuses all the desirable "vim" into the part; as the heroine Mary Andrews, Miss Violet Sims is neat and sympathetic; Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds plays with much histrionic ability the character of Dick Seymour; and the Hugh Seymour of Mr. J. Milne Taylor is very successful; Mr. R. Foulis as Alphonse Beaudet is a power in the production; Pierre Crucru has an effective rendering at the hands of Mr. Edwin T. Kisby. The comedy parts are made most amusing by Mr. Harry Harrop as Charles Santer, Mr. W. Manning as Professor Santer, and Miss Ethel Vinroy as Janet Marlow. The Lottie Stone troupe of dancers in the ball scene is quite a good turn, while the duel incident in the flower market demands praise.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—After a merry holiday season with The Dairymaids, Mr. Waldon introduced to his patrons a play of a more sombre and thrilling class, viz., Fred Melville's Married to the Wrong Man, which had been doing good business at the "Met." for the last few weeks. A great deal of the success of the performance is attributable to the fine acting of Miss Gertrude Boswell in the rôle of Ruth, her dumb show in the closing act calling for special mention; Mr. Oswald Cray as Jack Gladwin stands out prominently, giving a most satisfying representation of the hero; Mr. H. Lane Bayliff as Capt. Deering carried himself consistently with the character, and was ably assisted in his villainy by Mr. Charles Vivian as Jasper Skinner; Mr. Arthur T. Lennard as Sergt. Manners looked and performed his part well; Mr. Sid Claydon's humour as Timothy Clinker was highly relished; Misses Rosalie Notrelle, Violet Vincent, May Davis, and Dorothy Haig worthily sustained their parts. The staging is good.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—The Empire still continues to have its fair share of patronage. Sam Mayo retains all his quaintness; Morris Cronin pays a return visit with his talented and amusing troupe of jugglers; Terry and Lamber are at all times received with open arms, their work is clever and delivered in a manner pleasing to all; th. Eight of Hearts are a trouple of clever girls, whose dancing and various athletic poses appeal to the majority of audiences; a classical musical turn is provided by Roma and Romani, and their selections on their numerous instruments are executed delightfully; Brix and Annie present Fun in a Barber's Shop, largely composed of lightning sketching, which is clever and much appreciated; an old Glasgow favourite is Wittie Wattie Walton, who gets through a lot of work of an amusing character; H. Saint Yves, the recent Scottish Marthon race winner, is also on the bill, and is assisted by the bioscope depicting his latest success; Luis Alvarez is a pleasing tenor, and his songs are well selected and tastefully rendered. A novel turn is Silvester's gigantic mechanical working head, the facial expressions of which are remarkable.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock. The principal turn this week is that of the Six Bros. Luck in their laughable pantomimic extravaganza The Hermit, which keeps the audience heartily laughing for nearly half an hour; a powerful American sketch called The Girl and the Tough is presented by Mr. John G. Brandon and company, and is notable for its tragic denouement; Isa Hamilton sings several Scottish songs in characteristic style; Otto and Olga perform operatic selections both seriously and in burlesque style; Rich. Taylor is a highly amusing ventriloquist; Bostock's baboons show what monkeys can be trained to do; Kitty Beresford is a pleasing comedienne, who is well described as chic; Fred Walmsley's patter is replete with wit and humour. The Bioscope is shown if time permits.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—The bill here is headed by Mlle. Maria Vinent, the Spanish singer and dancer, whose romantic tale nas been told in the magazines, and her songs and characteristic dances take well; popular Rose Elliott is receiving numerous recalls at every performance for her "sensible songs"; Sibb and Sibb give a trapeze performance, smart, graceful, and daring; Minnie Hunt and Rhys Thomas have a new sketch, The Wire and the Liar, which is smartly written and cleverly acted; while Miss Hunt takes well in the favourite old song "Tell me, my heart." Daisy Irving, a sweet singer with a quiet style, is heartily received; Hinton and Wooton's football match on bicycles never fails to rouse lots of enthusiasm, their manipulation of the ball being marvellous; Hammond and Wyatt, two well-developed ladies, who appear as Sandow girls, contribute a novel turn; the Three Seabornes in their equilibristic and acrobatic display, complete an excellent bill.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—An excellent star turn, new to Glasgow, is provided this week in Callahan and St. George, the former as an old Irishman proving himself an actor of very special merit, while the lady is a harpist and vocalist of considerable talent; Sinclair and Whiteford cause roars of laughter with their smart sketch Getting Even; Florence and Rose Showell are clever duettists, and their singing is much enjoyed; Mlle. Eldee gives a series of artistic poses with limelight effects; Charles Rose is an exceedingly smart dancer; Fame and Fortune contribute a clever acrobatic and speciality turn; Harry Arnold takes well as a Scotch comedian; and the Bioscope shows an interesting series of views of Mr. Wilbur Wright's aeroplane.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—A good bill is provided this week, and theatre-goers are taking full advantage of it. George Leyton, with his Crimean veterans, is vastly popular in his military scena, entitled The Last Muster. Mr. Leyton's rendering of his patriotic songs is well received. To Mr. Fred Storey is due a word of praise for his production of Rip Van Winkle. The piece is carried through without a hitch. In the title-rôle Mr. Storey does full justice to the part, while he other members of the company receive unstinted applause. The musical Jees again present their smithy scene, and are responsible for a great deal of amusement; an entertaining turn is that provided by the Great Olympians, whose company is composed of members of both sexes, thoroughly instructed in the art of ju-jitsu; Harry Leybourn is a good female impersonator; and Charles Mattison, who sings well, is accompanied in his songs by Bioscope illustrations; Alice Maydue is amusing in her coster work; and E. J. Sheldon (a study in black and white) sings several good songs. The various methods of training as adopted by Johnson and Burns, in view of their recent bout for the world's championship, are clearly depicted on the Bioscope.

GAIETY.—Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—The attendance here is still good, and the success of Dick Whittington is flattering to the management and artists alike. Dinah Morris as Dick and Frances Drew as Alice command most attention, their singing and dancing being the feature of the production. Capital support is given by the other artists, and the bursts of applause which greet their efforts denote the fullest enjoyment. This is the concluding week of the pantomime.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—The variety turns include Buchanan and Farren, singing, dancing, and pattering comedians; Harry Dalton, quaint Scotch comedian; Chandos George, assisted by Mlle. Leonetta, in their song scena, entitled The Desert; and Alma Curzon, popular comedienne. The Bioscope is a favourite part of the entertainment here, and the pictures displayed are both interesting and amusing.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—This week Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company is here in The Love that Women Desire. Mr. J. O. Stewart, an interesting Squire Abingdon, is backed up in capital fashion by Mr. S. Leigh Courtney, who plays the part of, Richard Abingdon; Mr. Herbert Pearson delineates Philip Carnaby, the hero, in meritorious style; Mr. Francis Cavanah is a kind-hearted Doctor; Mr. William Reed is a manly Frank Hardy; Mr. John Hignett an eminently successful Denis O'Rourke; and Mr. J. W. Wilkinson adds a spice of humour as P.C. Sowerburry; Miss Maude Hastings in the character of Sybil Thornton is responsible for an emotional interpretation; Miss A. Gratton Cleydes embodies Madge Abingdon with force; and Miss Vere Rose earns admiration in the rôle of Marquina.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE.—Owners, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—The Andos are a marvellous troupe of Japanese jugglers, equilibrists, &c., and the New York Comedy Nippers have a very good dancing act, and do well; Henry Hilton is a smart card manipulator and magician; and Bonnetti and Corrie are a capital pair of eccentric jugglers; the Westbrooke rely on their dancing, which is graceful and pleasing; Theresa and May introduce a protean act, which is very acceptable; and Steve Bartle with concertina and edephone solos receives applause; Harry Hilton, comedian, has a funny sailor song; and the Palacescope, with a diving and water polo film, is interesting.

KING'S HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Up-to-date illustrated songs and animated pictures have proved so popular that matinées are added. Messrs. Poole invited the old age pensioners to Saturday's matinée, and the old people much appreciated the attention.

THE matinée at the Palace, Gloucester, on Jan. 7, resulted in thirty-odd pounds being handed to the fund in aid of the sufferers by the Italian earthquake. Mr. C. W. Poole announced amid applause that he would make the amount up to £40. The Mayor voiced the thanks of the recipients.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Fred Greaves.—Parson Thorn was presented here on Monday night to a crowded house by Messrs. Horace Edward and Moseley Warden's company. In the title-rôle a fine manly performance was given by Mr. Terence O'Brien; Mr. C. Wordley Hulse gives a powerful portrayal of the scheming Mr. Wylde Crewell, J.P.; Mr. R. Davy Cooper is an excellent Sir Geoffrey Dashwood; Mr. Horace Moseley is most amusing as Paddy McQuirk, and keeps the house in continual merriment; he is ably supported by Miss May Warden as Dolly Doddles, their songs and dances being loudly applauded; Mr. Sylvester Stuart is very funny as P.C. Mutton; Miss Maude Elliott gives an excellent interpretation of a trying rôle as Dorothy Thoroughgood; Miss Madaline Grande is worthy of special praise for her excellent portrayal of Folly Bishop. The minor parts are in capable hands. On Thursday the company presented the musical drama The Betrayer.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company, in Her Forbidden Marriage, is the attraction here. Mr. Harry Lonsdale makes a manly George Madison; Miss Florence Hunt ably depicts Lady Lucretia; Miss Grace Lester displays marked ability as the Mother Superior; Mr. Louis Hector is an excellent Charles Devereux; Miss Isla Garnet Vayne, a charming Lucy; and Mr. W. Mansfield a satisfactory Sir George. Mr. Leslie Nutter is a funny Jenkins; and Miss Grace Emery a vivacious Patty.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Gilbert. The high standard of pictures inaugurated here last week is being fully maintained, the film illustrating a trip through the Pyrenness being exceptionally fine. T. W. Lenner creates roars of laughter with his funny songs; Tom Taylor's excellent voice is heard to advantage; the Lydamores are seen in a smart gymnastic act; and Flora Lennard also appears.

THE GEM.—Lessees, The Yarmouth Amuement Centre, Ltd.; Resident-Director, Mr. C. B Cochran; Manager, Mr. Sidney Lawrence.—The management gave their patrons a great treat on Friday the 8th by exhibiting a special film illustrating the Hackenschmidt v. Gotch wrestling match. This week the illustrated song, "Village by the Sea," is very popular.

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Mr. Wilmot Edson's company are this week presenting twice nightly the fairy pantomime Aladdin. In the title-rôle Miss Minnie Olive plays brightly and winsomely, and scores with her songs; Miss Alice Digby imparts considerable charm to the rôle of the Princess, and the Slave of the Ring, Miss Daphne Gelstone, sings and acts effectively; Mr. Charles Adeson's droll and clever impersonation of the Widow Twankhurst merits unstinted praise; Mr. Bob Owen acts and sings well as the Emperor; the Grand Vizier is cleverly played by Mr. Jack Harrington Weeks, while Mr. Bert Danson is an unfailing and irrepressible mirth-provoker as Abanazar; clever specialities are introduced by Olive and Owen, the Sisters Raymond, and Miss Gwen Clifford, who contributes a laughing song with much success. The choruses are rendered with spirit, the scenery and dresses are bright, and the colour effects excellent.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the Greenock Empire Syndicate; Responsible-Manager, Mr. Edward McCormick; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun.—The principal attraction this week is Andrew Jephtha, the welter-weight boxing champion of the world, who, assisted by Jack Turner, gives several fine exhibitions of the art of boxing, and presses into his service several local athletes, with whom he has many bouts. An admirably-acted sketch, entitled The Silent Sentinel, is also a feature of the programme, and entertaining turns are contributed by the Four Sisters Gilby, instrumentalists and dancers; Baby Baker, a wonderful child artist; Stevens and Gillard, lightning cartoonists and impersonators; Arthur Lynn, tenor vocalist; Bertha Barnes, chanteuse; and Naughton and Gold, comedians. Jack Johnson in training for his fight with Tommy Burns is shown on the Biscope.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—Top of the bill here this week is a well-staged dramatic episode, The Ace of Hearts, the character in which are ably undertaken by Messrs. James Willard, Jackson Wilcox, and Miss Muriel Palmer. Capital turns are also provided by Mike Cray and his clever little dog Dooley; the Falcons, comedy acrobats; Parker and Parr, comedians and vocalists; the Orchids, American vocal comedy duo; and Cumminger and Colonna, clever sand-dancers. The entertainment has also included an interesting series of pictures.

TOWN HALL.—Proprietors, the Greenock Corporation.—The B. B. Picture Company are presenting an entire change of pictures here this week. Good vaudeville turns are submitted by the Boston Twins, vocalists and dancers, and Miss Jennie Sneddon, illustrated songstress.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—The first visit of The Cingalee is arousing considerable interest. It is presented by Mr. Haldane Crichton's company, with Mr. Jack Crichton in the amusing character of Chambhuddy Ram, a part from which he extracts the maximum of humour. Miss Mollie Wolstenhulme admirably realises the Cingalese girl Nanoya, and her charming singing is one of the features of the comedy. Miss Pauline Hague gracefully plays Lady Patricia, and also sings well; Miss Alice Nixon imparts pleasing vivacity to her representation of Peggy Sabine; Mr. Harold Wardroper does well as the Hon. Harry Vereker; Mr. Douglas Munro is amusing as Boobhamba; Mr. F. W. Ford gives a capital portrayal of the eccentric Sir Peter Loftus; and Mr. Scott Wallen is good as Bobby Warren.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Captain Fred Woodward's seals and sealions are proving as attractive as on former visits here, and their wonderful feats of juggling occasion highly-favourable comment; Spry and Austin have a distinctly original and amusing vaudeville speciality, which is presented in pleasing style; Miss Agnes Molteno wins much favour in her artistic vocal scena, A Dolly and a Coach, and is assisted by Mr. T. Edwards and Little Dolly; the Two Lillies are charming dancers, their mirror dance being especially good; Johnny Dwyer is a versatile entertainer, equally good in humorous or serious subjects; Charles Ulrick is a smart foot juggler and barrel manipulator; and Rosie Reval is a successful vocalist and dancer.

GUERNSEY.—THEATRE ST. JULIAN'S.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—This week Mr. A. Clifton Alderson brings his season to a close with Lady Windermere's Fan and East Lynne. In the first-named piece Mr. Alderson's Lord Windermere was most enjoyable; Mr. Escott Robson gave further proof of his abilities as Lord Darlington; Mr. Ulick Burke was successful as Lord Augustus; and Mr. Leslie Vyner was suitably cast a Mr. Cecil Graham. Miss Enid Ross was an effective and clever Duchess; Miss Joan Wellman merits praise for an artistic portrayal of Mrs. Erlynne; and Miss Max Hinton was all daintiness and charm as Lady Windermere.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Two Lancashire Lasses in London is being presented here. Mr. Harold Cotter was good as John Edmunds; Mr. Chris. Mason made an excellent Samuel Hallett; the Rev. Frank Selby is ably taken by Mr. J. E. Fletcher; and Jonas Deane (Mr. A. Elwyn) and Jim Price (Mr. Jack Miller) are excellent. Constance and Nellie (the two sisters) are in the capable hands of Miss Roslyne Vane and Miss Alice Defoe. Bessie Edmunds is also well played by Miss Stanley Burt, and Jane Adelaide Bloomfield finds an able exponent in Miss E. Shaw.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—J. Gar Kiddie's Little Bo-Peep is playing to big houses. Mr. W. H. Gatty, a fine singer, is the Demon Wolf; Miss Elsie Peach, the Fairy; Miss Ivy Gallard, Boy Blue; Mr. Harry Royde, the Baron; Mr. J. W. Groves, Granny Brown; Miss Lizzie Payne, Little Bo-Peep; Miss Marie Harding, Margery Daw. There is a quartette of very good acrobatic dancers.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Reg H. Foster.—The big attraction at the Palace this week is undoubtedly Consul the Great, the educated chimpanzee. Consul's marvellous performance was followed with silent and rapt attention by an appreciative audience. Les Elgonas are clever and finished gymnasts; Olms and Carbeth give a humorous juggling act; Effie Vincent is a dainty singer; Rose and Wold appear in a comic wire-walking sketch; the Betsons give a humorous bicycle act; the Della Sisters, the ladies in black, also appear. Three very good pictures complete.

HAMILTON, N.B.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr René Clayton.—The Four Kurios, in their clever and original turn, are topping the bill here this week; the New York Comedy Four, in their vocal and comedy act, are warmly received; the Milnes Trio are big favourites, especially Mr. H. P. Milner in his clever wire act; Ryan and Hall contribute one of the funniest burlesque turns seen here; Gimson's Pets is a clever sketch, which serves to introduce some cleverly-trained dogs; and the Society Quartette are clever and dainty dancers. Reg. Bolton, in his really funny scena The Editor's Imp; the Boxing Kangaroo, with his trainer, Ben Tully; and the Bioscope conclude.

HANLEY.—ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Mother Goose continues to lay golden eggs at every performance, for packed houses are testifying to its all-round excellence. Miss Lola Patey is undoubtedly the primo favourite, closely followed by the "Rich Mother Goose" and Fred Barnes.

GRAND. — Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—Capital houses are attracted this week to see Horace Goldin, the clever illusionist; the dramatic sketch No. 99; Bert Weston, who is a terrific success; Raymond's Bio-tableaux, which shows pictures of the Italian earthquake; Don and Mabel; Fred Elton; Lanos and Montes, acrobats, and Florence N. Gardner.

KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs. Kennedy and Moore; Manager, Mr. H. Kennedy.—A capital series of films is exhibited this week, and Mr. Frank Leslie, comedian, supplies the vaudeville items successfully. Sacco, the fasting man, is facing his forty-five days' fast heroically, and huge crowds are attending his feat of endurance.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith.—Mr. J. F. Elliston's company appeared in Puss-in-Boots on Monday. The piece was admirably staged, and the costumes presented a feast of colour. Miss Ethel Ra-Leslie, as the principal boy, was enthusiastically applauded for her brilliant acting and fine singing, her voice being powerful, particularly in its higher register; Mr. Fred Lincoln, as the Dame, well maintained the traditions of the title-rôle; Mr. Harry Rogerson, as the indolent and irresponsible King Grabbus, adapted himself well to his part. The local topical hits were very smartly and aptly made (mostly by Mr. Harry Edlin as Baron Bumphiz). The impersonation of Miss Gladys Christoe as Princess Ivy was one of quiet charm. Mr. Hal Bert, as Puss-in-Boots, was agile enough to please the most exacting.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—The Gay Gordons company opened on Monday under the direction of Mr. W. A. Seymour. Miss Nell Carter was in the cast as Peggy Quainton, but had contracted a chill, and her place was filled at short notice by Miss Mabel Dent, who was cast for Victoria Siddons, and who acquitted herself as Peggy with marked ability. Miss Emily Mellon played exceedingly well as Janet McLeod; Mr. Frank Lincoln was all that was necessary as Angus Graeme; some very laughable comedy was supplied by Miss Ida Laurie as Charlotte Siddons, Mr. Tom Graves as Nervy Nat, and Mr. Edward Nainby as Edmund Siddons; and Mr. Charles Tyers gained much applause as Jack McPhrisky. Mr. Ernest Ruston was convincing as Andrew Quainton. The scenery and dresses were excellent, and the augmented orchestra was well directed by Mr. Arthur Spittle.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Vivian-Fisher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—Charles Cardle, the gipsy vocalist, sings some good songs; an expert illusionist is seen in Mons. de Lil; the Alhambra pictures deal with the recent earthquake; Blanche and Powell are clever musical entertainers; Miss Nellie Lawrence possesses a remarkable voice compass; Hulbert keeps the audience highly amused with his ventriloquism; a smart patter comedian is found in Bert H. Delmar; Fred S. Peake is associated with Edwin Morton, Ronald Douglas, and Miss Dora Davis in an interesting and exciting dramatic sketch, The Gambler.

PIER PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—The success achieved by Robinson Crusoe during the past weeks has induced the management to continue it for another week.

HUDDERSFIELD.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The chief place in the bill this week is occupied by Mr. John F. Preston and Co. in the elaborate racing sketch entitled A Ride to Win, which is well played and much appreciated. Also in the bill are the Pemms, comedians; Miss Mabel Florence, comedienne; Stelling and his intelligent and merry little canine partner; Dan Robans, a tenor singer of more than ordinary merit; and Edgar Stevens and Miss Minnie Leslie in their finely-rendered musical episode Love Levels All. The Dardinis are here for the first time in their humorous juggling act. Some very amusing pictures on the Bioscope complete the programme.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Mortons, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The pantomime has now entered upon its third week, and success is attending it, due in a large measure, as one has previously recorded, to the efforts of the comedians, headed by Mr. Chippendale. The songs and choruses have been well chosen, whilst the speciality dances of the Monte Carlo Troupe are a feature of attraction.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Manager, Mr. Tom Bogue.—Messrs. Armitage and Leigh have gathered a good company together for the interpretation of Leah Kleschna. The name-part is cleverly portrayed by Miss Bessie Rignold, who demonstrates forcibly that she inherits the histrionic qualities of the family; her reading of the rôle proves her to be an artist of no mean order, and she carried the house with her throughout. Mr. Wm. Clayton is a fine Kleschna, and in every phase of the reading his talent is revealed. Raoul finds an effective representative in Mr. Arthur Leigh; and the Schrams of Mr. Wm. Heilbronn is a good study of a difficult rôle. The other characters are well placed.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—A Fight for Life is a strong play, and one eminently to the tastes of the patrons of this house. Miss Ada Frank is a pleasant Suzanne; Mr. Dan Bryan does well as Dan Murphy; the cripple is cleverly portrayed by Mr. Clifton Earle; Miss Elsie Shelton makes a sweet and sympathetic picture as the blind girl Marie; and Mr. Courtney Robinson is a good Count. The play was enthusiastically received.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—The Eve of Her Wedding is the attraction this week, the exponents being Mr. Wilson Benge and Co. Miss Sadie Smith cleverly handles the pathetic part of Mavis Leverton; Mr. Wilson Benge as George Tremain displays good acting ability; and the Jack Herne of Mr. Edward Keith is a praiseworthy performance. Miss Daisy Cooke plays with effect as Gwendoline Younger; and Mr. Chas. Groves, jun., is responsible for the double rôle of Paul Cairshaw and Hyram P. Younger. Mr. Fred Rivers as Giovanni presents an excellent reading of the part; Mr. Charles Digby as Rudolph Earle is very amusing; Miss Effie Bartlett's Renie de Telle, an adventuress, is a clever performance; and Mr. Wallace Campbell as Dean Clifton acts effectively as the evil genius of the piece.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's pantomime of Cinderella opened for the week on Monday under most favourable auspices. Miss Victoria Carmen, as Prince Charming, is also excellent; Miss Ida Dorrie is a graceful Dandini; and Miss Ray Fairfax a bright and lively Fairy, who sings well. Mr. H. A. Griffiths as the Baron, Mr. Keane Harker as Pimple, Dan Harley and Fred Melton as the Broker's Men, are all excellent. Mr. Frank Lennard, as the Evil Spirit, has a fine bass voice, which he uses to good effect.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The bill this week is a very good one. Dallas and Varden have an amusing musical dialogue entitled That Husband of Mine; Miss Camella Feo, a graceful dancer, is popular; Musical Silvo has more than ordinary talent on musical glasses of all descriptions; Mr. T. W. Wilson and Miss Nellie Waring appear in a comedy act, entitled The Ugly Duckling; Paul Vandy is a juggler of no mean order; and Fred Maitland has an amusing dialogue with a lady sitting in the stalls on the subject of votes for women. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lucas gave original scenes from Charles Dickens, in which the eccentric and pathetic are blended. The Mysticos have a clever performance called Spirit: Spiritualism or What?

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—Mr. A. Clifton Alderson concludes his season here this week, and is charming his patrons by giving them a capitally-acted rendering of that brilliant play Lady Windermere's Fan. Miss Max Hinton makes a graceful Lady Windermere; Miss Joan Wellman is good as Mrs. Erlynne; and Miss Enid Ross appears as the Duchess of Berwick and Miss Winifred Love as Lady Agatha Carlisle. Mr. Vyner is excellent as Cecil Graham; Mr. Sam Roberts ably impersonates Hopper; Charles Dumby is ably delineated by Mr. Frank Dalton; the parts of Lord Darlington and Lord Augustus Lorton are really well rendered by Mr. Escott Robson and Mr. Ulick Burke; whilst Lord Windermere is splendidly played by Mr. A. Clifton Alderson. On Thursday evening the performance was under the distinguished patronage of his Excellency Major-General Hugh Sutlej Gough, C.B., C.M.G.

KIRKCALDY.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Miss Lillie Williams is presenting her Robinson Crusoe pantomime this week. The scenery and effects are attractive. Speciality turns are given by the Ten Dixie Girls, who present a very pretty song and dance scena; Lindsay and Harte, who bring down the house with a Scotch comedy act; the Sisters Selwyn and the Sisters Poole Pelham, smart dancers; Miss May Carter, a particularly clever dancer; and Justin and Mantell, acrobats.

LANCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—Mr. John Gerant's company, in At Duty's Call, is the attraction this week. As Harold Alison Mr. Gerant appears to special advantage, delivering his lines with remarkable clearness; Mr. Chas. C. Calvert is capital as Capt. George Alison; and the same may be said of Mr. Ernest St. John as General Gordon; Miss Beatrice Western gives a fine portrayal of Dora Drummond; Miss Ada Roscoe is an acceptable Saloma; and Miss Eva Belle does well as Mary. The comic element is in the hands of Mr. Harry Ives, who makes the most of it.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—A really first-rate programme is arranged here, at the head of which is Eldra and his wonderful dog, Prince. One of the best sketches seen for some time is My Burglar, presented in a praiseworthy fashion by Harry Thorpe and Zoe Coe; Alice Maude is a juvenile m

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—The excellent Forty Thieves pantomime remains on from last week, and is again filling the house to overflowing. The principals, Bob Selvidge, Chris Le Brun, Bertha Clifton, and Cecilia Gold have each elaborated their parts to some purpose, and the show goes with delightful briskness. Honors and Le Prince and the Denwartz Troupe are the chief of the supporting variety company.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—A compressed and attractive version of Dick Whittington, arranged to suit the twice-a-night system, is here presented by Mr. Edward Marris, and a clever company give a good account of themselves. In the name-part Miss Etty Waldron shines brightly, both singing and acting being most accomplished; Miss Doris Gilbert is charming as Alice, especially winning plaudits for good vocal work; Joe Waldron has the very heavy comedy part of Idle Jack, and is a source of unending merriment; whilst capital assistance is rendered by Mr. Billy Watson, Mr. Will Naylor, Mr. Will Vestor, and Mr. Dick Nash. Mr. Arthur Lawrence gets a big reception for his vocal work as the Emperor, whilst Mr. Herbert Pearce as Fitzwarren is also prominent. Some clever specialities are provided by the Belasco Trio. The staging and dressing are of high artistic merit, and under the direction of Messrs. E. H. Bertram and Joe Waldron the piece moves through ten scenes in bright and mirthful style.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—A clever turn by Matthews and Brown, a coloured pair of eccentrics, is as popular as anything here, and deservedly so. The Faludy Troupe are doing a remarkably fine acrobatic show; vocal comedy by the Comedy Chanters is a popular feature; the Sisters Belmont sing and dance to general satisfaction; and that clever comedy pair Gold and Sterling are well liked in a humorous sketch.

LEICESTER.—PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—Great interest is centred here in the appearance of Machnow, the Russian giant, who is reputed to be the tallest man in the world. He makes quite a host of friends among the audience of both sexes, who seem quite anxious to grip the giant's hand. Miss Mabel Mavis, the delightfully entertaining musician and glassophone soloist, is receiving a cordial welcome; W. J. Churchill, an established Leicester favourite, is creating the greatest merriment; Vanando is a first-class ventriloquist, who scores a well-deserved success with a particularly bright show; Duncan and Godfrey are very smart in their Cockney comedy Me and 'Er; Hayes and Wynne are a clever singing and dancing couple; Mona Garrick depicts in a satisfactory manner scenes and characters from famous plays; Sybil St. Elmo is an attractive ballad and operatic vocalist; Ernest Cadle's Casey's Court, presented by a company of thirty, is amusing, as depicting a street urchin's idea of a high-class variety entertainment. New business has been introduced, the gags, songs, dances, &c., adding to its attractiveness. The Bioscope is again a feature of the programme.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—The principal attraction here this week is Geo. M. Marriott's company in a romantic military sketch showing an episode in the life of Cigarette, in which Miss Edith Finlay admirably sustains the principal rôle. A particularly bright and smart comedy acrobatic and risley act, entitled The Bakers' Beano, is submitted by Will Douglas's troupe of Five Jolly Bakers, who are cordially welcomed; the Zano Bros. are a success in their funny triple bar act; the Arntees, coon comedy artists and dancers, are capital entertainers; the Bonanzas give a good show as hand balancers and staircase performers; other artists are Rose D'Aulby, chorus vocalist, and Ella and Edwards. As usual, special interest is taken in the pictures, which are clearly depicted by Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Company; acting-manager, Mr. Charles R. Craig.—At this home of cinematograph pictures there is again the usual well-diversified programme of grave and gay films, interspersed with many beautiful examples of coloured photographs. Miss Daisy Elphinstone, an excellent ballad vocaliet, is an additional attraction.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The usual cordial reception is nightly accorded Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austen Melford's specially selected company in the evergreen drama The Silver King, which is under the business management of Mr. Henry Chadwick. Mr. Fred D. Daviss gives a really fine performance in the title-rôle, and Miss Madge Morley, a recent addition to the company, plays sympathetically and with every success the part of Nellie Denver; Daniel Jacques, the faithful servant, is still in the safe hands of Mr. Edward J. George; Mr. E. Stanton-Sharp plays with telling effectiveness as The Spider; Mr. Arthur Wright is good as Elijah Coombe; and Miss Flossie Hale Daviss cleverly enacts the part of Cissie; Mr. E. Stidwell as Samuel Baxter, Mr. Leslie Ellis as Henry Corkett, Mr. Fred May as Cripps, and Miss Lila Barclay as Olive Skinner are others who deserve special praise. The drama is staged in a thoroughly satisfactory manner.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—In New Frivolity and The Houseboat, typical specimens both of the bustling, go-as-you-please kind of entertainment which has not yet lost its admirers, the original Leopolds and their company find opportunities for their special business in quick changes and lively athletics. Messrs. John, Willie, Tom, and Ernest Leopold are prominent in various disguises; useful assistance is also rendered by Mr. Watson Hume as an amorous stockbroker, Mr. Wilfred Vaughan as a deserted French husband, and Mr. W. H. Howarth as a dunce; and needful feminine rôles are successfully filled by Miss Cathleen Cavanagh, Miss Amy Hall, Miss Queenie Bronte, Miss Gertie Winter, and others. Songs and dances supply occasional interludes, and several grotesque or extraordinary turns form special features of the performance, in which a gallery of living statues and their antics rank among the most amusing scenes.

LICHFIELD.—ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Mr. W. Payne Seddon presented Mr. Herbert Ralland's company in His House in Order. The Hilary Jesson of Mr. J. Herbert Beaumont and the Nina of Miss Elsie Roberts were excellent impersonations, both artists being frequently recalled during the evening. The cast included Mr. J. C. Robertson as Filmer Jesson, M.P.; Mr. Langford Browne, Sir Daniel Ridgeley; Miss Peggy Rae, an admirable Derek; Miss Victoria Wray as Geraldine; Miss Katie Neville, Mlle. Thome; Miss Avis Grahame, Lady Ridgeley; Mr. R. Reade as the Major; and Mr. R. Dalton as Dr. Dilnott. An all-round representation of very great excellence was given. The comedy was staged with care and completeness.

LIMERICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. G. Victor Fogerty.—Appreciative audiences greeted the return visit of the Elster-Grime Grand Opera Company, under the Guthrie management on Monday and Tuesday. The company opened with Maritana, Mr. McIntyre enacting the rôle of Don Cæsar with marked ability; Mr. Frank Land was at his best as Don José; as the King of Spain Mr. Gilbert King was commendable, and Miss Lynham was an artistic Maritana; Miss Mann was a clever Lazarillo, and Miss Gilbert sang the rôle of the Duchess with sweetness. Tuesday night was equally successful with Mr. Land as the Count in The Bohemian Girl, Mr. McIntyre as Thaddeus, and Mr. King as the King of the Gipsies. Last week end was agreeably filled up by the first appearance of Mr. Seymour Hicks's delightful Gay Gordons company, in which Mr. Stanley Brett appeared to much advantage as Angus and Miss Maie Ash as the captivating daughter of the American millionaire. Both artists got an ovation, and the houses were packed nightly.

LIVERPOOL.—ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—A first visit was paid to this city during the week of a charming play, entitled The King and the Unknown Woman, the author being Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson, who has given many stirring dramas to the stage. As usual, this latest effort of the well-known actor-author was lavishly mounted, and interpreted by an able company. Foremost was Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan, of "Traitor" fame, whose conception of Prince Menski got hold of the audience; Mr. James Stillwell gave a most admirable reading of the part of Prince Loris; Mr. W. R. Winning thoroughly understood the requirements of General Platz; Mr. Cyril Harrison made an excellent Captain Gara; delightful comedy was provided by Mr. William E. Passmore (Corporal Stack) and Miss Cissie Podmore (Schnapps); Miss F. Conyers Radcliffe proved eminently successful as the heroine Zora; Miss Muriel Inglis found great favour for her admirably-acted Countess Melveitch; and good work was also done by Miss Norma Dumayne (Else) and Miss Elsie Clark (Cascar). Matinées are now becoming the rage in Liverpool, and one was held here on Wednesday.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—The attraction this week was Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company in The Power of a Wicked Woman. Mr. Beaudyn acquitted himself as Phillip Carey; Miss Irene Munro played Helen Terraire with much power, and captivated her audience; Mr. Tom Robertson showed to advantage as Horace Winter; the part of Guy Oliphant was capably undertaken by Mr. Arthur Cresswell; Miss Blanche Hill was a thoughtful Denise; Mr. James Burt lent valuable support with his Lord Dumley; and other well-held characters were Nellie Montague (Miss Cecilia Crawford), Marie (Miss Phyllis Rae), and Bransby (Mr. Arthur A. Tomlin). A matinée was given on Thursday.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—The big line here this week was Frank A. Gotch, the American champion wrestler, who, along with a company of players, presented a comedy athletic sketch, All About a Bout; Hermann Melot astonished his audiences with particularly smart conjuring; a neat ventriloquial turn was given by David Poole; Clark and Hayden had a smart musical comedy duologue, By Appointment; Fred Curran pleased with his clever parodies; Amélie de L'Enclos sang several soprano solos in most pleasing style; the Delevines were able dancers and amused greatly with the act Flipp and Flopp; the clog-dancing of Bertha Winder gained for her much approval; and Tony Spring as a barrel jumper performed some clever feats.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville.—How Women Ruin Men was given here during the week by Messrs. Sydney Rennef and G. M. Copping's company. Among the artists were Messrs. Rennef, S. Langton, A. Wynne, Fred Elvin, and R. Vane; Miss Doris Brookes, Miss Kitty Russell, and Miss Gracie Jones.

LYRIC.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Mr. Jack Haddon's pantomime Jack and the Beanstalk has occupied the boards here during the week. Large audiences have enjoyed the exceedingly humorous production. Miss Alma Obrey was a lively Jack; Miss Bessie Knight pleased as Dora; and endless laughter was provoked by O'Mally and Brown, the two flunkeys; Bob Baxter (Silly Billy), Dave O'Toole (Dame), and Hal Forde, sen. (Squire Musty). Many popular songs were introduced, and the fun was fast and furious.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Large audiences have assembled here during the week to hear Mme. Albani, whose appearance on the music-hall stage has aroused considerable interest. The distinguished vocalist delighted her hearers with excerpts from operas and with popular ballads. Her accompanist was Mr. Victor Marmont. The Havanna troupe presented an amusing comedy acrobatic act; a refined musical scena The Human Motor-car was given by the Hersleb Brothers; the Columbia Comedy Trio provided a much enjoyed operatic and humorous turn; as trick cyclists the Woodwards earned much applause; Ada Parker sang and danced most tastefully; the Bijou Juvenile Troupe had a refined musical scena Pansy's Birthday; a most diverting comedian was Will E. Stopitt; and contributions also came from A. E. Clifford, vocalist; Russell Carr, military ventriloquist; and Herr Zakovsky, violinist.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The attraction here during the week has been In Sight of St. Paul's, from the pen of Sutton Vane. It was well presented by the stock dramatic company, the principal characters being undertaken by Messrs. Cecil Ravenswood (Mr. Chichester), David G. Noble (Tom), Leo Montgomery (Harry), Sydney Grant (John Gridson), E. D. Allen (Fretley), R. Seath Innes (Treacher), and Tom H. Solly (Palfrey); Miss Florence Palmer (Aileen), and Miss Lilian Radbourne (Cynthia). Mr. Anthony Brown's Bioscope showed the latest films.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—In addition to an excellent series of cinematograph pictures the following artists appeared here during the week:—The Musical Marlows, with their refined entertainment Music Hath Charms; Young Amos, coloured comedian and eccentric dancer; and Billy Dooley, comedian and dancer.

OLYMPIA.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—Top of the bill here this week were Mr. Laurence Irving, Miss Mabel Hackney, and company, with the stirring sketch The King and the Vagabond, which was received with general appreciation; Miss Dolly Elsworthy and company presented a charming episode entitled Sweet Mistress Dorothy that gained considerable favour; the Stein-Eretto troupe of hand-jumping acrobats went through a remarkable performance which earned loud applause; Ross and Lewis were a couple of very amusing American comedians; Rosa Loader did excellently as a musical mimic; and the list also contained the names of Alf Chester, comedian, the Crisps, with a juvenile musical and dancing act, and Frank Cass, comedian.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—The enjoyable programmes presented here have resulted in big business. This week the remarkable performances of Houdini, "the handcuff king," astonished everybody, particularly his work of getting out of a padlocked iron can filled with water; Sandy McNab and company caused shrieks of laughter with their sketch The Egyptian Mummy; a rousing reception was given to Billy Williams, a most popular comedian, who had to respond to several encores; Rembrandt, assisted by Miss Louie, executed some exceedingly clever oil paintings in quick time; Leslie's Comedy Cadets presented a most acceptable military scena, After Lights Out; and turns were also given by Harry Zeiter, comedian and eccentric dancer, Margaret Drew, singer of chorus songs, Burns and Bentley, excellent dancers, and Val Marome, comedienne.

GRAND TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jasper Redfern.—The public seem to have taken to the new form of entertainment provided at this hall. The animated pictures shown during the week were varied and interesting, while variety turns were given by the following:—Satani, magical novelty; Oswald Bentley, comedian; Draycott Sisters, duettists; Tiny and Mite, child vocalists and dancers; Olive May, with illustrated songs; Tom Joy, eccentric singer; and the Five Musical Tritons, who had a bright and clever entertainment.

PARK PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. Jasper Redfern.—Among the many animated pictures given here throughout the week was a prettily-coloured one entitled The Talisman. A pleasing all-round vaudeville show was also given by Shenton's Chicklets with The Children's Birthday Party; J. H. Ellis, comedian; the Two Kays, operatic vocalists; Leolin, juggler; Marion Adelaide, vocalist; and the Four Scoreys, with musical mélange.

NEW CENTURY PICTURE HALL.—Proprietors, The New Century Animated Picture Company, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter H. Hook.—A fine and up-to-date series of films are shown here thrice daily. Principal among them during the week were a most striking one showing the flight of Wilbur Wright's Aeroplane, Life and Customs on the Island of St. Kilda, Adventures of Detective Nick Carter, The Italian Naval Manœuvres, and many exceedingly humorous ones.

LLANELLY.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Resident-Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—Under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley, A Soldier's Honour is being staged here this week with considerable success. Miss Edie Macklin takes the part of Jemima and Miss Mabel Mannering that of Cora Lee in excellent style. Mr. Millar Armstrong does well as Capt. Deane; and Mr. T. Arthur Ellis is very good as Capt. Temple. The play is well mounted and dressed.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Resident Business-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Mr. Reginald Dance and company in Raffles have been playing to excellent houses here. Mr. Reginald Dance's Raffles is a grand conception, finely carried out; Mr. Edward Irwin as Mr. Curtis Bedford makes an excellent detective; Mr. Oswald Griffiths as Crawshay is a realistic burglar; and Mr. P. Alexander as Lord Amersteth acts with ability. Mr. F. C. Poole gives great assistance as Lord Crowley; and Miss Edith Lofting as Lady Melrose, Miss Marguerite Unett as Lady Ethel, Miss Frances Titheradge as Gwendoline, and Miss Mollie Tremaine as Mrs. Vidal, play together with much charm and sweetness. Miss Dora Digby, as the French maid Marie, proves herself a most capable artist.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—This week drama gives place to comedy, and we have the first appearance locally of Mr. Popple (of Ippleton), presented with evident taste and skill by Mr. Macdona's company. Mr. Macdona in the principal rôle scores heavily, and is strongly supported by Miss Nellie Hodson, whose excellent work we can well recall on the occasion of a previous visit as Julie Bon-Bon in The Gay Parisienne, also presented by Mr. Macdona.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—Excellent business continues here. The Aeroplanes present a sensational trapeze act in the roof of the huge building, and secures warm applause. Bob Elliott, sand dancer; Harry Tullett, comedian; the Three Mattresses, comedy bar performers, and Saville Bradley's company in Ructions are also in the bill. The British Biograph Company include a fine production of the Suffolk Tragedy of Maria Martin, which arouses great interest.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Miss Violet Osmund's company is paying a visit here this week with The Belle of the Ball. Mr. Alexander Loftus as Timothy Timkins proves himself to be an able mirth-provoker; Mr. F. H. Morton gives a first-class presentation of Sir Francis Lake; Mr. Johnnie Schofield, jun., as Bobbie Fletcher, is an amusing dude; and Mr. Gomer May is an ideal Farmer Jones. Miss Gladys Carlton as Poppy enters thoroughly into the spirit of her part; Miss Vera Grafton is a charming Queenie Trevor; as Lucy Forster Miss K. Mange does well; and the sisters Alice and Mary Jones find two capable exponents in Miss Norreys and Miss C. L'Estrange.

MAESTEG.—TOWN HALL.—Lessees, Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. F. Knowles.—A tremendous house welcomed Mr. Harry Benett and his company on Monday in the pantomime Robinson Crusoe, Miss Nellie Dyson, in the title-rôle, fascinates the audience. As Polly Miss Stella Millar is all that can be desired. An auburn-haired Mrs. Crusoe is found in Mr. D. Phillips, whose funny Welsh sayings delight the people; Mr. J. H. Wakefield achieves great success as Little Willie Curly. Mr. Harry Benett is exceedingly comical as Billy Crusoe; Rand and O'Ryan as Flip and Flap provide a deal of amusement. Specialities are introduced by Kloof and Ramsey, musical eccentrics; Lonzo Brown, coon vocalist and sand dancer; Saxo, posthorn soloist; and the Veronia Troupe of acrobatic dancers. The dresses and scenery are gorgeous and effective.

MANCHESTER.—ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—Messrs. Northway and Garrod's company are here this week with A Country Girl in London. Mr. W. V. Garrod as the hero Frank Gordon has a part well suited to his undoubted abilities, while, in the opposite character, Godfrey Clinton, Mr. Leonard Booker makes good use of his opportunities. Miss Bertha Kingston, as Marjorie Hamilton, the title-part, wins applause for a clever and sympathetic portrayal, and as the betrayed Gwendoline Gordon, Frank's sister, Miss Josephine Colona finds a rôle of great scope and interest. Mr. Seymour Perry as Wilberforce Ruddyphat, and Miss Ethel Whiteley as Adelaide, his wife, work well in a humorous direction, Mr. John Belton as Oppenheim adding to the amusement by his comical use of broken English. Others worthy of mention are Messrs. Clifford Marle and John S. Sheridan. The play is admirably staged and thoroughly enjoyed.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—John Tiller's pantomime Jack and Jill, written by Charles Fletcher and John Tiller, is being played here twice nightly this week. It is a bright and merry show, very well exploited by the cast. Cissy Iris and Nelly Grimshaw are in the title-parts; Harriet Fawn is the Prince and Nelly Rodney the Princess; and Harry Cotton, Bruce Green, and Horace Jones have no difficulty in getting fun out of their respective parts of the Baron, the Dame, and the Page. The dresses and scenery are pretty, and the singing is excellent. Enjoyable specialities are added by Le Cren Trio, the Eight Merry Midgets, the Tiller quartet of dancers, and the Imperial ballet troupe. Good houses are attracted.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Hewitt.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company, after a successful week at the Royal Osborne Theatre, is here in the Lyceum version of The Christian, and is again drawing good houses.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—An excellent programme here is headed by Herbert Darnley's comedy company in The Brigands of Tarragona, one of the most laughable productions seen in Manchester for a long time. Also prominent on the bill is L'Incognita, the masked vocalist, whose delightful singing evokes the most enthusiastic applause; W. J. Ashcroft, the solid man, continues popular; Victor Travers, eccentric comedian, is genuinely funny; the Beautiful Lillian contributes some wonderful trick cycling; an elaborate musical act, with electrical and scenic effects, is provided by the Ten Zerbinis; and other good turns are the Three Sisters Jerome, in their clever and pretty dancing act; Harry Simms, light comedian; and Conn and Conrad, in a well-conceived and entertaining novelty, The Twentieth-Century Burglars.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—The Sands of Dee is still drawing large audiences here. Captain Jos. Woodward's famous juggling sea-lions and seals go through their very wonderful performance: F. W. Purcell's company are seen to advantage in a capital sketch, That Brute Simmons; whilst other entertaining items are given by Campbell and Barber, clever acrobatic comedy cycle duo; Doroswami, the Indian Kubelik; Three Welsh Girls, good singers; the Mayvilles, in their living marionette performance; Frank Hartley, smart boy juggler; and Charles Vincent, comedian. Up-to-date subjects are shown on the Bioscope.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—Fred Karno's Yap Yaps continues to attract and amuse large audiences, while Captain Bevan's Gordon Highlanders share the honours in their exhibition of various lightning manœuvres; Sidney and Elvo provide a sensational and comedy cycling act; Ruby Emerson, vocal comedienne, is well received; some smart athletics are performed by the Krags Trio; and others duly appreciated are Fred Ellis, comedian, and Jack Marks (described as the smallest and youngest comedian in the world), who is certainly clever and precocious.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—Zona Vevey, assisted by Max Erard, provides the star turn here this week, and is very successful; Lallie Brooke, a pleasing vocal comedienne, sings well; Gillin scores as a ventriloquist; Playfair shows his wonderful ability in a paper-manipulating speciality, whilst his charming partner Vera sings delightfully; Frank E. Ford makes a hit with clever dancing; Mi Narom does well as a comedy artist; Bennett and Stirling, comedy duo, are good; and Alfred Graham's Juveniles are seen in a pleasing vocal scena. Pictures complete.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Miss Florence St. John tops the bill here this week in her delightful comedy sketch My Milliner's Bill, and is ably assisted by Mr. Chas. B. Bedelia. Mr. Ernest Legh and company are also to the front in a pleasing version of David Garrick, which is well acted. Webb and Branston are excellent operatic duettists; Rose and Challoner are a clever duo; Sam Williams scores with his song "Romany"; Lily Arthur is a vocal comedienne with plenty of "go"; Irene Francis sings and dances nicely; and other good turns are those of Ford and Maxwell, expert dancers, Charlie Carr, comedian and dancer; and Jack Ramsey, Scotch vocal comedian.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—A King for a Day is paying a return visit, and as presented by Messrs. Sidney Dooley and Charles Seymour's company is highly amusing. Lester and Moure are smart singers and dancers; the Godfreys are very funny in a musical comedy sketch; and the Days repeat their wonderful telepathy performance. Lidden and Hayward are skilful at the piano; Lew Peterman, the Hebrew comedian, sings well; Will Walton, comedian, is diverting as a comedy suffragist; the Rose Trio do some neat acrobatic feats; and A. H. Drinkwater is a pleasing light comedian. Stick Fast is shown on the Bioscope.

HULME HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas Baker.—Ruhart, comedy parodist, provides the star turn here this week, and meets with a big reception; Leonard Charburn's troupe of young stars, under the direction of R. L. Griffiths, are pleasing in a pretty scena, A Picnic up the River; Marie Jones scores a big success as a protean artist; Ben Harris and his Nippers are capital in a comedy boxing speciality entitled A Promising Pupil; Valvers is wonderfully clever with crayon drawings; the Victoria troupe are entertaining and versatile; and other smart turns are offered by Horace Sade, dancer, Leslie and Player, comedy duettists and patterers, and Les Zelovas, acrobatic equilibrists. Scenes from the recent earthquake are shown.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Capt. Clayton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—Mr. Roland Yorke's company opened here on Monday with The Old Home. Mr. Chas. Franmore's representation of Daddy Dean was of a high order; the Rev. Eric Armstrong was well sustained by Mr. Horace Denton. Miss Gertrude Bonser was a charming Hazel Dean; Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite as Bridget Donaghan, and Mr. Fred L. Connynghame as Sam Adams, enacted the humorous parts in excellent style; Mr. Roland Yorke as Lord Avondale was exceedingly good. Miss Mattie Crawford as Polly Popp, and Mr. J. W. Braithwaite as Dr. Warburton completed an excellent cast.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. Michael; General-Manager, Mr. W. W. Keene.—Miss Loie Esmond and her company have been appearing here this week, playing alternately three nights each The Sorrows of Satan and Nana. On Monday night the engagement commenced with The Sorrows of Satan, in which Mr. Edward Neville presented the part of Prince Lusio Rimanez with effectiveness; Mr. F. Dougles Howard was good as Geoffrey Tempest, and Mr. Edwin Ramsdale was amusing as Morris; Mr. E. Holland Day, in the rôle of Amiel, the Prince's valet, was good; Miss Loie Esmond played delightfully as Diana Chesney; Miss Rosie Neville was excellent as Lady Sybil Elton; and Miss Hilary Burleigh made as much of the small rôle of Mavis Clare as possible. The remainder of the cast included Mr. J. Le Fleming, as Earl of Elton; Mr. Fred White, as Charles Grimes; Miss Cecil Byrne, as Mrs. Grimes; Mr. Claude Casey, as Lord Lynton; and Miss Mary Askew, as Mary. On Tuesday night, in Nana, the principal characters were sustained and well played by Miss Rosie Neville, in the part of Nana; Mr. F. Douglas Howard, as Philippe; Miss Hilary Burleigh, Blanche Fougere; Miss Loie Esmond, Rose Nugion; Mr. Claude Casey, M. Fountaine; Mr. E. Holland Day, George Hugon; Mr. Edward Neville, Hector; Mr. J. Le Fleming, M. Duval; Mr. Fred White, Henri; and Mr. Edwin Ramsdale, Victor.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fred. Mouillot and Walter De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—Claude Duval, a spectacular romantic story told in three acts, is one of the prettiest and most effective sketches put on the stage here for a long time, and it has this week been received with unqualified approval. Roi, the cleverly trained gelding, adds greatly to the success of the production; Frank Maura, foot equilibrist, gives a capital turn, showing marvellous dexterity; Diamond and Hart, comedians, present a varied show of patter, song, and dance; Arthur Kenny, cyclist, performs some smart tricks; Bert Marsden, comedian, is amusing; the Bros. Michel, in living statuary and as gymnasts, are good; and Ethel Arundel, vocal comedienne, goes well.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—The Prodigal Son played by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company, is here. Mr. Hugh Montgomery presents an artistic study of Magnus; the part of Oscar is skilfully undertaken by Mr. Gordon Mackintosh; Miss Valerie Crispin as Thora, and afterwards as Elin, is particularly good; Mr. Bellenden Clarke plays the Governor effectively; and his wife has a capital exponent in Miss Barbara Gott. Oscar Neilson is played with earnestness by Mr. Philip Renouf; as Margaret Neilson Miss Marie Harcourt is most praiseworthy; and Miss Mildred Cottell capably handles the rôle of Helga Neilson.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Foremost in this week's programme is an amusing scena, presented by Donaldson Bros. and company, entitled Sports in a Jungle. Mendel, the blind pianist, is a great favourite, and his efforts are loudly applauded; Zarmo is a skilful juggler; whilst other meritorious turns are given by Onda and Artell, in gymnastic pot-pourri act; Allan Hanbury, comedian; Rosie de Deve, comedienne; and Hearne and Palmer. Some good pictures are shown by the Biograph.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. Fred C. Somerfield's company is this week playing here the drama Geoffrey Langdon's Wife? Mr. Paul Beckett is prominent with a weird and effective interpretation of Felix Beverley; Mr. Ed. E. Ashby plays with distinct ability as Jack Stirling; Geoffrey Langdon is presented with strong dramatic power by Mr. Wilson Summers; Mr. Cyril Grier ably fills the rôle of Colonel Mills; Miss Mary Lovett, in the part of Mary Langdon, combines a natural grace with high dramatic instinct; Miss Katie Lever is pleasing as Sweet Nancy; whilst Miss Kathleen Magee is excellent as the Hon. Mrs. Sands.

NEW PICTURE HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Will Hunter; Manager, Mr. E. H. Jones.—An excellent series of animated pictures this week includes, amongst others, Curfew Shall Not Ring To-night.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Ed. Jowsey; Manager and Licensee, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime, Humpty Dumpty, continues to draw good houses here. The humorous element has greatly improved, and with the introduction of Palles and Cussick, two well-known comedians, their advent should greatly strengthen the cast. Miss Barbara Babbington, who has taken up the part of Princess Aurora, has infused much more life into the pantomime, and is scoring in her song, "How would you like to flout me"; Miss Florence Wix's fine acting and singing, the splendid harmony of the Quality Quartette, the acrobatic tricks of the Lecard Brothers, the dancing of Walmsley Quintette and Jack Hayton, and the funny patter of Rex Kempton, elicit much appreciation from the audience. The scenery and dresses have earned everybody's praise.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company give an excellent performance this week of Mr. Henry Seton Merriman's work, With Edged Tools. Mr. Wm. F. Grant gives a good portrayal of Jack Meredith; and Miss Marie Leonard a capital delineation of the character of Jocelyn Gordon. Mr. J. A. Rosier is excellent as Sir John Meredith; and Mr. Chas. Hartopp as Guy Oscard does full justice to the part. Miss Alice Esther Bellwood gives a pleasing portrayal as Millicent Cheyne; and Miss Violet Thorold is charming as Marie. The remainder of the cast, Messrs. Campbell Goldsmid, J. Pocket, F. Layton, Aries Conway, and Wentworth Graeme, and Misses Marion Fawcett, Florence Dulhurty, Fanny Evans, and Emilie Finch, are all that can be desired.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—Miss Alice Pierce, the distinguished emotional American actress, is here this week, and delights all with her impressions of star players; Gunger and Valli are very amusing; and the Australian Twin Andersons are very good in a singing and dancing act; Jack Smiles, comedian, causes much laughter; and Duncan and Brasque score a great success in a playlet, A Society Butterfly. Primvessi, a juggler, also does well.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Peppi; Manager, Mr. C. E. Nicholls.—John Clempert, the original Siberian gaol-breaker, accomplishes several mystifying feats, in which he displays a complete mastery over locks and chains; the Five Whiteleys give a clever acrobatic turn; and Luis Hardt performs some wonderful feats of strength. Miss Teddy Edwards's company, in The Lady Jockey, a sporting farce, are very amusing; and Ernesto, juggler, Tate and Tate, Carl Colyer, and Edwards and Dacre also add to a capital programme.

MOTHERWELL.—NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hales.—Mr. George Edwardes' company opened to a packed house here on Monday, in The Merry Widow. Miss Mysie Devine gives a delightful impersonation of the title-rôle, singing and dancing in a manner captivating to her audience; the gay and spontaneous acting of Mr. Frank Greene makes him an ideal Danilo; Miss Ada Thomas sings and acts with great dramatic power as Natalie; Mr. Ripley Evans's fine voice being heard to advantage in the various numbers allotted to De Jolidon; very droll indeed is the Baron of Mr. Edward D'Arcy; the discreet Nisch being humorously portrayed by Mr. Fred Fowler; Frou Frou is prettily played by Miss Kate May, to whom a word of special praise is due for her spirited dancing; Cascada has a fine exponent in Mr. William Allison, which remark also applies to Mr. F. Pedgrift as St. Brioche; Mr. Clifford Seyler as Novakovitch; Mr. Robert Needham as Khadja and Mr. Adrian Beaumont as the Waiter at Maxim's; Misses Winnie Bailey, Marjorie Villis, and Luci Donati are alike excellent as Olga, Sylvanis, and Prascovia. Dresses and scenery are exceptionally good and there is an augmented orchestra under the bâton of Mr. E. Vousden.

MUSSELBURGH.—GAIETY.—Proprietor, Mr. Hugh Ritchie; Lessee, Mr. A. W. B. Kingston.—The pantomime Little Red Riding Hood is presented here this week. The book is by Mr. Tom Ellis, who is also the producer. The title-rôle is played by Miss Clarice Jenner and the Prince by Miss Emma Poole. Messrs. Tom Ellis as the Baron, James Dale as the Wolf, and Ted Mooney as the Dame all do well. Dainty dancing and sweet singing by Misses Marion Ellis, Mary Crown, Daisy Winthorpe, and Dolores Hope help to brighten up the well-known fairy tale.

NELSON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Greenwood Croft; Business-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Mudd.—Messrs. Bliss and Bliss's pantomime company, in Mother Goose, has been here this week, and had a gratifying reception on Monday, when every available seat was occupied. The show is an uncommonly good one, the story being told in a bright and attractive manner. One of the features is the graceful dancing of Miss Ray Ford, who makes a charming Jill; Miss Ethel Dunford is a successful Prince; and Miss Nellie Reilly as Katterina, the Dutch girl, leaves little to be desired. Mr. Len Bliss makes plenty of fun out of the character of Widow McCooseley, and as Jack Mr. Percival is a great success; Messrs. Pete and Juno, Snatchall's dusky servants, are a boisterous pair

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—At the head of the bill here we have the Three Floradora Girls in Two's Company, Three's None, which has been greatly relished; Mr. Chris Raglus, comedy juggler, causes plenty of hearty laughter; Mr. Harry Gold, in his vocal scena Cloudland, has been greatly appreciated; Messrs. Gilroy and Gross, American comedians and dancers, are received with much favour; and the pictures displayed by the Mouldoscope are as much enjoyed as ever.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden.—Mr. Edward Vivian's company in The Woman Who Sinned is here this week. Mr. Lionel Yeomans is good as Eugene Durville; a fine manly portrayal of Jack Carrington is given by Mr. James Musgrove; Mr. Edward Vivian as Silas Norris stands out pre-eminently; Messrs. Wilkirk and William De Lacy cause much merriment as Sergeant Jones and Percy Hogg respectively; Miss Eva K. Coleridge is a charming Hester Norris; Miss Rosie Watson a chic Maude Riggs; Blind Meg a telling Dorothea Vivian, and Judith Sartoris is in the capable hands of Augusta Tullock.

THE PAVILION. — Proprietress, Mrs. Fletcher; Manager, Mr. Phil Royston.—The Sisters Pardy present a pleasing musical turn; George Hurman is quaint; Miss Flo Villier dashing and chic; Messrs. Shelton and Fergus are a humorous pair; Todd and Peet are most acceptable; Little Dot sings in fine style; Charlie Barrett is good; and the Percys give a commendable show. Ruffell's Bioscope pictures reach a high standard.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Morgan. — Mr. George Dance's company in Havana is announced to appear here for three nights this week, namely, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, with a matinée on Saturday. This will be the first representation of Havana in Norwich, and a strong and able company has been engaged for the purpose. The chief parts will be—Miss Hebe Bliss as Consuelo, Miss Gladys Gay as Anita, Mr. Jackson Villiers as Cecil W. Parke, Mr. B. Russell as Hon. Frank Charteris, Mr. George Story as the Don Adolpho, and Mr. Tom Seymour as Reginald Brown. Mr. Albert Vernon will conduct.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—The Elliott Savonas' resplendent show and excellent musical talent command admiration from all. They are most successful and much appreciated. Wilton Heriot and company, in a comedy sketch, An Anglo-American Alliance, are very successful; Pat Lynch is a clever step-dancer and deservedly applauded; Yettmah is a good Japanese juggler, assisted by Miss Sosa San; Mlle. Florence is pleasing as a singer of illustrated songs; Cookson proves a capable ventriloquist; Nellie Ridgway scores as a singing comedienne on a wire; and Signorita Eloina displays ability as a Spanish gymnast. The Hippo Bio is particularly good this week.

AGRICULTURAL HALL.—Mr. Chas. Thurston continues successfully to carry on the Fun Carnival. The motor-cars are very attractive, and the animated pictures are good, and include The Indian Earthquake Disaster. The side shows of Mr. John Holmes and others continue to do well.

AGRICULTURAL HALL ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—The pictures here this week consist of interesting as well as amusing subjects. Scenes on Lake Genda and of Palermo are very pretty. Last year's Derby Day, boxing bouts by Jack Johnson, and some films representing the Sicilian earthquake, with songs by Miss Gladys Vane, make a pleasing entertainment.

NOTTINGHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The success of Cinderella is thoroughly assured, judging by the large and enthusiastic audiences. Miss Cressie Leonard's Prince gains nightly in favour, and her charming vocalism evokes unstinted applause; Miss Madge Vincent as Cinderella is also thoroughly appreciated; Miss Alice Tremayne (Flora) and Miss Marie Empress (Dandini) add much to the brightness of the production; and Miss May Lillian Levey as one of the ugly sisters is a decided acquisition to the comedy element. The "flow of humour" is abundantly provided by the comedians, Messrs. Alexandre and Hughes, Johnnie Schofield, and Harry Brayne, whose efforts gain in popularity at each performance. The Eight Madeira Girls dance vivaciously.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—Aladdin is in full swing and making fresh friends each night. Miss Mabel Carr (Aladdin) continues to charm by her vivacity and brightness; Miss Molly Wynne (the Princess) is the recipient of the heartiest applause; and valuable help is rendered by Misses Maude Rayne, Gertrude Lytton, Edie Graham, Jessie Leslie, and Elsie Roby; Mr. Fred Leglare gives a robust representation of the Spirit of the Lamp, and Mr. Lewis Leslie as the Emperor achieves success. The fun-making is capitally exploited by Messrs. Tom Kelso, William Fulbrook, George Fearnley, and Burley and Burley. The Six Yokohama Japs also provide an excellent speciality.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—Fred Karno's comedians in Mumming Birds are excellent mirth provokers, and throughout their turn the fun is maintained at a high pitch; the La Scala Opera Company, including Mrs. Arthur Rousbey, Miss Alice Rene, Mr. Edward Arthur, and Mr. Burns, has aroused the greatest enthusiasm by selections from Cavalleria Rusticana; the Cumberlands provide a really clever cycle act; and Annie Purcell sings in pleasing style. The programme is further enlivened by the efforts of Nellie Coleman, comedienne; Charles Santon, vocalist; Will English, coon singer; Walter Munroe, comedian; Agnes Tina, a smart little child actress, and the Bioscope.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Lockwood; Treasurer, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—J. C. Pidcock and company have a capital sketch in The Capture of Venus, in which music and scenic arrangements play a prominent part, although a large element of fun is present; as comedy acrobats, Elmo and Rego bid for favour in no uncertain manner; Hal Godfrey scores heavily in an amusing item entitled A Bad Boy; and the Croisit Trio gain appreciative applause; Dale and O'Malley add to the fun; as also does Harry Brown in a comical song; Wild, Willie, and West provide an entertaining turn; and Andrews and Thompson call for a share of praise. The Barrascope shows excellent pictures, and the Three Cyrieus complete a popular programme.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietors, Theatre and Entertainments Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Coyle.—Mr. Frank Bateman and Mr. Stuart Lomath's company is presenting Sapho here this week. Mr. Lomath as Jean Gaussin plays in a masterly manner, and is undoubtedly good; Mr. M. Curtis does remarkably well as Henri Dechelette; Mr. Geo. Herbert is successful as Jules Delbret; and Mr. H. Aynsleigh is seen to advantage as Famant. Humorous diversion is created by Mr. Percy Shaw as Uncle Cesaire, ably assisted by Miss Ellen Owen as Cleopatra. The difficult rôle of Sapho is filled by Miss Lizzie Montague. Her acting gives evidence of ripe experience, and she scores a distinct success. Miss Mable Durham as Alice and Miss Nelly Durham as Irene are both well suited.

OLDBURY.—PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Tyrer.—Howard and Thorne head the bill this week with a very amusing sketch, entitled Mary Ann, which keeps the audience in a good humour; Prof. Alviera and Mlle. Jeanetta, illusionists, are interesting; Dr. Oliver sings a couple of capital songs; Miss Alice May is well received for her two items; and the pictures are excellent.

OLDHAM.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Mayall.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's pantomime Aladdin concludes its allotted stay here this week. Miss Ray Wallace has recovered from her recent illness, and she introduces her well-known mimetic act with great success; Miss Mildred Bryan continues to delight with her singing as the Princess; Miss Isa Gibson and Miss Phyllis Seymour are capital; Miss Jennie Hallworth is a clever Pekoe, and Miss Marion Walker is an excellent Wan Lung; Miss Flo Collier does some clever work. The comedians are doing well with new songs and smart gags, and everything runs smoothly; Mr. Bert Harrow and Mr. Joe Robins head the list of fun providers, ably seconded by E. W. Avery. Messrs. Maxford and O'Neill, and Cedar and Elgar; Mr. Leonard Russell also scores; Mlle. Pauline Rivers is nightly called upon to respond for her troupe in the Children of Toyland, in which clever singing and smart dancing are introduced by Misses Lena Melville, Gertie and Nellie Langley, and Edith Howarth.

COLOSSEUM THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—Messrs. Levy and Cardwell's juveniles conclude their three weeks' stay this week end in The Babes in the Wood, and good business has been done. Miss Peggy McDonnell as Marjorie and Georgie Wood as Leslie are delightful; Miss Dolly Dodds is as good as ever as Maid Marion, and Miss Daisy Wood is a dashing Robin Hood; Miss Jennie Hughes sings in excellent voice as the Fairy; Misses Wyatt, Brumby, Lumberg, and Brumby are capital in their respective parts. The comedians continue to amuse in a clever manner, Messrs. Jimmie Watson and J. G. Aitken being highly diverting; Mr. Neil Hardy also does much towards success; Mr. Harry Leander is capital, and Master Jackson works hard. The ballets and chorus are ably conducted by Mr. H. B. Levy.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—The Boisset Troupe head the bill in The Bricklayers, and keep the house in roars of laughter; Bellman and Moore present some real vaudeville very smartly; Rose Cambry is a capital burlesque artist, and the Haydons, in their speciality are very amusing with good comedy; Ian Colquhoun has a fine baritone voice, and sings with good effect; Bradley and Barnes are clever in their singing comedy act; Lillian Neville is excellent in operatic selections; Thora receives much applause for his novel ventriloquial act, and the Bioscope depicts a capital film of Palermo and surroundings.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—The Five Kaytons appear in a humorous acrobatic pot-pourri with success; Kartelli is very smart in a novelty wire act; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden present a sketch with much humour; Hilda and Beatrice do very well in a refined musical act, with harp and pianoforte solos; Dolly Harmer sings her numbers with her usual success; Slippere plays the piano well; Jack Trueman has a good tenor voice and sings well. Beattie Allen is a smart ballad vocalist; and the Dottoscope shows good pictures.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—Ada Fawn appears in her clever burlesque, singing with success; Mr. Henry Coutts and company produce a clever protean act, Outflanked, with good results; Blanche Vincent has a sweet voice, and she sings well; Melia and Mozarabar introduce their cleverly trained pigeons and ravens, and do well; the Seymours are very good in an equilibristic juggling act; Alpho is a capital ventriloquist; and Jack North sings some funny songs. The Dottoscope depicts a dramatic film, Face to Face.

THE PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Thorne; Assistant-Manger, Mr. E. Sharrocks.—Miss Peggy Pryde has a capital reception for her fine songs and character studies; Hayman and Franklin provide excellent comedy in their new duologue; Harry Carsdale gives a clever turn as a farmyard linguist; the Walleys provide a smart juggling turn, and the Ansonia Trio, in a very good equilibristic act, score heavily; Minnie Wheaton is a capital comedienne; the Two Brilliants are excellent xylophone soloists; and Dion Wade is a good comedian. The Palace pictures are up to the usual standard.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr G. T. Lucas.—For the seventeenth year running Mr. Milton Bode is again providing the pantomime at this theatre, and the reception accorded to Aladdin on Monday night, the best opening night Mr. Bode has had here, by a most enthusiastic and delighted house, proved that he had once again hit the public taste, and Tuesday's packed house showed what the local verdict was. Miss Blanche Astley is a most vivacious Aladdin and sings and dances delightfully; Miss Elsie Skillings is a handsome and fascinating Princess; Miss Bob de Loriere is uncommonly good as Pekoe; and Miss Eva Chadwick is a good Nicee. Mr. John E. Conan scores a genuine success as the Widow, and keeps the house in roars of laughter all the time he is on the stage; Mr. Harry Morgan is excellent as the Magician; and the Fimans keep the ball of fun rolling merrily in their humorous performances of Chew-Chew and Chop-Chop. The Moxon Trio give an original and clever acrobatic display; and Collins's troupe of dancers are highly successful. The scenery and dresses are alike beautiful, and the whole pantomime goes with a swing that promises a most successful week's business. Matinées are given on Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday. Mr. Trueman Towers is Mr. Bode's general-manager.

EAST OXFORD THEATRE. — Lessees, East Oxford Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Messrs. Austin and Dixon's company is fulfilling a six nights' engagement with the pantomime Mother Goose. Mr. Sydney James is the life and soul of the piece with his inimitable performance as Mother Goose; while Miss Mabel Austin makes a charming Lubin. Mr. Eric Dean is good as Squire Close; Mr. Nicklin Williams is very effective as Avarice; and Mr. Will Raglan as Robert and Mr. Tom Read as Timothy are both amusing. Mr. Ted Lockstone does well as Billy; and Mr. Jack Harrington makes the most of Parchment. A word of praise is due to Master Fred Cox for his successful rendering of Amelia Jane (the Fairy Goose). Miss Winnie Murray is captivating as Daisy; Miss Cissy Astbury shows ability as Annabel; and Miss Gertrude Bond sings well as Benevolentia. Mlle. Le Mair contributes some clever dancing; and the Sisters Grovini are smart acrobats.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Puss in Boots is now in its fourth week. Mr. Savile's pantomime succeeding beyond the most sanguine expectations. Since the holidays an additional scene has been introduced into the pantomime, and one which affords the greatest delight and merriment. This is what is called "Mush's 'Bus," in which, with properties, a moving back-cloth, and a revolving platform, a realistic street scene is gained. The manner in which the various passengers, in grotesque make-up, attempt to board what appears to be the moving vehicle, is provocative of the heartiest laughter. The mechanical arrangements of this revolving stage are entirely new and original. Mr. Jack Mundy, the master carpenter of the theatre, worked on an old idea, with the result that he has invented and executed a much more simple and less expensive mechanical contrivance than any hitherto known in this particular line of business.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Stead.—There is being performed here this week, twice nightly, Mr. Jack Haddon's pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, which abounds in mirth and fun, and the singing, scenery, and dresses are all worthy to be praised. Miss Millie Engler makes a dashing Robin Hood; while the Maid Marian of Miss Dorman Morgan is excellent in every respect. The Babes are cleverly acted by Misses Madge and Dolly McCalla, who acquit themselves well in deportment, dancing, and singing; Miss Minnie Usher as Little John is admirable; Miss Maud St. John makes a captivating Marjory May; and the Fairy has a capital exponent in Miss E. Parry. As Euphemia Gadabout Mr. Harry Elliston is decidedly funny and humorous; Mr. Charles May as Baron Skeemalot is diverting, and scores a success; and Messrs. August and September as Noby Tyke and Soppy Sam create plenty of fun by their droll business.

PEMBROKE DOCK.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Tom Barger; Business-Manager, Mr. N. Barger.—This week Mr. Teddy Myles's company is here. During the first part of the week An Abandoned Woman was presented. Miss Nellie Thorne-Hallam as Ninon Malvoisin showed exceptional ability; Miss Lily Annesley as Eleanor Dean was charming; Miss Queenie Fraser-Brunner as Sally Sloper, with Mr. Teddy Myles as Paddy Boyle, ably supplied the comic element; Mr. Wm. Fraser-Brunner as Phillipe Malvoisin was clever; as Capt. Herbert Seaton Mr. Arthur P. Leo came out strongly. Mr. Frederick Healey undertaking the part of Sir Marmaduke Seaton in a capable manner. As Sammy Sharp Mr. Victor Garnet-Vayne was a favourite; the part of Eleanor's child was well performed by little Maude Addison.

PENTRE.—TIVOLI PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Gunn.—Topping a fine bill this week are Zeta Grey and company in The Lancashire Lass; Jenny Alexander, the clever child mimic and impersonator, is well received; wonderful feats of illusion are done by St. George Sylvesta, supported by Miss Vera de Courtney; George Prince, the crazy comedian, creates roars of laughter with his funny songs; Clayton Bentley's company, in their tragic episode, The Terror of Tierney's Rents, deserves much praise; A-Ba-Be, in a novel act, "The Picture Post-card Album," is highly appreciated; Madge Osmond, the ideal swell, is loudly applauded; and the Tivoliscope, with a fine series of animated pictures, concludes.

PERTH.—PERTH THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. Robert MacDonald's company in The Dairymaids is being well received here this week. Miss Isa Bowman makes a charming and attractive Peggy; Mr. Dan Agar as Joe Mivens at once installed himself as a great favourite, being full of fun; Miss Edie Martin as Eliza is admirable; Lady Brudenell is well represented by Miss Babs Christopher; and Mr. Frank Barclay makes a typical Dr. O'Bryne, R.N. Miss Doris Dickens and Miss Kathleen Severn are deservedly successful as Helen and Winifred; Mr. Richard Telford and Mr. Horace Manger as Lieutenants Sam Brudenell and Frank Meredith contribute to the humour of the piece. The theatre is to be occupied during the latter half of the week by Uncle Tom's Cabin.

PETERBOROUGH.—NEW HIPPODROME, LTD.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Manager, Mr. Frank Gallagher.—A capital programme this week includes the Maningos, marvellous equilibrists; Chas. Lilburn, a man with many funniosities; Ronald George, in the musical act The Night Watchman; Harry Blake, with his allegorical comedy scena The Man in the Moon; Dot Hardy, comedienne; Frank Leon, the dancing marvel; and the Xentrics, vocalists and dancers.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—This year's pantomime, Cinderella, appears to be creating a record, and packed houses nightly gladden the hearts of company and management. The comedians are particularly good and refreshingly original. Mr. W. H. Kirby as Peter Pepper, and Messrs. Woodhouse and Wells, as Bill and Ginger, are prime favourites in this department, the latter pair being nightly encored for some well-executed dancing. Mr. Alf. E. Passmore as the Baroness has some wonderful dresses and hats; the Misses Louie Tinsley and Denny Fitzherbert are very original as the ugly sisters.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Vonetta gives a highly interesting quick-change turn, appearing in no fewer than twenty-four different costumes in a remarkably short space of time; Harry Bert is a mimic of no mean ability, his contribution receiving hearty appreciation; George C. Doughty and company, in Captain Cupid, prove themselves capable comedy artists; Albas supplies a wire rope turn, characterised by skill and daring; Tom Lloyd's humorous contributions find plenty of favour; Cummin and Seaham as acrobats have a name which should be a draw in itself; and Charlotte Lunn entertains with some choice vocal efforts.

PONTEFRACT.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Tom Diacoff.—Tudor's four educated ponies provide a most pleasing turn, and show exceptionally careful training; Fred Carr and Ada Rose present a natural and bright vocal interval in A Winning Double, and Belle and Bright score a decided hit with their funny sketch Kiss Me Again, Dear. Bradley, the cycling Jew, appears to be capable of anything on wheels, whilst Mint and Mart introduce an interesting novelty in paper-manipulation, the lady producing elaborate antimacassars and a pair of window curtains of intricate design really "while you wait." Miss Maud Clifton sings some good songs, and possesses a voice out of the ordinary; Taylor and Bridge, the Lancashire Mill Lads, harmonise popular ballads very sweetly; and Elsie Moore is a chic and dainty comedienne. The Alexscope pictures complete a most attractive bill. The manager takes his benefit next week, when a monster programme is promised.

PORTH.—PALACE.—Proprietors, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—An attractive current programme has been arranged here, Topping the bill are the Mohamed Troupe of Nine Genuine Suasa Arabs, whose clever performance gives entire satisfaction; Joe Humphries scores a success in comedy and character songs; Haig and Novel are exceptionally good in their comedy act; Joan Deering, speciality artist, vocalist, and violinist, deserves praise; Lina Leslie makes a capital comedienne, and Edward Crossland's Melody Makers, a sextette of harmonious vocalists, deserve special mention. Heenny and Blanche are also quite up to date in their original speciality.

PORTSMOUTH.—ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. Geo. Edwardes's company, with The Merry Widow, continues to hold the boards, and the elaborately-produced play, with its splendid cast, has again been attracting large audiences.

PRINCE'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Agate.—Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime, Cinderella, continues to be one of the chief attractions, and is in the heyday of its success, scarcely a vacant seat being visible. Mr. W. T. Thompson (Buttons), with his new jokes, Ripples (Miss Edith Barwell), and Dimples (Miss Annie Cohen), are full of humour; while the singing and dancing of the Six Monte Carlo Girls and the Harvard Sextette are an enjoyable feature, the handsome dresses and beautiful scenery being an especial charm.

KING'S.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—A brightly-staged playlet is presented by Mr. M. Montgomery in Lady Lanigan, Laundress; the Ongars are very smart and agile dancers; a sensational cycling feat is performed by Johnson nd Devere on the tight wire; Henry Helme's powerful baritone voice is greatly appreciated; Cornalla and Eddie are very diverting in their noisy comedy act, with its knockabut business; Cecile François and company present An Artist's Studio; also in favour are Mooney and Holbein, Gicardo, the Four Aces, the Forsyths, and an interesting picture by Gaumont, The Traitor, is shown from the Barrascope.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Capt. E. H. Warren-Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Charcot is making his first appearance with his "automatic" man, and the wonderful performance baffles and impresses the onlookers; Violet King plays delightfully on the violin; Lillie Langtry renews her popularity here; Arthur Slater shows himself a siffleur of no mean ability; the Tossing Austins, the Lannons, and Sid Bedford and company, in farce, The Second Mrs. Chester, are acceptable turns.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Harris; Assistant-Manager, Col. F. W. Roberts.—George Auger and company with Jack the Giant Killer is the premier attraction. Mr. Auger himself impersonates the giant, for which his great stature lends reality; while the dwarf, Jack, is capitally enacted by Ernest Rommel. Marie Kendal is an immense favourite, her songs, with rollicking chorus, being taken up by the audience vociferously; Wilson Hallet gives some clever imitations of young children; an interesting turn are three elephants, presented by Mr. Chas. Miller; Flo Deighton, the Sisters Lavender, Lee and Kingston, and Steve McCarthy merit favourable mention.

PEOPLE'S PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Pearce.—The array of talent here includes the Cedricks, Marie Tilley, Dave Wallace, Jean Cratineo, Vela, and the Bennetts, with the pictures, make a good entertainment.

PRESTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, the Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—"House full" has been the order of things here this week, and the particular cause has been Miss Marie Studholme and company, in My Mimosa Maid (Frank Curzon's company). Miss Studholme as Paulette met with a great reception, and received numerous well-merited encores; Mr. Charles McNaughton also came in for a large share of applause for his excellent rendering of Victor Guilbert, and, in conjunction with Mr. Charles E. Paton as Max Guilbert and Master Archie McCaig, kept the house in a continuous roar of laughter. Mr. Percy Carr sang and acted well as M. Emili Gerard; and the make-up and droll impersonation of a Waiter by Mr. Arthur Jackson calls for special note. As Captain Louis du Laurier and Lieutenant Jean Courmandet Mr. Powis Pinder and Leslie Winter respectively both looked and acted well. Mr. Elliott Skinner was very good as Boss; Miss Ruby Gray was a sprightly Marcelle Pilanie; Miss May Garstang is to be congratulated on her clever performance as Madame de Pilanie; as Popitte Miss Eva Sandford was a firm favourite, and also had to respond to many encores. Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon the exceedingly able chorus, under the direction of Mr. Harry R. Matthews. The piece was mounted and dressed in a lavish manner, which called forth the highest appreciation from record audiences.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Much interest is taken this week in the special engagement of Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company, in The Village Blacksmith, and the wrestling match in the last act rouses the audience to a high state of enthusiasm. Mr. Sam Livesey is the village blacksmith, John Strong, and rivets the attention of the audience throughout with his excellent portrayal; Miss Lily Leicester gives a very clever presentation of Harry Strong, his child; Mr. Albert Sinclair as Captain Leo displays sufficient villainy to suit the most exacting and withal plays the part well; Mr. Edwin Maydew as Lucas Marler ably supports him; Mr. George Wilton makes an excellent St. John Harman; Mr. Fred Haning comes in for a good share of applause for his capital portrayal of Billy Twigg; as does also Mr. Thos. E. Marshall as Jeremiah Parkins. Mr. A. Walker is clever as Humpty Tarn (a mute); and Mr. Halstead seems quite at home as mine host of the King's Arms. Messrs. Gus Ratcliffe, S. Bale, E. Morris, and Bert Butler, as Inspector Grant, Detective Staple, P.C. Wilkins, and a servant, are all good in their respective parts. Miss Maggie Edwards fulfils the by no means easy rôle of Kate Strong most satisfactorily, and wins the sympathy of the audience; Miss Cassie Le Grande's portrayal of Ruth Parkins is no less commendable; Mrs. T. C. Livesey gives a clever character study in Sal Parkins; and Miss Edith Giddens is excellent as Martha Mopps. The play is mounted with great care, and is proving a draw.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—Leo Dryden presents a selection of old and new favourites, and needless to say, wins hearty applause; Billy Farrell, the quaint coon vocalist, is well received; Marlow and Manton (Harry and May) present a smart little sketch, entitled Winning a Wife; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilde are paying a return visit in their talking and singing shadowgraphy, and are as popular as ever; Smith and Johnson are a smart coloured duo, and sing and dance well; Pasquali Bros., tumblers and equilibrists are an exceptionally smart turn; Natalia and Diana are graceful and clever on the aerial trapeze; the Maxwells, acrobats, present a decidedly novel act, with their really wonderful acrobatic dogs; another good turn is that of the Kilties Camp, in which Scotch singing, piping, and sword dancing, all of which is exceedingly well rendered, is introduced. Lily Hayes, chic comedienne and clever dancer, meets with a gratifying reception. An excellent film, Monte Carlo in a Motor Car, concludes.

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Boothman.—Mr. Walter Melville's latest success, The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning, is doing exceedingly well here. Mr. Sidney Sarl has a part in Bill Slater which suits him admirably, and which he fills most naturally; Mr. Frank Denis is very good as Richard Fenton; Mr. J. Ronald Adair does good work as Willie Mason; Mr. Frank R. Robertson is at home in the part of Jack Fenton; while Mr. Fred Ingram causes some amusement as Johnny Walker. Miss Nannie Meade fills the heavy part of Vesta le Clere with much credit, and Mr. Raymond Wood is to be complimented for his acting in the part of James Harcourt; Miss Marie Kildare deserves praise as Poppy Slater, while Miss Zoe Davis and Miss Jessie Belmore as Lucy and Sophie Coventry are both good in their respective parts.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; Lessee, Mr. Ernest Mansell.—On each evening of the past week Mr. Victor Du Cane's company has been appearing in The Stowaway or The Convict. There have been big houses and most appreciative audiences. Miss Winifred Maude's songs have gone admirably, and the general production has been thoroughly popular. With characteristic enterprise Mr. Mansell, the new lessee of the Royal Palace Theatre, has introduced, during the intervals in the dramas, a series of living pictures—an excellent innovation.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; General-Business-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—Mr. F. Bulmer's powerful company is giving a capital performance of The Girl Who Went Astray. Miss Gwynne Warren, in the title-rôle, submits a fine portrayal, and Miss Ada M. Ryder as the sister, Violet Harvey, gives a realistic and sympathetic impersonation; Miss Mary Dalby is a capital Moliy Smart, and Miss Sybil Houghton and Miss Freda Fredericks are good as Eleanor Merton and Flo Fortesque. As the hero, Captain Frank Julian, Mr. John B. Shinton appears to great advantage, his interpretation being manly, strong, and realistic; as Rupert Murdock Mr. Fred Lloyd supplies an excellent study; as Adolphus Boomer Mr. Evan Roland is clever and refined; and Mr. Todd Squires makes an excellent James Yellowsocks. The remaining characters are all ably sustained, and the staging of the piece is praiseworthy, the dresses being elaborate.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton.—Brewster's Millions is being presented here this week by Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's principal London company. Mr. P. Hutchison plays the part of Monty Brewster in a clever and spirited manner. Miss Lilias Earle as Mrs. Dan de Mille and Miss Cicely Stuckey as Peggy (Monte's fiancée) both give finished performances, and all the other parts are in very capable hands. The Yacht scene is extremely good, the storm being depicted in wonderfully realistic style. A special matinée was given on Wednesday.

THE PALACE. — Managing Director, Mr. G. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco.—The Palace is occupied this week by the Reading Operatic Club, who are giving a very fine amateur performance of Les Cloches de Corneville.

ROCHDALE. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, the Northern Theatres Co., Limited; Managing Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—The Beggar Girl's Wedding is the attraction here this week. Mr. Otto Minster is a powerful exponent of the part of the hero, Jack Cunningham; Mr. J. C. Taylor as the eccentric Doctor Millbank plays in capital style; and Mr. Herbert Lloyd fulfils with conspicuous ability the part of Dicky Storm. Norman Marsh is in the safe hands of Mr. Ernest G. Batley, and Mr. Herbert Morgan cleverly portrays the villainies of Gilbert Lindsay. Miss Daisy Maynard presents a spirited embodiment of Tina Torkington; Miss Doris Whyte sweetly enacts the part of Elsie Cunningham; and Miss Olive Warne is effective as Maud Villiers. The title-rôle, Bessie Webster, is finely portrayed by Miss Vashti Wynne.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—J. W. Hall tops the bill here this week with his witty patter and songs; Blanch and Diacoff give a sensational bicycle performance; Harry Toft proves an amusing comedian; Nellie Moore is a refined character impersonator; and other artists appearing include U. C. Ugo, in "Mirthful Mysteries"; Nellie Nora, instrumentalist; Clark and Glenney, in a laughable sketch, The Haunted House; and the Empire Bioscope pictures.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Jackson Family; Business-Manager, Mr. Jno. Jackson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jas. Jackson, sen.—Harry Tate's No. 1 company submits the laughable burlesque Motoring; the Five Sisters Warwick are graceful and refined trick cyclists; Mis Ghita Corri is a vocalist of exceptional power, and scored a great success in "Character Types"; Devon and Earle are smart wooden shoe dancers. Miss Lizzie Glenroy, Scotch comedienne and dancer; Ingram and Irving, in The New Office Boy; Ferris and May, in Two's Company, Three's ——? Ashley's American Circus; and the Hippodrome Pictures complete an enjoyable bill of fare.

ROTHERHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Messrs. Edwin C. Jazon and Richard Nightingale are this week presenting a pretty production of Cinderella. Miss Molly Doon is an interesting heroine, and Miss Vera Mayne a smart Prince Brilliant; Miss Beattie Foster a sprightly Dandini; Miss Lily Hales a pleasing Dorothy; Mr. Leo Fields is an amusing Buttons; and Miss Cissie Gordon does well as the Marquis of Taxes. Miss Flo Burnett is deservedly applauded for her songs as Queen Bountiful; Mr. Fred Lake scores heavily as the Baron; and Wallace Whitney and Harry Plowden are clever as Arabella and Isabella. Specialities are introduced by Messrs. Whitney and Foster and The Dandys as Kuff and Kollar, knockabouts. Pretty ballets are arranged under the direction of Mrs. E. C. Jazon, and pleasing musical numbers are presented by a largely augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr. J. W. Johnson.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Edgar Fox; Resident-Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler.—Mr. J. Collins's pantomime Puss in Boots is being presented here. Miss Eva Ellis is a pleasing Princess Carita; Miss Ethel Beech a smart Juan; Mr. Wyn Weaver an amusing King; and Mr. Wm. Benson scores as Donna Dolores; Miss May Otto as Perdita the fairy is deservedly applauded for her songs, and Miss Elsie Don is very sprightly as Lola, singing with great success; Mr. Harry Seymour gives a clever representation of the cat, and Messrs. Bert Goodwin and Len Hammond are amusing as the bull.

SALFORD.—P. O. W.—Proprietor-Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is appearing here in At Roaring Camp. Mr. Robert Purdie gives a strong impersonation of Will Gordon; Miss Olive Wilton powerfully acts Nell Curtis, putting a lot of life into the character; Tom Barnes is cleverly portrayed by Mr. Charles E. Johnson; Miss Florence Melrose-Millett ably sustains the adventuress Jovita. Much fun is caused by Mr. Clarence Ibbotson as the negro servant Ebenezer; an impressive Gonzales is presented by Mr. George Porteus; Tommy is brightly played by Little Audrey; Miss Nora Dillon (Fanny), Miss Gracie Lawrence (Pinky), Miss Jennie Clare (Mrs. O'Flynn), Mr. Hyland O'Shea (Paddy McGinty), and Mr. G. Cuthbertson (Old Pard) give good support.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levey and J. E. Cardwell's pantomime Little Red Riding Hood commenced on Monday with a good swing, which kept the audience in excellent humour from start to finish. The staging is excellent, and the dresses are exceedingly tasteful. The title-rôle is delightfully played by Little Iris Vivienne; Miss Fannie Anderson is a sprightly Boy Blue, and one of her songs, "Afraid to come home in the dark," is very popular; Miss May Gibson sings well, and plays Miss Muffet charmingly; Mr. V. Wakeman is a very funny Dame Trot; Denby and Dent do a lot of work, and keep the aud

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—A good all-round company is here this week, the artists being the intrepid Holloways, four in number, in their daring and graceful feats on the lofty wire; Mr. Percy Honri, the talented and versatile entertainer; Messrs. Howell and Scott, two laughable Hebrew comedy artists and dancers; Bonnie Goodwin's clever little Piccaninnies; Messrs. Pacey and Lewis, eccentrics; the Woods, comedy duettists; Theresa de Silva, a handsome burlesque actress and vocalist; and Zeyward's Lilliputians, who provide a novel and pleasing acrobatic and equestrian entertainment. The Bioscope, with the Johnson and Burns Training pictures, concludes.

THE HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne.—Mr. Harry Roxbury's company is here this week in The Cowboy Millionaire, with Mr. Tubby Edlin in the title-rôle. That old local favourite Mr. Alfred Gibson, the original "Put your head from the window, Fred," is again doing well; and the programme also includes La Freyra, a graceful poseuse, with artistic scenic and electric effects; Dane and Reano, in a novel act; Mr. Dan Filmer, vocal comedian; Mr. Charles Cardow, comic vocalist; Mlle. Renée, in a refined musical interlude; John Marx, athlete; the Barrascope, with up-to-date pictures; and the Juanitas, in a smart and graceful act.

ALBERT HALL.—The Chas. W. Poole Myriorama concludes a three-weeks' visit to-night.

THE picture theatres, the Grand, the Central, the Montgomery, and the Pavilion, with the latest topical, fantastic, historical, and romantic films by Pathé Frères, the Gaumont Co., and the Sheffield Photo Co., are all doing excellent business.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Director, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; General-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baugh; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. B. Parkinson. — Lillie and Elsie Judge's cockatoos, macaws, &c., give a remarkably interesting and novel performance, which is enthusiastically received; an exceptionally pretty and entertaining show is that of Chester and Lees' marionettes; Baddow proves himself a ventriloquist of the first water, and his turn is quite up-to-date and diverting; Zelda plays with talent upon a number of original instruments—a pleasing, bright, and clever turn; Stanley Main is an accomplished entertainer à la Grossmith, and his mimicry is loudly applauded; McAskell, comic conjurer, well deserves his place on the programme, and vastly amuses his audiences; Wall Owen is a droll comedian; and the pictures are, as usual, of the best description.

SMETHWICK. — ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hinton—Travis Green and Ruth Zillwood's company is presenting Her Fatal Marriage. Mr. Arthur Hinton dominates the play with his strenuous acting as Captain Vigo and Zaco Malletto, keeping things at high tension throughout; Mr. Victor Millard is manly and convincing as the Curate, Wilfred Grey; Mr. Fred Hewitson does what little he has to do as Jim Rogers capitally; Mr. Gerald Byrne achieves a success as the half-witted Paul; and Mr. Percy Morton Wright is well placed as Detective Smart. The comedy element, in the hands of Mr. Frank Brunell (Peter Simple), Miss Laura Wright (Dolly Dimple), and Mr. Laurence Grove (Sergeant Wiggins), is very fine, and at times they simply convulse the house. Miss Lydia Audre is a charming and sympathetic Lily; and Miss Ruth Zillwood is seen to great advantage as Myra Malletto, acting with artistic ability.

SOUTHAMPTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—Mr. Mouillot's pantomime, Mother Goose, opened on Monday, and is attracting crowded houses. The story is compact, and the dialogue teems with humour, and the music is bright and up to date. Miss Olivia Eltone is a dashing principal boy and scores all along the line; as Jill Miss Florrie Saunders acts and sings remarkably well. Both ladies are great local favourites, their pretty songs and dances being highly appreciated. Miss Dorothy Payn, a newcomer, plays the part of Gretchen for all it is worth, and brings down the house with her farmyard imitations. The fun is fast and furious while Messrs. Edmond Russell (Mother Goose), Victor Kahn (Jack), and Lawrence Hanray (Lord Overdrawn) occupy the stage, and the wrestling turn by the Miller Bros. is one of the funniest things in the panto. Excellent dancing is given by the Parisiana Quartette, and the final scene, "The Land of Heartsease," is grand and imposing. Mr. Howard Leslie is stage-manager and Mr. Wallace J. Court the courteous business manager.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wm. Trussell.—Belle Davis and her pickchick actors supply the star act; another attraction is Irma Orbasany's cockatoos; George Carney and Frank Armstrong create considerable mirth; Ted Karno's Dinner Hour sketch is popular; and Sable Fern is a sweet singer of sensible songs. Others who contribute are Taree, in a musical speciality act, Archie Pitt, comedian, and Jim Cheetham, boy whistler.

HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Yardley.—Evie Greene, the popular vocalist, tops a strong programme and scores an immediate success; D'Arc's marionettes are simply wonderful; Dutch Daly, with his smart patter and clever concertina playing, is always welcome; Ethel Walker, with songs at the piano, is a smart artist, and others in a programme of all-round excellence are Oliver Martyn, patter comedian; Jessie Lee, comedienne and dancer; and Belford and Mars, comedy duo.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing Directors, Messrs. Geo. Conquest and Richard H. Nervey; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Great interest was shown on Monday in the drama The Crimes of Paris, which is being presented nightly this week by Mrs. Frank Bateman and Mr. Geo. Conquest, the popular chief of the local theatre, whose appearance among the clever company was the occasion of a hearty reception. The play throughout maintains a deep interest, and is splendidly mounted. Mr. Mayor-Cooke, as the demon, Viscount de Vismes, works with skill and success; while Mr. Kendrum Milson, in the character of Jules Martel gave a meritorious performance. Mr. Clavering Craig impersonates the detective rôle of Pepin Cardel in masterly style; and Mr. Geo. Conquest provides a humorous rendering of Joshua Johnson, Mr. Herbert J. Walton being a good exponent of Pierre Pelporte. Miss Flora Hastings is both strong and entertaining in her delineation of La Belle Hélène, who, with Miss Enid Edoni, in a dignified and striking personality of Angele Martel, is well received. The Misses Vera Clavering Craig as Jaques Martel and Christine Bickerstaff as Lizette alike give good impersonations; and Messrs. Geo. Conquest, jun., Geo. Harvey, and J. E. Abbott give pleasure as the thieves.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary and General-Manager, Mr. R. Singleton. The admirers of light opera are favoured this week by a visit of the D'Oyly Carte principal répertoire company, which opened on Monday in the ever-popular Mikado, and judging from the cordial appreciation of the large audience which witnessed the excellent all-round performance, it was evident that Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan's delightful operas have lost none of their attractiveness and charm. Mr. Charles R. Walenn was highly humorous in the part of Ko-Ko, which he depicted in a finished manner both histrionically and vocally; Mr. Fred Billington, in his old rôle of Pooh-Bah, repeated his former inimitable impersonation; the title part was undertaken by Mr. Leicester Tunks with adequate effect both as regards singing and acting; Nanki-Poo had an excellent representative in Mr. Stafford Moss, whose vocal numbers were much admired; the three little maids were charmingly and piquantly depicted by Miss Clara Dow, Miss Mabel Graham, and Miss Lillias Engholm, the latter appearing owing to the indisposition of Miss Beatrice Meredith; Miss Ethel Morrison was a highly commendable and forceful exponent of Katisha; and Mr. Sydney Granville played well in the part of Pish-Tush. The Yeomen of the Guard, Iolanthe, and The Gondoliers are also billed.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—Mr. Wentworth Croke presents the new version of The Christian. A capital conception of the Hon. John Storm is given by Mr. Henry Renouf. Miss Doris Gilham's Glory Quayle is full of artistic merit and catches the sympathy of the audience. The remaining parts are well supported and the scenery and mounting all that can be desired.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—The chief attraction is W. Selkirk's juvenile Scottish spectacle, The Gathering of the Clans, in which a good deal of singing and dancing is introduced, and some drills performed in excellent style. Mr. Ernest C. Gittins' popular military sketch, The Daughter of the Regiment, is well sustained, the part of Marie being played by Mlle. Adèle Prescot; Victor Newman contributes some good character sketches; good musical numbers and dances are introduced by the Four Figaros; and Burnetti, the original character musician, scores. The remaining good items are Arthur Astill, the whistling ploughboy; Toff Noel, a new comedian; and the Bioscope.

TIVOLI, LAYGATE CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Councillor J. K. Hall. — A merry comedy act, The Registry Office, is provided by Wilkinson's Laughter Makers, and meets with a hearty reception; Violet Beatrice, a dainty impersonator, creates good impressions; Peter Pan, American comedian, does well; and the Tivoloscope completes.

STAFFORD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone.—Leoni Clarke, the cat king, heads the bill, and submits a wonderful show of performing animals, cats, rats, mice, monkeys, &c.; the Vocas, with illustrated songs, are good; the Jollions, in electric scena, had a flattering reception; Two Leons, comedy duettists, were amusing; Castancia, the marvel, sings with wonderful voice for a child; and Mitzi, Japanese speciality, is smart and clever. The Vernon animated pictures conclude a very interesting entertainment.

STALYBRIDGE. — HIPPODROME. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Fioni; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. A. Jackson. Messrs. Pardoe and Miss Lottie Holland have again included Stalybridge in their tour with Cinderella, and the crowded houses testify their appreciation of the efforts made for their amusement. Miss Nellie Rose appears in the title-rôle, and Miss Holland is a robust Prince Charming; Miss Dora Round is a dainty Dandini; and Mr. S. Dormer (Baron), the Brothers Bert and J. Dench (Ugly Sisters), and Mr. George Hyam (Scoot, the man in possession) render valuable assistance; Mr. Tom Griffith as Father Time is warmly applauded for his vocal contributions. Specialities are contributed by the Pardoes, Alf. Graby, and Mike Hastings, patterers and dancers; Zenieth, animal impersonator; Edingale Trio, Continental dancers; and others.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, St. Helens Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. A. McLeod Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. E. Johnson.—For Love and the King is being presented here this week by Mr. C. Watson Mill and his company with much success. The character of Jarval is assumed by Mr. C. Watson Mill in a manner which indicates great dramatic power and skilful handling; Mr. Villiers Stanley plays the romantic Prince Uros very effectively, and the beggar maid, Natila, has a sweet impersonator in Miss Joan Ellis. A powerful character sketch is given by Mr. John Burton as Michael Obrenovic, and Mr. Henry Earlesmere shows himself a capable actor in the part of Vladimir, his son; Mr. Geoffrey Chate is good as the scented fop Duke Fernand, and the dignity of the King is well depicted by Mr. Frank Lyndon. Miss Rosalind Tate makes a gracious Princess of Athene, acting with ease and womanly feeling; Mr. Jim K. Woods causes much amusement in the part of Cari Oppenheim, and Miss Lily Winter (Grazia) gives splendid aid all round. The costumes are very beautiful, and the scenery is exceedingly effective.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leo Weisker.—The Grip of Iron is played by Mr. Geo. Blunt and Mr E. H. Knight's company with success, Mr. Fred Powell being seen at his best in the part of Simmonet. The Zenary Brothers, smart and clever equilibrists, are much applauded; the Brothers Corcoran play various wind instruments with skill; Merrin and Cardiff are capital dancers and amusing cross-talkers; Letine (female impersonator) gives a good turn; and Gena Manon sings well. The whistling of Fred Bamford is marvellous; and James Hargreaves and company give an excellent entertainment by themselves.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. William Revill.—Little Red Riding Hood is succeeded this week by Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's pantomime Dick Whittington, with a cast that would ensure the success of any pantomime, including, as it does, many artists of acknowledged ability. Standing out prominently is Florrie Gallimore, who impersonates Dick in true artistic style, and sings her songs in a manner that delights everyone, "My girl's a Yorkshire girl" in particular meeting with gratifying success; H. O. Wills is excruciatingly funny, and causes endless laughter as Idle Jack; Josie Delaine, who excels in the terpsichorean art, for which she commands the heartiest applause, is a captivating Alice; and the Herald Comedy Four as the dusky rulers of Morocco display their ability as harmonisers, and are in great favour. Jack Mackenzie as the Dame, Sarah, is genuinely amusing; the Cat has a nimble representative in Alf Clegg; Rose Tilley makes a smart Viscount Piccadilly; and Dolly Victor is a graceful Molly; whilst more than a word of praise is due to Rose Alderman, whose sweet vocalism as the good Fairy Sunshine is a very pleasing feature.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—The opportunity afforded sport-lovers of seeing the Gotch v. Hackenschmidt pictures has been largely availed of and much appreciated here this week. In addition, there is a capital array of artists appearing. Clown Barker, assisted by Miss Rozsika, in his comedy animal act, is thoroughly amusing; the Sisters Geretti are exceedingly clever on the trapeze; Mlle. Naveeda is a delightful vocalist, as well as a talented illusionist; the Four Jumels are entertaining in their musical act; Sinclair and Parr are diverting comedians and capable vocalists; and among others who contribute successfully are Jack Neil, Scotch comedian and dancer; Ruby Bijou, barefoot dancer; Bert Bowden, comedian; and Jim Topping, comedian.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES. — CASTLE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company present The Flag Lieutenant here this week. Mr. Lionel Atwill as Richard Lascelles gives a clever impersonation of the fine part created by Mr. Cyril Maude; Mr. Montague Love meets all the requirements of the difficult rôle of William Thesiger; Mr. George Mallett, as the Hon. Sir Berkeley Wynne, K.C.B., is excellent; Messrs. Hugh Wakefield and Lyonel Watts give an amusing portrayal of the merry midshipmen; Miss Florence Jackson makes a charming Mrs. Cameron; Miss Viva Birkett is very natural as Lady Hermione Wynne; Miss Marjorie Dore as Viola Hood made all that was possible out of her part. The staging of the play is magnificent.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—Mr. Harry Burns' pantomime Robinson Crusoe is being presented here twice nightly this week. Mr. Arthur Aiston as Will Atkins is a clever comedian, there never being a dull moment while he is on the stage; Mr. Henry Curwen makes a capital Dame Crusoe; the Brothers Ramsey are a clever pair of knockabout artists and create much laughter; Mlle. du Roche makes a charming Robinson Crusoe, her vocal efforts being well received; Miss Marie Belle as Polly Perkins is responsible for some good singing; Mr. Bert Coote's troupe of Yankee Doodle girls are clever dancers.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. M. Montgomery's stock company is playing this week a thrilling drama, The Sins of the Fathers. Judging by the reception on Monday the piece should have a successful run. Payne's Biophotoscope concludes with a good film, The Pretty Dairymaids.

STOKE-ON-TRENT.—THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; General-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Moroney.—The Delaries, as "Demons of the Grotto," give a fine show on the rings and trapeze; Fred Moule and company in The Battle of the Belles, which causes much amusement; Geo. S. Melvin, Scotch comedian, whose dancing it is a treat to watch; Sira, the one-legged acrobat; the popular Gregson Comedy Trio, in The Dummy; the Sisters Desmond; Ethel Stephenson, contralto; Ada Gatley; and the Bioscope are other attractions.

SUNDERLAND.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General-Manager, Mr. Alexander Telford; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Sydney Reach.—The pantomime Sinbad the Sailor is now thoroughly under way. Miss Jessie Wilton is considerably increasing her popularity as Sinbad; Zobeida still finds a charming exponent in Miss Christina Roy; while Miss Sissie Brand gives a vivacious rendering of Heesatoph. The graceful dancing of Miss Madeline Rossiter as Princess Zorilda proves to be one of the chief attractions of the pantomime, and Miss Roberta Svensden is excellent as the Fairy Queen. Miss Hope Trevalyon is also worthy of special mention for her excellent rendering of the Primrose song, and also Little Nellie Denver for her clever dancing. Mr. Will Johnson has hit the local taste and become a popular favourite. Mr. F. Beck as Captain Bowline is still as humorous as ever, and the same may be said of Mr. Frank Lynne as Binbad and Messrs. Walton and Lister, "the world's worst wizards." Mr. J. A. Howith portrays the Old Man of the Sea in good style. The whole of the company appear to be doing their utmost to make the production a success.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Hy. Esden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Jno. Pellow.—Dick Whittington is now in full swing at this theatre, thanks to the excellent management of Mr. Cyril Dundas, the energetic stage-manager. Miss Lena Page as Dick has completely installed herself in the public favour, and Miss Nellie Merton makes a dainty Alice. Miss Florence Hilton is an extremely gallant Sir Algernon de Nash, and Miss Gipsy Ray makes a dashing Captain Navycutte. Miss Lillie Storrie has won great favour as the Fairy Queen with her sweet voice. There are numerous other ladies in the cast, all of whom make themselves popular with their audiences. As Fitzwarren's Cook Mr. Fred Spencer is undoubtedly seen at his best, while Mr. George Rydon is also extremely amusing as Idle Jack. The Hannaway Brothers are a never-failing source of amusement, their boisterous fun fairly taking hold of the house. Mr. Dennis McArthy makes an excellent Alderman Fitzwarren, while the antics of the Cat are well carried out by Mr. Bert Hudson. Mr. A. J. Milne is good as King of the Rats, and Miss Dorothy Dryden receives great applause for her clever dancing.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. H. Esden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Geo. Dunn.—This week we have Messrs. W. H. Hallat and Walter Howard's principal company in Her Love Against the World. Miss Grace Heywood is a great success as the Princess, her clever acting making her a warm favourite with the audience; no less successful is Mr. Fred Emery as Eric, her soldier lover, whose magnificent deportment wins warm approval; as Eric's brother Nello Miss Rossie St. John is highly appreciated; Prince Ulric is given a capital rendering by Mr. Lewis Gilbert; Mr. W. H. Hall as Prince Othmar, Mr. Victor Rowland as Prince Maurice, and Mr. Arthur J. Moss as Sergeant Kaspar are all excellent in their respective parts. The comedy of the piece is excellently handled by Misses Gertie Reid (Katinka) and Hettie Ferguson (Gretchen), and Messrs. Henry B. Lewis and John Mill as Heinrich and Fritz Pimpernickle.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—The chief turn this week is given by Miss Cissie Lawson and company in a sketch entitled The Devil's Sunday. Miss Lawson acts on strong lines as May Faber, and the other characters are all good in their parts. John Warren is also of special interest this week in his conjuring feats. He was exceptionally deft in the manipulation of his silk handkerchiefs, but he excelled particularly in his renowned magic-carpet illusion. The dramatic part of this was also well done. The programme is profuse in comedians this week, Tom Moore, character comedian, Tom Collins, and Larry Lewis all being entertaining on their own lines. The Bob Hanlon troupe of gymnasts are also worthy of special notice. Miss Violet Stockwell and Miss Beattie Kent were both pleasing vocalists and dancers.

PALACE PICTURE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry N. Phillips; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—There are some splendid films on view here this week, chief among which are some excellent pictures of the Italian Earthquake. Whaling Off the Irish Coast, Catching Crocodiles, and A Visit to the Couillett Steel Works are both instructive and interesting. The Sunderland and Sheffield United Match was also a capital film. The pictures are well interspersed with good music from a well-equipped orchestra conducted by Mr. Leslie Russell.

SWANSEA.—THE GRAND.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Page.—Mr. Percy William's company give a realistic performance of The Fatal Wedding here this week. Mr. Cecil A. Melton and Miss Ethel Kay as Mr. and Mrs. Wilson arouse the sympathy of the audience by the naturalness of their acting, and Mr. Percy Ballad and Miss Elaine Vanbrugh develop to the full their opportunities as the unscrupulous Robert Curtis and Cora Williams. Jessie is played by a child actress, Lulu Wohlmann, who shows distinct promise.

THE STAR.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—Mr. Ernest A. Abbot's company have a great reception at the Star, where they are playing a répertoire of plays, including A Wife's Triumph, Sapho, and Lady Audley's Secret, in a manner that ensures good houses. Opening with the former play on Monday, Mr. Francis Trevor as Frank Walton is always good, and Mr. Bonhote Wilson played in masterly fashion the part of Ellis Jordan; Bessie Dewsbury has a most charming and talented delineator in Miss Ada Abbot; Miss Florence North is also a success as Alice Wilton.

EMPIRES, LTD.—Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—Herbert Carter and his company appear in David Garrick, and the applause they receive is eloquent testimony of the excellence of their production; Harry Herbert made his first appearance in Swansea, and is assured of a hearty welcome next visit; the Lukushimas are Japanese entertainers, whose turn is a really notable one; Alexandra Dagmar is a great success, and J. W. Rowley goes better than ever. The Original Gaudsmidts are quaint clown acrobats, and their dogs are really wonderful; J. P. Ling is a mimic of more than average ability; and Gladys Hooley, in a scena, Fiddle and I, is a violinist of merit. Bioscope concludes.

SWINDON.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—This week's attraction is Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's juvenile company, in The House that Jack Built. Miss Flo Taylor fills the rôle of Jack with great success, and Jill is charmingly taken by Miss Evelyn Major. Fairy Twinkle Star, in the hands of Miss Olive Purcell, could not be better placed; and Miss Hetty Jones as Colin gains favour. Miss Gladys Wyse is excellent as Wee MacGregor; and Gretchen is in the capable hands of Miss Jennie Marsden. Aunt Purdy is well played by Mr. H. Hillerby; and Mr. Paddy Sloan makes a capital Squire Bounce. Messrs. Doyle and Gibson as Scraggs and Scraggles are exceedingly funny. Specialities are introduced by the Forget-me-Not Quartette. The smaller characters do well, and the chorus is strong.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is appearing here this week in Lady Frederick. Miss Mabel Love as Lady Frederick Berolles is charming to a degree. She portrays all the varying moods of that wayward and contradictory character in a powerful and yet entrancing manner, and certainly adds another triumph to her many successes. No less praiseworthy is Mr. Robert Minster, whose forceful delineation of Paradine Foulkes is an admirable one, and wins him frequent applause. Miss Celia Gordon is seen to considerable advantage as Lady Mereston, and Mr. E. F. Meads gives a capital impersonation of her son, Lord Mereston. Mr. Patrick Quill as Sir Gerald O'Mara is decidedly good; whilst Miss Lynn Fontanne is vivacious and winsome as his fiancé, Rose. Mr. Edward Banfield has an unthankful task as Captain Montgomery, but he does it well; and the rôle of Admiral Carlisle is in the capable hands of Captain Gerald Gambier. Miss Rita Ward makes a typical Angelique, and the lesser parts are ably sustained. The play is preceded each evening by The Peacemaker.

TREHERBERT.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Poole's, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stephens.—Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company opened on Monday with the sensational drama, The Face at the Window, and, judging from the appreciation shown by the large audience present, good houses are assured. Mr. E. Hoggan-Armadale gave a capital reading of Lucio Delgado; Mr. Scott Leighton made an excellent Paul Gouffet; Mr. Alfred Warne was good as Henry de Brisson; Mr. Arthur Beverley made the most of his opportunities as Lucian Cortier; Mr. Bert Ellis was very humorous in the rôle of Peter Pottleberry; Miss Elsie Marriott Watson made a decided hit in the part of Maria de Brisson; and Miss Ruth Glyn caused much laughter as Babette.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Welton Dale.—The display of "House Full" boards was a gratifying indication of Miss Eva Moore's popularity with local playgoers on the occasion of the flying matinée of Little Lord Fauntleroy on Tuesday afternoon with the full Court Theatre company. The Hippodrome programme is also a strong one this week, and includes Annie Lang, Ford and Ford, Chas. Rest, Johnny Cecil, and Looping the Loop on the wire, as well as the Bioscope pictures.

TYLDESLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. W. Brierley.—Mr. Harry Tilbury and company are appearing here this week in The Blind Foundling. Mr. Fred Owen acquits himself creditably as Parson Ray; Mr. Horatio Sinclair gives a skilful portrayal of Mark Redman; the part of Gerald Dalton is in the capable hands of Mr. Victor Rae; Mr. Edward Brown does justice to the rôle of Squire Waterford; Mr. Geo. Walkley figures as Jaikes Romono with success; Miss Belle Tilbury as Isabel creates a favourable impression; Miss Annie Newall is a praiseworthy Violet Waterford; Little Phyllis makes a sweet and pathetic Fairy; Miss A. T. George is well placed as Winnie Dobbins; and Mr. Harry Tilbury supplies a very humorous rendering of Dick Dobbins.

WAKEFIELD. — OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. James Kiddie's pantomime Little Cinderella is here for six nights. Miss Hettie Gale is a winsome and dainty Cinderella, singing her numbers in pleasing style; Mlle. de Rose makes a dashing Prince Perfect, her fine voice being heard to advantage in several songs; Miss Edie May is responsible for good acting as Dandini. The chief success of the pantomime is owing to the unflagging efforts of Mr. Joe Huda, who keeps the house in continuous merriment in his clever rendering of Pimples the Page. He is well supported by Mr. Leslie Hawkins, who is highly successful as the Baron; Mr. Harry Bliss and Mr. W. G. Wesley are good comedians as Ethel and Maude, the ugly sisters; Mr. J. M. Hawtrey sings well and is able as Malicio; Miss Norah Roberts is an admirable Fairy Queen. Other principal parts are well filled by Mr. William Verto, Miss Ada Tyrrell, Miss Polly Kiddie, Miss Nellie Barrett and Miss Hilda Clairemont. The Lisando Brothers give a clever acrobatic performance in the palace scene. Mlle. Barrett and her troupe execute some pleasing dances. The principals work in the greatest harmony, and hearty applause greets their efforts. The orchestra is under the able direction of Mr. James A. Lowe.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Miss Amy Anderson and company appear in a novel vaudeville sketch On and Off the Stage, which proves popular. Miss Effie White displays terpsichorean ability in her kaleidoscope dances; Mr. George Bernard, actor-vocalist, provides an interesting turn; Mr. D. W. Watson is successful in a musical turn; Mueller and Coyne, comedy couple, are amusing; Rex Hartley, mimic, does well, and Mr. W. R. Vowles and Edith Bryans, vocalists, have a good reception.

WARRINGTON. — ROYAL COURT.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Beecham; General-Manager, Mr. A. M. Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. Smiley.—The visit of the Moody-Manners opera company has been attended with signal success here, and on Monday night a large and fashionable audience gave the artists an enthusiastic reception. Carmen was staged, and in the title-rôle Miss Rosina Brynon acted and sang admirably; Miss T. Addington as Michaela, charmed all with her vocalisation; Mr. Paul Weiss imbued the part of Don Jose with plenty of dramatic force, and his rich tenor voice was heard to advantage; Mr. Charles Moorhouse as Escamillo also scored well, and his rendering of the "Toreador" song was rapturously encored; Mr. R. Carton and Mr. G. Gorst as Moralis and Zuniga respectively, assisted much in the success achieved. On Tuesday Lohengrin attracted a large house. Madame Butterfly, Faust, Tannhäuser, and The Bohemian Girl are billed.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Franco-British Animated Picture Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Turner; Manager, Mr. Jack Waters.—The Itrams are the chief attraction here this week, and their pot-pourri act is exceptionally good; Kitty Cameron is a dainty comedienne; Bert Lytton is rightly defined as the "swell comedian." The pictures are a choice collection.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. G. D. Bradbury.—The Six Brothers Luck are responsible for much mirth here this week with their sketch Lift 'Ems, Ltd.; Harvey's American Boys and Girls, including Miss Daisy Dennis, sing some charming songs and glees; Lisbon and Barker are smart comedians; the three Lady Transfields are delightful instrumentalists; the Sovereigns astonish all with their chair jumping and tumbling, especially as they have each only one leg; Cherry Lass is a chic comedienne; and Hilda Mascot scores with her songs. The pictures are good.

WATERFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager and Lessee, John Collins; Acting-Manager, Maurice Collins.—This week Dickie Clare's company in the musical extravaganza Lucky 'Liza occupies the boards. Their reception has been good, the large audiences appreciating and enjoying this musical absurdity. Miss Vesta Brownie fills the title-rôle exceedingly well, her dancing being exceptionally good; Mr. Dickie Clare appears in his usual triple part with success. The Astor Trio in their smart dances have been encored nightly. The remaining parts have all been well filled, in fact, one sees uniformly good acting throughout.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby.—This week Messrs. Shardon and Martin's No. 1 Company in The Way of the World is proving an excellent attraction. The appearance of Miss Sidney Crowe in the rôle of Lady Adela Hardy evokes hearty applause, whilst the portrayal of Cecil Hardy lay in the worthy hands of Mr. Herbert Skardon; Mr. Edwin Avinal plays with marked ability the important part of Captain Fred Slade; an interesting character is that of Matthew Malyon, ably rendered by Mr. Clarence Temple; Horatio Bluff, by Mr. Victor Gordon, being warmly appreciated; as Joe Sparrow Mr. D'Arcy Kelway proves highly humorous, his songs being artistically rendered; Mr. Pat Quinn does some good work as Sir John Hardy; the part of Kate Montague is ably presented by Miss Violet Lytton, and as Pollie Belle Miss Violette Vivienne makes the most of her opportunities; Miss Marie Marsh as Little Eric Malyon proves quite a favourite. On Monday evening Messrs. Scott's grand circus opened here for the season to a crowded and enthusiastic audience. A capital programme is provided, the variety consisting of sixty horses and artists. The Bros. Scott, champion double jockey act riders, received a most hearty reception; loud applause is also accorded Master Alaska for his daring rough-riding performance; Little Len, the indiarubber contortionist, also proves a great attraction; excellent fun is provided by Tomato, the up-to-date clown, whose quaint sayings win for him the applause of all his audience; a good sketch presented by two funny clowns, entitled The Midnight Express, or Danger on the Line, keeps the house in roars of laughter; Mons. James, the great trick act rider, also proves a huge success.

WELLINGBOROUGH.—EXCHANGE HALL.—The Christian was very ably presented by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company on Monday and Tuesday. Judging by the audiences Hall Caine's dramas are a good draw here. John Storm had a capital exponent in Mr. P. Gedge Twyman and Miss Margery Fane was a very satisfactory Glory Quayle.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. R. Nightingale.—There is a powerful attraction at this place of amusement this week, Mr. T. Edward Ward's company producing the popular drama Second to None, and West Bromwich audiences have shown an appreciation of it that the play and the company fully merit. Miss Ward in the character of Nell Greystone is very charming, and acts with rare skill and vigour; Mr. C. W. Spencer as Sir Reginald Greystone has a difficult rôle, which he fills well; Mr. Fredk. F. Lord is capital as Captain Philip Mannering; and Mr. Frank R. Gwyn Richardson as Lieut. Ballater and Mr. J. G. Maine as Sergeant Jack Harrison are also good.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Archie Ainsleigh.—There have been large audiences during the week to welcome Mr. F. G. Kimberley's company in the sporting play Bound to Win, in which the authoress, Miss L. Addison, plays a distinguished part as Gladys Orme. The piece goes at a great pace, there being no fewer than nine scenes, and excitement is maintained all through. Mr. F. G. Kimberley is excellent as Harry Lyndon; Mr. Ernest C. Edwards as Squire Forbes is good; and so, too, are the other characters, not omitting the two thoroughbred horses, Ste Elsie and May Sanday, which give reality to the scene.

WESTCLIFF-ON-SEA.—THE KING'S HALL.—Lessee, Captain Claremont.—The Jolly Japs provide an excellent entertainment at the King's Hall this week. A capital house witnessed the performance on Monday, and the efforts of each member of the company were greatly appreciated. Miss Dorothy Doria rendered her songs in a charming, unaffected manner, and her duets with Mr. Stanley Adams and Mr. Douglas Phillips were enthusiastically received. Miss Violet Carmen has a captivating voice, and her songs and recitations are given in a pleasing style. Mr. Fred T. Daniels as the "funny man" keeps his audience laughing from the moment he comes on the stage till he leaves it, and Messrs. Stanley Adams and Douglas Phillips make splendid soloists.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Kelly; Stage-Manager, Mr. W. Angus.—Chas. Elderton's grand pantomime Robinson Crusoe opened here on Monday to a fine house. Miss Rosa Revell is excellent as Crusoe. The following specialities appear: The Three Eltons, bar specialists; Carson Hicks, coon singer and dancer; Baby Queenie, dancer; the Boultons, comedy entertainers; Miss Bartinelli, contortionist; Marblesque Trio in living statues; Miss Olive Sara, musical mélange; Stuart and Worth, the funny duo; Sisters Rynehardth, dancers; and Rowe and Holden, cake-walk artists.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Rawes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. George W. Montrose.—Taka, the champion ju-jitsu wrestler, assisted by Adolph Shanley, is drawing tremendous houses here. Other turns include R. C. Note, the popular vocalist; Dainty Daisy Davenport, comedienne and dancer; Zasma, assisted by the beautiful Delowie, in gymnastic scena; Miss Marie Ray, vocalist; Florence Carlow, the chic comedienne and dancer; Biff Hall, the melancholy Hebrew comedian; and the Vicoscope.

WIDNES. — ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie; Secretary, Mr. Tom Swinton.—This week Captain Clayton's pant

AMUSEMENTS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

DURBAN.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Empire Theatres, Ltd., S.A.; Manager, Mr. Aubrey Hyman.—The star turn here is La Belle Tortajada, in a novel operetta, The Début of Dolores. On the night of her appearance she was received with vociferous applause. An acceptable turn are Lawson and Namon. The male partner is an exceptionally clever trick cyclist, whilst the lady gives a smart exhibition of ball-punching. Clare and Pastor, dancers and xylophone players, are always a welcome turn; the Dixon Troupe of dancers and singers meet with appreciation; Tom Burrows, champion club-swinger, manipulates the clubs in a clever manner. Others that go to make up a fine programme are Nellie Hamilton (comedienne), Mme. Dora Ceremenda (operatic singer), Harry Wright (comedian), and the Bioscope.

IT does not seem that the popularity of The Merry Widow in South Africa will show any signs of abating for some time to come yet. This was proved by the splendid house that received the revival of this evergreen musical comedy at His Majesty's Theatre, Johannesburg, by the Wheeler-Edwardes' 1908 Gaiety company.

LAST Thursday saw the first production on any stage of the musical comedy, The Cadet, by Signor Dossi. The cast was entirely composed of amateurs, who acquitted themselves in a capable manner. The music was catchy, and the dialogue was smart, and sparkled with plenty of wit. The production was staged in a lavish manner.

A REMINISCENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—May I draw your attention to the fact of its being just fifty years ago (Boxing Day, 1858) since the disastrous gas accident at the old Victoria Theatre, in which thirteen persons were killed and about forty injured? I was employed at the theatre at the time, and succeeded in turning off the gas, as they were dying from suffocation. Perhaps there may be some of your numerous readers who may also remember the circumstance.
—Yours faithfully, E. CORBETT.
90, Blackfriars-road, S.E., Dec. 31, 1908.

"NYMPHIDIA," a musical fairy play, in three acts, written by Harry de Koningh, music by Frederic Leeds, was produced at St. Peter's Hall, Brockley, on Saturday. The plot is as follows:—Nymphidia, for rebellious conduct, has been banished from Fairyland by Titania, the Queen of the Fairies, until she shall regain her lost home by some notably good deed. Dolorus, the King of "Little Britain," has lost his only son John, who has been found, and brought up in lowly circumstances by Dame Goodenough. John falls in love with the innkeeper's daughter Rose, but she is spirited away by a wicked dwarf, Baron D'Umphti, who poses as the lost heir to the throne. Ultimately Nymphidia rescues Rose, and restores her to her true love, who is subsequently proclaimed as the rightful heir. Nymphidia is rewarded by regaining Fairyland, and the rascality of the dwarf is exposed. The musical play Nymphidia affords a pleasant evening's entertainment, but its merits cannot be fully gauged until it is performed by professional artists.

INTO the band competition engineered at last Saturday's matinée at the Theatre Royal, Workington, three bands entered, viz., 5th Lancs. Royal Garrison Artillery, 5th Border Regiment, and the Seaton Brass Band. The first and last-named played "Good night beloved" in good form, but they were outclassed by the Borderers quartette who chose "Native vale" as their test, and came in an easy first in the contest. Mr. George Eastwood, bandmaster 5th Border Regiment, conducted the winning set, and his fine cornet performance did much to ensure success.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

SYDNEY DEC. 1, 1908.—The Margaret Anglin season at Mr. J. C. Williamson's Theatre Royal is a distinguished success. Whether it be that the eminently talented actress has created a revival vogue for Shakespearean drama, or that the local Shakespearean Society has resurrected an interest in the classical plays, certain it is that the booking and enthusiasm are both very great. The other night some two hundred University students went to see The Taming of the Shrew, and they were so enthralled that they quite forgot their customary misbehaviour when in a theatre. On the 5th, Twelfth Night is to be staged, with Miss Anglin as Viola, and it is hoped that Mr. G. S. Titheradge will be sufficiently restored to take his share of the performance.

"THE MERRY WIDOW," with Miss Betty Ohls in the name part, is attracting all lovers of bright music and dainty, sufficient surroundings. The glorious voice of Miss Florence Young rings out true and rich as ever, and with Mr. Higginson and Mr. Reginald Roberts, the ensembles and duets are made most enjoyable features. The waltz duet, as done by Mr. Higginson and Miss Ohls, is refinement itself as compared with the initial rendering. The Duchess of Dantzic is in rehearsal.

MR. H. R. ROBERTS, at the Palace, under Mr. Allan Hamilton's direction, has replaced The Prince Chap with a revival of A Message from Mars. As the selfish Horace Parker, ultimately repentant, the whole gamut of human nature is skilfully played by Mr. Roberts. His beautiful voice and handsome appearance attract in any part he may choose to act, but the straight definite lines drawn in depicting Parker are most artistic and thoroughly enjoyable. Mr. A. E. Greenaway brings the message from the far-away planet, and with his stalwart form comes the atmosphere of his celestial home. Mr. Frank Lamb shows us a tramp of the most convincing type, convincing to anybody but Horace Parker, whose strength of harshness is really brought out and accentuated by Mr. Lamb's most excellent acting. It is an ideal characterisation. Miss Fanny Erris was most excellent in the scene where Minnie Templer breaks her engagement with Parker. She scored a success throughout. Miss Beatrice Usher surprised everyone by her matured style as Aunt Martha Parker, and she added much to the good all-round performance.

THE TIVOLI welcomed back two sterling favourites, Goodfellow and Gregson, who have improved in style and entertainment. Everything they do is new and catchy. Mr. Rickards' bill is a very important and attractive one, and full houses reward his enterprise.

MR. CHARLES HOLLOWAY, long and popularly known as an actor and manager, died on Nov. 29, from pneumonia. He leaves a widow, the well-respected actress, Miss Alice Deorwyn, and a daughter, Miss Beatrice Holloway, who is making rapid strides in the van of acting. Mr. Holloway was a genial, large-hearted man, and his passing will be mourned by many who were connected professionally and otherwise with him from time to time.

SYDNEY, DEC. 8, 1908.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Edward Major.—The Margaret Anglin season is—mirabile dictu!—drawing to a close. The last, and greatest, impersonation of this admirable actress is Viola, in Twelfth Night. It is a realisation of all one's loftiest ideas in the interpretation of the character. The boyish assumption never ventures on act or look unbefitting the maiden who puts it on; and the growth of Viola's love is exhibited with a charm of modesty delightful to witness. The support was fine. Mr. George S. Titheradge was the Malvolio, wondrously treated with dignity and finesse, creating comedy in all possible innocence. Mr. Henry Kolker was a handsome manly Duke Orsino, and his lines were beautifully spoken. Miss Susie Vaughan, a sterling Shakespearienne, made Maria of unusual attractiveness; and Miss Alma Vaughan created an Olivia of impressionable charm and daintiness. Mr. Sydney Stirling gave a finished portrait of Sir Andrew Aguecheek, a dandy without being a fool. Mr. Winfird Hunter was an important Sebastian; whilst the fun of Mr. J. A. Fitzgerald as Sir Toby Belch was boisterous. As the clown, Feste, Mr. Dion Titheradge gave a good account of himself. Fabian (Mr. Cyril Mackay), Antonio (Mr. Johnson Weir), and a sea captain (Mr. Harry Overton) were capably acted. Mr. J. W. Hazlitt stage-managed the play. Mr. J. C. Williamson acknowledges his indebtedness to Mr. Musgrove for the beautiful scenery, painted for the Courtneidge production at Manchester. The play is mounted and costumed superbly. It is played in four acts and eleven scenes, beginning at the second scene, with Viola and the captain on the shore. Miss Anglin was loudly recalled and loaded with floral offerings.

PALACE.—Lessee, Allan Hamilton; Manager, George Baller.—Miss Maggie Moore reappeared on the 5th as Lizzie Stofel, in Struck Oil, the part created by her here thirty-four years ago. A crowded house gave her an affectionate greeting, cheered and encored her every song, called her after every act, and at curtain-fall insisted on a speech. Mr. H. R. Roberts was the John Stofel, and though handicapped with youth and slimness, he interpreted the old Dutchman well. Mr. J. P. West, a veteran in the part, was again the Deacon Skinner, acting the unctuous old scoundrel to the life. The rest of the company was admirably fitted, Madge Herrock being a lovable Mutter Susan, and Messrs. A. E. Greensway, Charles Stamford, and Fred Francis, as the three young friends, military and medical, of the Stofels.

MADAME SLAPOFFSKI and Herr Emil Greder are still appearing in Faust, with Herr Slapoffski as conductor.

HER MAJESTY'S.—Lessee, J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, G. H. Smith.—The Merry Widow is a veritable boom, and, but for other arrangements made, could easily run all through the Christmas season.

THE TIVOLI. — Sole Proprietor and Manager, Harry Rickards; Business-Manager, J. C. Leete.—The Sisters Reno, just arrived, are already most popular; and the Marconis succeed in mystifying large audiences, which delight in being deceived. The rest of the important bill is as last noted.

THE NEWBURY SPADA CONCERTS are still increasing in value if the augmented audiences are any indication. Country visitors are already flocking in for Christmas, and all are anxious to hear the great tenor, Philip Newbury, now in better voice than ever before.

THE SYDNEY PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY gave a very fine performance of Elgar's Caractacus, on the 3rd, with Andrew Black in his original rôle of Caractacus. The other soloists were Miss Zara Wolkinski, a very clear-voiced and well-trained soprano; Mr. Jas. Crabtree, tenor; and Mr. C. Larsen, a conscientious basso. Mr. Joseph Bradley conducted. M. Henri Staell led, and Mr. Ernest Truman played the organ. The choruses were sung better than on any previous Philharmonic first night, and the orchestral work was very fine. I have often told your readers that Sydney, as a whole, is not a musical city. Responding to clamours that poor music-lovers should be permitted to hear the works of the great masters, the Philharmonic Committee set apart 300 seats at a shilling (usual price 5s.), and twenty music-lovers turned up. Nuff sed!

IN order to show their appreciation of Mr. Robert Arthur's efforts in the cause of local charities during the past year, the Mayor and Councillors of Southwark have booked the whole of the stalls area at the Kennington Theatre on Tuesday next.

THE DRAMA AND THE FOLK-SPIRIT.

The purpose of this paper may be described as an attempt to seek out the antecedent conditions by which the English drama came into being, and to enquire whether that drama has throughout its career been a reflection of the age, or whether, as the majority aver, it is simply a mode of entertainment worthy of no more serious consideration than that accorded to the business of the showman. It is, in fine, an endeavour to determine whether the drama has met a real psychological need in the evolution of the English people. In answering this question it will be necessary to examine the process by which such phenomena as plays originated, and to discover the causes which led to their existence. And in this undertaking the fact must not be lost sight of that progress in any art is dependent upon the tendencies and forces in the community. When a community has reached the contemplative stage of civilisation mental cravings arise, and to those mental cravings have been attributed the birth of all the arts. To the pursuit of such pleasures as those ministered to by art-forms can be credited a large share of the socialising influence which drama has possessed in inspiring certain intense activities. For, throughout the career of the English drama, it will be seen that if it served no other useful purpose, it has at least demonstrated its utility as an inspirational force in cultivating the idea of co-operation. That it has been a real live growth has been shown by its quick response to the influence of cross-fertilisation, and if that be regarded as one of the factors in social evolution, it will be found that the introduction of foreign ideas into English drama has made for its betterment. A conclusion like that follows from the axiom that progress arises from the fusion of unlike elements, and our drama has a long record of transfusions.

The miracle play found its birth in the desire of the priesthood to inculcate the doctrinal teachings of the Church by means of the dramatic form, and therefore it cannot be regarded as a real manifestation of the folk-spirit. Before it could reach that stage in evolution, the miracle play had to be released from clerical control, and the first reflection the drama bears upon contemporary life will be discovered precisely at that moment when the performance was transferred to the churchyard. In the mid-fourteenth century "Creation of the Universe" and "The Fall of Lucifer," the development of an historical situation is shown to occur in obedience to the mental craving for an art-form which would answer the enquiring spirit of the age, thus preparing the path for regular drama. After that the miracle play is found to contain reflections upon contemporary events, reserved for delivery by the buffoon, and it included historical, as well as grotesque, allusions and satire, the fool having the licence of comment which it was feared the wise man might abuse. To the people the miracle play came as a mirror of life—perhaps a very much refracted mirror—but it contained the germ-idea of future drama, including melodrama and society plays. In the realm of melodrama Herod may be cited as the primitive transpontine villain, who gave way to an abandon of fury; and as to society satire. Sir David Lyndesay's play provides a good example of the earlier form. Even in the thirteenth-century play of Noah's Flood, traces are exhibited of the modern farce form. Noah and his wife are represented as indulging in a diverting discussion just on the eve of the Flood. The wife refuses to go into the Ark without the company of her fellow-gossips, and when at last Noah has managed to persuade his good lady to accept ship-room, he only gets smacked for his trouble.

One historian at least attributes the rapid spread of Reformation principles to the preparation the minds of the people had received from plays like Sir David Lyndesay's satire. So that in these initial forms there is some indication of the tendencies and forces in the community, as showing that the drama did answer a real psychological need to a people without the educational aid of books.

Towards the second half of the sixteenth century the morality died out, because it was an effete form, and had ceased to reflect contemporary life. Comedy, in the form of plays like Tom Tiler, was taking its place. Although authorities differ on that point, the Interlude was virtually a comedy which differed from the ordinary form because it was not divided into scenes, but it has little claim to be a reflection of the folk-spirit, as it was an entertainment usually given in the banqueting halls of the nobility.

Literature was beginning to appeal to the people—the rhymed Chronicle is an example of its popularity. To the sixteenth century the first faint breath of the new learning came, imparting fresh vitality to English life. Every day, for instance, the daughter of Henry VIII. began by reading in the Greek Testament or by studying the tragedies of Sophocles. The spirit of the Renaissance infused its fire into the drama, inspiring the people to new racial activities. It is Symonds who divides the drama during the reigns of Elizabeth and King James into three stages—first, a period of preparation and tentative effort; second, a period of maturity when the type of drama is fixed by one master mind and perfected by another; and the final stage when decadence set in. With the first stage the people had little concern. The revival of classical learning made the drama the pet field for the classical experiments of Sackville, Norton, Hughes, Gascoyne, Edwards, and Lyly, and as the form was founded on the pedantic rules of Aristotle and Seneca, it bore little interest to the general public. The people had other entertainment. Frequently the common players so far forgot themselves as to produce a play containing political satire, but an officious commonalty was instrumental in suppressing this method of public comment upon political action. The decree of the Sovereign and Council of 1556 prohibited all players and pipers from strolling throughout the United Kingdom as disseminators of sedition and heresies. Kyd came with his tragedies of blood and death, Greene and Peele with their mordant melodramas, and bombast in blank verse, appealing to a Bankside audience with crude natures, apt to mistake grandiose words for strength of passion. This was an early manifestation of the folk-spirit emerging into freedom after the bondage of ignorance. Gross as it may have been, it was the first real attempt to reveal the motivitation of men's actions. In that sense it was a demonstration of the eager passion of the age to acquire knowledge. Formerly, men had quarrelled, had fought and died, and there was little question asked as to the why, wherefore, and whither. The curiosity of the crowd had never been aroused because, being under the mental slavery of ignorance, it knew no motives, and, clod-like, it did not care to inquire. But an intellectual uplifting had come, and the people began to realise the hidden beauties of the intellect. Man was in process of being revealed to man. One is tempted to turn aside and regard the contrast which is afforded by contemplating the fresh, unwearied aspect of that period towards drama, and that of the modern. "Probably there is nothing," a well-known writer has said, "which serious intellects hate so much as an intellectual treat. To be made to sit out a performance at the Comédie Française would be, to a great many of us, an unmitigated bore." The attitude is that of many of present-day intellectuals towards drama.

The classical drama was entirely foreign to the spirit of the time, and held no vitalising quality in it. The truth is that, unless the drama commands a national public by living in sympathy with the entire people at a certain moment of intensified vitality, it cannot flourish. To that fact may be laid the disappearance of the classical drama.

The evolutionary stage which succeeded this was to usher in Marlowe and the Elizabethan playwrights who, in the language of Milton, "pierced dead things with inbreathed sense." There is one phase of these dramatists which is apt to be overlooked, but which had an important bearing upon their success. They were not mere chamber-students, judging effects, like gem-setters, in privacy. Their trade was learned by coming into actual contact with the people. They were frequently employed in doing odd jobs for the company, and this mode of living helped to acquaint them with the nature of the mental fare demanded by their auditors. The wonder is that, in these conditions, their plays are so free from the taint of theatricalism. But there is a wide difference between mere sentimentalism presented in the theatrical mode, and the stuff that is demanded by elemental natures thirsting for knowledge of the truth about man. Much that was coarse in the drama of that period in regard to woman-kind should be excused by the fact that the female parts were played by boys, and that license was condoned when the audience knew there was no such thing as a female actor. Man had come into the precious possession of his own intellect—oppressive feudalism and ecclesiastical tyranny had gone, and untrammelled by these burdens upon the mind, every man felt royal in his own humour, and walked about with appetite unmasked. The life interest was alive and the drama in cultivating racial activities came as a vehicle to exhibit human character in action. Indeed, Heywood claimed for it that the pageantry of heroism and patriotism bred virtue. The cold treatment which Ben Jonson received affords illumination on the taste of the period. Poetry to him meant moral education, with the due observance of precedents in poetry. To him the end of poetry was to inform men in the best reason of living. Such was a poor instrument to shadow forth the spirit of his age which was concerned only with actuality. There was a contempt for studied purity of style and a liking for vigorous red-hot drama. At the Palace, the Inns of Court, and the Universities, drama was the common form of entertainment, and pageantry in the provinces.

To the third period of Renaissance-drama in England, the remark may be applied that an art-form will remain, although the spirit which gave it birth may have vanished. To that period in time Symonds relates Webster, Massinger, Ford, and Shirley. For them can be claimed the class of play which exhibited cleverness of technique, and some quite inspired plays, but there is an obvious affectation of novelty and a laboured complexity in their plots which betrays the mind of the dramatic workman rather than the playwright of genius. The blame did not rest wholly upon them; the age was no longer heroic. Something akin to the evolution of the Greek drama had happened to the English product—it ceased to represent contemporary life, and having no informing purpose it died. As Green points out, the life of our drama was fast ebbing away. The Great Rebellion with its sinister meaning for the people sucked the interest out of stage representations. A wide stream of Puritanism overspread the land, for good or ill, and whatever evil sequel followed, in its initial career it was responsible for a new moral and religious impulse. The scholar Cansabon, visiting England, remarked on the great abundance of theologians. But whatever supporters of Puritanism may say in its favour, it will be hard to deny that it was not responsible for the death of humour. The colour of life became a depressing drab. Little wonder, then, that the next manifestation of drama was to come in an essentially gross and corrupt form. Charles I. made it the recreation of a small aristocratic clan. Actors in the royal Masques openly mocked at the king on the stage. The dramatists blindly devoted themselves to the Court; when that decadent spirit set in the drama, ceasing to be a reflection of the public spirit, disappeared.

Reviving under Charles II., it had gotten to itself some form of genius, but it simply renewed the corruption of former comedy, devoting itself to the exhibition of duelling, illicit amours and fine gentlemen's sport. It was a replica of the French comedy without its delicacy or good taste. The people then had no drama—the countryman's only form of giddiness was the peculiarly innocuous Maypole, or some other less innocent sport.

It has been contended that tragedy died because comedy appealed to a commoner intelligence. The statement is plausible enough, although discounted by Elizabethan experience, but it is not quite true, for this rare form of art must appeal to the whole public to maintain its life, and not having answered that condition, tragedy fell away into the regions of artificiality. Out of the old masters' plays, dramatists like Dryden, Otway, Congreve, Wycherley, Farquhar, and Vanbrugh set themselves to refine their motives, and produce a style more in keeping with the current conditions of social life. They have been rightly named vamped-up dramas, in which the playwrights offered operatic pictures, incantations, torture scenes, and spectacular effects. Such could never have become an art form for reflecting the minds of the people. As in France the drama was an entirely artificial product—the special entertainment of a coterie—so the English product appealed to a limited section. From that point in history, as it failed to meet any psychological need in the evolution of the people, it gradually ceased to count as an educational factor.

In the early part of the eighteenth century the energy of the trading classes helped to produce an era of national prosperity. Amongst the higher classes Montesquieu said, "everyone laughs if one talks of religion." That lethargy extended to the clergy, whilst the middle-class distinguished themselves by their piety.

The play had ceased to interest the general public. It did not cease to attract in London and in other provincial centres, but it was confined essentially to a play-going public. At the London theatres the better classes and their women-folk occupied the boxes. The pit was almost wholly given over to young lawyers, young City men, and students, whilst the upper boxes were occupied by the lower classes. Pit and gallery usually held a noisy crew. But even though there were six theatres, the number does not compare favourably with the six theatres which were in existence in the lesser-populated London of the sixteenth century. The reason for this difference is not far to seek. It is a truism in sociology that until the physical pleasures of a people have been completely satisfied there is little room for the growth of intellectual pleasures. Students who are acquainted with the history of the people will find that during the eighteenth and early part of the nineteenth century, when the proletariat were engaged in the class war, that the English drama became a thing of shreds and patches. The converse side of this picture will be found in the seventeenth century. Then England had shaken off the chains of oppressive feudalism and ecclesiastical tyranny, and that gladness and elasticity of spirit which came to the people was reflected in their drama, which was universally popular.

If we take the definition of drama as being the re-creation of a significant moment or crisis in human life, the product of the last two centuries will not easily stand the test. These class upheavals had certainly suspended the æsthetic development of England, just as they did during the Civil wars.

KEAN AS RICHARD III.

"Kean's conception of Richard," wrote Macready, as quoted in Furness's splendid Variorum edition of Richard III., which was recently forwarded to us for review, "was decidedly Shakespearean. He hurried you along in his resolute course with a spirit that brooked no delay. In inflexibility of will and sudden grasp of expedients he suggested the idea of a feudal Napoleon. His personation was throughout consistent, and he was only inferior to Cooke where he attempted points upon the same ground as his distinguished predecessor. These points have often proved stumbling-blocks to actors and false lights to the discernment of audiences. . . . My father and self were betimes in our box. Pope was the lachrymose and rather tedious performer of Henry VI. But when the scene changed, and a little keenly-visaged man rapidly bustled across the stage, I felt there was meaning in the alertness of his manner and the quickness of his step. As the play proceeded I became more and more satisfied that there was a mind of no common order. In his angry complaining of Nature's injustice to his bodily imperfections, as he uttered the line: 'To shrink my arm up like a withered shrub,' he remained looking on the limb for some moments with a sort of bitter discontent, and then struck it back in angry disgust. My father, who sat behind me, touched me, and whispered, 'It's very poor!' 'Oh, no!' I replied, 'it is no common thing,' for I found myself stretching over the box to observe him. The scene with Lady Anne was entered on with evident confidence, and was well sustained, in the affected earnestness of penitence, to its successful close. In tempting Buckingham to the murder of the children he did not impress me as Cooke was wont to do, in whom the sense of crime was apparent in the gloomy hesitation with which he gave reluctant utterance to the deed of blood. Kean's manner was consistent with his conception, proposing their death as a political necessity, and sharply requiring it as a business to be done. The two actors were equally effective in their respective views of the unscrupulous tyrant; but leaving to Cooke the more prosaic version of Cibber, it would have been desirable to have seen the energy and restless activity of Kean giving life to racy language and scenes of direct and varied agency in the genuine tragedy with which his whole manner and appearance were so much more in harmony. In his studied mode of delivering the passages: 'Well! as you guess' and 'Off with his head! So much for Buckingham!' he could not approach the searching, sarcastic incredulity, or the rich vindictive chuckle, of Cooke; but in the bearing of the man throughout, as the intriguer, the tyrant, and the warrior, he seemed never to relax the ardour of his pursuit, presenting the life of the usurper as one unbroken whole, and closing it with a death picturesquely grand."

H. Crabb Robinson wrote of the same performance on March 7, 1814: "At Drury Lane and saw Kean for the first time. He played Richard, I believe, better than any man I ever saw; yet my expectations were pitched too high, and I had not the pleasure I expected. The expression of malignant joy is the one in which he surpasses all men I have ever seen. And his most flagrant defect is want of dignity. His face is finely expressive, though his mouth is not handsome, and he projects his lower lip ungracefully; yet it is finely suited to Richard. He gratified my eye more than my ear. His action was very often that of Kemble, and this was not the worst of his performance, but it detracts from his boasted originality. His declamation is very unpleasant, but my ear may in time be reconciled to it, as the palate is to new cheese and tea. It often reminds me of Blanchard's. His speech is not fluent, and his words and syllables are too distinctly separated. His finest scene was with Lady Anne, and his mode of lifting up her veil to watch her countenance was exquisite. The concluding scene was unequal to my expectation, though the fencing was elegant, and his sudden death fall was shockingly real. But he should have lain still. Why does he rise, or awake rather, to repeat the spurious lines? He did not often excite a strong persuasion of the truth of his acting, and the applause he received was not very great. . . . I do not think he will retain all his popularity, but he may learn to deserve it better, though I think he will never be qualified for heroic parts. He wants a commanding figure and a powerful voice. His greatest excellences are a fine pantomimic face and remarkable agility."

F. W. Hawkins wrote: "Kean came out from behind the scenes with a step so natural and so appropriate that the audience, accustomed to a fine, picturesque, and heroic stride, were absolutely startled; and communing with his own gigantic thought, he silently rubbed his hands—what a daring innovation!—they saw that no common man was before them. The soliloquy proceeded; there was no ferocious and studied declamation—all was easy, natural, and unlaboured; and as, with a beautifully expressive action, he gave out the line: 'The dogs bark at me as I halt by them!' the first applause elicited that night broke out in fervent enthusiasm. The soliloquy went on; the audience saw that the actor had become Richard himself—there was the devilish but calm calculation, as if solely occupied with means, and not wasting a reflection on qualities; the terrible jocundity, sure of his purpose, seeming to hug himself in his very heart on assassination, enjoying it almost as a joke, and exulting in it as an advantage. And then came the scene with Lady Anne, the nauseousness of which had been much increased by Kemble and Cooke; the former whined it in a way not at all attractive to the ear; the latter was harsh, coarse, and unkingly. Not so Kean. An enchanting smile played upon his lips; a courteous humility bowed his head; his voice, though hoarse with cold, was yet modulated to a tone which no common female mind ever did, or ever could resist. . . The quickness of familiar utterance with which the actor said of Hastings: 'Chop off his head!' . . . revealed a courageous adoption of the simplicities of the commonest every-day life and exhibited his superior understanding, his noble disdain of what was little, and his thorough comprehension of the part. . . . Richard, conscious of his towering superiority over those by whom he is surrounded, could feel nothing but contempt for the wavering, pusillanimous Hastings, and would consequently deliver the order as Kean did—in a manner which showed that he despised his victim equally from the consequences that might ensue from his execution. Moreover, the king was addressing himself to a friend in confidential conversation, and on a subject that necessarily supposed a perfect familiarity with murder. A similar absence of all theatrical flourish marked his acting when, on being taunted by the little Duke of York, the expression of his countenance formed a fine picture of stifled rage and affected composure. . . . Nothing could have been more happy, nothing more electric, in its effect that the soliloquy where he debated what course to take with the young princes. His apprehensive mind kindled at his casual mention of the Tower; it communicated itself in a blaze to his ardent and fiery spirit, and in the fatal lightning of his eye. . . the audience saw that the remorseless deed he contemplated was already done! . . . [Also] his interview with Buckingham, in which, entirely separating himself from the solemn pedantry of the stage, he placed his hands carelessly and gracefully behind him as the Duke described his reception by the citizens; and, above all, the scene with the Lord Mayor, in which the scarcely subdued triumph which glittered in his eyes as he refused the crown, and the accession to the pleas of his confederates with 'Call him in again,' all exhibited an originality new to the audience."

THE THEATRE IN GREECE.

Greece, says a contributor who recently travelled in that country, was the birthplace of the theatre, and its capital can boast of the first theatre ever erected, namely, that of Bacchus, built, it is said, by Philos considerably more than two thousand years ago. According to our best authorities, England did not possess a proper theatre until the year 1574, when James Burbage obtained the first Royal licence to act plays in London at the Globe, Bankside, but long before that miracles were represented in the open fields, where the devil appeared in person on the stage, shearing the bristles of the hogs; hence the old proverb, "Great cry and little wool." Geoffrey, prior of St. Swithin's, Winchester, is usually credited with the introduction of theatrical exhibitions, the first being performed eight years before the building of the Globe.

One of the Greek poets—Thespis by name—was the inventor of tragedy. Some 2,400 years ago he went from town to town on a cart, upon which was erected a temporary stage, where two actors, whose faces were daubed with the lees of wine, entertained the audience with choral songs, &c. His representations, as may be supposed, were very rustic and imperfect. Even in those very early days there were people who objected very strongly to the theatre, such as it was, and it is recorded that Solon, one of the wisest men of the day, was the chief objector. Anyway, the theatre went on, and to-day there are to be found in every hole and corner of Greece remains of what must have been magnificent structures. To describe them all would fill volumes.

I was very much surprised to find, when travelling in Greece recently, the old original theatre of Bacchus in such an excellent state of preservation. Many of the seats which accommodated the thousands of spectators who assembled to witness the masterpieces of Sophocles, Aristophanes, and other writers still remain, some being cut out of porous stone and others of Pentelic marble. One of the latter in the centre was reserved for the priest of Dionysos, as the still legible inscription indicates. The original stage was merely a rough wooden platform; the stone one, of which some very fine remains are now to be seen, was not built until about B.C. 340. The theatre was open to the sky, as were all the early theatres in Greece, and many of the modern playhouses are fitted to this end to-day. The modern Greek loves open-air theatricals, although so afraid of rain. To-day there are many theatres in Greece—good substantial structures with roofs in the chief towns and "fit-ups" in the country villages. I visited most of them when living in the country for some five years, and a friend tells me in a letter, dated from Athens a few weeks ago, that theatrical matters are still going ahead.

Although so full of ancient remains of open-air theatres, Greece, in its capital, has two of the most modern. The best is the Royal, which owes its existence to the King, and is built on the lines of the Royal at Copenhagen. It was built in 1901, and is very beautiful indeed; it will hold 1,000 people, and is often used as a ballroom. The company is a stock one, and paid all the year round, the King contributing 100,000dr. a year. European talent, too, is often seen there. The next theatre in importance is the Municipal, which has an enormous number of boxes. It is, however, a little too large and draughty to be really comfortable. In 1900 a Miss Duncan did a Maud Allen act there. French and Italian operas appear to be the most popular in summer, and in winter Greek dramas and comedies and translations of English, French, and German pieces.

Athens has ten summer or open-air theatres, and even at the lowest of these the songs and plays are most proper. The Greek hates indecency, and I know of cases where things have been thrown at singers of suggestive French songs. As a Greek novelist once wrote of his people, "we are not sufficiently civilised to be immoral." Competition cheapens the price of admittance, and some have seats as low as twenty lepta, or one penny in English money.

I am not an admirer of the orthodox Greek play, and it was not until I saw Charley's Aunt that I really enjoyed myself. I knew Charley's Aunt from A to Z, and was intensely interested in the Greek representation of it. Friday, Aug. 19, 1898, was the date, and I particularly mention it because I have seen it stated many times since my return that the play was to be translated into the Greek language.

First of all, a few words about the theatre itself. The proscenium, footlights, wings, &c., were like those of any respectable English playhouse, but there were no boxes, family circle, or gallery; it was all on a level, or nearly so—one vast pit. In front were, of course, the most expensive seats, and at the back were the "gods." The place was all open to the sky, and the lighting was by immense arc lights placed on poles in the centre gangway.

The scenery for Charley's Aunt was very funny indeed. In the main, it was intended to represent England, and Oxford in particular, but did not, for tropical plants, both painted and real, were in great profusion. Such plants and trees we never see here in England unless it be at some botanical garden, but in this Grecian theatre we saw them through the window of Jack Chesney's rooms in St. Olde's College, Oxford (Scene 1), and when we came to the College Garden scene it looked as if the stage was set for a Robinson Crusoe pantomime. In Spettigue's Drawing-room scene all things were correct.

The characters and costumes were passable. With the exception of Lord Fancourt Babberley and Stephen Spettigue, all might have been direct from the Globe. The latter was made up with long, auburn "mutton-chop" whiskers, so dearly loved by the Continetal cartoonist, while the former (Charley's Aunt) was an exact duplicate of the late Herbert Campbell and as unlike Mr. Penley as it is possible to find a man.

So far as my limited knowledge of modern Greek allowed me to judge the play, the translation kept fairly close to the original "book," with two exceptions. These were the conversations between Kitty Vernon, Amy Spettigue, Jack Chesney, and Charles Wykeham in the first scene and between Donna Lucia and Ela Delahay in Act II. All the best of the love-making passages were cut very short or left out entirely, for such things would probably not have been understood; love-making and marriages in Greece are quite different from what they are in England. "Where the nuts come from" and the "washing-day" lines in the first act fairly brought down the house. The play proved to be immensely popular during its stay in Athens, and the whole affair seemed to be run for the benefit of the Greek Aunt, who was certainly a very clever actor, and he made a fine, stout old Aunt.

I found, also, that Charley's Aunt was immensely popular among the Greeks in Asia Minor, it being constantly given in Smyrna, where the natives—Turks as well as Greeks—crowd to see it, and give it their unstinted approval. It was acted there, for example, eleven times from January, 1900, to June, 1905, the company coming from Athens. There is no doubt that the modern Greek lends itself very particularly to such a piece, some of the Grexisms being inimitable.

The Greeks, particularly those at Smyrna, also flock to see good tragedy. In 1905 Hamlet was played there in Greek, and afterwards in Athens. But at Smyrna, the Sultan—the time being before his "reformation"—fearing always to publish anything with an alarming title, refused the word "Hamlet" to appear, for some reason or other, on the bills, and so the play was called The Mysterious Testament.

The circus, too, is very popular in Greece and, like the theatre, performances take place in the open air. Most of them finish up with a sort of ballet, and the spectacle of about fifty ballet girls dancing in the ring, so near that the audience may touch them and say a few words to them, is one that appeals very strongly to the "gilded youth" of to-day in Athens. French clowns seem to be very popular, and in some performances their work is exceedingly crude, particularly in the country villages. A few of the performers are English, and I came across one in a very peculiar way. I was sitting in the front row of one of the Athenian circuses watching a "jockey act," when the performer fell from his horse opposite to where I sat. As he got up from the ground I heard him utter some good old English swear words. "Are you English?" said I. "Yes, thank Heaven," he replied. After the performance we adjourned to an adjacent café and drank to "good old England."

The lot of an actor here in England is a hard one, but it is very much harder in Greece. The tales of hardships my jockey friend and others told me are too terrible for words.

RELIGION AND THE DRAMA.

Mr. Forbes-Robertson, in an interview with John Garrett Leigh, which appeared in that very interesting publication The Treasury for November, said, "he was immersed in correspondence, much of it, he informed me, from kindly admirers who felt it incumbent upon them to give expression to the influence which the play had had upon them. I pointed out to him that in my visits to The Passing of the Third-floor Back I had felt something unusual in the audience around me. It was as if, at first, they were almost hostile.

"'Oh, yes,' he replied, 'we have felt it too. We felt it especially last night. But you must remember that the opening of the play represents the characters in unfavourable circumstances. One dislikes them profoundly. They are depraved and anything but attractive, and the initial attitude of the audience is quite comprehensible. They do not realise that they are present at the unfolding of a symbol. And that is the secret of the whole play. What is essential in it is its symbolical character. The Passer-by is no more than the symbol of the better self. He is the symbol of all Christlike attributes. No more than that is he "Christ in Bloomsbury."'

"'Many of us feel that the play is significant of a distinct movement towards the religious play,' I ventured; 'not the play which handles religious incidents or incidents surrounding religious issues, but rather reveals the depths of the religious temperament.'

"'No doubt something of the kind is in the air. There are distinct tokens of it. Friends of mine have been most impressed by a play which is being produced now in America under the title The Stranger in the House. It goes farther than the English mind would tolerate. Certainly the Censor would not sanction it. Even if it could be produced in England by some device on a Monday, the theatre would be empty on the Tuesday. The idea is that an Oriental takes a position as butler in a modern household on the condition that he retains his robes. You see him as the curtain rises. He is laying the table with his back to the audience. Soon he turns suddenly and the audience beholds—our Saviour! However reverently it be handled, the idea would shock an English audience. But, as I say, it indicates that some such idea is in the air.'

"'It certainly is of profound importance to the religious community.'

"'Ah, yes,' he continued, 'but serious thinkers have faced the idea long ago. They have been driven to it by their reflection on human character as it is to-day. So deep and serious a thinker as Mr. Jerome faced it, and in his own way. I ascribe the profound impression which the play has made on the public mind to the influence of such morality-plays as Everyman. They prepared the way, undoubtedly; but we must not forget that serious thinkers have arrived at such a conception quite apart from movements in the public mind. Mr. Bernard Shaw has said to me that there is unmistakable genius in the play. It is this genius which is independent of general tendencies, even though the tendencies are there. I do not see how those tendencies would act on the true dramatist.'

"'There is a lack of what we conventionally call "incident" in the play,' I suggested.

"'Yes, there is. That is what I felt even at the first reading. It seemed to me that nothing happened, save that there were a number of ordinary people who, under a certain influence, became other than ordinary. And yet I felt compelled to try it. The idea was so big and so beautiful. It was a big scheme. It was a beautiful motive. I felt that the big idea and the beautiful motive held me and that I must go on.'

"'And you are satisfied?'

"'Well, one has to think of financial successes, and it has been a big financial success. But there is another success and another kudos, and these are very precious to me; and it seems to me that in this other sense the play is more than a success. I must leave this theatre on Nov. 7, but I am taking another theatre for the play, and I hope to make an announcement shortly. You see, that indicates confidence in the success of the play.'

"'There was a big risk with so unconventional a theme?'

"'Yes, and with so delicate a treatment. So much is just indicated and no more. The love-story, for example—there is just enough, just the indication of what is meant. So fine and delicate is the indication that it might or might not have "caught on." It might, indeed, have occasioned resentment, and I was well aware of this. But I was also aware that in every line of the play there was beauty, and my great gratification is that the audience follow the delicate beauty so wonderfully well. The key-note to me is "All men and all women are beautiful"—you remember the line wherein the Passer-by speaks to the painted lady. It is a deeply symbolical and, I think, a profoundly beautiful thought, and that is the clear lesson of the play.'

"'There are those who still urge that the play comes near to the embodiment of the Christ'—I felt that I had to put it to Mr. Forbes-Robertson, even with reluctance after his clear disclaimer. 'They point out, for example, that when the Passer-by leaves finally a sort of mystic light seems to follow his footsteps.'

"'It isn't at all a mystic light. There is no such intention. It is merely a lamp-light, or it merely indicates a lamp-light to show his departure. It is not intended as a mystic light, and nothing is there which could, or should, give such an idea.'

"'They point out, too, that a sort of omniscient knowledge is claimed for the symbolic personage. For example, he says to the worldly woman, "I remember you when you were a girl," and some people argue that a sort of divine knowledge is intended.'

"'No; here again you have the merely symbolical. He is the symbol merely of the remembrance which she had of her girlhood.'"

SIR FREDERICK BRIDGE'S JOKES.

"Sir Frederick Bridge," writes Matthew Cripps, in the Woman at Home, "is as ready to joke with the great as he is with the small. And one respects him for this. The story of his conversation with a certain cabman is worth repeating. He is an intelligent jehu and is often the driver of the cab which takes Sir Frederick from Dean's-yard to the Albert Hall. Moreover, he is a musician. 'Why do you take the "Hallelujah Chorus" so fast?' he asked one day. On another occasion, cabby wanted to know if he knew Perosi's 'Transfiguration,' and offered to lend him a copy. Since then Sir Frederick—so the story goes—calls him 'Perosi,' which some of the less romantic messengers outside the Hall have changed to 'Rosie'! It is worth noting, by the way, that 'Perosi,' or 'Rosie,' plays the organ instead of driving his cab on a Sunday. Once upon a time, on one of those occasions when Sir Frederick listens to music, he was at a Philharmonic concert, and directly in front of him sat a charming lady with a delightful but tremendous chapeau. It blocked Sir Frederick's view of the platform. After dodging about for some time from one side to the other, like the long-haired man of Pianola fame, he remarked to his companion: 'If I had known as much as I do now, I would have brought the library steps with me.'

"As a lecturer Sir Frederick has few equals. He will often drive a point home in the midst of the laughter. 'Singers,' he once remarked, 'who make the most effect are not always the singers with the most magnificent voices. They are the singers who use their brains.' Then perhaps a second afterwards he will tell you that 'every musical pirate ought to be hanged with a "common chord"!'

"Sir Frederick is great on the Elizabethan days of music. Once when he was talking about the Shakespearean song—'Where the bee sucks there suck I,' he pointed out that the modern version had it—'Where the bee sucks there lurk I.' Present-day people, he observed, seem to have an antipathy to the words 'Suck I.' But why? 'Lurk I' possibly suggests the man waiting around the corner to take the bees' honey, or something else. Sir Frederick clung to the old style. On another occasion he interpolated into his lecture the story of an old man who believed in the superstition of olden times, that to keep a violin mellow you must put put it 'neath the bedclothes. Well, somebody went to bed early one night, got into it rather plumply, and smashed the mellowing violin! So the old chap made another out of his own head. 'And,' said Sir Frederick, 'he found afterwards that he'd got enough wood left to make another.'

"At one of the lectures which Sir Frederick gave some time ago, he dilated upon his pet subject of sight-singing. He was talking about Peacham's 'Compleat Gentleman.' 'Peacham says: "I desire no more of you than to sing your part sure and at first-sight."' Sir Frederick proceeded to comment thereupon. 'That is all he asks. Then you will be a complete gentleman. Without that you will not be one. How many gentlemen are there here to-night? I do not believe there is one. I may except these choir-boys; they may be called young gentlemen. They do not do it as well as you think they do. Like Dr. Thomas Busby, one has to spend money on switches and diachylum plasters.' He is proud, and worthily proud, of his Westminster boys. Sometimes the audience goes into raptures over their beautiful singing, and they are vociferously encored. But Sir Frederick playfully intervenes: 'You shan't encore the boys. You can't encore the lecturer, so you shan't encore them.' But they do, and get it. 'Now I'll introduce you to another composer—a modern one. His name is Bridge. But please let me tell you it is not a name to play with!' And so a delightful evening ends.

"Sir Frederick tells one of his graphic little stories in connection with the Wesleyan Hymn-book. It is a 'hit' at the editorial committee. He says it was a very 'artful' committee. They put before him a tune which they claimed to be of Handelian derivation. Sir Frederick thought otherwise. In fact, he sent it back with the caustic comment that Handel would turn in his grave every time it was sung. But the committee would not be denied; for they submitted it once more, with the allurement that if he would only include it, a pianissimo should be marked against it, 'so as not to disturb Handel.'

"Sir Frederick's humorous bent is shown very considerably in his glees and part-songs. For instance, his 'Bold Turpin' is a capital thing, and is famous because it is dedicated to the late Dr. Turpin. Then, among his many other pieces may be mentioned 'The Flirt,' 'The Goose,' 'The Goslings,' and an 'Ode to the Terrestrial Globe'; all of which are perfectly delightful. He has also written some tuneful carols.

"Once there appeared the following notice—obviously the work of Sir Frederick—in the Abbey practice-room: 'The Great and Swell occupants of the Organ Loft invite the Choir, if they can descend Solo(w), to a friendly Manual and Pedal Exercise, entitled Cricket. Every player is requested to provide a Full Score, and it is hoped many Runs will be executed, though no Great Shakes are expected. All particulars will be settled at the rehearsal on Tuesday next, at a quarter to eleven. P.S.—A ball-proof cuirass will be provided, and a doctor will attend.'

"No one gets angry at Sir Frederick's wit, and I am sure M. Paderewski will have a laugh at his little bit of applicable Shakespeare.

"'Come, Philomel . . .

Make thy sad grove in my dishevelled hair.'

"The witticisms of the Monday evening practices of the Royal Choral Society are legion. During one rehearsal, somehow a musically-minded dog got into the Hall, and ran across the platform. Of course there was a pause in the work and a good deal of bantering. But above it all could be heard Sir Frederick saying, 'Evidently, from the look of things, we are going to have a selection of Bach.' Sir Frederick does not forget to drop on the lady or gentleman who sings when there should be a rest—a silence. 'Now, if anyone wants to go down to fame as having sung a solo in the Albert Hall, now's their chance.' Or, again: 'Take your copies home,' he might say if the Society was practising a new work, 'and worry your neighbours with it.'"

AN artist belonging to the Royal Academy was eternally complaining of illness, but could never tell what was the matter with him. At last he married; which being told to Foote, he exclaimed, "I heartily wish him joy; for now he'll readily find out what's the matter with him." The same artist meeting him some time afterwards, exclaimed, "Well, Foote, you have been premature about my finding out my disorder, as I have got the best wife in the world." "I am sorry for that, my dear friend; for you know the old proverb, bad is the best."

THE TALKING PHOTOGRAPH.

Mr. Thomas Bedding, F.R.P.S., recently read a paper before the London and Provincial Photographic Association. Referring to moving pictures in America, Mr. Bedding stated: The moving picture in America is a form of entertainment which satisfies the temperamental demand of a nation for constant change, variety, and novelty in its amusements. Made commercial about fourteen years ago, the device of projecting by artificial light numerous small photographs in consecutive series so as to give an audience the illusion of lifelike motion is now firmly established in public favour. The moving picture theatre to-day is as marked a feature of American amusement life as the house on the boards of which the living actor struts his brief hour for the amusement of the people. In New York City alone there are between two and three hundred moving picture theatres. It is probably near the mark to say that the average daily attendance at these theatres reaches the number of half a million persons. In Denver recently 11,000 people patronised a moving picture theatre in one day. In Philadelphia theatres have been specially built for the moving pictures, which equal in completeness, costliness, and beauty the most elaborate of the old-fashioned form of theatre. And what is true of these cities is generally true of the whole of the large cities of the United States of America, where the capital invested in the moving picture industry runs into hundreds of millions of dollars. This photographic ministration to the pleasure of the eye is a natural development in a country where the cults of the spectacular in advertising devices, in illuminated signs, and in the science of directing attention to the saleable articles are carried to their uttermost limits.

In England, hitherto, the moving picture has been exploited as a supplement to the daily newspaper. A horse race, a ceremony, a procession, the arrival or departure of a King or other notability—some happening of the day, in short, has furnished the theme for an evening turn at the theatre of varieties. England is such a small place that the lovers of topical moving pictures are easily catered for. The very vastness of the United States, on the other hand, operates against this usage of moving pictures. In both countries we shall see a vast growth in popularity of moving pictures in narrative form—plays, operas, sketches, songs, dances, and so forth shown by simple optical projection on a stationary screen.

A development of the system is obvious to those who, like myself, have followed the evolution in moving pictures work since the productions of Lumière, Birt Acres, and others in 1895. The association of the photograph with the phonograph was a logical combination that was bound sooner or later to be made. A living performer on a stage does no more than appeal to the senses of sight and hearing. A moving picture on the screen interests the eye alone; but if it can be made to seemingly talk or sing as well as move, dance, or walk, we arrive at that fine point in scientific ingenuity where Art successfully displaces (and replaces) Nature. It does not precisely matter how, or by what means the optic and aural nerves are excited to produce in the brain the sensations of movement and sound; the resulting effect is the same, whether it be by human or mechanical agency. The emotions of pleasure and interest are aroused, and the mind is stimulated and absorbed. Caruso and Melba do no more; Irving and Jefferson did no more. The human machines—for such these gifted persons are or were—have merely been replaced by the mechanical productions of the studio and workshop, which millions, instead of merely hundreds, can see and hear at one time. Argue round this proposition as you will, and as much as we may, it is a fact that the equality of Art with Nature is in process of daily demonstration, and that a combination of the work of the camera and the phonograph gives us a result as sensuously if not as aesthetically pleasing as the real thing.

We must realise that the public taste in the matter of entertainments has undergone great changes in recent years. The times are too strenuous for the long drawn out dramas, tragedies, and the like of our parents. We take our pleasures in tabloid doses—many and often. Short plays, quick and numerous turns at the variety theatres: these are the comparison phenomena of the paragraphic newspapers; the automobile, the Kodak, the motor-boat, and many other conveniences of the Age of Speed. The civilised world, it is said, is rapidly becoming Americanised. A good thing, too, for Americans know how to get more out of life than most other people. If we must be entertained, let us be entertained quickly, brightly, and cheaply.

The talking photograph, then, makes its appearance at the psychological moment. The world has been waiting for it, and should be happy now that it has got it. Excuse me for saying that "it has come to stay." Of two hackneyed phrases that and the other—"a long felt want"—I have chosen, I think, the least undesirable. The Melba, Caruso, Irving, or Jefferson of the future instead of wearing herself or himself out in public will live comfortably on an early-made reputation by producing phonographic "records" in the boudoir or the study.

Ignorant persons of the superior variety sometimes jeer at the photographic qualities of moving pictures. They know nothing of the great difficulties of making them. They do not realise the fact that by the time it reaches the screen each little photograph in the series is magnified many hundreds of times. The consequence is that each microscopical defect or mark on the film is enormously enlarged, and the marvel is not that the photographs as seen by the public are not entirely faultless, but that they are so good, so even in quality, so realistic in effect. A more wonderful illusion than the talking photograph does not exist in the world to-day. You get a faithful reproduction of the original scene and the people in it; you watch their lifelike movements and gestures; you listen to their voices whether speaking or singing—in a word, the whole thing when well done is so astounding that people are known, at the first blush, to refuse to believe in the possibility of the phenomena being other than real.

It is clear that this form of entertainment is capable of great development. The arts of the painter, the dramatist, the musician, the costumier, are being pressed into its service; the intellectual cravings of all classes in the community will be catered for; and before long hardly a village in the civilised world will be without its talking picture theatre. It is all an obvious and legitimate growth and modern science and enterprise, and I specially predict the greatest popularity for this kind of entertainment in England, where, as I have said, those responsible for the amusement of the people are just waking up to the immeasurable possibilities of the talking photograph.

Mr. Bedding concluded by giving a short account of the manner in which talking photographs are made by the Cameraphone Company, of New York, of whose experimental department he had charge.

BARON NEWMAN, the celebrated gambler (well-known about town in Foote's time by the title of the left-handed Baron) being detected, in the rooms at Bath, in the act of secreting a card, the company, in the warmth of their resentment, threw him out of the window of a one pair of stairs room where they were playing. The Baron meeting Foote some time afterwards, loudly complained of this usage, and asked him what he should do to repair his injured honour. "Do!" said the wit, "why, 'tis a plain case; never play so high again as long as you live."

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

"THE HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT" AT THE MARLBOROUGH.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

The precise period of architecture of the house that Jack built is not known to historians, and it is not even certain that its designer held the imprimatur of the Royal British Institute of Architects; but as a vehicle of fun, designed by Mr. Hickory Wood and musically illustrated by Mr. Dudley Powell, it certainly is worthy of its place at a theatre that has established in the northern heights an enviable reputation for frolic and frivolity in its Christmas productions. The head and front of the whole scheme is Mr. Fred Karno, whose lieutenant, Mr. W. H. Morgan, has done much to add to the cohesiveness of the scenes and to the perfection of the ensemble. There is, too, one of the prettiest electric ballets we have seen for years. It comes at the end of the first part, and its brilliancy and beauty are due to the invention and taste of Mr. P. C. Armstrong from "Amurrica." Ballerine are glowing with coloured bulbs, and hundreds of lights hang in florally-designed "ropes" from the grid, the whole stage being a blaze of harmonious incandescence. The audience on the night of our visit were evidently highly delighted with this charming exhibition, and signified their pleasure in the most enthusiastic manner.

One of the chiefs who contribute greatly to the success is Miss Maidie Scott, who plays Jill. Miss Scott makes an attractive figure of the daughter of Mother Hubbard; but it is when she sings "Maidie and her Teddy bear" that one discovers what a favourite she is with the Hollowayssiders, who encore the popular song with "vociferous vociferation." It loses nothing in the stage-management, the introduced chorus wearing "bear" dresses and the general ensemble being most effective. Another popular number which derives much of its interest from Miss Scott's rendering is "Everyone goes to work but father," which is another triumph. Mr. Fred Zola's diminutive stature and quaint expression are factors in his comic rendering of Father Hubbard, and his song and quaint dance enable him to score a hit. He shares the drollery of many a good scene with Mr. Fred Emney, who comes from Drury Lane, in the part of Mother Hubbard, a dear old lady who sets much value upon herself, and displays no little anxiety concerning her Old-Age Pension. Miss Madoline Rees has a capital song as Prince Opulent; and Miss Kittie Douglas (Princess Prue) is quite in keeping with the prevailing fashion when she most successfully sings "A tiny seed of love," which is in every pantomime. Miss Maudie Francis, who, though very young, has already a big pantomime reputation, plays Tommy with much "boyishness," and after giving a good account of "Mr. Gollywog, good-night," dances in a way that wins all hearts. Miss Winifred Ward asserts the claims of heredity in a neat and attractive impersonation of Jack, which is both buoyant and boyish. Mr. Sam Poluski, jun., also has family traditions, and his Cat is a great favourite with the youngsters, especially when he stalks round the grand circle. Mr. Dick Tubb is quietly comic as the Squire of Whare, especially with his patent reversible wooden steed. Messrs. Farr and Farland contribute their quota to the fun as Ripp and Rapp; Miss Nellie Howard and Miss Gladys Soman look well and sing capably as the enchantress Siren and the fairy White Heather; and Little Rosie Lee, Miss May Davis, and Miss Jessie Buckle complete the cast. Miss Lottie Stone's troupe of agile and attractive dancers score in their well-staged scena, "Sue, Sue, Sue," which is admirably done. Mr. J. Murray Heriot, the business-manager of the theatre, welcomes one heartily at Holloway, where "houses" are about as good as they can be. Mr. Harry J. Brett is the business-manager for Mr. Fred Karno.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" AT BRIXTON.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

This popular place of amusement has throughout the holiday season been on each occasion crowded with delighted bodies of young and old playgoers, pleased with their local pantomime. On the evening of our visit Dick's adventures in Old East-cheap, at sea, and Morocco were watched and cheered by an enthusiastic house. Mr. Newman Maurice's book, brimful of mirth and local quips, causes roars of laughter, while added to this is the clever comedian's capital impersonation of the cook Sarah. Mr. Maurice has seldom done anything funnier. Admirable support in the laughter-line is rendered by Mr. Allan Dale as Alderman Fitzwarren and Mr. Will Smith as Idle Jack. The charms of Miss Maud Esmond in the title-rôle have resulted in making her a popular local favourite. Her songs, "Good-bye, dear old London town," and "Have you another girl at home like Mary?" are distinctly popular. To Miss Flora Morris must also be awarded praise for a sweet and captivating Alice. This dainty little lady sang very nicely the songs allotted her.

Among the specialities must be mentioned the caricature of Salome by Mr. Newman Maurice. This grotesque business provokes loud laughter. The knockabout business of Messrs. Pearson and Davis is also to the taste of the audience. The Frisky Girls' poses and dancing deserve mention among the good things of Brixton's Dick. We have spoken before of the pretty scenery provided, but mention should be made of the finale to the Highgate Hill scene, which is very pretty, and reflects credit on the enterprising management. The tuneful music throughout is appropriate. Messrs. F. Melville and Newman Maurice are to be congratulated on their endeavours, and to Mr. Will T. Taylor praise must be given for his admirable way in dealing with crowds who nightly besiege the theatre for admission. The pantomime is played at four matinées weekly, and throughout the run additional songs, jokes, &c., are provided.

"RED RIDING HOOD" AT HAMMERSMITH.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

The lineage of the heroine of the hood is unknown to Burke; but that she is a peeress in her own right in the nursery is an accepted fact. Her history and her justification as a celebrity of imperishable memory are being set forth with an accompaniment of seasonable prettiness and comicality that proclaim Mr. G. Brydon Phillips to be a gentleman possessing a large conception of the possibilities of pantomime and the ability and experience to carry them out. Red Riding Hood endures for a short time the winter of her discontent in a beautiful snow scene; and practical fun is to be noted from the first scene until Granny teaches the young idea how to shoot in the village schoolroom. The romance of the story is kept well in view by Miss Kittee Rayburn as Prince Amoroso, who has to perform prodigies of valour in her continual rescue of the heroine. Miss Rayburn is neat, animated, and dapper, and her well-graced figure looks exceedingly well in her principal boy's costume of white with cloak and hat to match. The chivalry of such a part naturally attracts the childish fancy, and, though always bright in her work, this charming comedy actress does nothing to spoil the illusion. She tackles the chief situations with rare spirit, and two of her songs are decided hits. The snow scene forms an appropriate background for her number "Come to me in Canada," in which the entire audience make the auditorium ring with the chorus. Her second selection, "It seems to make the sun shine brighter," is a harmonious homily on friendship. Miss Rayburn has become an immense favourite, and the unemployed of Hammersmith are to have the profits from the sale of these two songs, which are being sung everywhere. Miss Ena Corelli acts prettily and daintily as the heroine, and her incidental combat with the wolf is hailed with delight. She also is able to give expression to the distress of Riding Hood, and in a juvenile performance this is a great deal. Messrs. Harry and James Ewins, experienced pantomimists, do all that is necessary for the part of the wolf and the white poodle, and are also the principals in the harlequinade that is given at afternoon performances. Messrs. Bishop and Vale submit their speciality, and play the parts of Simple Simon and Johnny Stout. Miss Edith Jefferies as Fairy Gossamer is highly successful in her singing of "A tiny seed of love," which we hear everywhere. It is specially illustrated with coloured pictures, and the words of the chorus are also thrown upon the screen. Miss Jefferies sings with culture, and gives her dialogue clearly. Miss Euphan MacLaren, who appears as Cupid, is a graceful dancer, and heads the pretty ballet of snowflakes. Mr. Henry de Solla shows the advantage of legitimate experience in his rendering of Slyfox. Not a word is slurred, and the actor is very careful to give every emphasis to the evil designs by a mock tragic air that is most effective. He also assists the humour, and shares with Miss Rayburn the success of the topical duet "By-and-by." Mr. Tom Carrick has his best chance as the Dame in the School scene, where the fun is uproarious; and Mr. Will Vokes as the Squire scores by his excellent dancing of the same pattern as that which in the palmy days of the Vokes Family delighted audiences at Old Drury. Miss Maisie Mildare, in addition to p'aying Jill, plays Columbine, and is altogether a graceful performer. Miss Kitty Wells as Jack is also well placed; and the part of Marjorie Daw receives its due significance from Miss Alice Vokes, who joins Mr. Will Vokes in a speciality turn. The pantomime is written by Mr. Victor Stevens.

"CINDERELLA" AT KINGSTON.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

A second visit to the well-appointed Royal County Theatre at Kingston-on-Thames this week more than confirms the favourable opinion formed of the pantomime Cinderella when it was produced there on Boxing Day, and which was then received with open arms by all who witnessed it. Mr. Peter Davey, the hard-working managing-director, who has devised and arranged the show, deserves, and has received, congratulation upon having placed before his patrons a beautiful production, full of life, colour, and harmless fun, and that he has succeeded in pleasing the public is amply evidenced by the crowded houses at both matinée and evening performances. Since the opening night the pruning-knife has been at work, improvements have been made in various directions, and new songs and dances have been introduced. Miss Hilda Vining as the Prince and Miss Bessie Butt as Dandini, his valet, are still the two chief favourites, and their efforts, vocally and otherwise, are frequently rewarded with hearty plaudits. Miss Vining's singing of the song "Cinderella," rendered by a voice of remarkable flexibility and compass, is one of the gems of the production. Miss Butt's success as the lively and vivacious Dandini is beyond all cavil, and the audiences are prodigal in showing their appreciation of her efforts. Her songs, "I want you to see my girl," "Sis, sis, give us a kiss," and "Sunlight Sue," are given with inimitable expression, and the dances which follow are noticeable for the grace and agility that characterise them. The boys in the gallery have made Dandini their special favourite, and never lose a chance of joining in the refrains. Miss Dorothy Grassdorf has also made a host of friends by her winsome picture of Cinderella. The pantomime is well favoured by the comedians taking part in it, and when any of them are on the stage there is continuous laughter in every part of the house. Mr. Lauri Wylie, who plays the Baron, is responsible for most of the fun of the production. He nearly always now appears in a disguise, and takes the trouble to explain it when he comes on. His drolleries when he applies at an improvised post-office for an Old-Age Pension, first for himself at ninety-eight, and then for his father and grandfather, are irresistibly funny. Mr. Wylie's clever marionette performance, in which he impersonates George Robey, Eugene Stratton, and Harry Lauder, are also hugely appreciated, especially by the little ones, large number of whom have visited the theatre since the opening night. Some clever comedy work is also put in by Mr. Arthur Carlton, whose saying in the part of one of the ugly sisters "He's a nice fellow!" has found its way into the streets; as well as by Mr. Bobbie Hull, who as the other ugly sister plays extraordinary antics with a piece of dough and a paste-board in the Baron's kitchen. Mr. George Hirste as a Scotch taxi-cab driver adds considerably to the merriment, and is well rewarded for his singing of "My bonnie Jean." The whole production goes with a merry swing, and good business is likely to be continued until it is withdrawn.

On Monday a second batch of the poor children of the town were, through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Davey, permitted to view the pantomime, and a number of the children from the scattered homes of the Kingston Union were also invited on the same day by one of the members of the Kingston Board of Guardians.

ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Jan. 11, the Comedy entitled

"MRS. DOT."

By arrangement with Miss May Palfrey, Mr. W. Somerset Maugham's amusing and entertaining comedy Mrs. Dot is being produced for the current week by Miss Emma Hutchison's clever company, and the mirth-provoking qualities of the play are being heartily enjoyed and keenly appreciated by Artillery audiences, who are ever ready to respond to well-conceived humorous situations, more especially when the points are judiciously marked by such talented artists as they are in the case under notice. Miss Emma Hutchison offers a good rendering of the part of Lady Sellenger, the fashionable woman and mother, who is considerably concerned in the matter of her daughter's matrimonial welfare, and her portrayal is all that could be desired. In the title-rôle Miss Nancy Beresford succeeds to the utmost, the vivacious manner with which she undertakes the characterisation of the scheming and lively widow being irresistibly fascinating. She meets with a very cordial reception, which she entirely deserves. James Blenkinsop, the cynic, who does not object, where women are concerned, to calling a spade a spade, is a clever study in the hands of Mr. Frank Lacy, whose easy and natural manner secure for him a large amount of popularity. Miss Ethel Grahame makes a charming Nellie Sellenger, and is happily suited to the part; Miss Sybil Brooke as Miss Eliza Macgregor is also a valuable member of the cast. Mr. Hugh Kennedy stands out prominently in the character of Gerald Halstane; Mr. Charles A. Staite is amusing as Freddie Perkins; and Mr. William Midgley makes a capable Charles. Minor parts are undertaken by Mr. H. Simpson, Mr. K. Brandon, Mr. Frank Leach, and Mr. F. Abbott.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the council meeting held on Jan. 12. Present:—Messrs. F. J. Arlton (in the chair), Henry W. Mote (honorary solicitor), Richard A. Greene, Frederick Morland, Robson Paige, Clarence Derwent, Clive Currie, Cecil Raleigh, C. F. Callings, Chris. Walker, and Cecil Brooking; Miss Rose Mathews, Miss Marion C. Lind, Miss Agnes Imlay, and Mr. Hubert Blount (secretary).

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Mr. Morland pointed out that the paper to be read on Sunday dealt with some "objections" as to the £2 minimum, and not "suggestions," as stated on the notice-board.

The secretary read a letter from a member suggesting that a fund should be started to pay off debenture debt, and received instructions to reply to him to the effect that the council entirely agreed with the idea, but thought that at the present moment it would be inopportune to ask for money, and suggested that either Easter or October would be better.

A letter was read from the acting-manager of a provincial theatre, in which he stated he was very pleased to accommodate the A.A. doctor with seats, whenever business permitted.

Mr. Raleigh reported to the council that he had succeeded in obtaining from Messrs. Spiers and Pond, the Victoria Hall, at the Criterion Restaurant, for the purpose of holding the annual general meeting on Feb. 9 next. The council instructed the secretary to write a letter of thanks to Messrs. Spiers and Pond, and also passed a vote of thanks to Mr. Raleigh. It was decided that nominations for the council must be sent in by Tuesday next. The secretary also received instructions to put up a notice in the room to the effect that it is hoped that all members will pay their subscriptions before the general meeting, but that a portion of the hall will be reserved for those members who have not paid their subscriptions, and that these latter will not be permitted to vote. Mr. Cecil Raleigh was elected as chairman of the general meeting.

The finance committee's report was read and adopted.

Six engagements were reported since the last meeting of the council.

ACTORS' UNION.

The usual committee meeting of the Actors' Union was held at 49, Bedford-street on the 8th inst., and the following were present: Messrs. E. Howard Templeton, Cecil G. Calvert, Frank Gerald, Henry Bedford, Paul Lovett, Edwin J. Collins, James English, Robert M. Taylor, F. Rawson Buckley, H. Tripp Edgar, and Kenneth Blackmore. Communications were received from Messrs. Fred F. Loyd, Frank Strickland, Jerrold Heather, Geo. P. Lester, Walter L. Rignold, Roy Hilton, Edward Chester, Clifford Rean, Geo. H. Child, and John Hastings Batson. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Fifteen new members were elected. It was decided that only members who have returned their membership cards for 1908 fully paid up be given new membership cards for 1909.

A landlady having complained that a member left her without paying her bill two years ago, it was decided that no complaints with reference to the conduct of members prior to their joining the Actors' Union could be entertained by the committee.

Mr. Walter Rignold occupied the chair at the usual weekly meeting of the Actors' Union held at Hummums' Hotel on Tuesday afternoon. He stated in the course of his remarks that a benevolent fund in connection with the Union had been in existence for some time. Twenty-three new members had been enrolled during the last ten days. The members' books for the year 1908 were returnable, fully paid up, on Feb. 1. He reminded the meeting of the resolution passed on Dec. 1: "That the present form of subscription of sixpence per week for forty weeks be altered to 1s. 8d. per month, or 15s. per year, payable in advance. To be in benefit the monthly subscription must be paid by the 7th of each month, and the annual subscription by Jan. 21 in each year." Mr. Cecil Calvert, Mr. H. Tripp Edgar, and Mr. Frank Gerald also spoke.

GREENWICH THEATRE.

On Monday, Jan. 11, the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled

"DAY TO DAY."

Mr. Morton Powell's company is appearing here this week in the realistic drama entitled Day to Day. The play is interesting and well acted by all concerned, notably by Miss Maud M. Powell, a charming heroine; Miss J. D. Hicks, a clever Agnes Calthorpe; and by Miss Florrie Hayes, a bright and entertaining Nancy Whey. Little Nell is prettily represented by Miss H. M. Hughes. Mr. Alf. Stretton gives an excellent performance of Paul Inglewood, afterwards Paul Pentacost; Mr. Henry Parr is very good as Drinworth Dyke; Mr. Arthur Beaufort plays with excellent effect as Billy Blake; Mr. C. Eldred Wood is a clever Fizzle; Mr. James Jarrett a capital Charles Neill; Andrew Calthorpe is well acted by Mr. Victor C. Rolfe; Mr. Henry Carr is well suited to the character of Sergeant Kilbridge; and Mr. John Field and Mr. Eglington are very good in their respective parts. On Thursday Honour Thy Father replaced Day to Day.

A Waltz on the Wall.

"ONE night," says the Evening News anonymous "Old Man," "I went with Henri Laurent, the composer of numerous waltzes, to a little hot-potato shop in an alley by the side of Drury Lane much frequented by the Bohemian fraternity. The walls of this little place were white-washed, and it occurred to me that they would be the better for a little decoration. 'Laurent,' I said quietly, while we were enjoying our hot potatoes, 'write an original waltz on the wall.' At first he refused, but after a little persuasion he there and then composed a new waltz and wrote it on the wall. When the hot-potato seller discovered what had been done he was furious, for he had a strong objection to his customers scribbling on the walls; but when he was told who the culprit was he became highly pleased. Instead of rubbing it out, he took great care that it should not be obliterated, and proudly pointed it out to all new customers. The 'Donna Julian Waltz' became very popular, and hundreds of people went to the hot-potato shop to see the original score written on the wall."

PRESENTATION.—Herr Adam Seebold, the musical director of the orchestra at the Empire Theatre, Southend-on-Sea, was on Saturday, the occasion of his birthday, presented with a gold-mounted ebony bâton by the members of the orchestra, as a mark of their respect and esteem.

MANY of our readers must have perused with interest the excellent and instructive articles by Cuthbert E. Smedley, A.C.A., on "Theatrical Accounts for Business-Managers," which have appeared from time to time in this paper. They are now collected into book form, and may be purchased at this office. No manager or business-manager should be without a copy of this most useful and valuable work. The author, who has endeavoured to set out some of the most salient features of theatrical business management, and to show how the affairs of a theatre can be most efficiently controlled by the adoption of systems of internal check, is indebted to Mr. A. Binnie, F.C.A., and also to Mr. F. H. Podgrift, of The Era, for many valuable suggestions.

DOGS AS ACTORS.

Miss Margaret Chute, who bears a name honoured in drama, sent to a recent number of the Illustrated Kennel News an interesting article on "Dogs as Actors."

"In 1813 at the old Surrey Theatre," says Miss Chute, "a play was produced, entitled Llewellyn, Prince of Wales, and the Dog Gelert. The dog on this occasion was the 'star,' for the whole play centred round him—had there been no dog there could have been no play. We are not told the breed of this sagacious animal, but of his success there is not a shadow of doubt.

"About the same date a man called Genest compiled an exhaustive history of the stage, in which he says something about dogs as actors. 'Quadruped performers are a disgrace to the stage, but the dog in this piece—The Dog of Montargis—must be exempted from the general censure; the original animal was very clever.' Thus Mr. Genest. But modern playgoers may be forgiven for differing from him in condemning quadruped performers as a 'disgrace to the stage.'

"Years have rolled on since those words were written. In comparison with the few dog actors of Genest's knowledge we know of many, and our experience has not led us to use the word 'disgrace' in describing their performances. From the appearance of Gelert in 1813 to that of Pingo—a diminutive Yorkshire terrier—in 1908 there has not been one dog on the stage who has not proved an ornament and an attraction. Indeed, in several cases a four-legged performer has made the greatest success in a play, drawing hundreds of people night after night by the magnetism of his inarticulate art.

"In 1814 The Dog of Montargis—the play to which Genest refers—was produced at Covent Garden Theatre. It was written round a true incident in which a man was murdered in the Forest of Bondy, and the murderer tracked by means of his dog. One day this dog suddenly sprang at the throat of a man and almost killed him, whereupon the wretch, terror-struck, confessed he was the murderer. This dramatic incident formed the basis of the play, and everything depended upon the cleverness of the dog. He was called Dragon, and his acting was so marvellous that the play achieved a remarkable success, running for thirty-nine performances—truly a stupendous run!

"Lion, a wonderful St. Bernard, played in Hans the Boatman at Terry's Theatre. He afterwards went twice round the world, playing in the principal cities of India, Australia, Japan, and South Africa, on one occasion travelling from Sydney to Chicago, via London, without a break—17,150 miles—for which performances he holds a record among doggy actors.

"He was everyone's favourite; In New York he became a public hero through saving a child from drowning, and altogether was the dearest dog imaginable. But he had other claims to consideration, for his father was Bayard, the champion St. Bernard, he himself being registered at the Kennel Club as Nord, though always known as Lion.

"In Hans the Boatman this great dog was the attraction of the play; his master became blind and parted from his wife, and the dog was the means of reuniting them in a touching scene which never failed to move the audience to tears. Lion used to stroll quietly to the wings every night and stand waiting for his cue. When the time came he always went on without a word from anyone and played his part like a true artist. His utter dejection when his master recovered his sight in the play, and he, like Othello, found his occupation gone, was most pitiful. The company declared that he knew and understood every word of the play, which certainly appeared true.

"He played for many years, gradually becoming very feeble, until at last his hindquarters became paralysed and he could no longer walk properly. So in Johannesburg the old Lion was left at home every night, and a new Lion took his place. The poor creature bore it for a few nights, but his distress was so great that finally he was helped down to the theatre and was allowed to lie, as usual, in his master's room. Then habit and will-power proved stronger than nature. When his cue came the huge creature, though unable to stand properly, dragged himself by inches on to the stage, and went through his old business before his understudy had a chance. The heroic effort was too much for him; as the curtain fell he dropped back exhausted, and died a few minutes later. Died, as every true artist wishes to die, in harness.

"Thus ended a long, hardworking life of fourteen years, and now Lion lies at rest in a quiet corner of the veldt, under the Southern Cross.

"In more recent years a clever little Yorkshire terrier appeared in My Wife as the Haymarket Theatre. This tiny creature was an unfailing source of delight to playgoers and players, his cunning wickedness being an everlasting joy. In the first act a duologue (?) took place between one of the actors and the dog, who lay placidly on a table and appeared to understand everything that was said.

"One night during this scene the actor turned aside, and was astonished to hear shrieks of laughter from the audience. He calmly continued speaking, but the laughter only increased. Then, suddenly turning round, he discovered he was addressing the empty air. The dog had gone! The little monkey had seized his opportunity, dashed off, and cunningly hidden behind some scenery, from which he obstinately refused to come out, knowing perfectly well he had been naughty. Needless to say, this incident, although extremely funny, did not receive an encore.

"One of the cleverest dogs that ever fascinated an audience was Binkie, the fox-terrier in The Light that Failed. His master was Mr. Aubrey Smith, who was so admirable as Torpenhow in the play; and Mr. Smith, who has had dogs of his own for twenty-five years, says that Binkie was the most human, intelligent, plucky, affectionate dog he had ever known. He quickly learnt to shut doors and fetch slippers, taught himself to extinguish a lighted match, and was quite a professional at hide-and-seek, never failing to find the ball, even if it was concealed behind a picture or at the bottom of the coalscuttle.

"His first appearance was not an overwhelming success owing to an accident, for which he was not to blame. After rehearsing splendidly he made his entrance on the first night quite correctly, when Mr. Smith turned to speak to somebody, and accidentally hit Binkie on the nose with his stick. The dog naturally concluded he was wrong, and made an abrupt exit. On another occasion he knew his mistress was behind the scenes, and made a hurried and unrehearsed departure—through the fireplace!

"Bobby's Beat is a clever sheepdog, who recently appeared at the Adelphi with Mr. Martin Harvey in The Last Heir, making a great success. He is by Beat the Band ex Babs the Babby, and in addition to his theatrical work has done a lot of winning, and hopes to do some more. Bobby dearly loved his part, and when 'overture and beginners' were called each night, an exciting struggle took place to prevent him rushing on before his cue. The fascination of the footlights is evidently as strong in dogs as in human beings, for when The Last Heir was withdrawn and Bobby had to be left behind at night, he nearly howled the roof off in his bitter distress.

"These are but a few of the many talented dogs who have won histrionic laurels. They may truly be said to belong to that happy band who are 'born great,' for though in one sense they have had greatness 'thrust upon them,' it is only by their innate genius that they have been able to grasp opportunity and win their dramatic spurs."

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Jan. 14.—This was the initial performance of a new undertaking, which has been called into existence under the name of the Academic Stage, something akin to the Free Stage Association, also with the laudable intention of discovering new talent. It was not a very happy opening, all things considered. The author is undoubtedly talented, but he has attempted too much in the way of expressing every known phase of human passions; his "temperament" runs away with him, and the result is high-flown sentimentality. Where the audience were expected to weep, they frequently laughed, which, naturally, marred the effect.

Margarete, the Queen of Navarra, is a very bad old woman indeed. She is only happy when arousing the worst passions of those about her and making everyone miserable. Her Court is famous for its immorality, she herself being the most immoral of all. The "last trick" of her despicable Majesty is to entice a happy wedded pair—Count Heinrich and his beautiful Simone—to her notorious Court, and deliberately set to work to make them unfaithful to each other. Exposing them to the most seductive of temptations, she succeeds partially in her aim, but with consequences she has not reckoned upon. Heinrich kills his rival, De la Haye, and then himself; Simone dies of a broken heart, and the wicked old Queen very properly loses her reason. There is also another victim in the wholesale massacre, and that is the unfortunate lady whose charms made Heinrich—for a brief space—forget his allegiance to his Simone. She, too, expires abruptly, presumably of a broken heart, after having played with fire. The interpretation was, with one exception, inadequate. Fräulein Bertens was magnificent in the part of the reprehensible Queen, making her terribly convincing. The author was called and cordially applauded.

RICHARD STRAUSS' new opera Elektra will be produced at our Royal Opera on the 8th of next month, and rehearsals, under the supervision of the composer, who will conduct his work on the opening night, are in full swing. The name-part will be sung by Fräulein Plaischinger, that of Klytemnestra by Frau Goetze, the American singer Frances Rose gives the rôle of Chrysothemis, and the parts of Ægisth and Orest will be sustained by Herren Grüning and Hoffmann respectively. The orchestra is being increased by some twenty musicians, and the scenic arrangements present stupendous difficulties.

A NOVELTY which is being anticipated with general interest is Mr. Maugham's comedy Mrs. Dot, which is to be produced in German at the Royal Schauspielhaus. The author is here superintending rehearsals. It is confidently expected that their Imperial Majesties will be present.

A NEW theatre is about to be added to our already large number. The enterprising manager's name is not to be made public for the present, but I am told, on good authority that it is a well-known author. The site is chosen and the company engaged. Encouraged, no doubt, by the success of other operetta theatres, the new house will be exclusively devoted to that particular branch.

HERR HAUPTMANN has just completed his new drama Griselda, which has been acquired by Herr Brahm, and will be produced at the Lessing very shortly. At a performance of Die Raub der Sabinerinnen at this theatre a few nights ago the Crown Prince and Princess were present. Their Imperial Highnesses enjoyed the amusing farce immensely, and Herr Brahm was summoned to their box to receive expressions of their appreciation.

KATZ AND DOGS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Actors and actresses who keep dogs should note that every dog owner who has a dog not under the age of six months has to take out a dog licence on Jan. 1 under a penalty of £5. As a dog owner I have for a great number of years taken out my licence on Jan. 1, or on the 2nd should the 1st happen to fall on a Sunday, and to my great surprise I received on the 8th inst. a notice from the County Council that my licence expired on the 31st ult., with the intimation that it must be renewed on the 1st inst. Having taken out and paid for the latter on the 1st at the Westbourne-grove Post Office, the authorities who are responsible for sending out these notices must be perfectly aware of the names of those owners who have paid their licences on that date and the three subsequent days from the counterfoils of the post offices who report and transfer the money for such payments daily. From the returns of the Inland Revenue Department last year no fewer than 1,759,074 dog licences were taken out, and as 90 per cent. of dog owners pay for their licences between Jan. 1 and 3, I consider it a wanton waste of several thousand pounds in postage, envelopes, and stationery to send out to nearly 1½ million dog owners such notices when they have already paid for them. With a view to stop such waste by the London and other County Councils I should like to hear from those of your readers who, like myself, have received such notice several days after they have paid for their licences.—Yours faithfully,

ALEX. D. KATZ.

35, Sackville-street, London, W., Jan. 13, 1909.

MR. EDITOR. Sir,—May I correct a small error in the otherwise admirable notice of my production of Love and the Thief, in your issue of Jan. 9? The play was not written by myself, but by Miss Edith Carter.—Yours faithfully, Horace Sinclair, Lyceum Theatre, Stafford, Jan. 10, 1909.

THE staff of the London and County Printing Works (printers of The Era) make a preliminary announcement that their annual Bohemian concert will be held on Monday, the 22nd prox. In consequence of the overflowing attendance last year, it has been deemed wise for the forthcoming gathering to secure the King's Hall at the Holborn Restaurant, and every effort is being made to excel even the great social, artistic, and financial success secured in 1908. The popular works manager (Mr. E. Mynott) will again be in the chair, and Mr. and Mrs. Upcott Gill and Mr. and Mrs. Crandon Gill have promised to be present.

THE proceeds of the concert will be used to augment the fund started to found a pension in connection with the Printers' Pension, Almshouse, and Asylum Corporation—a trade charity which is deserving of every support. The secretarial duties are once more in the able hands of Mr. J. A. Lawrence (London and County Printing Works, Drury-lane, W.C.), who will be pleased to supply tickets and to reserve tables for parties of eight or more, and to acknowledge offers of financial and other assistance.

"DIANA OF DOBSON'S" REVIVED.

Greeting of the heartiest character was given to Miss Lena Ashwell on Monday, and the warmth of her welcome on her first appearance caused a smile momentarily to dissipate the discontent of Diana. In the elegant brochure which serves the purposes of a programme at the Kingsway, Miss Ashwell tells her patrons that she feels no apology is necessary in reviving Diana of Dobson's rather than a new play, as Miss Cicely Hamilton's romantic comedy was withdrawn last year in the heydey of its success owing to the fact that she was compelled to take a rest prior to her provincial tour. The attitude of the audience on Monday evening confirmed the wisdom of Miss Ashwell's decision, and numberless curtains testified to the agreeable effect of the piece, in which romance, realism, and risibility are so cleverly combined.

With one exception the cast is identical with that of the original production last February. The comedy gifts of Miss Ashwell are again pleasingly prominent in the rôle of the self-possessed young drapers' assistant, who "lives in" at Dobson's at a salary of 5s. a week, and utilises a legacy of £300 by going in for a month's enjoyment on the Continent, where she passes as a widow. Diana's mordant satire is sharpened to its finest point, the actress's voice telling irresistibly in every line. A particular moment of triumph is reached in the scene in which Diana reveals to her admirer the duplicity she has practised, and her denunciation of the uselessness of the upper classes is thrilling in the extreme.

Mr. C. M. Hallard repeats his fine performance of the young guardsman who is moved by Diana's scornful utterances to attempt to earn his living by means of casual labour. It is a part that calls for delicacy of treatment if its sentiment is to be thoroughly grasped, and the skill with which Mr. Hallard gives character to the rôle greatly enhances his reputation as a finished artist.

One of the distinct hits of the performance is the Sir Jabez Grinley of Mr. Dennis Eadie. His sketch of the Cockney parvenu is artistically coloured by many touches of humour, and few more exact copies of the original can have been met with on the stage. Mr. Eadie's success as a laughter-maker is complete. Miss Frances Ivor has favourable opportunities for her diverting powers as Mrs. Cantelupe, and the response of the audience is unanimous. Miss Ivor's clever methods are employed to excellent purpose, and much enjoyment is derived from her work.

A fascinating Mrs. Whyte Fraser is again found in Miss Gertrude Scott, whose representation of a society lady is superb in voice and style, while the vocal contrasts she supplies are admirable. Mr. Norman McKinnel acts the policeman with a rigid adherence to the peculiarities of the force, and the manners of Constable Fellows are reproduced in every detail.

Miss Mary Barton is the newcomer to the cast, replacing Miss Christine Silver as Kitty Brant, of whom she gives a sweet and winsome representation. Miss Nannie Bennett deals sympathetically with the rôle of Miss Smithers; Miss Muriel Vox's Miss Jay retains all its comic features; Miss Doris Lytton is still delightfully ingenuous as Miss Morton; and the grimness of Mrs. Pringle is amusingly assumed by Miss Ada Palmer. A neat study from life is that of the depraved Old Woman, presented with a deep sense of humour by Miss Beryl Mercer; and Mr. W. Lemmon Warde's waiter completes the faultless cast.

The principal piece is preceded by Charlotte on Bigamy, the comedietta by Edward Parry which proved one of the most promising of the quadruple bill with which Miss Ashwell experimented in May last. Judge Parry's play deals with no abstruse problem, as its title would seem to indicate, but is the story of a country girl who loves an engine driver. When she learns that he is unable to offer marriage because he has already a wife who long ago deserted him, she suggests that they shall commit bigamy, and have a wedding for the sake of appearances. Such a contingency is, however, averted by the fact that it is shortly proved that the engine driver is a free man, his supposed wife being herself a bigamist of several degrees before she married him. Again the cast of the original production has been retained with one exception. It is that of Mr. Maitland Dicker, who submits a quite refreshing impersonation of the kindly old father of Charlotte. That rôle is again portrayed by Miss Gertrude Scott with much feeling and dramatic power; Mr. Dennis Eadie repeats his skilful depiction of the smart and cockneyfied Bragby; and Mr. C. M. Hallard once again gives a strenuous and consistent rendering of the Scottish engine driver. Both plays are being produced by Mr. Norman McKinnel, and the mounting is remarkably fine. The Kingsway String Quartette play tastefully during the intervals, their selections being drawn from a répertoire of classical music from numberless sources.

MR. FRANK HOWEL EVANS, who won the £100 prize offered by the Red Magazine for the best short story of 8,000 words, was an actor before he became an author. In the old days of Miss Sarah Thorne's stock season at Margate he was engaged there for two years, and the company included many whose names have since become well known—Miss Violet Vanbrugh, Miss Gertrude Kingston, Mr. Charles Rock, Mr. Philip Cunningham, and many others figuring in the casts. Mr. Howel Evans also played with Mr. Harry Nicholls, Miss Jennie Lee, the late Miss Alice Lingard, Mr. Lionel Brough, and Mr. George Gray's sketch company. The Wrong Side of the Road, a curtain-raiser from his pen, has been played by Mr. James Welch's When Knights Were Bold company on tour since July last.

SIGNOR TAMINI, the new tenor, is to make his first appearance on the operatic stage in this country at Derby. The singer has been engaged by the Carl Rosa Opera Company, at a salary higher than the company have ever paid an individual performer before. He will make his initial appearance in the part of Lohengrin.

AN edition of the compositions of Mozart written in 1765, when he was living with his father at Chelsea, has just been issued. The original manuscript volume came into the possession of Herr Ernst von Mendelssohn-Bartholdy, who last year presented it to the Kaiser, by whom it was assigned to the Royal Library at Berlin. The volume, which consists of forty-three compositions, has a preface in which some particulars of Mozart's life in London are recorded.

A SERIES of eight matinées under the patronage of the Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, Earl of Wemyss and March, Earl and Countess Poulett, Lady Henry Somerset, Lady Millais, &c., will be given at the Bijou Theatre, Archer-street, Bayswater, on the Fridays in February and March of The Wars of the Roses series of England's Throne—the history of England in dramatic form by Miss Catherine Lewis. Among the company engaged are Messrs. Gerald Venning, Ned Llewellyn, Cecil Osborne, Douglas Alington, and Donald R. Young; Misses Catherine Robertson, Lydia Hayward, and Pax Robertson.

FIVE HUNDRED REPLIES in answer to one advertisement in the Wanted Columns of The Era. Mr. Albert Hengler, writing from the Hippodrome, Glasgow, says:—"My advertisement in the last issue of your paper brought me close on 500 replies—an excellent result." Particulars of the publisher, The Era Buildings, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

NEW YORK, JAN. 6.—Miss Maude Adams is fulfilling her annual engagement at the Empire Theatre once again. Her appearance at this house has been one of the joys of the Christmas holiday season for several years past, and seats are at a premium just now at Mr. Charles Frohman's principal theatre. Once again Miss Adams has scored a pronounced success in a play written by James M. Barrie. Her Maggie Wylie in the four-act comedy What Every Woman Knows is truly an exquisite portrayal. On the opening night the audience was enthusiastic in its approval, and Miss Adams was recalled again and again. One lost count of the number of times the curtain rose and descended. Mr. Richard Bennett gave an excellent representation of John Shand; and all the other characters were well acted, particularly those of the Wylies by Messrs. R. Peyton Carter, David Torrence, and Fred Tyler. Miss Beatrice Agnew did well in the unsympathetic rôle of Lady Sybil Lazenby, and Miss Ffolliott Paget played with distinction the part of the Comtesse de la Brière.

"PEGGY MACHREE" has proved immensely successful at the Broadway Theatre, and during the past fortnight thousands of playgoers have experienced a thrill of delight in listening to the simple old Irish ballads which Mr. Joseph O'Mara sings so entrancingly. It is a treat as rare as it is enjoyable, and when a singer receives a round of applause, not merely at the end of his song, but after each verse, as Mr. O'Mara did on the night of my visit, there can be no question about his success. His rendering of "The Old Plaid Shawl" evoked such an outburst of applause as one seldom hears in a Broadway playhouse, and in the last act, when he responded to an encore by singing "The Wearing of the Green," the house was electrified. Mr. O'Mara thanked the audience in a short speech, after which a beautiful floral harp was presented to him. It is interesting to note that he appeared on the same stage ten years ago De Koven's comic opera The Highwayman. Miss Adrienne Augarde was a captivating Peggy Machree; and Mr. Dan Fitzgerald as the superstitious Michael Donoghue was the most mirth-provoking little Irishman imaginable. Very amusing, too, was Mr. John D. O'Hara as the lugubrious Scotchman, Alexander McDougal. Messrs. Joseph Brooks and A. W. Dingwall have produced the play in an admirable manner, the scenery being uncommonly beautiful. Everything, in fact, is in keeping with the spirit and atmosphere of this delightful comedy.

MISS MAXINE ELLIOTT opened the theatre that bears her name on the 30th ult., and appeared in the title-rôle of a three-act comedy called The Chaperon, by Marion Fairfax. A brilliant audience received the play with manifest approval, and Miss Elliott scored a personal success of the first magnitude. The new playhouse presented a very handsome appearance, good taste being conspicuous in every detail. The Chaperon is an agreeable and entertaining comedy of American life and character. The Countess Van Tuyle, the wife of a worthless Austrian whom she is seeking to divorce, arrives at a lodge in the Adirondacks just in time to render a service to several members of the Coombes family hospitable people, who, in addition to their own daughters, have several young lady guests who need the protective influence of an older person. Mr. and Mrs. Coombes are suddenly called to the bedside of a sick relative, and the Countess comes to stay with the girls during their absence. The father and mother have hardly departed, however, when several members of the opposite sex appear upon the scene to woo the marriageable daughter and her attractive companions, and all the girls are engaged, or in a fair way of being so, before the curtain falls. The Countess—usually called Madge—has been jilted by Jim Ogden, who withdrew his offer of marriage when he heard that she was an heiress. Madge treasured a portrait of her old sweetheart and some of his letters, and these things the Count has found, and threatens to use as evidence against her. So when Jim turns up unexpectedly at the lodge there are complications. For the Countess's mother, anxious to avoid the notoriety of divorce has summoned the Austrian Count in the hope of effecting a reconciliation between the pair. When Madge hears of his coming she flees precipitately, taking Jim with her, and eventually landing with him on a deserted island after an escape from a leaky canoe and a watery grave. Dawn finds Jim snoring, and Madge, bedraggled and dressed in Jim's coat and waistcoat, sneezing after a night in the rain. Another canoe pushes its way through the underbrush, and the Count appears in time to see his wife in the arms of the young American. Jim wants to thrash the foreigner, but desists for the moment, and the arrival of a native in a canoe enables Madge to escape. The two men are left to fight it out, and when they next appear, in the last act, the Count has a black eye. When Madge gets back to the lodge she finds all of her charges "paired off" except the youngest, and the cook has gone, and the maid and butler have decamped with the silver. Another native brings back the marooned pair from the island, the Count agrees to a compromise, and there is prospective happiness for Madge and Jim. Mr. Julian L'Estrange as Jim Ogden was manly and engaging; Mr. J. R. Crauford was excellent in the part of Mr. Coombes, and the other rôles were in good hands

MR. JOHN HARE, a well-known concert agent in the North of England, died on Sunday at Newcastle-on-Tyne at the age of eighty-seven.

DEATH OF JOHN HARVEY.

Mr. John Harvey, the famous trombone soloist, recently passed away at 105, College-place, Camden Town. The deceased, who was sixty-three years of age, had been ailing for the past six months, and recently underwent an operation, from which he did not recover, death ensuing from exhaustion on the 26th ult. The late Mr. Harvey was one of the very few and probably the finest trombone soloist in the world. He could play solos on that instrument and also on the euphonium as other musicians could perform on the cornet. He was a Yorkshireman by birth, and spent many years in America, returning to England thirty-five years ago. He played trombone solos at the celebrated Covent Garden Promenade Concerts for some years, and was a well-known figure at all the principal London concerts, and also performed at the Opera under Sir Michael Costa. Unfortunately, some twenty-five years ago he was seized with paralysis of the tongue, owing to continuous playing of the trombone, and was precluded from further following his successful musical career. He, however, continued to perform at minor concerts. He was a well-known figure in Camden Town, having resided in St. Pancras about twenty years. The late Mr. Harvey leaves a widow, who is well known and highly appreciated in the theatrical world as Miss Carlotta Zerbini, and who has played prominent parts in some of the best known comedies and musical plays. Among recent productions in which Miss Zerbini has distinguished herself are Billy's Little Love Affair at the Criterion, That Brute Simmons and Beauty and the Barge at the Haymarket, and The Dairymaids at the Apollo.

The funeral took place on the 7th inst. at the family grave at Highgate, the arrangements being entrusted to Messrs. Beckett and Sons, Prince of Wales-road, Kentish Town. The mourners were Mrs. Harvey, widow; Mr. and Mrs. Halfpenny, brother-in-law and sister; Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, nephew and niece; Miss Norrish, niece; Mr. and Mrs. Grahame, nephew and niece; Mrs. Ben Landeck, niece; Mrs. Musworth, sister-in-law; Mrs. Charles Harrington, sister-in-law; Mr. E. Z. Halfpenny, jun., nephew; Mr. Thurlow Halfpenny, nephew. The following sent flowers:—Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Norrish, Mrs. Gill, Mr. F. P. Harvey, Mrs. Davey, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Halfpenny, E. Z. Halfpenny, jun., Thurlow Halfpenny, H. H. Halfpenny, John Halfpenny, Arthur Halfpenny, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Landeck, Mr. and Mrs. Grahame, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor.

THE Duchess of Rutland, as the president of the committee organised to promote a matinée at the Queen's Theatre, in aid of the Royal Ear Hospital, Dean-street, has decided to postpone the event from Jan. 26 to Thursday, Feb. 18. In face of the awful catastrophe in Sicily, the committee are convinced that at the present moment the needs of Italy take precedence over all other charities.

THE Hildenborough Village Players, who begin their seventh season on Tuesday, Feb. 9, will produce a folk play entitled "In Days of Yore," which has been written as usual by Messrs. John Johnson and Dagney Major. The scenes are laid at Tonbridge, Sevenoaks (Knole Place), and Penshurst, and depict episodes from the history of these places. Into the last episode of the play scenes from A Midsummer Night's Dream have been introduced.

THE book of Mr. Pinero's brilliant play The Thunderbolt, which proved so successful at the St. James's Theatre last year, is to be published by Mr. Heinemann on Jan. 21.

FOOTBALL AND FUN.

A comic football match was played on Tuesday afternoon at Craven Cottage, between a Fulham team and the artists engaged in the production of the Little Red Riding Hood pantomime at the Lyric Opera House, Hammersmith. About 700 spectators were present, and the proceeds were handed over to local charities. Miss Kittee Rayburn, the charming Prince, kicked off, and seven goals were scored by each side, according to the official result.

There were about twenty players in the pantomime team, including six half-backs and ten forwards, all in costume.

A great deal of merriment was created by the antics of the players. Skene played centre-forward for Fulham, and another goalkeeper, Crossthwaite, played at outside right. Some amusement was caused by a donkey ridden by one of the pantomime artists, which took up its position under the bar, and several shots collided with its body.

Mr. H. Ewins was attired as a wolf, and his brother, Mr. J. Ewins, as the faithful dog. Johnny Stout and Simple Simon were there in the persons of Messrs. F. Bishop and J. Vale. Mr. S. Collins represented a gorilla.

An amusing incident occurred when Skene, the Fulham custodian, scored a goal for his side, for he was promptly arrested and escorted from the field by a couple of policemen.

MAPLESON AND DRURY LANE.

"What will Mapleson do?" was the first question musical London propounded to itself in the early months of 1867, after the common fate of theatres had overtaken the old opera house in the Haymarket, and as people are always ready to engage in that kind of mental gymnastics known as "jumping at conclusions," the picture of the company scattered, and the manager literally nowhere, was, no doubt, repeated in the mind's eye of very many wiseacres. Mr. Mapleson did not, however, give his followers the managerial blessing, and bid them do the best they could for themselves. Instead of any such affecting ceremony being performed, the search for a theatre was forthwith commenced, and the temporary shelter of Drury Lane was secured. Thus fortified, the burnt-out manager prepared to do battle for the operatic honours and, possibly, profits of 1868, and, supported by a considerable amount of popular sympathy, boldly faced his competitor of Bow-street. The renters' privileges were argued and, perforce, admitted; the ancient Drury was divided into snug boxes artfully draped with amber satin, in imitation of the late Her Majesty's Theatre, and every preparation was made for the approaching season. Titiens, the magnificent empress (to speak by the Italian card) of soprani, Trebelli-Bettini, the queen of contralti, Santley, the king of bassi, and Mongini, the most useful of the modern tenori, closed round their old standard-bearer, who threw down the brand-new glove of "Her Majesty's Opera," and invited the gentleman over the way to "come on." The challenge was, to all appearances, accepted, and the musical public settled itself to enjoy the usual gladiatorial struggle, though in a partial change of arena. The consoling reflection that London was to have its two operas as usual, and that competition was to be the order of the genteel season, was, however, rudely disturbed. We were threatened with a Joint Stock Limited Liability "Grand Opera Company," which implied the purchase of that neat little edifice, the Royal Italian Opera, and the extinction of the Maplesonian troupe as a separate and rival company. The opera, one and undivided, was to have had a coal factor, a coal merchant, a goldsmith, a clerk in holy orders, a solicitor, an ex-engineer, and an advertising agent for its high priests. From this heterogeneous conclave Mr. Mapleson was to receive £15,000 for acting as manager. For the best possible reason this noble scheme was abandoned, and disconsolate connoisseurs revived under the prospect of livelier competition than ever.

In the meantime the rebuilding of Her Majesty's Theatre had been decided upon, and at Drury Lane on Saturday, March 28, 1868, Mr. Mapleson opened the ball with Lucrezia Borgia. "Wanted, a tenor," that most pathetic of managerial cries, was answered by Signor Fraschini, a native of Padua, whose years number half a hundred. The Signor was a great success at Her Majesty's in 1847. His particular triumph was Edgardo, and at his delivery of the "malediction" the blue blood in the boxes and stalls, and the baser fluid in the pit and the gallery, invariably ran cold. Fraschini played Roberto to Jenny Lind's Alice, in May, the same season, and, a month earlier, Verdi's I Due Foscari was produced in his special behalf. On the opening night of Her Majesty's Opera, Titiens, the only Lucrezia, Trebelli-Bettini, the best Maffeo Orsini since Alboni, and Santley, who acts the part as well as any brother in art, and sings the music much better, all trod the stage of Garrick, the Kembles, Edmund Kean, Macready, and the "foremost man" for the first time. Mdlle. Kellogg arrived early in the season, and on April 4 sang in La Traviata, that naughtiest and most sensuous of operas, in which Violetta, the queen of the demi-blonde, is compelled by the destroying angel to bid adieu to champagne, Alfredo, and every kind of impropriety. On Thursday, the 9th, the clever young American played Linda in Linda di Chamouni. Signor Bettini was a better Carlo than Signor Emanuele Carrion, or Mr. Tom Hohler; Madame Trebelli-Bettini was a better Pierotto than Mdlle. Grosal or Madame Demeric-Lablache; and Signor Zoboli, in the absence of a better buffo, resumed the part of that ancient libertine, the Marquis de Boisfleury. Signor Scalese played the Marchese in 1866. Mdlle. Kellogg's achievements included four new characters—Gilda in Rigoletto, produced April 18; Ninetta in La Gazza Ladra, May 4; Amina in La Sonnambula, May 21; and Maria in La Figlia del Reggimento, June 27. Her Gilda, apart from its vocal excellence, is deeply poetical as a conception. Mr. Santley's Rigoletto may not be the Rigoletto of Ronconi, but it is an impressive and highly pathetic performance. The English baritone sings the music as the Italian never sang it in his life. The Duke of Mantua, at the beginning of the season, was Signor Fraschini, and at the end, Signor Bulterini, with Madame Trebelli-Bettini and Signor Foli as Maddelena and the bravo Sparafucile. La Gazza Ladra has been banished from London since 1863. Such a thing of beauty should be a joy to opera-goers season after season, and the cast of Her Majesty's could only be improved upon in one instance. Mdlle. Kellogg's Ninetta was a success; and Madame Trebelli-Bettini's Pippo is the best since Alboni's days of active service. Fernando, Tamburini's great part, fell to the lot of Mr. Santley, who sang the florid music of Rossini as if he had done nothing else for years past. Signor Bettini is in his proper place as Gianetto; but Signor Foli (who is not predisposed to comedy) is emphatically out of place in such a part as the Podestà. Mr. Charles Lyall's Isaac is a good character study. The young American's capability as an actress is commensurate with her perfection as a vocalist, and in the character of Maria, the Vivandière of the incomparable regiment, this union was particularly apparent. Signor Bettini played Tonio, and M. Gassier, Sulpizio. Mme. Demeric-Lablache made an admirable Marchioness. Mlle. Christine Nilsson, the "Swedish nightingale" number two, appeared for the first time in the season as Violetta. In due course she resumed the characters of Marta (to the Lionello of Signor Fraschini, and afterwards of Signor Mongini), Donna Elvira, Margherita, and the Queen of Night. Her great impression was made in Lucia, which she played for the first time in England on Saturday, May 23. The Lucia nights were neither few nor far between as the season progressed, and the exquisitely refined performance of the heroine has greatly increased Mlle. Nilsson's popularity. Cherubino, in Le Nozze di Figaro, was another new and perfectly successful venture on the part of the fair Christine. Don Giovanni was brought forward as early as April 11. There is no one to compete with Mlle. Titiens as Donna Anna, an impersonation that stands alone in intensity of feeling. Mlle. Sinico, the first Donna Elvira of the season, subsequently made way for Mlle. Nilsson. Mlle. Kellogg remained in undisturbed possession of Zerlina from the beginning to the end of the operatic term. M. Gassier and Mr. Santley both played the invincible Don; and the season gave us two Leporellos—Signor Zoboli and Signor Fiorini, a new bass. In the case of this illustrious stranger an artistic collapse must be recorded. He sank at once from Leporello to a kind of operatic utility man, worthy of such parts as Raimondo in Lucia di Lammermoor, and a priest in Il Flauto Magico. This mystical and magnificent opera of Mozart was reserved for July 18, the last night of the subscription season. Mlles. Titiens, Nilsson, and Sinico appeared as Pamina, Astrifiammante, and Papagena; and Signor Bettini, Mr. Santley, Signor Foli, and Mr. Lyall as Tamino, Papageno, Sarastro, and Monastatos. Other operas presented were Le Nozze di Figaro, Fidelio, Cherubini's Medea, Les Huguenots, Faust, Rigoletto, La Traviata, Norma, Il Trovatore, and Semiramide.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"LA TRAGEDIE ROYALE,"

Play, in Three Acts, by M. de Saint-Georges de Bouhélier, produced at the Odéon on Jan. 7.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, Jan. 14.—The first thing that struck us when we beheld King Edgar, the principal figure in M. de Bouhélier's play, La Tragédie Royale, was that he bore a family likeness to King Lear, and might have passed himself off as a poor relation of that luckless monarch. Edgar's fate, too, is dismal; and he, too, has his Cordelia, only that her name is Irène. The young author's idea when he wrote his work was undoubtedly a good one, but, unfortunately, he made too great a display of grandiloquent dissertations, which somewhat grate on our nerves. In the opening scene we are in the wine-shop of a certain Polydre, where a few people are assembled, to whom he announces that a revolution has broken out, and that King Edgar has been dethroned. Whilst he is discoursing in this way, the door opens, and in walks an old man led by a graceful young girl. They are the king and his daughter Irène, whose lives were threatened by the mob. None of the people present recognise them, and King Edgar is compelled to listen to the ribald jokes levelled against himself by the blackguard company, which includes a woman of the "unfortunate" class, a mechanic, and a lackey formerly employed at the palace. For a long time the king remains silent. When, however, the ex-lackey launches out in a dirty story, supposed to have happened to the Crown Princess, the old man can no longer restrain himself; and the means he uses to silence his detractors is original. Pulling out a handful of gold, he throws it in the face of the miscreants, who then recognise the royal couple, and tie them to one of the pillars of the wine-shop. Irène dies, although we do not know whether from ill-treatment or from the effect of the long speeches. As to her father, he loses his reason, which surprises nobody. It was rumoured that it was intended to make a demonstration against the play. It is difficult to understand what could have given rise to this absurd story, considering that royalty is represented by virtue, whilst democracy is impersonated by a crowd which any jury would at once have convicted only by looking at their faces. M. Desjardins did full justice to the rôle of the king; Mlle. Barjac was a pathetic Irène; M. Desfontaines supplied a good sketch of a "man of the people"; and Mlle. Faber gave much colour to the part of Alfréda, the "unfortunate."

M. ALEXANDRE ARNOUX'S symbolic comedy, La Mort de Pan, was produced the same evening. It is written in melodious verse, and met with a cordial reception.

"LA TOUR DU SILENCE,"

Play, in Three Acts, by M. Collyn, produced at the Théâtre des Arts on Jan. 9.

Miss Andrews, the intelligent manageress of the Théâtre des Arts, is continually taken to task for producing plays that are not of French origin; and I notice a certain spitefulness in the way the Paris Press discusses the works brought out at the Théâtre des Arts. It is, however, to be hoped that Miss Andrews will not allow herself to be intimidated, and will continue to show herself eclectic in the selections of the works she produces at her house. M. Collyn's La Tour du Silence is a highly interesting work, and special praise is due to the management for the manner in which they mounted it. Sémiramis, Queen of Babylon, is waging war against the Indian Prince Stratès, and is marching at the head of her great army. She is surrounded by the intrigues of her courtiers and generals. The Grand Priest plots against her, affecting to be acting as the mouthpiece of the Babylonian gods. Stratès sends a messenger asking Sémiramis to grant peace. The valiant Prince does not wish for war, because he has seen Sémiramis, and is consumed by passion for her. One night he crosses the river which divides their respective camps alone, and appears in Sémiramis' tent to declare his passion. The queen yields before such ardour. On the following day she summons her generals to tell them that peace has been made with Stratès, to whom they are to do homage as their king. But the Archpriest intercepts the messenger and sends another, ordering an instant onslaught. Then Stratès, hearing from the Archpriest that Sémiramis has made a vow, and that the gods will only be appeased by a human sacrifice, makes himself the sacrifice by withdrawing into the Tower of Silence. Mlle. Vera Sergine as Sémiramis was very queenly, and very sweet and womanly in the love scene. M. de Max was a superb Stratès. M. Durec gave a clever impersonation of the scheming priest; and the other parts were also well sustained.

WE had another disturbance at the Comédie-Française on the occasion of the seventeenth performance of Le Foyer. The riot had been organised by some of the gilded youths of the so-called Young Royalist party. Three or four boxes were filled with anæmic-looking, narrow-chested, narrow-minded boys, who, in the second act, at the beginning of the scene between Baron Courtin and the Abbé Laroze, started hissing with all their might. But the stalwart Municipal Guards on duty in the house entered the boxes, and in a twinkling swept them clear of their occupants, to the loud cheers of the audience. The authorities are determined to put down all these childish demonstrations with a strong hand, and the number of Guards on duty has been considerably increased. But the authors of Le Foyer rub their hands with glee, for people now flock to the Comédie-Française not so much to see the play as to witness a row.

MR. J. F. ELLISTON, the pioneer of high-class travelling pantomimes, is disposing of his principal productions, Cinderella having already been acquired by a well-known manager in the south.

PRESENTATION.—A pleasing ceremony took place at the Carlton Theatre, Greenwich, on Monday, when the whole of the staff gathered on the stage after the performance and presented the manager with a handsome timepiece, and his sister with a silver cruet, as a mark of respect and esteem in which they are held by the employees under their management. The presentation was made by the musical director, Mr. John A. Powell, and Mr. Gillespy suitably responded and thanked the staff for their handsome present.

CHILDREN ON THE STAGE. The Act affecting the employment of children on the stage came into force on Saturday, Oct. 1, 1904. Managers, agents, entrepreneurs, and performers wishing to possess a copy of the complete Act in a concise form can do so by forwarding three stamps to the Publisher, The Era Offices, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM will occupy the chair at the annual general meeting of the subscribers of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, which will be held on the stage of the Criterion Theatre on Thursday, Jan. 28, at 12 noon, to receive the report of the committee and the accounts for the year 1908. The attendance of subscribers is requested, and all those interested in the work of the Fund are invited to be present.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE, who is in Cairo at present, brightened the proceedings at the nineteenth annual dinner of the Old Neuenheimers Society, held in London on Saturday night. A feature of the dinner was the reading of messages from celebrities, and that from Mr. Tree read: "Before completing my education by learning about the East—you see, I am going to produce a play on Modern Egypt, and, like Mr. Micawber, who inspected the Medway when he went into the coal trade, I am going to inspect the Nile—I must send you a few lines to congratulate you and your fellow-scholars of Neuenheim on your present festival . . . I think the Germans from boyhood were greater idealists than are the commercialised and more prosperous Germans of to-day, and there is one quality by which I imagine the Teuton of those days was, and I hope is still, distinguished, and that is the quality of true friendship between man and man."

MR. MARTIN HARVEY at Bournemouth to-night concludes the first week of his spring tour. The engagement was the initial attraction of the dramatic season, and has proved splendidly successful, thus confirming the pleasant state of things on the popular actor's first visit last year.

IT is now practically certain that Mr. Martin Harvey will be impelled to include this southern resort in his regular spring tour itinerary. A feature of the week was the number of motor parties who travelled to Bournemouth to see Mr. Harvey and his company, one of them coming from as far as Fordingbridge, in the heart of the New Forest, and another from Salisbury.

ON Monday Mr. Harvey, Miss de Silva, and his company are due at the Theatre Royal, Portsmouth, where they commence operations with The Corsican Brothers and The Conspiracy, and later in the week give The House of Pierre, The Breed of the Treshams, and The Only Way.

AMONG the new centres which Mr. Harvey is to visit during this tour are Rochdale, Swansea, and Halifax; whilst in May a number of special flying matinée trips are to be indulged in. Mr. Frank B. O'Neill remains in the position he has held for so many years, still acting as Mr. Harvey's indefatigable business-manager, and Mr. H. J. Loveday, who has apparently solved the problem of eternal youth, is still stage director, Mr. Alfred Rivers being stage-manager as before.

THE company includes the names of Miss Mary Rorke, Miss Madge Fabian, Miss Maud Rivers, and Miss Bessie Elder, Messrs. Fred Wright, sen., Charles Glenney, A. E. Raynor, Alfred Mansfield, Leonard Craske, George Cooke, Philip Hewland, C. J. Cameron, Denholm Muir, and Percy Foster; while Miss N. de Silva is, of course, Mr. Harvey's chief colleague and supporter. This talented and charming actress is now playing the rôle of Emilie de Lesparre in The Corsican Brothers, in addition to all the other leading lady parts in the répertoire.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER has induced Mr. Henry Bernstein, the author of Samson, to come to London, and superintend the final rehearsals of the English adaptation of his play at the Garrick Theatre on Feb. 3.

MR. LEWIS WALLER will produce at the Lyric on Feb. 2, in co-operation with Mr. Tom B. Davis, a new drama in four acts called The Chief of the Staff, written by Mr. Robert MacDonald, the scene of which is laid in a Republican State of South America. Mr. Waller will have a character after his own heart in that of the hero, and he will be supported by such able artists as Mr. William Haviland, Mr. A. E. George, Mr. Sheil Barry, Miss Madge Titheradge, Miss Auriol Lee, and Miss Evelyn D'Alroy. Mr. Waller will revive the first part of Henry IV. at a series of special matinées on Tuesdays and Fridays, himself playing Hotspur, Mr. Louis Calvert will be Falstaff, Mr. A. E. George Henry IV., and Mr. H. Jarman Owen Glendower, Mr. Robert Loraine enacting Prince Hal, and continuing, of course, his engagement with Mr. Frederick Harrison at the Haymarket.

MR. CHARLES HAWTREY, we are glad to hear, has got over his recent operation, and is now recuperating in the country. He will reappear in London at the Royalty Theatre, under the auspices of Mr. Tom B. Davis, in a revival of Jack Straw.

THE Shaftesbury is to undergo extensive alterations after Mr. H. B. Irving has finished his season there. The improvements will include the provision of a new entrance with a double staircase sweeping round to the first circle and the introduction of an entirely new arrangement of seats, altering the "eye-line" from the stalls and circle, and giving all parts of the house a better view of the stage. The interior walls will be redecorated in a novel fashion, and the whole theatre will be newly upholstered and painted. It is expected operations will be finished by March.

MR. ARTHUR WILLIAM A' BECKETT, who died on Thursday in St. Thomas's Nursing Home, was the author of several three-act comedies which were produced in London between 1870 and 1890, including On Strike, a social problem, produced at the Court in the October of 1873; Long Ago, a one-act drama, done at the Royalty on April 22, 1882; and About Town, a comedy, in three acts, which was first performed at the Court Theatre on May 12, 1873, with Mr. Edgar Bruce as Sir Walter Mervyn, Mr. Chippendale, jun., as Monteagle, and Miss Kate Bishop, Miss Marie Litton, Mr. George Rignold, Mr. E. C. Righton, and Mrs. Stephens in the cast. The comedy was first played in America at Daly's Broadway Theatre, New York, on Sept. 29, 1873, with Miss Minnie Walton in Miss Bishop's part. A member of the Bar, Mr. a' Beckett was appointed Master of the Revels by the Honourable Society of Gray's Inn, and produced The Maske of Flowers in the hall of the Inn in honour of Queen Victoria's Jubilee.

MR. H. B. IRVING'S charming souvenir of the 102nd consecutive performance of The Lyons Mail includes several illustrations of historical interest, such as a portrait of the unfortunate victim of 1796, a picture of the actual mail-cart, a map of the scene of the crime, a picture of the tomb of the rehabilitated Lesurques, a reproduction of a page of the late Sir Henry Irving's prompt-book, which proves that it was he who introduced the "business" with the flower pot in the final scene, a portrait of Charles Kean in private life, and another of Sir Henry as Dubosc. An essay, "The History of the Play," by Mr. Austin Brereton, a clever article, "The Source of the Play," by Mr. H. B. Irving, and short biographical sketches of Mr. Irving and Miss Dorothea Baird complete one of the most interesting souvenirs of the period, and Messrs. Eyre and Spottiswoode may be warmly congratulated on the excellence of the publication.

MR. FREDK. MOUILLOT sends us a very pretty souvenir of the anniversary of the opening of the Grand Hall in connection with the Theatre Royal, Bournemouth, in 1907. The souvenir contains portraits of Mr. Chas. Manners, Miss N. de Silva, Mr. Martin Harvey, Miss Ellaline Terriss, Mrs. Brown Potter, and Sir John Hare, with a view of the lounge and promenade, and some interesting and informative letterpress.

MISS MABEL LOVE is concluding her engagement this week as Lady Frederick, in which she has starred with Mr. Percy and Miss Emma Hutchison's company, receiving high eulogium from discriminating audiences everywhere. Miss Love was the first to play the part out of London, and her introduction of the fascinating lady to suburban and provincial audiences has been a constant triumph. Miss Love has given evidence of rare dramatic and comedy gifts, and the opinions of both Press and public everywhere have been unanimous in her praise.

MISS ANNIE HUGHES, whose son, Master Richard Devereux, created such a pleasing impression at the juvenile ball at the Mansion House on the evening of the 8th inst., as His Imperial Majesty the German Emperor, is not, and never was, the wife of Mr. William Devereux, the author and actor, as has been so often stated. Miss Annie Hughes first married a Mr. Nicholas Lawrence Devereux, an Irishman, of County Wexford, whose father was member for Wexford and Justice of the Peace for many years. Miss Annie Hughes married a second time Edmund Fitzmaurice Tenon, son of the late Colonel Tenon, V.C., whose professional name is Mr. Edmund Maurice. Miss Annie Hughes in private life is therefore Mrs. Fitzmaurice Tenon.

THE announcement from Mr. Murray of the "Bancroft Memoirs, Old and New," in which Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft make important additions to their work "On and Off the Stage," which was published in 1888, and ran through seven editions, will be hailed with delight by all interested in the stage. The volume covering the intervening period, and describing Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft's experiences up to date, is certain to be widely popular.

CROWDED houses and people turned away has been the cry all along the line of The Merry Widow tour, and provincials have enjoyed performances in every respect equal to those at Daly's itself. Mr. Frank Greene, the dashing Prince Danilo, now touring with The Merry Widow in the North, has been snapped up by that astute Australian manager Mr. J. C. Williamson. Mr. Greene and his charming wife, Miss Lottie Sargent, have signed contracts for Australia from June next.

THE first of Miss Marie Tempest's charming dresses in Penelope is a gown of blue and white check silk, very simply made in the usual corselet style. The gown is ornamented down the front of the skirt by a double row of white buttons, looped together by loops of the same material as the dress; and the same ornamentation appears on the sleeves. The bodice is composed of white embroidery, with a chemisette of tucked net, and the sleeves are finished with a cuff of embroidery and tuckings of net.

PENELOPE'S second gown is of champagne-coloured crêpe satin. The corselet skirt falls in pointed draperies over a sweeping underskirt of the same material; but a unique effect is given to the gown by the falling draperies being kept in place by swathed bands of crêpe satin, crossed and threaded through large eyeholes. The bodice is of transparent net patterned with the satin in a very handsome design. The gown worn by Miss Tempest in the last act is distinguished by Soutache trimming in the form of a broad band outlining the chemisette, and forming a deep falling drapery at the back. It is composed of Rose de Bois satin, and the sleeves are of rose-coloured embroidered net. A beautiful cloak of mauve grey in rich silk, lined with grey marquise, completes the costume.

THE efforts made by Mr. Louis Karpe, the manager of Her Majesty's Theatre, Dundee, in behalf of charity have resulted in the substantial sum of £233 14s. 6d. being devoted to local institutions.

THE annual pantomime supper and ball at Belfast will take place on Wednesday at Ye Olde Castle in that city. Mr. James M. McCann, the popular manager of the Theatre Royal, Belfast, has charge of the arrangements, and nothing will be wanting on his part to make the occasion a brilliant success.

OUR readers will regret to learn that Mr. George R. Weir, the veteran of Mr. F. R. Benson's company, is lying ill in a private ward at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Belfast. Sir William Whitla, M.D.—who has been exceedingly attentive to Mr. Weir—is unremitting in his attention, and it is to be hoped that the popular actor will soon be convalescent.

AN interesting reading of The Two Gentlemen of Verona was given on the 7th inst. in the Ulster Minor Hall by the members of the Belfast Branch of the British Empire Shakespeare Society, largely assisted by members of Mr. F. R. Benson's company then appearing at the Theatre Royal. Included in the cast were Mr. E. A. Warburton, Mr. Alfred Wild, Mr. W. Ribton Haines, Miss Olive Noble, Miss Dorothy Green, and Miss Leah Hanman.

"THE BOND OF MARRIAGE," a play in four acts, by Walter Nixey, was produced for copyright purposes at the Royalty Theatre, Llanelly, on Jan. 7.

A GIRL of fifteen figured as a dramatist last week, when For King or Parliament, a three-act historical play, by Lady Maud Kathleen Cairnes Plantagenet Hastings, was produced at Grendon Hall, near Nuneaton. Lady Maud is the eldest daughter of the Earl of Huntingdon.

THE Lyric, Hammersmith, pantomime, Little Red Riding Hood, must perforce retire from the boards of this theatre this evening on account of previous bookings on both sides. The business has been so great that strenuous effort were made to try to lengthen the run, even to the extent of paying a heavy penalty, but it was found impracticable. Messrs. Wentworth Croke, G. Brydon-Phillips, and the local manager, Mr. Fred S. Jennings, are to be heartily congratulated on the results achieved by their fine production.

MR. OSCAR ASCHE and Miss Lily Brayton will open their spring tour at Portsmouth on Feb. 8. After a tour of the principal provincial towns they will proceed to Australia for a lengthy stay.

A SPECIAL matinée under the immediate patronage of the Duchess of Albany and Her Grace the Duchess of Newcastle will be given at the Playhouse on Tuesday, Feb. 9, in aid of the Dolling Memorial Home. At this performance, which is under the direction of Miss Bateman (Mrs. Crowe), will be produced a one-act play by Ashton Pearse, entitled Her Proper Mate, in which Mr. E. Harcourt Williams, Mr. Wilfred Forster, and Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay will appear. Following will come a comedy, in three acts, called The Grandsire, kindly lent for the occasion by Mr. George Alexander. The cast will include Mr. Harcourt Williams, Mr. Edmund Gwenn, Mr. Hubert Harben, Miss Leah Bateman Hunter, and Miss Bateman (Mrs. Crowe). A play called The Grandsire, it may be added, was produced at Terry's in 1889.

MR. F. R. BENSON has made arrangements with Mr. Robert Arthur for a third répertoire season at the Coronet Theatre, beginning on Monday, Feb. 8, and lasting four weeks. Twelve plays of Shakespeare, including the histories: Richard II., Henry V., Henry VI. (part 2), and Richard III. will be given. The programme will also contain Sheridan's The School for Scandal, The Belle's Stratagem, by Hannah Cowley, and A Midnight Bridal, a play in one act adapted from the story of Halliwell Sutcliffe by Mrs. F. R. Benson and H. O. Nicholson.

MISS GENEVIEVE WARD has again been secured for the part of Volumnia in Coriolanus, and will also appear as Queen Margaret in Richard III., with which the series will begin. In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Benson the company will also include Messrs. W. W. Caithness, Murray Carrington, G. F. Hannam Clark, W. Ribton Haines, J. Moffat Johnston, H. O. Nicholson, Guy B. Rathbone, George R. Weir, Edward A. Warburton, Alfred Wild, J. Plumpton Wilson, and F. G. Worlock; and Misses Elinor Aickin, Marian Foreman, Dorothy Green, Leah Hanman, Alice Nicholson, Olive Noble, and Alison Trent. Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll, is patron of the performances, and the London Committee includes many influential names.

MR. BENSON closed his fortnight's visit to the Theatre Royal, Belfast, on Saturday with a masterly impersonation of Richard III. He was enthusiastically called to the footlights, and, addressing a large audience, thanked them heartily for their kind welcome. He did not know if Richard III. in person was ever in Belfast, but he thought not, because there must have been some record in the police court, where he would have been up for assault and battery. At any rate, they had made his substitute very welcome that night. He wished them farewell with the very best wishes for the new year.

THE F. R. Benson (North) Company opened their spring tour at the Theatre Royal, Shrewsbury, on Monday, Jan. 4, 1909. Mr. Yates Gregory, who recently took over the theatre, did everything possible for the comfort of the company, with the result that the theatre was crowded nightly with enthusiastic audiences, which speaks volumes for the work done by the enterprising new management and the popularity of the F. R. Benson (North) Company. The North Company, after touring in Scotland will visit Birkenhead, Warrington, Norwich, Tunbridge Wells, Folkestone, Eastbourne, Hastings, &c., concluding their tour the last week in June. Mr. Henry Herbert, in addition to playing the leading rôles, is also responsible for the productions of the company, and the tour is under the direction of Mr. W. H. Savery.

MR. CHARLES MANNERS sends us the following epistle, which he describes as "the saddest anonymous letter I have ever received":—Dublin, Friday, 12.30 p.m. Dear Mr. Manners,—I have just returned from hearing Tschaikowsky's opera, Eugene Onegin. I feel I cannot rest till I have written these few lines asking you to repeat this glorious opera once again before you go. I have heard many operas, but none which pleased me more that this one has done to-night. I would not ask for better artists than Madame Fanny Moody as Tatiana and Mr. Lewys James as Eugene Onegin. In fact I was held spellbound during the whole performance. Believe me when I say that you will be granting a dying request if you will let me hear once again this, as I said before, glorious opera!—Yours, A SINCERE OPERA-GOER." Mr. Manners regrets that he has no means of informing the poor person why he cannot accede to his wish, as no address is given for reply.

THE West London Philanthropic Society is again indebted to the management of the Lyric, Hammersmith for a substantial increase to their funds. A few weeks ago a benefit performance of The Silver King brought them in nearly £50, and now they receive another £25 as the result of a football match between the Lyric pantomime company and the Fulham Football Club.

THE match was played in costume, and proved particularly interesting and humorous. The pantomime company had the assistance of the Lyric's popular manager, Mr. Fred S. Jennings, who proved a most agile and unique back. £35 was taken at the gates and collected by the ladies of the pantomime, and the Fulham directors generously added £15, so a total of £50 is equally divided by the above-named society and the Peterborough Benevolent Society (of Fulham). Miss Kittee Rayburn added to the pleasure of the occasion by kindly kicking off.

Two members of the same aristocratic family have sought a bride on the musical comedy stage, for on Saturday last Mr. Reginald Wyndham Bruce, a cousin of the Hon. Henry Lyndhurst Bruce, who married Miss Camille Clifford, was wedded to Miss Addie Lewis, a young actress, who made her début in The Three Little Maids at the Prince of Wales's Theatre about four years ago. Mr. Reginald Bruce is a lieutenant in the King's Own Scottish Borderers. The wedding took place at St. Anne's Church, Eastbourne, and immediately afterwards the couple came to town.

A NEW drama, entitled The World, the Flesh, and the Devil, from the pen of Lesser Columbus, is to be produced at the Pavilion Theatre, on Monday, Feb. 1. The new piece is remarkable from the fact that all the villains are lawyers, and the heroes and heroines are their clients.

MESSRS. HENRY SWINERD AND J. W. CORDINER'S Dare-Devil Dorothy company will on Monday pay its sixth visit within three and a half years to the Royal Aquarium Theatre, Great Yarmouth. The company now includes Miss Nellie Valentine, Miss Nellie Harcourt, Miss Ethel Griffies, Mr. Walter Ashley, Mr. Walter B. Nugent, and Mr. Will Brereton.

THE "Merry Widow" dinner which the O.P. Club are holding at the Hotel Cecil on Jan. 31 has been limited to 500, and only a few tickets are left. All the principals concerned in the production of The Merry Widow cordially accepted the Club's invitation to be present. Mr. George Edwardes will answer to the toast of his health, which will be proposed by the president, Mr. Max Pemberton. The health of The Merry Widow will be pledged by Mr. Mostyn T. Pigott, and will be acknowledged by Miss Lily Elsie and Mr. Joseph Coyne. Mr. W. H. Berry will propose "The President."

THE Marquis of Northampton gave an entertainment on Wednesday evening to about 300 old lady residents on his estates in Clerkenwell and Islington. The entertainment took place in King Edward's Hall, Canonbury Tower, and after tea had been served an excellent programme, arranged by and under the direction of Miss Roma Castille, was given in the hall. Miss Castille, who is a young member of the profession, and is about to join the Merry Widow company, contributed several songs. The company also included Mr. Roland Henry, in comic sketches; Mr. T. Hearne, who gave humorous ditties; Mr. Ernest Sewell, in a conjuring and ventriloquial performance; and Mr. Robert Carr, vocalist. The old ladies thoroughly enjoyed the entertainment. The Marquis of Northampton would himself have been present but for the fact that he is slowly recovering from a serious operation, and is unable at present to leave his house.

THE annual general meeting of the Actors' Association will be held in the Victoria Hall of the Criterion Restaurant, on Tuesday, Feb. 9, at 2.30 p.m. It is hoped that all members will pay their subscriptions before this meeting, but a portion of the hall will be reserved for those who have not paid their subscriptions, and these latter will not be permitted to vote. Mr. Cecil Raleigh has consented to take the chair. Will members kindly send in their nomination to the new Council as soon as possible.

MR. ARTHUR VEZIN, who has just finished a two years' engagement with Mr. Gaston Mayer's Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch company, has been engaged by Mr. George Alexander for his provincial tour of The Builder of Bridges.

MR. ACTON BOND will deliver the lines of Edgar in King Lear at the reading which will be given by the British Empire Shakespeare Society at the Bijou Theatre, Archer-street, on Feb. 2. Mr. Lyn Harding will read Lear; Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn, Kent; Mr. Shakespeare Stewart, the Fool; Mr. Howard Rose, France; Miss Adeline Bourne, Goneril; and Miss Dorothy Thomas, Cordelia.

MR. PAUL RUBENS, who is in Denmark accumulating data for his new opera, to follow, at some future time, The King of Cadonia, has already finished the first act of the musical play. Mr. Frank Curzon will include in the cast the principal artists now appearing in Mr. Frederick Lonsdale's work at the Prince of Wales's.

MR. ALBERT CHEVALIER has put the finishing touches to a new play for children, which is destined for production at a West End theatre next Christmas. The music of the piece, which is in two acts, is by Mr. John Crook.

THE directors of the Lyceum Theatre, Ipswich, together with Miss Parkin, their capable manageress, must be complimented upon the able way in which this pretty little playhouse is conducted. One of the excellent Hutchison companies has held the boards for the last two weeks, during which Mrs. Dot and Brewster's Millions established a record, many of the county families being among the patrons. So keen, indeed, were Ipswichians to see Mr. Hutchison in the part of Monty Brewster, that the advance booking totalled over £140 on the week.

THROUGH the kindness of Mr. Bannister Howard and Mr. Egbert Lewis, the matinée on Wednesday at the Theatre Royal, Bath, was set aside for a ticket benefit for Miss Lily Gullick, the local musical comedy actress, who for some time past has been suffering from blood poisoning, and quite unable to follow her profession. The house was well booked up, and the popular little lady will be cheered by so successful a result.

MR. T. G. BAILEY (author of Love Rules the World, How Women Ruin Men, &c.) has written another drama, entitled How Women are Slandered, and it was announced to be produced on Thursday last by Messrs. Watson and Owen at the Victoria Theatre, Broughton.

MR. W. PAYNE SEDDON was on Wednesday presented with a handsome sovereign case by the working staff of his Hawick theatre.

MR. GEORGE H. CHILD, who produced and stage-managed Straight from the Shoulder last autumn for Mr. R. A. Roberts, has been engaged by Messrs. Hinton, Green, and Zillwood to stage-manage their latest success Her Fatal Marriage.

MR. ROBERT H. HOWARD, who is playing the Squire in Mr. Robert Arthur's Red Riding Hood at Kennington, was engaged last Saturday week and opened at the following Monday's matinée. Although working on such short notice Mr. Howard gave general satisfaction, and has now settled down thoroughly in the part.

MR. GEORGE LESTOCQ has engaged Miss Agnes Maude to play in The Sportsman, which starts its tour at Brighton on March 1.

MR. EDWARD A. COVENTRY has been re-engaged by Mr. Gaston Mayer to play Stubbins in the South company of Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch.

MR. T. G. HALES has succeeded in purchasing the fine Mount St. Bernard dog that was depicted in the Express of Monday last, belonging to the very prominent Miss Violet Charlesworth. It is Mr. Hales's intention to use the animal for stage purposes, and for the present he will stable the dog at 76, The Drive, Hove.

MR. WELDON ATHERSTONE, on the conclusion of his engagement as Magnus in The Prodigal Son, was, on Saturday last, surprised and deeply gratified by the presentation of a handsome travelling rug from "the girls and boys of Mr. Geo. D. Day's Prodigal Son company, with every good wish for the best of luck in 1909." This evidence of good fellowship was strengthened by Mr. Chas. Seymour, Mr. Day's stage-manager, who presented Mr. Atherstone with a hunter watch.

MR. ALEC ALVES, who has been playing Jacky in Mr. Louis Calvert's production of Sunday for the past two years, has been engaged by Mr. Maurice E. Bandmann to play juvenile lead in his dramatic company, and has sailed by R.M.S. Macedonia for Calcutta.

MR. HERBERT LEONARD'S successful play, The Girl I Love, is now being booked by Mr. P. Howard Sturgess, general-manager for Mr. Wentworth Croke.

"KROKE'S KRONIKLE" is the name of one of the most interesting, as well as amusing, theatrical publications. It is edited by Mr. Roy Redgrave, and the articles and sketches are contributed by members of Mr. Wentworth Croke's South company of The Christian, clever cartoons being furnished by Mr. Royce Milton. The magazine, which is published monthly, brings out the literary talents of the various members of the company, and makes excellent reading.

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES has settled on Our Miss Gibbs as the title of the new piece, which is to be produced at the Gaiety on the 30th inst.

MR. WILLIAM HOLLES AND MISS NANNIE GOLDMAN are starting their spring tour earlier than usual this year with Arthur Shirley's successful play The Stepmother, now in its third year. The piece made a marked impression in all the principal cities on its previous visits, and many returns are being made this spring and autumn. Mr. Shirley has considerably strengthened the second act, and added several new incidents likely to suit provincial audiences.

THE efforts of Miss Lulu Valli, the principal boy at Kennington, to elude observation whilst entering the theatre, were terminated on the 8th inst., when she was espied by an errand boy whilst disguised in masculine attire. The boy duly claimed the reward of £5 offered by Mr. H. B. Brandreth, the manager; but Miss Valli certainly gave her pursuers a run for their money.

MR. LYN HARDING will read the title-rôle in a performance of King Lear, which will be given by the British Empire Shakespeare Society at the Bijou Theatre, Archer-street, W., on Tuesday, Feb. 2. It is the first time the society has attempted the tragedy in London.

A MATINÉE of Dorothy, in aid of the Lord Mayor's Fund for the sufferers in the Sicilian earthquake, will be given at the Waldorf Theatre on Jan. 26, by permission of Messrs. E. D. and J. Maundy-Gregory. The Lord Mayor and Sheriffs will attend in state, and the principal artists and chorus will generously give their services.

MISS EVELYN MILLARD, when she opens at the Criterion in February, will continue there the run of The Adventure of Lady Ursula, which will be followed by the production of Mr. Robert Hichens's new play, in which she will be supported by Mr. Herbert Waring, Mr. Allan Aynesworth, and Mr. Henry Ainley.

MR. BRANDON THOMAS is enjoying such a successful time at the Aldwych, giving two performances of Charley's Aunt every day, that he has arranged to continue the season until Jan. 23, putting on Good for Nothing as a front piece, with himself as Tom Dibbles and Miss Amy Brandon Thomas as Nan. Mr. Cecil Barth, his general manager, has booked a long tour, practically extending throughout the year, at all the principal theatres in the country.

MR. TOM CRAVEN'S latest melodrama, which bears the pretty and attractive title, When a Lass Loves, was, as will be remembered, produced a few weeks ago with quite extraordinary success at the Theatre Royal, Margate. The piece will be sent on tour as soon as the elaborate scenery and pictorial printing can be got ready. The printing will be executed by Messrs. David Allen and Sons, and Mr. H. Cecil Beryl, who at once recognised "a winner" in this play, is now booking the dates.

OWING to the heavy work entailed in the production of the Ring and of the new opera, The Angelus, at the Royal Opera, Covent Garden, there will be no performance on Tuesday evening next. Madame Butterfly will be postponed until Thursday, Jan. 21, and the première of The Angelus will take place on Saturday, the 23rd. All tickets booked for Madame Butterfly on Tuesday, the 19th, can be transferred to Thursday, the 21st, on application at the box office, or the money returned.

"PROTEUS IN PETTICOATS," a one-act comedy by Frank Ernest Potter, was produced for the first time by Mr. Edward Compton and his company at the Grand Theatre, Wolverhampton, on Monday.

MR. JOHN HAMES, who for some time has been suffering from a severe nervous disorder, the result, it is feared, of a fall some three years and a half ago, has been compelled to go into Charing Cross Hospital for treatment. It is to be regretted that he had to refuse two very advantageous offers only last Thursday week (the 8th). He will be very pleased to see any old friends. Visiting days are Wednesday and Friday, from 3 to 4 o'clock, and on Sundays, between 3.30 and 4.30. It is to be hoped his sojourn there will be brief, and that he will soon be at work again.

THE Popular Theatre, now in course of construction at Lisbon, collapsed on Wednesday morning, and is now a heap of ruins. The theatre was to have been opened at the Carnival.

MR. HENRY LUDLOW has been specially engaged by Mr. George Alexander to sustain Mr. Dawson Milward's part in the first tour of The Builder of Bridges.

A WONDERFUL musical prodigy has been discovered at Leipzig. She is a little girl named Pillar Osorio, who will celebrate her fourth birthday within a few weeks. At a recital in the Bluethnerschen Hall, before an audience in which many musical critics and men of science were included, Pillar Osorio played from memory a number of classical pieces with astonishing correctness of execution and touch. Scientists are greatly interested in the question of how the brain of a three-year-old child can be capable of the mental effort required to grasp all the intricacies of the classical pieces which the infant prodigy played.

THE death has taken place at her home in Boston, U.S.A., of Mrs. Evelyn Greenleaf Sutherland (John Rutherford), authoress of The Breed of the Treshams, with which Mr. Martin Harvey has been so successfully associated, and of Monsieur Beaucaire, which she wrote in conjunction with Mr. Booth Tarkington, and which has proved so popular in the hands of Mr. Lewis Waller. She was also the authoress of The Road to Yesterday, which has not yet been produced in this country, although the plot was read some time ago at Worthing. She was for years the dramatic editor and leader writer of the Boston Commonwealth, and was very well known in Boston, her literary career having begun with the winning of a prize in a competition for a ghost story in 1894. Mrs. Sutherland had the misfortune to set fire to her clothing at an open gas-stove, and, although her injuries might not necessarily have proved fatal, the shock proved too great for a weakened heart.

STATISTICS of last year's representations at the principal German theatres have just appeared. Carmen has proved the most popular opera, having been performed close on 500 times. Wagner's operas reach the number 1,938, the work most frequently performed having been Lohengrin—396 times. Verdi was represented by 757 performances, Lortzing by 660, Mozart by 474, Meyerbeer by 153. Fidelio was given 219 times, Gounod's Faust 248, and Salome 217 times.

OPERETTA has reigned supreme everywhere. The Merry Widow has seen 1,778 performances; while Oscar Strauss's Dream Waltz runs that popular work very close with 1,742; and the pretty little Dollar Princess was given 548 times. Schiller takes, as usual, the leading place among the classics with 1,442 representations, Goethe with just half that number. Shakespeare has been performed 948 times, Molière 185 times. Among modern playwrights Sudermann heads the list with 1,212 performances, Ibsen follows with 876, and Gerhart Hauptmann with 475.

THE Maxine Elliott Theatre, New York, is situated in West Thirty-Ninth-street, nearly opposite the Casino. It is absolutely fireproof, being constructed of marble, steel, and concrete. Furthermore, it is one of the two or three theatres in New York that are completely detached from other buildings. The seating capacity is about 900. It is said that the cost of the Dorset marble used in the front and in other parts of the theatre would be sufficient to build an ordinary playhouse.

MISS ELLIOTT herself suggested the marble façade, and the Petit Trianon at Versailles was her model for the general design of the interior. The walls, ceiling, and floor of the lobby are made of large slabs of white Italian marble, the stairs leading to the balconies being of the same material. The decorative scheme of the auditorium is copied from one of the old French palaces. Each dressing-room has a pier mirror and a comfortable arm chair. Miss Elliott's dressing-room is just off the stage, and is connected with a reception-room and a private bath-room. Although the theatre was completed with extraordinary rapidity, no effort seems to have been spared to make it safe and comfortable. No one could fail to admire the luxurious and tasteful appearance of the auditorium. The Maxine Elliott Theatre is jointly managed by Miss Elliott and the Messrs. Shubert. Miss Julia Marlowe, Mme. Nazimova, and Miss Mary Mannering will appear there in the near future.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Tree and Garrick.

"MR. BERSOHM TREE," says the Pall Mall Gazette, "as he contemplates with satisfaction the continued and growing success of that child of his creation, the Academy of Dramatic Art, may take pride in the remembrance that Garrick may be thought to have had some idea in the same direction. So much, indeed, can be gathered from a chance reference of Horace Walpole to his friend George Montagu regarding a performance at the then (in George II.'s time) famous Richmond Theatre, when 'we had a new actress, a Miss Clough; an extremely fine, tall figure, and very handsome; she spoke very justly and with spirit. Garrick (who is to produce her next winter), Barry, and some more of the players were there to see the new comedians; it is to be their seminary.' It was of Garrick's friend, Dr. Johnson, that the elder Boswell said, 'He set up a schule and ca'd it an academy'; and Garrick's own seminary has become an academy now."

They Knew the Feet.

MR. JAMES WELCH'S funniest story, as told in Cassell's Saturday Journal, is reminiscent of his first appearance on the stage in a small part and an extremely large moustache in a Liverpool theatre. "The tone of the audience," says Mr. Welch, "was by no means encouraging during the first few minutes of my professional career, but I bore up bravely under the sting of their ill-timed mirth. I say I bore up. Well, so I did, until, just before the time for my exit came along, a man in the pit shouted: 'Come out of that there moustache. I knows yer by yer feet.' Then I bolted from the stage."

What an Audience Will Swallow.

"I never saw an audience swallow 'soft sawder' so easily as I once did at Barrow-in-Furness," says Mr. J. Pitt Hardacre in some "Reminiscences" in Tit-Bits. "I was travelling with Mr. T. C. King, a well-known tragedian in his day. Mr. King was known familiarly as 'Tom,' and one night during our week's stay Jem Mace, the celebrated pugilist, was appearing at the music hall, which brought from Mr. King the remark, 'By Jove! here's history repeating itself with a vengeance—Jem Mace and Tom King opposing each other once again.!'

"As I had never seen anything in the way of professional sparring, I went across to the music hall. The place was crowded to the doors. We had got a very poor audience at the theatre, but with true professional courtesy the manager at the hall took me on to the stage, where I was introduced to the redoubtable Jem, and saw all that was going on from the wings. Two or three local men opened the ball by sparring for small prizes before the event of the evening came off, and then occurred the cheekiest piece of showman's bluff I ever heard. The stage was set with all Mace's trophies on a table at the back. Montague, Mace's manager, came on and gave a short history of Mace's career. He then described each trophy.

"'Ladies and gentlemen, this belt was won by Mr. Mace in his great fight with ——, in the year ——, at ——.' As each success with belt or cup was described the applause grew bigger and bigger, until he came to the championship-of-the-world belt, when the audience nearly shouted itself hoarse; but the climax was reached when Mr. Montague concluded somewhat after this fashion: 'I have been all over the world with Mr. Mace—on the prairies of America, in the backwoods of Canada, on the plains of India, in the cities of Australia—but Mr. Mace has always said to me, "Montague, you must take me to Barrow-in-Furness."' Then the house nearly came down.

For the "Poor People."

"I remember," continues Mr. Hardacre, "the following story in connection with the old Cork Theatre. There was once a well-known Irish manager called Huntly May M'Carthy. On one of his visits to Cork he found business so outrageously bad that he was at his wits' end. At last the idea struck him that he would get up a benefit for the 'poor of Cork.' He did so, and it being for such a deserving object he got the patronage of the Mayor and other notables of the place, and a big house was the result. Next morning the secretary and treasurer of the fund called at M'Carthy's lodgings with the idea of collecting the receipts. M'Carthy talked about all kinds of things except finance, and at last the subject was broached by the visitors. 'I beg your pardon,' says M'Carthy, 'I think you know the benefit was for the poor of Cork?' 'So we understand.' 'Then, gentlemen, I have divided the money amongst my own company, and if you can find a poorer lot in Cork you are welcome to let them have it.' But they couldn't.

"Another story shows the careless, happy-go-luckiness of the Irish character. King was playing Hamlet, and after the graveyard scene he discovered that his hands were filthy and black, as if he had been touching soot. He inquired the cause of the property man, who said, 'Shure, it's the glue-pot, sorr.' And so it was. The skull used in the play also did duty as the glue-pot."

Mr. Bourchier Back Again.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER, recently returned from a Continental tour, has been talking to a Standard interviewer about the lighting of the stage in Germany. "They light their pieces," says Mr. Bourchier, "in many theatres absolutely like nature. For instance, if the scene portrayed is a room in an old castle, and the time is supposed to be sunrise, the stage will not be lit all over as is the custom in England. The footlights will be cut off and the stage left in darkness, and then those windows which are presumed by the management to face the east will gradually be brightened by the rays of the rising sun. I saw a most effective instance of stage lighting in Berlin. It was at the performance of a travesty of Tristan and Isoult. In one scene the characters sit round a supper board lit only with candles. All the other lights of the theatre are cut off, and the effect is wonderfully realistic."

Shrimper and Substitute.

"MASTER PHILIP TONGE, the latest little Lord Fauntleroy, was at Bexhill once on a holiday," says the Evening News, "when, owing to illness, or some similar cause, there was a disastrous gap in the programme of the afternoon concert at the Kursaal. The management knew that young Philip was in the town, and imploring messages were sent to Mrs. Tonge asking that the boy might fill the breach with some recitations. There was a frantic search. Philip was discovered waist-high in the sea, absorbed in the strenuous delights of shrimping. The awful predicament of the management left him entirely unmoved. Compared with shrimping, reciting was but indifferent sport. He was eventually overcome by his mother's persuasions, and consented to a brief appearance. He was bare-legged, tumbled, and sanded, and wet almost to the shoulders. The advisibility of attempting to make his appearance presentable was suggested, but here Philip stood firm. There was no time to be lost. It was necessary to return to the business of shrimping with the least possible delay. Thus, and not otherwise, would he go. And thus he went and appeared, a little wet and bare-legged figure, on the concert platform. He created great enthusiasm, and flew back to the shrimping directly he was released."

"PENELOPE."

Comedy, in Three Acts, by W. Somerset Maugham, produced at the Comedy Theatre on Saturday, Jan. 9.

Penelope .....MISS MARIE TEMPEST
Dr. O'Farrell .....MR. GRAHAM BROWNE
Professor Golightly .....MR. ALFRED BISHOP
Mrs. Golightly .....MISS KATE BISHOP
Mr. Davenport Barlow .....MR. ERIC LEWIS
Mrs. Ferguson .....MISS NORMA WHALLEY
Mr. Beadsworth .....MR. HERBERT ROSS
Mrs. Watson .....MRS. CALVERT
Mr. Anderson .....MR. J. H. BREWER
Peyton .....MISS ETHELWYNN ARTHUR-JONES

The favourable reception given to Mr. W. Somerset Maugham's new comedy at the Comedy on Saturday was chiefly owing to the excellence of the acting. Penelope may be described as consisting of a French philosophical plot, treated in a hybrid spirit, with purely English characters. The effect of this combination is not entirely satisfying, and is, at times, almost unpleasant. But the interest is never let drop, unless it is at the conclusion, when the long-foreseen dénouement is over-elaborated, and should certainly be condensed.

The plot of Penelope deals with the attempts made by Mrs. O'Farrell, who has been married only five years to a young West End doctor, to win back the affection of her husband, which he has transferred to a married woman named Mrs. Ferguson, whose spouse is a sea captain who is "serving his country" in the Mediterranean. There is a family council in the first act, at which are gathered Penelope's uncle, Mr. Davenport Barlow, an elderly fop with fashionable tastes; her mother, Mrs. Golightly, whose hobby is foreign missionary work; her solicitor, in this case a cypher; and her uncle, Professor Golightly, a mathematician. After the others have said their say, the Professor evolves the theory that Penelope has been treating her husband too well, and has been lavishing her fondness upon him too freely. If, says the Professor, she will only affect entire indifference, both to him personally, and to his infidelity to her, he will in the end be as weary of Mrs. Ferguson's endearments as he has become with respect to his wife's. So Penelope sets to work to try the experiment. Her husband accounts for his frequent absences by a story about a patient, a Mrs. Mack, who frequently requires to be operated upon; and fun is extracted in the customary way from his evasions and excuses. Mrs. Ferguson is a personal friend of Mrs. O'Farrell's; and, believing that the latter is ignorant of the intrigue, comes to see the doctor on pretence of consulting him about her health. So bold do the pair become that they arrange a trip to Paris together, giving out that Dr. O'Farrell has to put the mythical Mrs. Mack on to the Riviera train, while Mrs. Ferguson has been asked by the patient to take the place of her maid, who has been called away. Mrs. O'Farrell thinks that things have gone far enough, and tells her husband that she "knows all." He is astounded, not only at the extent of her information, but at the calm way in which she takes his infidelity. He waxes righteously indignant at her callousness, and reproaches her with it. He, at any rate, he says, has a "moral sense." However, in the end he is so far tamed and subdued by Penelope's attitude that he decides not to go to Paris with Mrs. Fergusson.

That lady's punishment comes in the last act. Penelope plays with her cleverly, until O'Farrell, very awkwardly, breaks off their relations, when Mrs. Ferguson flies into a passion, and pretends that she never cared for him. She is induced to console herself with Mr. Barlow, and then the erring husband has to make his peace with his wife. She delays her pardon for some time, but eventually grants it; and on their reconciliation the curtain falls.

It would be difficult for any play to fall flat with Miss Marie Tempest as the heroine, and as Penelope O'Farrell she displayed the vivacity, lightness of touch, and subtlety of inflection and grimace which make her such a consummate comedienne. Her by-play and facial expression were admirable, and the dry humour of her performance was delightful. The constant activity of her rendering of its innumerable, delicately-finished details and the marvellous variety of her method made Miss Tempest's Penelope O'Farrell a creation equal to any of her comedy impersonations. It is difficult to imagine a performance more lively, more intelligent, or more piquantly characteristic. In the scenes in which she had to exhibit deep and serious feeling Miss Tempest was as excellent as in the droll depiction of the wife's keen dissimulation or in the arch delivery of her ironical remarks. Her Penelope is certainly one of the best things that Miss Tempest has done. Mr. Graham Browne hit off exactly the characteristics of the fickle O'Farrell, to whose bewilderment and exasperation Mr. Browne did full justice. The part is neither a strong nor a pleasant one, and he was handicapped by its deficiences; but he sustained it with his wonted care and skill, and was particularly good in the scenes in which the doctor is embarrassed by want of cash and superfluity of non-paying patients. That ripe and sound comedian Mr. Alfred Bishop gave a reading of Professor Golightly that could hardly have been improved upon. The sober cynicism of the middle-aged philosopher was admirably indicated, and his dicta were pronounced with the firm authority and perfect balance and repose which are Mr. Bishop's best characteristics. Miss Kate Bishop was a most agreeable and amusing representative of Mrs. Golightly. Mr. Eric Lewis's Mr. Davenport Barlow was a masterpiece of alert and dainty comedy acting, his make-up and attire being marvels of effective appropriateness. It was a performance worthy of the best traditions of light comedy, polished down to the smallest detail, neat and amusing in every touch and turn of voice and attitude. Acting like this is indeed a credit to the English stage, and a tribute to the virtues of the school in which Mr. Lewis served his apprenticeship Miss Norma Whalley made a magnificent Mrs. Ferguson, and her acting in the highly dramatic scene in the last division of the play was powerful, intense, and energetic. Her suggestions of uncasiness and worried duplicity were skilful in their delicacy, and altogether her Mrs. Ferguson was a dazzling and commanding personage. The part is a critical one, hovering as it does between serious passion and egoistical silliness; but Miss Whalley managed to indicate the existence of both in the dashing and luxurious personage. Mr. Herbert Ross did what was possible with the small part of Mr. Beadsworth; and Mrs. Calvert, assuming a comely cheerfulness which the duties of her line of business have often denied her, was exquisitely unconscious and natural as the doctor's widow Mrs. Watson. Mr. J. H. Brewer did some droll work as a cringing patient on his first visit to a consulting-room; and Miss Ethelwynn Arthur-Jones added to the pleasure of the evening by her well-considered rendering of the rôle of an imperturbable maid-servant. The mounting of the piece was liberal and artistic. Messrs. W. Hann and Son supplied some smart and sunny interiors, and the ladies' dresses were charming and sumptuous examples of the prevailing fashion. Mr. Dion Boucicault's able stage-management of the production ensured a smooth and brisk performance.

"THE EYES OF THE WORLD."

Play, in Three Acts, by Charles Darrell, Produced for the first time in London at the Theatre Royal, Woolwich, on Monday, Jan. 11.

M. Achille Fanfarade ..MR. J. EDWARD WHITTY
M. Hector de L'Orme ....MR. GEO. D. DAIPER
M. Gaston de Carnac .....MR. WILL CASEY
Octave .....MR. CHARLES STIRLING
M. Paul Roqueville .....MR. CHAS. SEWELL
Brigard .....MR. ALBERT HENDLEY
Ayice .....MISS IRENE STANHOPE
Mme. Esmé de Carnac MISS BEATRICE FITZHUGH
Mlle. Susanne Pomfleure..MISS NELLIE GARSIDE
Antoinette .....MISS IVY COURTNEY
Hélène de L'Orme ....MISS ETHEL VAN PRAAGH

An excellent reception was accorded the introduction to London of The Eyes of the World on Monday last, and Miss Ethel Van Praagh and Mr. J. Edward Whitty may be congratulated on their latest success, which drew hearty manifestations of approval from a large audience, who, not content with giving long outbursts of applause at numerous points during the performance, emphasised their keen appreciation by causing the curtain to be raised several times at the conclusion of each act. Mr. Charles Darrell, the author, from whose prolific pen many noteworthy dramas have sprung, has given of his best, the play being well conceived and powerfully written, and nearly every individual member of the cast has his or her chances of scoring, opportunities, we may here state, that are in no way lost sight of. The plot is laid in the high circles of French society, and domestic intrigue forms the basis of the play. The high-souled and loving Hélène de L'Orme is allied to an unappreciative husband, Hector de L'Orme, and bears up against the wrongs and indignities which are thrust upon her until it comes to her knowledge that her husband has formed a liaison with the wife of his best friend, M. Gaston de Carnac. Hélène then determines to leave her husband, but for the sake of her daughter, Avice, arranges that the matter of the intrigue shall be kept a profound secret. In the second act, when ten years have elapsed, we find that Hélène's daughter has formed an attachment to Octave, the son of Gaston de Carnac. In this scene is the meeting of Hélène with Hector and Gaston. The latter, who is still unaware of his wife's perfidy, will not permit the alliance of his son unless Hélène returns to her husband, which she absolutely refuses to do, and, for the sake of her daughter, would rather face death. There is a very dramatic episode where Hélène and her husband, having come to the conclusion one of them must die, decide their fate by the drawing of a card. The lot falling to Hélène, she attempts to take her life, but is saved at the last moment by her husband. In the third act comes the meeting of Hélène with Mme. Esmé de Carnac, the errant wife, and the angry encounter between the two women is very powerfully drawn. Eventually Gaston is made aware of his wife's intrigue, and Hector, whose eyes have been opened to his wife's devotion, repents and is forgiven.

Miss Ethel Van Praagh as Hélène de L'Orme submits a powerful rendering of the part, which is in every way suited to her high capabilities, her characterisation maintaining throughout high claims on the popular favour. As Achille Fanfarade, a young advocate, Mr. J. Edward Whitty gives a good delineation, and in the episode where he is supposed to be put under mesmeric influence to answer truthfully Susanne's questions he is thoroughly diverting, and is the source of much merriment. Mr. George D. Daiper brings the necessary experience and ability to bear upon his portrayal of the character of Hector de L'Orme, the unfaithful, though repentant, husband, and speaks his lines with dramatic effect. Mr. Will Casey fulfils every requirement in the part of Gaston de Carnac, and supplies an earnest study; Octave is capably represented by Mr. Charles Stirling, who acts with conviction; Paul Roqueville has a suitable representative in Mr. Charles Sewell; Miss Nellie Garside is a clever exponent of comedy, and in the character of Susanne Pomfleure makes that young lady a very agreeable and entertaining personage and a great favourite with the audience; Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh as Esmé de Carnac, the unfaithful wife and society woman, achieves distinction by a good delineation; Miss Irene Stanhope is suitably placed as Avice; while Mr. Albert Hendley and Miss Ivy Courtney lend sufficient assistance. Much care has been bestowed upon the mounting of the play, which is elaborate and effective, and the dresses are worthy of note.

THE KING'S GIFT TO MR. MAUDE.

The above, which we use, by permission of the Daily Mirror, is a picture of the present which the King sent to Mr. Cyril Maude after his visit with The Flag Lieutenant to Sandringham. It is a massive and beautiful clock in the appropriate form of a ship's wheel, made to a special design, and was accompanied by a charming letter expressing His Majesty's approval of the performance.

A ONE-ACT play by Major Philip Trevor, entitled The Looking-glass, was performed by children for the first time at the matinée at the Haymarket on Tuesday in aid of the Prince of Wales's General Hospital, Tottenham, and the Kensington District Nursing Association. It was a slight but pretty incident in child life, consisting of a conversation between some juveniles in their family affairs.

MISS KATE BISHOP, having left The Passing of the Third Floor Back company, to play in Penelope at the Comedy Theatre, Miss Elsie Keith Lytton has been appearing as Mrs. de Hooley. On Saturday last, through the indisposition of Miss Agnes Thomas, she was called upon to enact Mrs. Sharpe at the matinée, and so rendered the two parts with great success.

PLAY ACTORS.

"JOHN MALONE'S LOVE STORY,"
A Play in Four Acts, by Rachel Penn, produced at the Court Theatre, on Sunday, Jan. 10.

John Malone, M.P. .....MR. ARTHUR APPLIN
Esther Garthorpe .....MISS EDITH OLIVE
Sir Horace Garthorpe, M.D., F.R.C.S. MR. FRED W. PERMAIN
Mrs. Saxbey.....MISS ISABEL GREY
Tom Saxbey .....MR. LEWIS WILLOUGHBY
Kate Saxbey .....MISS WINIFRED MAYO
Sally .....MISS JEAN STERLING MACKINLAY
Bedford .....MR. FEWLASS LLEWELLYN
Marshall .....MISS INEZ BENSUSAN

If Rachel Penn (Mrs. E. S. Willard) can be induced to transform her play, John Malone's Love Story, into a novel, we do not think she need fear the result, and we are certainly of opinion that she might reasonably expect greater success with it than with the stage work under review. At the same time, let it be said that the piece gives evidence on the part of the authoress of an appreciation of dramatic situations, of a command of language, and of a talent for fine writing. And yet the play, thought interesting from several aspects, lacked the power to convince, even to hold the attention of the audience, and some of the conversations and scenes were drawn out to a rather wearisome length.

Esther Garthorpe is the secretary to John Malone, M.P., who is passionately in love with her. Scarcely less is Esther in love wtih him, but there are circumstances in her past life which compel her to keep Malone at an arm's length so far as the tender passion is concerned. For Miss Esther Garthorpe has a daughter living, and this is a source of shame to her father, Sir Horace Garthorpe, M.D., F.R.C.S. That gentleman sent Esther, when a girl of sixteen, to live with a titled woman whose mode of life was not such that it would have justified any self-respecting father in placing his daughter under her care. But Sir Horace has greater affection for his work than for his offspring, and he frankly admits that he doesn't want to be bothered with her. What happens is that the girl is taken advantage of in her innocence, and a female child is born. The baby is adopted by a kind-hearted greengrocer and his wife, and is decently brought up by them as their own child, under the name of Sally Fielding. Sir Horace, considering that Esther has brought dishonour upon the family name, declines to resume any relationship with her, and Esther is compelled to find some means of earning a livelihood, eventually becoming Malone's secretary. The opening scene, the morning-room at Saxbey Court, introduces us to most of the characters. There is Mrs. Saxbey, Esther's godmother, and grandmother of Tom and Kate Saxbey. Tom is an amateur artist, and he has found a kindred spirit in Sally, who has also taken up painting. They fall in love with one another, and announce their intention to go forth into the world to fight the battle of life together. Mrs. Saxbey refuses to give her consent to the union, but promises that if, after four years, Sally has made a man of Tom, and he can show that he has done something for himself, then she will be prepared to give them her blessing, as well as something more substantial. So Tom and Sally engage a studio in St. John's Wood. Things are not too bright for them, but they are managing to scrape along somehow. Esther commissions Sally—to whom, by the way, has not been revealed the secret of her birth—to paint her portrait, no doubt as a delicate means of rendering financial assistance. To the studio there comes another visitor in the person of Malone. He informs Sally that Esther is no longer working for him. Sally has previously hinted that she does not quite understand Esther—she is not even sure that she likes her—and Malone endeavours to weave a web of affection between the two. Later there is a very pathetic scene in which Esther tells Sally that she has a friend who had had a daughter, but had not been married. Her friend loved that daughter very much, but the daughter knew nothing of the circumstances attending the initial cause of her being. And then Esther asks Sally whether it would be wise to advise her friend to take the daughter into her confidence. Sally, after being informed that the daughter is perfectly happy, advises in the negative. In the concluding act Malone upbraids Sir Horace Garthorpe for his desertion of his daughter, and Sir Horace, in self-defence, angrily denounces her for having brought shame upon herself and upon him. In the end, however, Malone induces Sir Horace to a better and more charitable frame of mind, and the curtain falls on the lovers embracing one another after having proclaimed their loves.

Miss Edyth Olive had a difficult task in undertaking the rôle of Esther Garthorpe, but she brought out all the sorrow and pathos of the character with realistic earnestness. In the scene in which Esther asks her daughter for advice on behalf of a "friend"—a scene upon which we offer our congratulations to the authoress—the tragedy that was expressed by Miss Olive as the mother, entered with searching poignancy into the hearts of the audience. Altogether, the actress is to be commended for an admirable study. Mr. Arthur Applin, as John Malone, played throughout with the quiet dignity and the reserve which indicate the strong man; and Mr. Fred W. Permain furnished a striking portraiture as Sir Horace Garthorpe. Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay was bright, vivacious, and girlish as Sally; and Miss Winifred Mayo was appropriately mischievous, sprightly, and gay as Kate Saxbey. Miss Isabel Grey was seen in a capital character study of the grandmother; and Mr. Lewis Willoughby appeared as Tom Saxbey and Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn as a butler.

DRAMATIC COINCIDENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—To obviate any possibility of a charge of plagiarism in the future, will you permit me to explain, through the medium of The Era, apropos your paragraph concerning the forthcoming production of The Chief of Staff at the Lyric Theatre, that my play, What Love Can Do, written two yeare ago, but not yet produced, is also concerned with events transpiring in a South American republic.—Yours faithfully,

RICHARD A. GREENE.

The Palmy Days.

AT all periods bygone times were better than the present. Everyone knows that the stage was never in such parlous state as it is now (whenever you happen to mention it). This is as it always has been. The "good old days" have always been lauded to the detriment of the bad new days. In a Press notice in 1797 of the reappearance of Mrs. Abington after seven years' retirement, the writer said of the original lady Teazle: "In this age of frivolity and folly when caricature and eccentricity threaten to bear down truth and nature and already almost put common sense out of countenance." In a prologue written by Dr. Johnson, and spoken by David Garrick in 1747, these lines appear:—

"'Tis yours this night to bid the reign commence
Of rescued nature and reviving sense."

Those who are continually bewailing the degeneracy of the modern stage may take heart of grace and feel that when they recognise the drama is not what it was they may say, with Sir Francis Burnand, "No, it never was!"

"MONNA VANNA."

Lyric Drama, in Four Acts and Five Tableaux, by Maurice Maeterlinck, Music by Henri Février, produced at the Opéra on Jan. 13.

Monna Vanna .....MLLE. L. BRÉVAL
Prinzivalle .....M. MURATORE
Marco Colonna .....M. DELMAS
Guido Colonna .....M. MARCOUX
Trivulzio .....M. CERDAN
Vedio .....M. NANSEN
Torello .....M. TRIADOU
Borso .....M. GONGUET

(FROM OUR PARIS CORRESPONDENT.)

Monna Vanna, originally written as a drama, was produced at the Théâtre de L'Œuvre in May, 1902, with Mme. Georgette Leblanc in the name-part. It had a great success, and after a while M. Maeterlinck asked M. Février to set the play to music to a libretto compiled by the great Belgian author himself. But before the work was half finished serious trouble broke out between M. Maeterlinck and his collaborator. It will be remembered that MM. Messager and Broussan, managers of the Opéra, refused to entrust the rôle to Mme. Georgette Leblanc-Maeterlinck, whereupon the author informed these gentlemen through his lawyers that he prohibited the performance of Monna Vanna at that house. M. Février, on the other hand, sided with the Opéra management, and the Tribunal de la Seine decided that as a composer does the lion's share of the work, his wishes take precedence over those of his collaborator. Many people probably will approve this judgment; but others, I am sure, will not share that view. With every respect to the learned judges, I venture to say that nowadays in a lyric drama dialogue and music form an ensemble, and that it appears monstrous to ignore the wishes of the librettist, who in this case is one of the greatest littérateurs of the day.

The plot, which has undergone a slight alteration since it first saw the footlights, is as follows: It is the story of the beautiful Giovanna (Monna Vanna), who, like a second Lady Godiva, sacrifices herself for the good of her fellow-citizens. We are in the fifteenth century. The city of Pisa is menaced by the Republic of Florence. There are riots in the streets, the people are asking for food, and Guido Colonna, the commander of the garrison, has none to give them. He awaits the return of Marco, his father, sent on a mission to Prinzivalle, captain of the enemy's troops. Marco arrives with a promise of peace and plenty if Guido will consent to send Monna Vanna, his wife, to Prinzivalle for one night. She must come unclothed except for her mantle, without escort, and the city will be free. The proposition is monstrous, and Guido repels it. But Vanna, in pity for the people, agrees to the sacrifice, and, notwithstanding the jealous fury of her lord, starts on her journey. Prinzivalle can scarcely believe the news brought by his servant that Monna Vanna approaches. He receives her respectfully, and at once orders the chariots, laden with provisions, to start for Pisa. He then tells Monna Vanna of his love, and reminds her of an episode in their youth, when he restored a lost ring and received a kiss in exchange. Vanna remembers, and there is a subtle and delicate interchange of thought between the man and the woman. At the end of the scene Prinzivalle returns to Pisa with Monna Vanna, who answers for his life. Guido, in the meanwhile, vows vengeance against Prinzivalle, who, he believes, has been guilty towards Monna Vanna, and decrees that the captain must die if Vanna is to be pardoned. But Marco and the people are on the side of the woman who has saved the city, and as she approaches she is received with acclamations of joy. In vain she declares that Prinzivalle has respected her. Guido refuses to believe her, and the captain is condemned to rot in the lowest dungeon in the palace. Monna Vanna, suddenly seized with an inspiration, wrongfully accuses Prinzivalle, and, whispering to the prisoner that she loves him, exacts as her right the power to avenge herself on her husband. She claims the keys of his dungeon, and, opening the gates, the lovers roam hand in hand through the beautiful country that a change of scene discloses.

Many composers had asked M. Maeterlinck's permission to set his work to music, but it fell to the lot of M. Henri Février to undertake that task. To say that it is altogether satisfactory would be venturing too far, but it must be acknowledged that M. Février has written a straightforward score, without having recourse to Wagnerian inspirations. There are many pleasing numbers, although as a whole the work is somewhat monotonous. M. Février made the mistake of eliminating choruses that would have relieved the monologues of the principal characters and given colour to the music. The subject is dramatic enough to warrant powerful treatment, but the composer too often contents himself with melody in a facile vein. The love episode, which recalled a village scene rather than the reminiscence of youth in Venice, misses the undercurrent of passion that might have been supplied by a bolder musician. And it is here that the principal trouble lies. M. Février has not been bold enough, and his distinguished collaborator must have felt this when he first saw the score. It appears that M. Maeterlinck remarked on several occasions that the work was not big enough for the Opéra, and therefore more suited for the Opéra-Comique. This was an error of judgment. Monna Vanna is big enough for any stage, but it was the composer who belittled it. The most telling and picturesque number is the symphonic passing of the chariots and men laden with corn. The repetition of the three notes gives weight, and is certainly the cleverest rendering of the many scenes in the libretto.

The opera has been most gorgeously mounted. The scenery is artistic, and the dresses are picturesque. The grouping of the Italian peasantry is particularly effective. Mlle. Lucienne Bréval as Monna Vanna was the magnificent, chaste heroine M. Maeterlinck intended her to be, although she acted more than she sang her part. M. Marcoux as Guido secured a real triumph, and, despite his hoarseness, did full justice to the rôle. M. Muratore was a convincing Prinzivalle, and M. Delmas was excellent as Marco.

And where was M. Maeterlinck whilst his work was produced at the Opéra against his will? In his lawyer's office preparing an onslaught on MM. Messager and Broussan? Not a bit of it. The great author is a philosopher, and whilst people were looking for him in Paris, he and his talented wife were, and are still, basking in the sun at Grasse.

Löhr and Lore.

MISS MARIE LÖHR took the chair at the Playgoers' Club lecture on Sunday last, when Mr. Dion Clayton Calthrop discoursed on "The Passing of Pierrot." Mr. Calthrop, in the course of his lecture, said a great deal of drama in life is left untouched by people who write for the stage, because it is the one art which is so bound by conventions that it has scarcely room to breathe; managers have tight-laced its possibilities until it has the approved French figure. Some few have tried to get away from convention by writing for children, others by writing very intimately of social problems. The only true way to set to work is to write about children, which is the reason of the success of The Third Floor Back, where child-like and very simple words appeal straight from the Stranger to the hearts of his converts. We need to reinstate Pierrot among our immortals, the immortals man has created for his inmost needs, and when we do so that terrible bogey Mrs. Grundy, who is a false idol, will vanish in despair.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

NEW CROSS EMPIRE.

The large and enthusiastic audiences which are the rule here have been, if possible, larger and more enthusiastic this week. The bill is headed by The Johnstown Flood, a reproduction of the terrible disaster of May 30, 1889, when ruin overtook the town, and many lives were lost. The opening scene shows Johnstown as it appeared twenty-four hours previous to the disaster. Gradually the day draws to a close; the sun sets slowly in the western sky; lights appear in the houses, a mechanical train, cleverly constructed, passes on its way, the signals work as it meets a goods train; stars appear in the sky, lights go out one by one as the inhabitants seek repose. The sun gradually rises, heralded by the singing of birds. The day breaks gloriously; but towards noon a storm descends, accompanied by thunder and lightning, and a reservoir bursts and floods the town. We finally see Johnstown restored to its former peace and beauty. The entire effect is magnificent and impressive, and reflects great credit on all concerned. The lecturer is Mr. Harry Barker; the mechanical effects and scenery were built by Mr. Fred Regina, who must be warmly congratulated on his excellent work; and the scenery is exquisitely painted by Mr. Syd Cook.

Dick Turpin is always a welcome feature in the bill, and had a very warm reception on the night of our visit. The beautiful and marvellously-trained Black Bess is as great a favourite as ever, and her performance is most interesting. Mr. Fred Ginnett impersonates the famous knight of the road with dash and spirit, and is a huge favourite. So well does Mr. Jennings play Tom King that we are full of regret when he is betrayed by Susan Truelove, a part sustained with much success by Mrs. F. Ginnett. Mr. C. Barello is excellent as Simon Sharpscent, and Mr. Alf Burgess is an amusing Sammy. Mr. Guest is a picturesque Luke Rookwood; Mr. Bailey is good as the Tollgate Keeper, as is Mr. Edwards as the Ostler. Mrs. Jennings completes the cast with an excellent representation of the Landlady of the John Falstaff.

Billy Hobbs, coon impersonator and dancer, scores a success with his amusing song and patter; J. H. Scotland, whose fine voice and excellent method aroused the audience to enthusiasm, gave his songs, including "In happy moments," in capital style, and was recalled several times. Julia Kent and Alec Keith contributed a smart turn, which was well received; it consisted of The Swell and the Coster and imitations, which were cleverly done. Frank Seeley, eccentric comedian, fully justifies the description by his quaint rendering of "I am going home to mother," "Cinderella," and some clever patter; the Achmed Ibrahim Troupe consists of ten clever artists, whose remarkable agility and smartness are greatly appreciated; Miss Jennie Hartley is a charming soubrette, dainty and pleasing, who makes a hit with "Mr. Burglar" and a neatly-executed dance; Miss Mary Ambrose sings delightfully "If I should plant a tiny seed of love in the garden of your heart." The programme also included a very good extra turn by Lennie and Hast called The Sea Nymph, in which both artists appeared to the best advantage. There were also pictures shown by the American Bioscope, entitled Following in Mother's Footsteps. Mr. Bridgen is, as usual, indefatigable in looking after the comfort of visitors, and is ably assisted by Mr. C. Young.

STRATFORD EMPIRE.

This week's programme is full of interest from start to finish. There is quite a plethora of talent in the turn contributed by Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco. Le Roy performs some very bewildering conjuring and vanishing tricks; Talma's dexterous coin manipulation has only to be seen to be marvelled at; while Bosco's unforced humour is bound to remove any suspicion of tediousness which conjuring entertainments are prone to. All three are adepts at the art of extracting "something from nothing," as is evidenced by the multitudinous articles they obtain from the empty pockets of members of the audience, whose blank astonishment thereat (with perhaps a tinge of regret at being unable to accomplish the same feat), is an additional source of merriment. Carrie Laurie's Kindergarten are quite repeating former successes at Stratford, if not exceeding them. This clever troupe of juveniles reflect the greatest credit on their mentor, their vocalism being excellent; while the antics and byplay of the budding "Dan Leno" of the party provide much mirth.

Miss Maude A. Edwards is a decided acquisition to the ranks of polyphonic performers. Smartly attired in hunting costume, she introduces a very pert little stable lad, "Nobbler," though his frequent remark, "Hold my hand, Maude," is scarcely to be wondered at, and he certainly does render a pretty ballad in a boy's voice. Miss Edwards's ventriloquial act is most praiseworthy; she is welcomely distinct, and possesses a keen sense of humour. Carter Livesay and Lilian Rosebery are in great favour with their well-known skit The Would-be Actors, and this clever duo should not, for many a day, seek a successor to this exhilarating playlet. Mr. Ted E. Box proves himself a very versatile entertainer, and is quickly on the best of terms with the audience. He has a remarkable command of facial expression, a quaint and original style, while as a comedy siffleur he is almost in a street by himself. Mr. Tom Bryce, in his amusing sketch The Dude's Wooing, which introduces burlesque imitations of a Jew and a Scotchman, wins a rousing reception, which is fully merited, applause also being freely bestowed upon his assistant, Miss Price, a very pleasing vocalist. Mr. Albert Christian's fine baritone voice is heard to advantage in a couple of ballads, which are keenly enjoyed; and Miss Katie Cohen, in illustrated songs, provides a well-received turn. Virto and Venita's musical act is received with pleasure, the gentleman showing much skill with several rather unfamiliar instruments, while the lady impersonates a Salvation lassie with tambourine very engagingly. The clearly-shown Bioscope pictures are each week an interesting item, and Italy's Marvellous Cavalry is a subject which is keenly watched. The overture to the current programme is excellently rendered by the orchestra, under the able direction of Mr. Albert Whipp, Mus.Bac., and Mr. E. J. Macdermott, the popular acting-manager, looks well after the comfort of those "in front."

CAMBERWELL PALACE.

Folk on the Surrey side of the river have ever been keen supporters of theatrical entertainments, and it is scarcely, therefore, to be wondered at that the Camberwell Palace and other amusement establishments in the same neighbourhood are packed nightly. On the evening of our visit there was not a seat to be had "for love or money," as the old saying goes. And the programme this week is of the kind that would attract the most fastidious audience. One of the "big numbers" is furnished by Mr. Fred Karno's company of comedians in the laughable burlesque, Mumming Birds. We have so often spoken in terms of praise of this musical absurdity that further commendation of it would only be a work of supererogation. Suffice it to say that the members of Mr. Karno's company are as lively and hilarious as ever they were, and keep the house in roars of laughter. Mr. Tom Costello, appropriately described on the programme as "the essence of versatility," appears in his delightful character chorus songs, of which the special Irish emigrants' song-scena, entitled "Homeland, good-bye," wins the hearts of all with its enchanting refrain and the sentiment it expresses. Mr. Tom Costello understands well how to win the favour of an audience. Miss Billie Burford, who looks altogether charming in a beautiful costume, renders in most expressive style her song, "Why be ashamed of him now?"; and Miss Nancy Charman delivers in an engaging manner the lines of her verses on the subject of "Daddy." Miss Mollie O'Connor, who is deputising in the absence of Mr. Sydney Lee, affords evidence of considerable vocal talent by her singing of an Irish song; and Gibbon and Bell engage in some comedy acrobatics and contortionism, which are exceedingly effective. Mr. Cyril Dane, attired as a "swell comedian," has a capital ditty in "Take me to the land of girls," and no doubt, judging by his smart dress and handsome appearance, the fair denizens in that blissful kingdom would give him a very hearty welcome. He has a good voice, which he employs to the best advantages. The Sisters Melba, two rather juvenile artists, both of whom present a pleasing appearance in white satin costumes—one as a boy and the other as a girl—join in a duet, "Until we meet again," which proves to be quite an agreeable item. The Three Laurels are seen once more in their amazingly clever and daring acrobatic act, worked with the aid of a bouncing ping-pong table, and the Courtiers gain unstinted applause for their refined vocal act, the songs "Mandy" and "Glow-worm," being especially admired. Mr. Lew Lake and company create a veritable uproar of merriment with their wild antics, in The Bloomsbury Burglars, a farcical absurdity which seems to grow in popularity as it grows in years. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope concludes with a series of interesting films.

RICHMOND HIPPODROME.

Excellent business is being done here despite the rival claims of King Pantomime elsewhere. The programme, as usual, is capital. Kato's Komical Kidgets, even with its phonetic alliteration, scarcely conveys an idea of the excellence of the show; a miniature hall is shown complete from limes to orchestra. The Kidgets themselves work hard, and sing, chortle, and dance with a vivacity that proves highly diverting. The performance is one of singular merit, and faultless to a detail. Izzey Ickstein's Wedding Party affords Dan Daly to descant vocally on the eccentricities of a Hebrew wedding. The audience appeared perfectly satisfied with the arrangements, and Izzie and Lizzie seem to have solved the problem of eternal conjugal happiness. Dan Daly, apart from being a clever comedian, boasts a capital voice; this was demonstrated in his second contribution, "Beware."

Quite marvellous are the tricks and thought transmission séance arranged by Kahn and Kahn. All efforts to baffle Miss Kahn's powers of transmission prove futile. The show is perfectly admirable, and no little skill is displayed. Irma Lorraine's performance should succeed not alone on its sheer merits, but by reason of her refinement and charm in a number of beautiful interpretations of gems of art. She scores a deserved success in a study of an Indian snake-charmer. Here we have a singularly graceful and clever impersonation. The audience cheered the clever lady to the echo, and a floral compliment was handed across the footlights. The O'Gorman Brothers dance with skill. The orchestra distinguished itself, under the bâton of Mr. C. W. Richardson, in a capital selection from Sergeant Brue, after which Professor Dunning brought along his ventriloquial figures, who contributed largely to the hilarity of the evening. The Professor should be proud of his family; their antics contribute materially to the success of the evening. "The Old Brigade," rendered by the Professor's trio was vociferously applauded.

There can be no question whatever about the huge success of that most exhilarating comedy sketch, Half-a-Dollar, admirably portrayed by Haines, Borthwick, and company. Here is a story sufficiently strong for a farcical comedy. The situations are novel and original, and the dialogue delightfully droll and often brilliant. The piece has the advantage of a really sterling company, who get every line home, and win right along the line. It is a thousand pities the names of these really talented artists do not appear on the programme, for they richly merit distinction; as it is, collectively they deserve unalloyed consideration and no little praise. Half-a-Dollar is one of the funniest sketches it has been our lot to witness for some months. Eugenie Fougère's methods are her own. Mr. Frederick H. Terrell, the business manager, does much to popularise "the little house on the green."

"IN THE HOUR OF PERIL."

Sketch, by F. Robson, produced at the Battersea Palace on Monday, Jan. 11.

Dick Manningham .....Mr. Frank Robson
Nicholas Sketovitch .....Mr. Algernon Syms
Claire Seymour .....Miss H. West
Angèle .....Miss Violet Campbell

Short, sharp, and sanguinary is the struggle between vice and virtue which goes on in the melodrama in miniature above named, which had its first production at the Battersea Empire on Monday, and met with a favourable reception. A naval officer figures as the hero, and with the incautiousness peculiar to his class confides in his gambling friend Nicholas Sketovitch, a Russian spy, that he is the bearer of an important despatch which he is to carry to the German Emperor. The Muscovite, having cheated the young officer out of his last £100, offers to make him an advance if he will allow him to look at the despatch. Dick's answer is a blow in the eye, for which the Russian vows vengeance. Taking advantage of a favourable opportunity the spy hits Dick over the head with a wine bottle, and hides him behind the curtains. The Russian is confronted by Angèle, a lady acquaintance, of whom he longs to rid himself in favour of Claire Seymour, the lady Dick is about to marry. Having covered Nicholas with a revolver, Angèle borrows the cloak and veil of Dick's betrothed, and in that character listens to the Russian's protestations of love, and gets possession of the despatch which he has stolen. Nicholas attacks her, but Dick recovers sufficiently to stagger forward and engage in a desperate struggle. The Russian is apparently getting the best of the fight when the police arrive, and Nicholas, seeing the game is up, leaps out of the window into the sea below.

The little piece gives the opportunity of listening once again to the voice of Mr. Algernon Syms, who has played Britannia heroes so often, but is now conspicuous as the villain. He shines malevolently in the rôle of the unscrupulous Russian, and makes the utmost of his chances for effect. Mr. F. Robson is a robust and chivalrous officer of His Majesty's Navy, and wins cheers, especially during the struggle with his foe, which is carried out as realistically as could be desired. Miss Violet Campbell is an unusually refined representative of "La Sylphe," as Angèle is known. The sketch was received with favour, the artists being recalled.

Leonard and Co., of 311, Oxford-street, who are the publishers of Daisy McGeoch's enormously-successful song "Two eyes of grey," have issued a simplified edition of Sarga's famous Oriental song "Sekah Allah," which has been sung by Mr. Joseph O'Mara and Mr. A. H. Gee. The dramatic impressiveness of the theme is well carried out in the music, which reaches a fine climax in the concluding joyous strains. Another excellent song, published by the same firm and by the same composer, is entitled "In the sun of thy smile." Baritones will find in this suave and agreeable melody a very effective vehicle for their voices. It lends itself admirably to the moods of an impassioned singer, and should have a great vogue.

DEATH OF TOM LOVELL.

Many of the older members of the profession will learn with regret the news of the death of Tom Lovell, better known as "Our Tom," for many years clown at the Britannia, also at Drury Lane under the management of the late Sir Augustus Harris. Although ailing for some time, the end came very suddenly, and he passed peacefully away on Monday, the 4th inst., and was laid to rest at Tooting Cemetery on Friday, the 8th inst. He was sixty-five years of age. Amongst the mourners, in addition to the relatives and friends, was Mr. Fred Odell, the well-known society entertainer. The relatives wish to express their thanks, through our columns, for the beautiful flowers, for the numerous letters and telegrams of sympathy received; also for sympathetic aid from the Actors' Benevolent Fund and Mr. E. Golding. The wreaths that were sent included one from Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Chirgwin, Mr. Jesse Sparrow, the Rev. W. A. Tooth (Brighton), Mr. W. L. Gay, Mr. and Mrs. F. Heed, and "M. and L.," and children, &c.

The late Tom Lovell in his long career on the dramatic and variety stage always showed that versatility that was as the breath of life to the old school of clowns, and the traditions of the famous Grimaldi had no greater admirer or follower than he, especially in his earlier years. To him it was no doubt saddening to witness the gradual decline of the popularity of the motley, both in the circus ring and in pantomime. We find a reference to him in a notice of the Lyceum pantomime, produced by E. T. Smith, entitled Harlequin Cock Robin and Jenny Wren; or, Fortunatus, the Three Bears, the Three Wishes, and the Little Man who woo'd the Little Maid. It was written by Sir (then Mr.) W. S. Gilbert, and was produced on Boxing Day, 1867. This was some years before the famous partnership, first at the Opera Comique and then at the Savoy. Tom Lovell played pantaloon. The harlequin was N. Waite, father of Nettie Waite (Mrs. Will Poluski), and grandfather of Miss Winifred Ward, now playing principal boy at the Marlborough. In September, 1873, Tom played the policeman in E. L. Blanchard's farce, Nobody in London, at Drury Lane, and he returned to that theatre much later in his career to play in the harlequinade. Among the more important London engagements of his early professional life were those with the late William Holland, at the Surrey. In the pantomime Dick Whittington, produced Christmas, 1877, with the late Nellie Moon in the title-rôle, Mr. Lovell played clown. At Holland's benefit, when the People's Caterer played clown, Tom contented himself with the rôle of pantaloon, and Nellie Moon was columbine. He was at the Alhambra in 1873, with Fred Evans's comic ballet company, playing the old man of the period. At Christmas, 1873, he was at the Prince's, Manchester, where he produced the harlequinade, and played clown. A notable event of the same year was the comic cricket match played at Kennington Oval. Among the players were Messrs. Hemfrey (secretary of the Music Hall Recreation Club), Duce, Fred Laroche, and W. B. Fair, who batted in brilliant style. Among other players were "Over" Rowley, designated a jovial Lancashire lad, Tom Holmes (then of Holmes and Gant), now the well-known agent, Billie Bint (chairman of the Oxford), Walter Laburnum, Fred Coyne, and Tom Lovell.

THE LATE TOM LOVELL

In 1874 the deceased gentleman pioneered the Lovell and Almonte Troupe through America, in connection with Schumann's Transatlantic Combination. New York, Washington, Baltimore, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Buffalo, Detroit, Cincinnati, St. Louis, and other cities were visited. At the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Glasgow, in December, 1875, Tom Lovell figured to advantage in a piece called Rip-piti-pip. But he found his staunchest admirers at the old "Brit.," the great theatre in Hoxton, in its palmy days under Mrs. Sara Lane, with whom he made his first appearance in 1878. The humble toilers were content with pantomime for three months of the year in those days, and a rousing cheer always went up when Tom Lovell year after year bounded on to the stage, and said, "Here we are again!" He fulfilled other engagements at the Olympic Theatre, and at the Crystal Palace under the management of Oscar Barrett, at Her Majesty's, under the management of the late Charles Harris, and at old Drury, under the direction of Sir Augustus Harris.

At the music-halls in the late seventies the deceased gentleman was a member of the trio, De Voy, Le Clercq, and Lovell, and later formed another trio known as the Three Toms—Rice, Melrose, and Lovell. Of late years the famous clown had been forgotten; but during his long stage life he contributed much to the wholesome amusement of the masses, and will be held in sweet remembrance by many a lover of pantomime. The last two years of his life were much cheered by the continued kindness of the Actors' Benevolent Fund. One most interesting event of his career we had almost forgotten. It was the saving of the life of a child by his favourite dog, at Westminster Bridge, in 1872.

Mr. Eric Williams made his first appearance for the National Sunday League at the Alhambra Theatre on Sunday night, and his recitations were heartily received by a very large audience assembled to hear a concert by the London Symphony Orchestra under the able bâton of Mr. Landon Ronald, and supported by Mr. John McCormack, the tenor, as vocalist.

On account of the great success of Cracroft's New Colliseum, he is staying a little longer at Porth. O'Neil does a very good turn, and the Sisters Limar are really clever; also Foster Santchuz is the talk of the town, and the booths, Whirling the Whirl, shooting jungle, cocoanut saloon, make this holiday resort very popular.

A POOR PIZARRO.

"Chetwood," says Mr. Edward Robins in "Nance Oldfield," "bubbles over with a stream of ever-flowing anecdote. Much that he gives us in his 'General History of the Stage' is only gossip, yet what is there more fascinating than tittle-tattle about players? The gossip of the drawing-room is merely inane, or else scandalous; but shift the scene to the theatre, and a story no longer bores; it is consecrated by the sacrament of interest. Is any apology necessary, therefore, if the quotation marks be again brought into requisition. This time the anecdote is of Thomas Griffith, an excellent comedian, and a harmless poet.

"'After his commencing actor, he contracted a friendship with Mr. Wilks; which chain remained unbroken till the death of that excellent comedian. Tho' Mr. Griffith was very young, Mr. Wilks took him with him to London (from Dublin), and had him entered for that season at a small salary. The "Indian Emperor" being ordered on a sudden to be played, the part of Pizarro, a Spaniard, was wanting, which Mr. Griffith procured, with some difficulty. Mr. Betterton being a little indisposed, would not venture out to rehearsal, for fear of increasing his indisposition, to the disappointment of the audience who had not seen our young stripling rehearse, but when he came ready, at the entrance, his ears were pierced with a voice not familiar to him. He cast his eyes upon the stage, where he beheld the diminutive Pizarro, with a truncheon as long as himself (his own words).

"'He steps up to Downs, the prompter, and cry'd "Zounds, Downs, what sucking scaramouch have you sent on there?" "Sir," replied Downs, "He's good enough for a Spaniard; the part is small." Betterton return'd, "If he had made his eyebrows his whiskers, and each whisker a line, the part would have been two lines too much for such a monkey in buskins."

"'Poor Griffiths stood on the stage, near the door, and heard every syllable of the short dialogue, and by his fears knew who was meant by it; but, happy for him, he had no more to speak that scene. When the first act was over (by the advice of Downs) he went to make his excuse with—"Indeed, Sir, I had not taken the part, but there was only I alone out of the play." "I! I!" reply'd Betterton, with a smile, "Thou art but the tittle of an I." Griffith seeing him in no ill humour told him, "Indians ought to be the best figures on the stage, as nature had made them." "Very like," reply'd Betterton, "but it would be a double death to an Indian cobbler to be conquer'd by such a weazle of a Spaniard as thou art. And, after this night, let me never see a truncheon in thy hand again, unless to stir the fire." . . . He took his advice, laid aside the buskin, and stuck to the sock, in which he made a figure equal to most of his contemporaries:

"'Our genius flutters with the plumes of youth,
But observation wings to steddy truth.'"

"TERRITORIALS."

Sketch, produced at the Bedford, on Monday, Jan. 11.

Lieut. Fred Waring .....Mr. F. Maxwell
Col. Hamilton .....Mr. P. Barry Lewers
Capt. Fortescue .....Mr. Murray Yorke
Capt. Manley .....Mr. Fred Bailey
Fritz .....Mr. Fred Beatty
Jess Hamilton .....Miss Lois du Cane

Mr. Fred Maxwell is producing another of his stirring military sketches at the Bedford this week. It is entitled Territorials; or, The Boys of the New Brigade, and is in four scenes. The opening one is laid in West Africa, where we find a force, under Colonel Hamilton, holding a position against invasion from a German force. The Territorials are awaiting reinforcements, which have been delayed. In the camp there is a traitor in the person of Captain Fortescue, who sells information to the enemy and endeavours to throw the blame on Lieutenant Waring, in love with Jess Hamilton, Colonel Hamilton's daughter, who is with her father as a Red Cross nurse. Jess and the Lieutenant unmask the Captain, but he makes good his escape. Lieutenant Waring is then sent out with a small force, and later learns that the reinforcements have been delayed and that the Colonel has been captured. After some exciting incidents Waring also is captured by the Germans, whose commanding officer turns out to be Captain Fortescue. Fortescue calls on Waring to deliver up a despatch which he has or he will shoot the Colonel, and further, if he still refuses, he will shoot Jess. The Colonel, with the true instincts of a British officer, orders Waring to remain silent, and so Colonel Hamilton meets his death. Fortescue is about to carry out the remainder of his threat when the relieving force arrives, and Fortescue meets with his well-merited fate, and Waring leads his troops on to relieve the beleaguered forces.

From this slight sketch it will be seen that there is a vivid story running through the sketch, and it is capitally played by the company. Mr. Fred Maxwell gave another of his fine impersonations, and as Lieutenant Waring scored a big success. Colonel Hamilton is finely embodied by Mr. Barry Lewers, while Mr. Murray Yorke plays the villain, Captain Fortescue, in fine style. Jess Hamilton is very sweetly portrayed by Miss Lois du Cane, who draws a clever picture of this noble woman. Messrs. Fred Bailey and Mr. Fred Beatty also lend valuable assistance. The sketch is capitally staged, and was received with the utmost enthusiasm.

THE GRANVILLE.

There is always a well-diversified programme to be found at this Walham Green home of vaudeville, and this week has proved no exception to the rule. The Gotham Comedy Quartette well merit their position at the top of the bill. Their harmonious part singing, coupled with their amusing low-comedy efforts, is sufficient to make their presence welcome in any company, and the warm reception accorded them was amply justified. Miss Nellie Chandos, a nimble dancer and a pleasing comedienne, gives an arch rendering of "Anywhere will do," which is much appreciated. Miss Helen Martin, a tuneful vocalist with a rich, well-trained voice, is heard to the fullest advantage in "The rose of my heart" and a selection of Irish songs. The Brothers Ford were deputised for on Monday by Max Martini, an agile and loose-limbed dancer; and Miss Rhoda Paul won much applause for her spirited rendering of her latest success "It's the Gay Gordons."

The Lancashire lad, Morny Cash, is rapidly forging his way to the front, and his quaint personality and delightfully sly humour should carry him far with any audience. "Beautiful bed" and "Do whatever you like with me" are two of his most successful ventures, and the house was extremely loth to lose him. Mr. Arthur Royce entertains admirably at the piano, and his musical monologue, A Motor-car Honeymoon, is neat and original. The Three Comerfords absolutely revel in their acrobatic feats, and their skilful efforts received every encouragement. Conway and Leland, the merry monopedes, also contribute to the evening's amusement, which is brought to a close by some capital pictures on the cinematograph, in which the films of the recent earthquake at Messina aroused most sympathetic interest. The orchestra keep well together under the skilful bâton of Mr. Frank Thomas, whilst Mr. Robert W. Duce looks after the comfort of one and all in his accustomed thoughtful and genial way.

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

Miss Gladys Huxley, fresh from her South African triumphs, arrives in London to-day, according to a recent letter to Mr. Bert Feldman.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Herbert Coats, the cotton king, occupied a box at the Theatre Royal, Paisley, on Tuesday last, and presented to each of the principal ladies with a handsome piece of jewellery, and the comedians with a box of cigars. On Monday, Mr. Waldon, of the Princess Theatre, Glasgow, invited the whole of Puss in Boots (Theatre Royal, Paisley) company to a special matinée, to witness Dickery Dock.

The latest quotations for music-hall shares are as follow: Alhambra, 1⅞; Canterbury, ½; Empire (15s. paid), 1⅛; Empire (10s. paid), 1⅛; London Pavilion Ordinary, 4⅛; London Pavilion Preference, 5⅛; Metropolitan, 14s.; Moss' Empire, 5; Moss' Empire 5 per cent. Preference, 4¼; Oxford, 6⅛; Palace, 1⅜; Tivoli, 5⅛; United Varieties, 1; Variety Consolidated Theatres, 11s. 6d.

An exceptionally strong bill will be presented at the London Coliseum next week. In addition to Mr. Albert Chevalier and company, in Behind the Scenes; Saharet, the beautiful dancer; Marie Dressler; Colonial Septette, in an old-world musical sketch; and Eli Hudson, and Olga and Elgar, comes Mme. Alice Esty. Lily Burnand, Bert Woodward, the cycling coon, the Trentanovi Sisters, and Horace Pollock and company in Pinero's Hester's Mystery, are among other fresh turns.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

[We cannot undertake to answer the inquiries of correspondents by post. In all letters names and addresses must be given as a guarantee of good faith. Initials only or pseudonyms will be used in the replies if so desired.]

G. R.—We have searched our obituary lists for twenty years back, and can discover no notice of his death.

LE TORT.—There was a Thomas Bentley, a dramatic writer, who died in 1782; but we are unable to discover any biography or references to a Thomas Bentley, an actor.

ARTHUR WILLIAMS.—The cast of Aurora Floyd, dramatised by C. S. Cheltnam from Miss Braddon's novel of the same name, and produced at the Princess's on March 11, 1863, was as follows: Aurora Floyd, Amy Sedgwick; John Mellish, Hermann Vezin; James Conyers, Robert Roxby; Stephen Hargreaves, George Belmore; and Matthew Harrison, Charles Seyton.

SYDNEY LANGWORTH.—The production of Caste at the Prince of Wales's on April 6, 1867, was the actual first performance.

W. BEAL.—The Sign of the Cross was originally produced in America; first performance in England at the Grand Theatre, Leeds, Aug. 26, 1895; Lyric Theatre, Jan. 4, 1896. This is all the information we can give you.

ADMIRER.—(1) There is a performer by the name you mention. A letter addressed to him at our office would reach him. We are unable to tell you where he is performing this week. (2) The lady is married, we believe. Why not write to her?. Her address is in the first column of our back page.

FRED T. RUNDALL.—We have no exact record. The lady made her first appearance on the stage in 1892, and was for one year with Charles Wyndham at the Criterion, playing small parts, before appearing in musical comedy.

T. J. LANDER.—We do not know of the lady's movements, but we believe she is in New York with her own company. You might discover her whereabouts if you write to her uncle, Mr. Fred Odell, 87, Denmark-road, Camberwell.

VAL BURTON.—It was characteristic of E. T. Smith, the caterer, that he followed Gustavus V. Brooke at Drury Lane Theatre with a grand American equestrian company. This was in October, 1853.

SYDNEY CORRESPONDENT.—The address given to us of the lady you mention is 88, Holland Park-avenue, London, W. Her sister was on the stage here, but we have heard nothing of her lately. The Christian name of the lady coming from Australia was Marion, not Alice.

A LADY passenger from Holyhead to Kingstown on Sunday wore a long red cloak trimmed with squirrel fur, had fair hair, and in every way answered the description given of Miss Charlesworth; but interviews with a Dublin representative of the Variety Artists' Federation and Music Hall Artists' Association all point to the fact that the lady was a variety artist en route to Cork.

MISS MAY AUDREY, who has lately made headway on the music halls with her dainty manners and catchy sayings, is now stricken down with quinsy, pleurisy, and bronchitis. Her illness started when she had finished her performance at the Empire, Oldham. Her sister managed to get her on to Birkenhead, but the journey completely finished her. With tender care and gentle nursing she is doing well, but it will be a few weeks before she recovers.

MRS. RYDER SLONE, the wife of the well-known comedian, underwent on Saturday last, at a private nursing home at Manchester, a very serious operation, which was performed by Dr. Helme, Dr. Wilson, and Dr. Hibbert. Mr. Slone had to give up work on the Thursday in order to be with the patient, who is progressing as favourably as can be expected, but her condition may still be regarded as grave.

CLEMPERT continues to score successes. After the first show on Monday at the Hippodrome, Middlesbrough, he was immediately engaged by Signor Pepi for Carlisle, Darlington, and Barrow. He will shortly produce an escape from a glass tank and several other attractive inventions. His defiance of the power of the strait-jacket has been astonishing asylum attendants.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Should be found very useful.—Pelican.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

VOTES FOR ACTRESSES.

The recent meeting of the Actress's Franchise League at the Criterion Restaurant revealed the rather surprising fact that some of our cleverest actresses are in favour of voting powers being granted to women. The surprise was created by the knowledge that actresses are nearer to the possession of what is called "woman's rights" than any other females in the community. The actress, indeed, represents the ideal woman of the future. She meets man in the combat of life, and leaves it after what may be called a "drawn battle." If we can point to many cases in which the personal popularity and manly beauty of an actor have drawn thousands to the theatres at which he has appeared, we can also refer to at least an equal number of instances in which a leading actress has been a "powerful attraction." One of the complaints of the advanced woman is that her sex is treated by men with an artificial chivalry which is absolutely insincere, and which is only an artful method of tricking them into certain concessions by flattering their vanity. Actresses have not this grievance. At rehearsals when learning their business they are subject to the same wholesome corrections and criticisms as actors in the same condition. The remarks "Not a bit like it!" and "Would you mind saying that again, so that an audience could hear it?" are impartially addressed to male and female aspirants. If strong language be used—and in moments of excitement the best of us are only too prone to employ it—it falls on the ears of the short-haired and the long-haired alike. There is as little mercy shown to laziness and incompetence in petticoats as to the same defects in trousers. And the conventional attitude of the male, with its insulting "gallantry," its petting, superficial politeness, is exchanged for a blunt camaraderie and merciless frankness which to an enlightened and independent woman must be much more congenial than all the bowings and scrapings of the Court of LOUIS QUATORZE. The ladies' dressing-rooms are as clean and healthy as the gentlemen's; both sexes travel by the same class; and the apartments in the provincial towns are as luxurious and agreeable to one sex as to the other. The limelight shines impartially on the just and the unjust, on the down-trodden female and on the tyrannical and overbearing male.

It is difficult, therefore, to see what direct interest actresses have in obtaining the vote. They could hardly abolish unhealthy dressing-rooms by Act of Parliament, and that seems to be the only complaint that the actor and actress at present have which could possibly be dealt with by legislation. It is, therefore, with no selfish view that artists like Mrs. KENDAL, Miss VIOLET VANBRUGH, Miss IRENE VANBRUGH, Miss FANNY BROUGH, Miss GERTRUDE ELLIOTT, Miss COMPTON, Miss EVA MOORE, Miss DECIMA MOORE, Miss MOUILLOT, Miss CICELY HAMILTON, Miss TITA BRAND, Miss EDITH CRAIG, Miss CHARLOTTE GRANVILLE, and Miss FLORENCE WOOD desire the right of voting. Their motive is sympathy with their less fortunate sisters; and this is certainly a most meritorious impulse. But, as it is, women are treated better than men by the law in most trades. For instance, it has been enacted that they shall not be employed in white-lead factories. On the "equality of the sex" basis, this is all wrong. It should have been made compulsory for the manufacture to be rendered non-injurious, as it has always been found possible to do when the manufacturer has been in real earnest about it. If it is wrong to poison women, it is—always on the "equality" basis—equally wrong to poison the men who, by the altered arrangement, must take their places. With the increased number of women who not only earn their own living, but enjoy their independence, there is, certainly, a mass of females who are practically on an equality with men. To say that, child-bearing apart, the one sex is "weaker" than the other is to overlook the feats of female huntresses, hockey players, swimmers, acrobats, Dahomey Amazons, char-women, wrestlers, and political lecturers. Of course, the women cannot have it both ways. If the divorce laws are altered so as to be the same for both sexes, the laws about debt, maintenance, and all the enactments which give the wife an advantage over the husband must be modified also. A good many women, like the luxurious lady quoted by the speakers at the Criterion Restaurant meeting, perceive this, and prefer things to remain as they are. Indeed, from a certain point of view, the position of the wife whose only function is to spend in enjoyment the money which her husband earns by labour and anxiety could hardly be made more comfortable; and any change would be decidedly for the worse. The real question is not whether Mr. JOHN STUART MILL could pile up a certain number of arguments in favour of female suffrage, or Mr. BELFORT BAX can collect still more reasons against it, but whether the rank and file of the sex are sufficiently advanced and improved to do any good with the vote when they get it. As a rule, when a class is really in earnest about getting the vote it is fit to have it, but not before. A vote, as the women would soon find out, is a troublesome responsibility almost amounting to a nuisance. It involves the individual being worried at intervals by the party agents in his neighbourhood; it necessitates forming an opinion as to the relative demerits of two equally self-seeking and unscrupulous political parties; it leads to arguments with one's closest acquaintances and quarrels with one's best friends; and you have to turn out, perhaps on a wet night, and wait amongst a number of odoriferous persons in an elementary schoolroom in order to put a piece of white paper into a black box. As most of the votresses would "register" somewhere in London, the approach of a general election would make travelling managers uneasy; for, of course, every actress in each company would want to be "off," in two senses, in order to "record" in the metropolis. Do actresses, as a body, desire the vote? That is the question, and it could only be settled by a plebiscite.

MOLIERE ON THE HEARTH.

Some have surmised that the reason why the Roman Catholic Church refused to allow Molière to be buried in one of their churches was that they were afraid that his so often turning in his grave on the occasions of second-rate revivals of his works would endanger the stability of the sacred edifice. The productions of Molière's greatest plays were included in a period of about eight years. The Misanthrope was played in June, 1666, and ran for a month. The Miser, when first performed in the autumn of 1668, was rather coldly received, a surprising thing to modern readers. It was only in February, 1669, that Tartuffe, complete, was given, by the king's express permission, notwithstanding the strong opposition of ecclesiastics, and it scored a grand success, running for several months. Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme, still later, in 1670, gave us the masterly portrait of M. Jourdain, which part Molière played himself. In 1672 he produced Les Precieuses Ridicules, the great comedy against blue-stockings and pedants; while the concluding months of his life were relieved by satirising his own feelings in the Malade Imaginaire, in which he acted the part of Argan, on Feb. 17, 1673, though very ill. "In the evening of the same day," says Mr. Van Laun, "in his house in the Rue Richelieu, he burst a blood-vessel. Two nuns who had for some time past been living in the house stood by his bed, and to them he expressed his complete resignation to the will of God. They sent in succession for two priests to administer the last consolations of religion, but both refused to come. Before a third could be found, Molière was dead."

An English translation of the Malade Imaginaire was given at Clifford's Inn Hall on Wednesday evening. The performance was a modest and domestic affair, and deserves but brief notice. There was no scenery, the acting taking place before a big fire at one end of the hall, and the conclusion of the acts being verbally announced. Mr. Kenelm Foss, who was responsible for the revival, played Argan with much goodwill and energy, but with insufficient art and technique. He shouted in the louder passages, and lowered his voice excessively in the quieter ones; his careful make-up was contradicted by too-juvenile characterisation; he frequently gabbled; and his work on the whole, though earnest, was amateurish. Miss Vera Coburn gave a pleasing and intelligent performance as Angélique; she has an agreeable appearance and considerable charm, and shows promise. Miss Rose Vernon, gifted with a capital comedy face, was droll and original, if rather quaint in movement, as Béline; and Miss Nonie Kidd won a round of applause by her pretty delivery of little Louison's lines. Mr. Ernest Charles was weak but prepossessing as Cléante. Mr. James Delmage delivered M. Diaforns's lines in sonorous and emphatic style; and Mr. Roland Pertius was comical as the silly son, Mr. Fred Lewis enacting the notary, M. Bonnefoy, with care and discretion. A bold, full-bodied reading of the rôle of Tornette was given by Miss Margaret Bussé, whose energy and distinctness contrasted strongly with the weakness of some of the other members of the cast. The translation used was apparently that by Mr. Charles Matthew, M.A. It is absolutely literal, "the interchange of the soft transports of that untried fire with which heaven inspires us" being quite Molièrean.

A SUFFRAGIST ENTERTAINMENT.

The advocates of votes for women used the stage for their propaganda at the dramatic entertainment, given under the auspices of the Willesden and Brondesbury branch of the non-militant London Society for Women's Franchise, at the Brondesbury Hall on Thursday afternoon, when took place for the first time in London the performance of a folk play by Mrs. James Ward, entitled "MAN AND WOMAN."

Mrs. Fairly ..... MISS AGNES IMLAY
Lady Bounder ..... MISS URSULA KEENE
Mrs. Burdens ..... MISS INEZ BENSUSAN
Sir Reginald Bounder .... MR. ARTHUR DENNIS
Nurse Smith ..... MISS WINIFRED MAYO
John Fairly ..... MR. MAX COPLAND
Brother of Nurse Smith ..... MR. GUY GARROD

Excellently written and admirably acted, the sketch was likely to give pleasure even to those who disagreed with the principles which it inculcated. The scene is the living-room of Mrs. Fairly, a "comfortable" woman of the working-class, whose domestic happiness is contrasted with the bitter despair of her friend, Mrs. Burdens, a char-woman, whose husband drinks and refuses to work, and is a "bad lot" generally. Mrs. Burdens pours out her sorrow into the sympathising ear of Mrs. Fairy, who is harassed by the visits of the local candidate for Parliament, Sir Reginald Bounder, and his fashionable wife. The lady, who is canvassing, treats the supposed voter's wife with effusive kindness, and Sir Reginald is equally seductive in his style, until he discovers that, owing to a neglect to register, John Fairly has no vote. When he learns this, the candidate flies into a passion and indulges in angry abuse. Nurse Smith, a suffragist lecturer, now comes on the scene, and pleads the cause of her sex very eloquently, and John Fairly is converted to a belief in Women's Franchise by the Nurse's brother. Excellent impersonations of two types of working women were given by Miss Agnes Imlay and Miss Inez Bensusan, whose acting was admirably realistic, Miss Bensusan's delivery of the wretched wife's speeches being very strong, impassioned, and impressive. Miss Ursula Keene hit off neatly the artificial manners of Lady Bounder; Mr. Arthur Dennis, carefully dressed and well made up, gave a vivid portrayal of the egregious Bounder; and Miss Winifred Mayo delivered Nurse Smith's little lecture with delicate distinctness and dainty inflexion. Mr. Max Copland was characteristic as John Fairly, and Mr. Guy Garrod gave a satisfactory performance as the Nurse's brother. In the course of the afternoon some suffragist ballads were given. One of them, a parody on the song in The School for Scandal, by H. Crawford, may interest our readers. It was sung and chorused in the usual way:

"Here's to the baby of five or fifteen,
Here's to the widow of fifty,
Here's to the flaunting extravagant quean,
And here's to the hussy that's thrifty—
Please to take note, they are in the same boat:
They have not a chance of recording a vote.

"Here's to the lunatic, helpless and lost,
Of wits—well, he simply has none, Sir—
Here's to the woman who lives by her brains
And is treated as though she were one, Sir—
Please to take note, they are in the same boat:
They have not a chance of recording a vote.

"Here's to the criminal, lodged in the jail,
Voteless for what he has done, Sir,
Here's to the man with a dozen of votes,
If a woman, he would not have one, Sir—
Please to take note, they are in the same boat:
They have not a chance of recording a vote.

"Here's to the lot of them, murderer, thief,
Forger and lunatic too, Sir—
Infants, and those who get parish relief:
And women, it's perfectly true, Sir—
Please to take note, they are in the same boat:
They have not a chance of recording a vote."

LIEUT. ALBINI presented his mysterious "Lady in Black" performance before a large and aristocratic assembly at the Hotel Cecil on Thursday.

MISS GERTIE GORDON makes a charming second boy in Charles Constant's pantomime, Blue Beard, and the artistic and effective renderings of her songs gain her many encores.

MISS GERTIE GITANA is paying a return visit to the Coliseum this week with unbounded success. This makes her thirtieth week in London during the past twelve months.

PAPA BROWN and Arthur Day's action against the Taxi-Cab Co., for injuries received last May, has been settled out of Court, the Taxi-Cab Co. paying all costs, about £1,000.

MISS AMY MARSDEN, who has been so dangerously ill for some weeks after undergoing a double operation, is much better, and will resume business in February, when she commences the Stoll tour, opening at Hackney Empire.

THE adjourned inquiry was resumed on Wednesday into the circumstances surrounding the death of a travelling conjurer named Herbert Nottingham Turner, alias "Mexican Joe," who was found dead, with a terrible gash in his throat and other wounds, in a drying-shed at Swadlincote, Burton-on-Trent, on Nov. 28. The coroner intimated that the police were not able to throw any further light upon the matter, and the jury returned a verdict of "Wilful murder against some person or persons unknown."

THE latest artistic arrivals are the Corricks, an exceptionally talented family of musicians and entertainers, who for the past seven years have been successfully touring the Australian Commonwealth, New Zealand, Tasmania, Ceylon, India, Baluchistan, Burma, the Federated Malay States, Straits Settlements, Java, and Sumatra, including a six months' tour under the able direction of Mr. Maurice E. Bandmann, who controls the theatrical world from Cairo to Shanghai.

THE family consists of Mr. Albert Corrick, his wife, their six daughters, and one son, all gifted with more than usual ability, and collectively making up a combination so unique that they are bound to prove a distinct acquisition to the English musical world. Their programmes include orchestral selections, glees, choruses, vocal and instrumental solos and duets, expert handbell selections, national dances, excerpts from grand and light opera, ballads, and chorus song numbers.

WHILST at once impressed by the remarkable versatility and cleverness of the family as a whole, it is Miss Alice Corrick who claims particular attention. This "golden-throated young New Zealander," as a Bombay journal describes her, adds to the charm of a naturally beautiful soprano voice of remarkable freshness and purity that perfect method of production which characterises all great singers. In addition to the constant successes achieved by Miss Alice Corrick on tour, she has also distinguished herself in several oratorio and operatic productions in the Colonies and the East, for which she has been specially engaged in leading soprano rôles.

ACTION AGAINST "AMASIS."

In the Court of King's Bench on Thursday Mr. Justice Jelf delivered judgment in the action brought by Mr. William Hermann Scholz (professionally known as W. Gunn Gwennett) against Amasis (Limited) and Mr. Frederick Fenn. The plaintiff, it will be remembered, alleged that the comic opera Amasis was, in a great many respects, a copy of a composition of his own, entitled The Son of the Sun, and asked for damages and an injunction. The hearing of the case commenced on Nov. 30 last, and occupied four days, judgment being reserved.

In giving judgment in favour of the plaintiff, his Lordship said it was not disputed that The Son of the Sun was an original play written by the plaintiff during a period of three years beginning in 1894 and ending in 1897, and that all the proper steps had been taken to protect his copyright or right of exclusive representation. The case resolved itself into the question of fact whether by the performance of Amasis the defendants had infringed the plaintiff's copyright in The Son of the Sun. If the result of a comparison between the plaintiff's play and that of the defendant's led to the clear conclusion that the coincidences could not be accidental, and that, directly or indirectly, the latter was distinctly borrowed in a material and substantial part from the former, the liability of the defendants would be established without any extrinsic evidence of intentional copying. In the present case the plaintiff was unable to produce any direct evidence of intentional plagiarism. Moreover, Mr. Fenn had denied on oath that in writing Amasis he knew of the existence of the plaintiff or his play, or, directly or indirectly, borrowed any of its contents. The case, therefore, mainly depended on the comparison of the two plays. It must be borne in mind that two authors were fully entitled to take what was common knowledge, to draw from known sources, and to weave their own plots and build up their own compositions on the general lines of the common foundation. In the present instance there was a well-known common subject matter upon which various plots and stories had been built up, namely, the historical fact that in ancient Egypt cats were sacred animals, and that to kill a cat, even accidentally, was a capital crime. On that foundation had been built up a good part of such books as "The Egyptian Princess," a German work translated by Eleanor Grove, and "The Cat of Bubastes," by Henty. Having made himself fully acquainted with both Amasis and The Son of the Sun, his lordship came to the conclusion that except in name the characters were practically the same. The plot, as regarded the cat story at least, was in the main identical, though altered in certain details. Amasis seemed to him to adopt and—it might be—to improve on the cat story in The Son of the Sun. There was also an extraordinary resemblance between the details of the two plays. In both the hero was betrothed to the king's daughter; in both, he killed a cat by accident; and in both he was saved from death, though by a different development of the facts of the cat story. Nor did the similarity rest there, for in many cases the words were almost, if not quite, identical. The resemblances in characters, plot, details, and language left no serious doubt in his mind that Amasis took a material and substantial part of The Son of the Sun, and he could not reconcile the sum total of the resemblances with the theory of accidental coincidence.

Mr. Fenn and Mr. Faraday, his musical partner, were sued early in 1907 by a Mr. Pritchard for piracy by Amasis from a play of his called The Mystic Cat, and a number of plagiarisms and colourable imitations were alleged. That action was compromised by a payment of £100 by Mr. Fenn and £150 by Mr. Faraday on certain terms, it being admitted that, "so far as the resemblances were not accidental coincidences, they arose solely through a bonâ-fide misunderstanding." That looked very much like a veiled admission of plagiarism from Mr. Pritchard's play. Under all the circumstances, his lordship found as a fact that the defendants had infringed in a material and substantial part the plaintiff's copyright and right of exclusive representation. He gave judgment for the plaintiff against the defendant company and Mr. Fenn for £200 damages up to date, and an injunction restraining them from representing Amasis without the consent of the plaintiff, so as to infringe the plaintiff's copyright or right of representation. Defendants must pay the costs.

Defendants' counsel asked for a stay of execution, and remarked that the limited company had lost £6,500 in producing Amasis, and that Mr. Fenn had lost £1,400.

His lordship granted a stay on terms.

THE picketing continues at the Cork Palace. One of the leaders (a Mr. W. Cody) was on Saturday last sentenced to one month's imprisonment for his action.

To Mlle. Lydia Kyasht, the charming première danseuse at the Empire, has fallen the unusual experience of two Christmas days within a fortnight, as the Russian calendar is thirteen days later than ours. Theirs falls on Jan. 7.

MISS DECIMA MOORE brought to a conclusion her extra week of Mrs. Dot by giving at special request some of her popular selections from her répertoire, and is repeating them at the Tivoli, Manchester, next week.

THE management of the Palace, Attercliffe, in conjunction with Mr. King Alexander, of Scottie's Waifs and Strays, on Saturday morning last gave a free breakfast to 800 poor children of Attercliffe. Needless to say, the kindness was highly appreciated.

AUGUSTE VAN BIENE opens at the Hackney Empire on Monday. Besides being a great 'cello player, he is a keen football player and critic. His enthusiasm for the game may be judged from the fact that he is going to play in a match at Crouch End on Saturday next.

AFTER hearing witnesses for the prosecution in the case of Clementini Dolcini, the Italian rifle shot, who was charged with the manslaughter of her assistant, Thomas Lees, by shooting him during a public performance at the Middlesex, the grand jury at the Central Criminal Court on Tuesday unanimously ignored the bill.

THE Lord Mayor of London has given his patronage to a children's fancy-dress skating carnival, which will be held at the Empress Hall, Earl's Court, on the afternoon of Friday, Feb. 5. The proceeds of the event will be handed over to the Lord Mayor's Messina Fund. One of the many novelties devised for the occasion will be the pulling of a gigantic cracker, 7ft. in length, by two tiny children.

ALTHOUGH Miss Winifred Hare, the Dublin Gaiety's principal boy, has suffered badly with throat trouble since the beginning of the pantomime, she has pluckily "stuck it out," and is now doing her full show. "Bombardier," her great military number, goes splendidly. This also applies to "Keep a-whistling," where Miss Dolly Raynor assists Miss Hare with a whistling solo. Miss Hare's new song is the one for which she offered a prize of £100, which she has paid to the boy composer Max Darewski, who wrote it. It is being kept back for the second edition of the pantomime, which will be presented in a fortnight's time. It is called "The Nightingale's Courtship."

A SKETCH DISPUTE.

In the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice on Thursday, before Mr. Justice Channell, Mr. Wm. Hy. Bishop, a music hall artist, brought an action against Viviana and Co., in which damages and an injunction were claimed. The plaintiff complained that the defendants had performed and passed off as their performance a sketch entitled My Golliwog, of which he held the copyright. The defendants denied that there was any copyright or that they had passed off the sketch as their own.

Mr. Grimwood Mears appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. E. F. Lever for the defendants.

In opening the case for the plaintiff, Mr. Mears said that in 1899 Mr. Bishop invented a sketch, which principally consisted of a dance like a golliwog, and he performed the dance all over England and elsewhere more than 2,000 times. He has thus acquired a considerable reputation. At first Mr. Bishop gave a representation of a golliwog that was apparently wound up and danced. The machinery then ran down, the golliwog became lifeless, and fell on the floor. Later he had the idea of being suspended in mid-air during the performance. Counsel handed up photographs of the performer in the costume he wore.

His Lordship: I see. I thought it was a doll. (Laughter.)

Proceeding, Mr. Mears stated that in April or May, 1907, Miss Florence Coles, the proprietress of the defendant company, interviewed Mr. Bishop and asked him to arrange a sketch for her company. Mr. Bishop fell in with the idea, and submitted terms, but they were too high, and the matter fell through. In November, 1907, Mr. Bishop heard that the defendant company, in a sketch called the Toy Shop, were giving his dance, the dress and make-up being the same. The plaintiff had seen a golliwog doll in Germany, and had taken the idea from that. The defendants gave a show at the Crouch End Hippodrome, and it was then seen that the show was similar to the plaintiff's. One point of similarity (said counsel) was the introduction of a pageboy, who "wound up" the golliwog, which then began to dance on a pedestal. The pageboy said "Like my Aunt Sally." The golliwog crossed its legs, and the boy remarked, "Oh, look, he has got lockjaw."

Counsel went on to say that a curious situation arose. Messrs. Stoll, who had the power to prevent the plaintiff appearing at the Olympia, Shoreditch, sent a representative, who saw the defendant company play the sketch there, and then made an affidavit that the plaintiff had appeared. An interim injunction had been obtained against the defendants by the plaintiff before this action came on for trial.

Mr. Bishop gave evidence. He said there were seven performers in his sketch, including children. The children sang a song, and then went to bed. Then a child crept out and put the witness (the golliwog) on the stand. The page-boy then appeared, and the golliwog frightened him by knocking something out of his hand. He (witness) was the author of the dance apparatus and "gags" used. His salary for the sketch was about £30 a week.

Mr. Lever, cross-examining, referred to the dialogue in the piece—"The dustman is slumbering and coming along." The witness was not the author of the dialogue.

His Lordship: It was written for you by someone who is more poetical than yourself.

The Witness: Yes. (Laughter.)

Do you suggest that Mme. Viviana intentionally passed off her performance as yours?—Yes.

Some people thought it was you doing the dance?—Yes.

So we may assume that it was a good dance?—Yes.

Why should she give a good dance and try and persuade the public it was you?—Why should she do the dance at all? (Laughter.)

Evidence was given as to the similarities in the sketches.

For the defence, the defendant (Miss Florence Coles) said that she had not taken her sketch from the plaintiff's. About six years ago she produced a sketch called Dollyology. It was done in dumb show, the characters being dolls of various nationalities, and there was a golliwog who was a minor character. Later a little talk was put into the sketch, and it was called The Toy Shop.

In cross-examination, the witness said that when she appeared at the Olympia in Shoreditch, she had no idea she was deputising for Mr. Bishop, nor that her performance was described on the programme as My Golliwog. She did not see the programme at all.

His lordship held that the plaintiff had no copyright in the dance, and that there had been no passing off by the defendant of her dance as the plaintiff's dance. At the Olympia the circumstances were somewhat peculiar, and it should have been announced that Mr. Bishop would not appear.

Judgment was entered for the defendants with costs.

THE Tivoli football team continues its victorious career, and has recently beaten Fulham. The Broadway Theatre, New Cross, has resigned from the Music Hall and Theatrical League, and its record has been expunged. The Holborn Empire and the Tivoli are at present the two leading teams, having a record of six wins each.

ON behalf of the committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., Miss Melinda May (secretary) wishes to gratefully acknowledge the following:—Mrs. Jennings (Fred Ginnett's Dick Turpin Co.), collecting £1, for one half-crown card; Miss Maggie Bowman, collecting 5s.; Miss Evelyn Mildred, donation 5s.; and Miss Lottie Albert, collecting from Mrs. Lewis Levy 2s. 6d. and Mrs. Samuel Wollranch 2s. 6d.; also box of clothing. Mrs. Keen (Keen and Waller), parcel of clothing; Doctor Goldberg, cheque for ton of coals; Miss Flo Banks, gentlemen's hats; the Sisters Stavordale, gifts for children; Mrs. A. Poole, 2s.; Mr. W. Cody, 1s. (through the Sisters Macarte); Mr. Thomas, donation 6d.; Mr. Browton, 6d

EVERY member of the profession will be pleased to know that dear Mr. Pony Moore, aged eighty-eight, came purposely to spend the day at the Horns, Kennington, with his charming daughters, Mrs. Eugene Stratton and Mrs. Chas. Mitchell, on Dec. 23. Needless to say, he did not play at Hunt the Slipper. Mr. Douglas Stuart, Mr. T. C. Callaghan, and Mr. J. Alexander represented the V.A.B.F. All friends of the charity are heartily welcome to tea and receptions, held every Wednesday from four to five o'clock.

MR. GEORGE B. LEE has just terminated his engagement with Mr. John Sinclair as general-manager of the Alhambra Music Hall and the Sea Beach Zoo, Aberdeen, and returned to London. During his year's term of management he has done wonders at the Alhambra, which is now again one of the most comfortable houses of its kind in the North, and by none are his valuable services more cordially recognised than by Mr. Sinclair. Prior to leaving Mr. Lee was presented with a purse of sovereigns on behalf of the members of the staff. He is a Virginian by birth, and has had a varied experience, both in the States and in this country, as an actor, minstrel, stage-manager, and agent-in-advance. Recently, it is understood, Mr. Lee was offered the management of another Northern house, but he preferred to return to the Metropolis, temporarily at any rate.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

MR. ALBERT CHEVALIER writes to us to say that he is fully booked up in England, and that there is no foundation for the statement that he is going to America under engagement to Mr. William Morris. If he should accept a contract for the States it would most probably be with his old manager, Mr. Percy G. Williams.

MISS ANNIE HUGHES informs us that nothing is arranged at present concerning her appearance on the variety stage. Mr. Oswald Stoll made her an offer to play her original character (Saucers) in Mrs. Oscar Beringer's A Bit of Old Chelsea at the Coliseum next month, but she prefers to wait until she can be seen in something new and original. We assure Miss Hughes that Saucers would be quite new to audiences at the St. Martin's-lane house.

MISS VESTA TILLEY reappears at the Palace on the 25th inst. with a complete répertoire of new songs. This is her farewell appearance before starting an extended tour through America.

MISS ELLIS JEFFRIES and Mr. Herbert Sleath are among Mr. Alfred Butt's latest engagements for the development of high-class sketches at the Palace, and they will appear in a new playlet, as yet without a title, by Mr. Sidney Blow. It is a story of cross purposes, and deals with the conditions imposed by two extraordinary wills.

MISS MAUD ALLAN has now practically recovered from the accident which interrupted her Palace season; and Mr. Butt hopes to again present her at the end of the month. On her return to London from the Continent she will start preparations for a novel dramatic dance representation.

THE Variety Artists' Federation have decided for the present to lay on the table the letter in which Mr. W. A. Appleton (secretary of the General Federation of Trade Unions) asked for a withdrawal of the artists' aspersions, or their resignation.

MISS CISSIE LOFTUS has been suffering from bronchitis, but is improving. Her temperature is much lower, and she is no longer being attended by a throat specialist. When Miss Loftus is sufficiently well she will proceed to the South of France.

AN interesting reminder of the work of the music hall "star" in the earliest years of the history of the lesser stage is found in an advertisement of Mr. Sam Cowell's in The Era of June 11, 1854. It runs as follows:—"A Good Night's Work!—Mr. Sam Cowell will sing on Monday, June 12, 1854, at Royal Cremorne Gardens at Seven o'clock; National Hall, Holborn, at Half-past Eight; Canterbury Music Hall at Nine; Royal Vauxhall Gardens at Half-past Nine; Canterbury Hall again at Half-past Ten; and Evans's Grand Hotel, Covent Garden, at Eleven."

THE testimonial benefit to Mr. Jack Edgar, manager of the Metropolitan, at that house on Thursday drew two good audiences. Mr. Edgar's health has of late been indifferent, and his return after serious illness was thought to be an opportune time for the organisation of a tribute to his worth on the part of the public, and his most popular proprietor, Mr. Henri Gros, the "Guv'nor," as Mr. Gros is affectionately called, gave the testimonial benefit his heartiest personal support, and was present on Thursday to welcome his many friends in the West. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ginnett, Mr. Charles Beecham, and Mr. Leon Zeitlin.

THE President of the Board of Trade has appointed Mr. G. R. Askwith, K.C., the Arbitrator in the Music Hall strike, and Assistant-Secretary (Railway Department) of the Board of Trade, to succeed Sir C. N. Dalton, K.C.M.G., C.B., as Comptroller-General of Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks, on the retirement of the latter at the end of February.

MISS HENRIQUETTE MAUDE'S engagement at the London Pavilion was postponed by Mr. Frank Glenister until Monday next in order that her picture and dramatic act might be properly billed. During her month's stay at the Piccadilly-circus house Miss Maude will give her impersonation of Little Lord Fauntleroy, choosing the youngster's first interview with his grandfather. "The Little New Zealander" played the part in the colonies when she was a girl of ten. She will also appear as Prince Arthur in a scene from King John.

THE case of Didcott v. Lloyd was down for hearing in the Westminster County Court on Wednesday as a claim for commission by Mr. Hugh Jay Didcott against Miss Marie Lloyd, who, on her arrival at Court, was told of a proposed settlement. An hour after the Court opened Mr. Walter Frampton, counsel for the plaintiff, informed the Registrar that the case had been settled. The terms did not transpire.

MR. E. V. PAGE points out to us that he commenced managing the Cambridge in January, 1883, and held the position for fifteen years, afterwards going to the Empress, Brixton, where he stayed for six years. He, therefore, claims a record of twenty-one years as a music-hall manager. He is now partner with his sons in an engineering and cycle business. A year or two since he married Miss Clorinda Thurtell, a charming vocalist. As a song-writer Mr. Page will be remembered as the author of "La-di-dah," sung by Nellie Power in 1882.

MR. G. H. ELLIOTT, the chocolate-coloured coon, who is appearing as Chocolate in Boy Blue at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, has received numerous letters from children, who in their innocent way have asked him to forward them packets of chocolates, and he has been prompted by the letters to purchase 1,000 packets of Cadbury's chocolate, and these he is generously distributing among half a dozen local charitable institutions.

WITH each contribution he is sending the following letter to the persons in charge of the institutions:—"Dear Sir,—To acknowledge, if only in a small way, the kindness extented to me by the Birmingham people since my first appearance in the city, and particularly since my first introduction as Chocolate in the Prince of Wales's Theatre pantomime, I am presenting 1,000 packets of Cadbury's chocolate to children in several institutions. Herewith I send a parcel of packets of chocolate which I hope you will distribute among children in your home. Wishing them all a bright and healthy New Year, believe me, yours very truly, G. H. Elliott."

FROM the Bluecoat School, Birmingham, Mr. Elliott has received the following acknowledgment:—"Dear Sir,—I beg to acknowledge with very grateful thanks, in receipt of your kind present of chocolate for the children of this institution. It is indeed very kind of you to think of these orphans, and I can assure you we, one and all, appreciate your thoughtfulness and goodness. At the same time, I would like to thank you sincerely for your good wishes, and to say the children and officials desire to wish you a very 'Happy and Prosperous New Year.' Again thanking you.—Yours truly, W. E. Belton, Secretary."

AT the Croydon Council meeting on Monday, on the motion of Councillor Rogers, the licence of the Theatre Royal (late Hippodrome) was transferred to Mr. Oswald Stoll, of Chartfield, Putney-hill.

THE use of the Liverpool Olympia was on the 7th inst. kindly granted by Moss' Empires, Ltd., for the purpose of a charity matinée on behalf of the Liverpool Food and Betterment Association. The event was eminently successful, dozens of the music hall and theatrical artists engaged in the city putting in an appearance.

GARSTON, a suburb of Liverpool, is again seeking a place of amusement. Many years ago the late Mr. Montgomery had one in that locality, but there did not appear to be sufficient population to make it a paying concern. Since that time, however, the district has been absorbed by the great shipping port, the electric tramway system has caught hold of it, and the population is enormously greater. Consequently, a theatrical speculation in that direction has now more promise of success.

MR. FRANK MACNAGHTEN has secured a site situate at the junction of Kirkgate and Venn-street, Huddersfield, for the erection of a new variety house. The building will have seating accommodation for about 1,500, and be finished on the most modern lines. Building operations will be commenced at once, as the plans, which are being prepared by Messrs. Richard Horsfall and Son, architects, Halifax, are already well advanced.

AT the Edinburgh Empire Palace on Tuesday, when Messrs. Albert and Edmunds were performing, the former fell from one of the trick ladders, and sustained injuries. Under the care of Dr. Gunn, he was removed, with some difficulty owing to the pain he was suffering, to his rooms in Lauriston in a cab, where after medical examination it was found that his hurts, fortunately, were not serious.

MOSS' EMPIRES will strengthen their reputation for smartness at the Broadway Theatre, New Cross, to-night and at the afternoon's matinée, where Mr. Bertram Iles has arranged for Miss Hanid Alexander to sing a song, "Good-bye, girlie, I must go," by Miss Charlesworth and Clifton Bingham. As all our readers are no doubt aware, Miss Charlesworth is the much-talked-of young lady whose mysterious disappearance has caused such widespread interest.

SATURDAY being the birthday anniversary of Mr. H. Vivian-Fisher, manager of the Hastings Hippodrome, the artists and staff presented him with a handsome silver fountain pen, together with a pretty silver-plated sugar basin and cream jug. Amongst other gifts, too, were a handsome gold seal (Mr. and Mrs. Morrison), and a fine gold scarf-pin and stud set with a beautiful stone.

IN thanking the company present, Mr. Fisher expressed a hope that artists and staff would always work in harmony. At the conclusion, the health of Mr. Fisher was drunk to the strains of "For he's a jolly good fellow!"

THE Liverpool Licensing Bench on Tuesday considered an application for a provisional license for a variety (two houses a night) theatre from Mr. Joseph Baxter Lloyd, of Church-gate, Bolton. It was mentioned that a plot of land in St. Mary's-road, Garston, on a 999 years' lease and at a very reasonable rental, was to be acquired, and on it to erect a handsome building for variety performances and comedy plays of a highly respectable character. Mr. Lloyd, the applicant, is a gentleman with a large and successful experience in theatrical management.

THE Bench pointed out that if a two-houses-a-night performance was given provision would have to be made for the audience waiting outside for the second performance. In order to meet the views of the Bench on this point, the application was withdrawn for the present.

MR. OSWALD STOLL on Sunday last, for the sixth consecutive year, lent the Empire Theatre, Nottingham, entirely free of all cost for the annual sacred concert for the support and endowment of the "Empire Cot" at the Children's Hospital. The idea is a pretty one, and many a little one in its hour of suffering has slowly lettered out the inscription on the handsome brass plate adorning the cot, and thanked its donors in a way that words cannot express. The concert, which was arranged by Mme. Mary Lewin, and presided over by the Sheriff of Nottingham (Mr. Edwin Mellor), was an unqualified success. The collection realised nearly £50. Mr. Albert C. Duncan, resident-manager, and his staff worked indefatigably.

AN enjoyable evening was spent at the Manchester Hippodrome Café on Thursday, the 7th inst., the occasion being the first annual winter reunion of the staff. The proceedings commenced with an excellent repast served by the genial Mr. "Bob" Gardener, followed by a delightful programme of music. The company of over sixty included many of Manchester's notable social lights, the chair being taken by Mr. Peter Lawton, one of the city's leading merchants, in the vice-chair being Mr. William Proctor, whose interest in matters connected with music halls and theatres is well known.

OTHER visitors included Mr. H. Hall, manager of the Ardwick Empire; Mr. Fred Breakell, that sportsman of sportsmen; Mr. Alf. J. Carter, manager of the Palace Theatre; Chevalier Le Fosse, the eminent artist; Mr. C. A. Humphreys, representing Messrs. Johnson Bowler, the firm's accountants, Mr. H. Whittle, Mr. Baron, &c. It was hoped that Mr. Albert Bulmer, the district manager, would have been present, but he had important business at the head office, and therefore Mr. Nelson Barry, representing Mr. Stoll at the Manchester Hippodrome, responded to the toast of the firm, given by Mr. Harold Whittle.

AT the conclusion of his speech, Mr. Barry was the recipient of several tokens commemorating the occasion as follow:—Silver pencil-case (Mr. G. F. Reynolds, assistant-manager), pocket wallet (Mr. Harle, stage-manager), letter-case (Mr. Alfred Haines, musical director), silver cigarette case (Mr. Harry Garnham, advertising manager). Mr. H. Hall, manager of the Ardwick Empire, also responded. A hearty vote of thanks was proposed to Mr. Harold Whittle, who voluntarily presided at the piano.

THE Empire Palace, Sheffield, presented an animated appearance last Saturday afternoon, when Mr. Arnold Muir Wilson, solicitor, friend of the down-trodden and lover of children, concluded his annual Christmas benefactions to the poor of his native city by bringing 4,000 children to enjoy a special programme arranged through the generous co-operation of the Moss and Stoll directorate.

FIFTY tramcars were commissioned in the good cause, and the artists, including Mr. Herbert Darnley's company in The Brigands of Tarragona, Miss Nelly Wallace, Mr. Fred Earle, &c., were enthusiastically cheered. A special selection, suitable to the occasion, was given by the band under the direction of the talented conductor, Mr. H. Renton Gardner. The youngsters were suitably regaled, and at the finish 4,000 lusty voices gave loud cheers for Mr. Muir Wilson, the Empire directorate, Mr. Alan Dunbar, Mr. H. Renton-Gardner, the band, the artists, the staff, and a little one for themselves.

MR. HARRY BANCROFT and Miss Emmie Ames are sailing for South Africa on Saturday, the 30th inst., on the Armadale Castle.

MR. HERBERT SHELLEY, the well-known protean actor, has reached his 2,000th performance as Dan the Outlaw, a character in which he will be seen both at the Oxford and South London next week.

THE third annual general meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation will be held on Sunday at Terry's Theatre, Strand, London (kindly lent by Mr. Forbes Robertson), at 6 o'clock prompt. As Mr. Joe O'Gorman has resigned from the Federation, the chairman will be Mr. Joe Elvin.

THE representatives of the Variety Agents' Association, Messrs. Hugh J. Didcott, George Barclay, Will Oliver, and Emanuel Warner, and the representatives of the Variety Artists' Federation, Messrs. Joe Elvin, Wm. Lee, and W. H. Clemart (Mr. Wal Pink being unavoidably absent), met on Wednesday at the temporary offices of the Variety Agents' Association, 29, Leicester-square, at 4.30 p.m.

NEGOTIATIONS were conducted in a most friendly spirit. Terms of reference were practically agreed upon, and the names of several prominent gentlemen were discussed regarding the position of arbitrator. A considerable time was spent on Thursday and Friday in discussing the appointment of an arbitrator, but no decision had been arrived at when we went to press.

AT yesterday's meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation, presided over by Mr. Fred Herbert, the following resolution was carried unanimously:—"That this meeting places implicit confidence in the executive committee and in the Arbitration representatives."

COMPLAINT was made that certain agents already—in spite of the fact that nothing definite had yet been arranged in the matter of a solution of the dispute—were endeavouring to persuade artists to sign contracts by suggesting that if they endorsed the office copy, subject to the Arbitrator's award, everything would be in order. The executive advised the artists to await official notification that they were at liberty to sign office copies.

IT has been decided to call, for Sunday week, a mass meeting at which a resolution will be put in favour of an immediate termination of the existing dispute. A form of agents' office copy will be submitted. Any member of the profession willing to act upon a committee to carry out the arrangements of the meeting will oblige by communicating with Mr. Frank Gerald at 4, Mitre-court Chambers, Temple, E.C.

MISS DECIMA MOORE, the charming singer and actress, has decided to go on the vaudeville stage, and has placed her business in the hands of Louis de Reeder, Ltd.

MISS FRANCES LETTY, who has earned the title of the Chorus Queen, and is also a wonderful wooden-shoe dancer, produced on Monday last at the Palace Theatre, Dundee, her latest song-scena, entitled Quit this House, Mr. Nigger, and Go, in which she is ably assisted by her "silent coon" and two clever dancing "chicks."

THE curtain rises on a drawing-room, artistically furnished; the mounting of this scene—carried out by Miss Letty—looks superb. A wandering coon is attracted to a table on which are whisky, cigars, &c., and proceeds to make himself comfortable. Just as he is seated Miss Letty enters, and proceeds (in song) to order him out. His quick exit creates great merriment. As he leaves the music of a catchy reel is heard, and Miss Letty gives a fine exhibition of wooden-shoe dancing. The coon comes back, is peremptorily commanded to go chicken stealing, and returns with two large prize Leghorns. Then all start dancing, the curtain coming down on a lively and novel finish.

THE numerous friends of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Smythson will be pleased to learn that their daughter Indiana, thanks to five months' sojourn at a sanatorium on the south-east coast, has recovered from her late illness, and has now been enabled to return home thoroughly built up in health and looking better than ever.

THE Terriers' Association held their annual dinner (for Terriers only) on Sunday last at the Hôtel Boulogne, Jesse Sparrow (president) being in the chair. The Terriers present included A. Appleyard, W. H. Atlas, Johnny Alexander, Almon, W. Bassett, T. E. Box, Andie Caine, H. C. Courtney, C. Cornish, T. E. Callaghan, J. E. Dunedin, J. J. Elmo, Percy Ford, M. Frost, Harry Gage, F. Hughes, Barney Hyams, J. Harris, F. H. Kohler, H. V. Monkley, sen., H. V. Monkley, jun., P. Madden, Fred W. Millis, Bert Marsden, Fred Neiman, Ernest G. Powell, J. C. Pratt, S. W. Salter, Ben Woodger, and Arthur Were.

AFTER the usual loyal toast, Jesse Sparrow proposed "The Terriers' Association," responded to by Arthur Were. Harry Gage proposed "The Officers," responded to by J. C. Pratt; "Kindred Societies and Associations" was proposed by Fred Neiman, and responded to by Johnny Alexander; "Absent Terriers" was proposed by W. Bassett; Percy Ford proposed the health of the chairman. An enjoyable concert followed, J. C. Moore officiating at the piano.

SEVERAL important additions have been made to To-Morrow. Miss Fatmah Diard, the American soprano, and Mr. Fred Walton, famous as "the Toy Soldier" all over the world, are now included in the cast. Miss Diard, after successes in musical comedy in America, eventually joined the Bostonians to play Maid Marian in Robin Hood. Upon the completion of her engagement she entered on a further course of study in order to equip herself for grand opera with the famous Mme. Marchesi, and also under M. Mangin, chef d'orchestre of the Paris Grand Opera House. From Paris Miss Diard went to the Carl Rosa Opera Company as prima donna, leaving them to join the Castle Square Opera Company, and, incidentally, to make, perhaps, her most brilliant New York success in the title-rôle of Lucia di Lammermoor.

TWELFTH NIGHT was ushered in at the Chelsea Palace with the usual festivities. Mr. W. S. Lyon was once more requested to cut the cake, and before doing so expressed, in a pathetic manner, the sorrow that all assembled felt at the loss of their beloved manager, the late Mr. Edward Swanborough. But the dark clouds had a silver lining, and he was pleased to know that their esteemed managing-director, Mr. Henri Gros, was restored to health. The cake was then distributed to the whole of the staff and visitors.

MR. ANDIE CAINE proposed the health of Mr. Gros, and stated that notwithstanding any differences that might arise between artists and managers as a body, there was no individual engaged in the variety profession on whose word more reliance was placed or who was held in higher esteem than the gentleman referred to. As an artist, he had had direct transactions with him, which had always been of a most satisfactory nature, and he had much pleasure in asking the company assembled to drink to the continued health and prosperity of Mr. Henri Gros, the managing-direcor of the theatre. The healths of Messrs. Berlin and Andrews were also drunk with much enthusiasm, and the proceedings closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

THE usual monthly meeting of the committee of the Musical Hall Sick Fund was held on Wednesday at the Crown Hotel, Charing Cross-road. Mr. W. J. Wainratta (vice-president) occupied the chair, and there were also present Messrs. W. T. Eaton, T. Carney, F. Boyce, T. B. Brydge, Pat Carey (hon. treasurer), and R. T. Barnes (secretary).

MR. BOYCE proposed that Mr. Pat Carey be elected hon. treasurer in the place of the late Mr. Frank Heath. The Chairman seconded the proposal, and referred to the valuable services that Mr. Carey, an ex-president of the fund, had rendered the Society for many years. The resolution was carried unanimously, and Mr. Carey in reply said he should continue to do his utmost in promoting the best interests of the Society.

ON the motion of Mr. Pat Carey, seconded by Mr. Carney, it was resolved that a letter of condolence be sent to the widow and family of the late Mr. Frank Heath, who for several years rendered admirable service as hon. treasurer.

MR. CAREY called attention to one of the new rules in accordance with which members were required to pay a levy of sixpence on the death of a member. Some other business having been disposed of, the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

MR. W. F. WAINRATTA, an old member of the profession and vice-president of the Music Hall Sick Fund, leaves the old country for New York to-day (Saturday) on a visit to his old friend, Mr. Wm. T. Rock, President of the Vitagraph Co. of America. At the meeting on Wednesday of the Management Committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund, of which Society Mr. Wainratta has been a member for about thirty-six years, his fellow-members who were present heartily wished him a pleasant trip across the Atlantic.

MR. CHAS. FISHER'S "Pocket" Opera Co. have apparently created a great impression with their singing at Hackney Empire this week, being personally complimented and congratulated by Mr. Bertie Shelton, the director of Moss-Stoll's stage department.

AN important judgment under the Musical Copyright Act, referring to the question as to whether perforated rolls for use on "piano-players" may be regarded as copies of music or not, was on Wednesday given by the Lord Chief Justice, who, with Justices Bigham and Walton, sat as a Divisional Court of the King's Bench Division. The point arose in an appeal—Mabe v. Connor—against the decision of the magistrate sitting at Bow-street, who dismissed a summons issued against the seller of rolls which produced a song called "The Bandolero" on a piano-player.

THE Lord Chief Justice said the summons in effect charged the defendant with offering for sale pirated copies of a musical work. It was not disputed by Mr. Danckwertz (for the appellant) that if he were right in his contention, there would be a very great extension of the rights of the owners of musical copyrights, who would be able to enter the shops of the vendors of those rolls and seize them. But having regard to the case of Boosey v. White, the view of the magistrate was correct, and therefore the issue of those rolls did not infringe the copyright. The appeal was dismissed, but leave to further appeal was granted.

COPYRIGHT legislation is much behind modern requirements and sadly needs revision, and the development of mechanical instruments and the gramophone should at once bring to the forefront the necessity of new statutes that will sufficiently protect the publisher and the composer. Records of any kind should pay royalties to the publisher as well as fees to the singer, and the sooner the influential firms who issue our popular music bestir themselves to secure full protection for the rights the better for the musical industry all round.

LIZZIE GLENROY, Scotch comedienne and speciality dancer, has just recently returned from the Continent, where she met with most gratifying success. She is going back after the Moss tour.

MESSRS. MOSS AND STOLL, ever ready in the cause of charity, have consented to give the Holloway Empire free of all charge over for a concert on Sunday, Jan. 24, in aid of the Mayor of Islington's Fund for the wives and children of the unemployed. Mr. Bertie Ralland (the manager) has arranged a programme of exceptional merit, including as it does such well-known concert artists as Miss Bertha Bird, Miss Ada Tunks, Miss Hersie Reeve (a younger sister of the famous Ada), Messrs. Adolph Fowler, Bennett Griffin, Wm. Kingsley, Max Khan, and others. The entire staff and orchestra are giving their services.

LORD JOHNSTON gave judgment on Monday in the cross actions between "George Robey" (George Edward Wade), comedian, on the one hand, and Richard Waldon, manager and proprietor of the Palace Theatre, and a director of the Pavilion Theatre, Glasgow, and also by the Pavilion Theatre, Ltd., on the other.

GEORGE ROBEY entered into an agreement with the defenders to fulfil an engagement at the Palace Theatre and the Pavilion Theatre, Glasgow, for the week commencing March 16, 1908. On the Friday previous Robey ascertained that he was not billed to appear in Glasgow in the following week, and wired asking the reason.

HE received a reply—"You never sent bill matter of the notification; consequently contract broken. See Rule 6 of contract"; and "Call in order. Your name does not appear. Will not play you owing to breach of contract." Pursuer tried to obtain another engagement, but owing to the shortness of the notice the best he got was at Portsmouth Theatre, at a salary of £75 for the week. In the cross-actions Richard Waldon, as proprietor of the Palace Theatre, claimed £500, and the Pavilion Theatre, Ltd., also claimed £500 as damages for breach of contract.

LORD JOHNSTON held that Mr. Rich. Waldon was not entitled on March 13, 1908, to refuse to proceed with the agreement made with Mr. Robey in the preceding March, and he was therefore liable to Mr. Robey in damages. In the cross actions by Waldon and the Pavilion Theatre, Ltd., his Lordship held that, while they might have been entitled to sue for damages for breach of Rule 6, they were not entitled to break the contract in the way they did. He therefore sustained Robey's first plea in law, and allowed him a proof, limited to the question of damages, and he dismissed the cross actions as laid, and found Robey entitled to expenses.

"THE BOY SCOUTS," a new sketch, was produced with conspicuous success at the Crouch End Hippodrome on Monday, and the smart appearance of the boys and their evident ability made so great an impression that at the finish the enthusiastic audience stood up and cheered. There is the right kind of patriotism in the idea of the sketch, and Mr. Burney is to be complimented on the production, which has been given under the auspices of Mrs. Wal Pink. One does not forget Mafeking and Baden-Powell, and to that gallant commander is due the idea of the corps typified in the above great novelty, which should have a most successful career.

AT the conclusion of the V.A.B.F. meeting on Thursday a special meeting of the M.H.A.R.A. Committee was held to consider arrangements for the annual dinner.

VARIETY will be the fare next week at the Grand Opera House, Harrogate, of which the managing-director is Mr W. Peacock, whose enterprise is rapidly increasing the attractions of the lesser stage in the county of the Ridings.

WHEN Mlle. Genée, who is achieving fresh triumphs in the States, makes her reappearance at the Empire at the end of the summer, it will be in a new ballet specially written for Ler.

D'ARC'S MARIONETTES have just returned from America in order to fulfil their English contracts, from which they were unable to get released. Their success on the other side has been extraordinary, and their tour there, under William Morris, completes their circuit of the world.

MR. PERCY HONRI has issued a most amusing 1909 calendar. Its chief joy is a working figure holding a concertina, and the smiling face is Percy's. You pull the string and the instrument plays to a convulsive movement of the legs. One scarcely troubles about "dates" with such an amusing toy.

SNOW AND FARRON'S minstrel comedians (seven in number) have made a hit in Birmingham, and their success makes it certain that the Ethiopian serenader is again becoming popular. Mr. Snow is a son of the late Ted Snow, of the Mohawks.

MLLE. KYASHT'S new dances in the Empire ballet A Day in Paris have proved a big success, and besides these there is now a new dance for dainty little Phyllis Bedells. Fred Farren and Beatrice Collier are nightly encored in "La Danse des Apaches" in the Moulin Rouge scene.

MISS FRANCES LETTY will be seen next week at the Hippodrome, Peckham, Jan. 25 Canterbury, Feb. 1 Paragon, and then starts again on the Moss' Empires tour, returning to London again in October. Tom Claxton has her bookings, and no vacancies until well on in 1910 is the state of affairs.

DR. WALFORD BODIE is again creating a furore in London, and playing to packed houses nightly at the Palace, East Ham, his second visit. Monday next he returns to the Palace, Grimsby, after only six months' absence. He is very busy just now on the series of romantic hypnotic stories the first of which will appear in the February number of Pearson's Novel Magazine... They promise to be startling, weird, and wonderful.

THE usual weekly committee meeting of the M.H.A.R.A was held on Wednesday, when Mr. Fred Herbert took the chair, and there were present Messrs. J. Miller Northern, W. H. Atlas, T. C. Callaghan, J. Tray, H. Cee Mee, Wm. Welsh, Jeff Vendome, and Lieut. Albini. Fifty-one members joined the Association during the week ending Jan. 9, the weekly receipts amounting to £78 1s.

MESSRS. MUIR AND BARTLETT, in The Collar Stud, met with a rousing reception this week both at Willesden Hippo and the Palace, Hammersmith, at which latter place they are deputising for Miss Victoria Monks. One anxious member of the Willesden audience greeting Mr. Bartlett with the query, "Where's your missus?" Mr. Bartlett's prompt reply, "She'll be on presently," convulsed the band and satisfied the inquirer."

MISS DORA LYRIC, the refined chorus singer, terminates her engagement at the Oxford to-night, where her songs "I'm leaving Monte Carlo" and "If I should plant a tiny seed of love in the garden of your heart" have scored a great success. This artist has just secured another song from the pen of Messrs. Harrington and Powell, entitled "I want a boy who'll be my only boy," which, no doubt, will soon be sung all over London and provinces.

MR. THEODORE JONES, the Welsh actor-vocalist, has secured from Mr. Albert Voyce the performing rights of Butcher and Baker and Capital and Labour. He is also touring the vocal scenas Mother Shipton, The Prodigal's Return, and Jack Sheppard, all by the same author. The part of Jack he has most successfully played over 1,500 nights. Managers wishing a first-class vocal entertainment could do no better than to see these acts.

CHARCOT is again demonstrating his wonderful powers to packed houses at Portsmouth this week. With two other music halls, The Merry Widow, a pantomime, and half a dozen picture shows against him, he still plays to tremendous business. On Wednesday over 20,000 people gathered to see him start his great blindfold drive. Never in the history of Portsmouth has excitement run so high.

CHARCOT must have felt flattered at seeing both special and mounted police called out to assist him in his daring exploit. The management are to be congratulated on securing such a draw, through the instrumentality of Mr. Barclay, as we hear on good authority that that gentleman intends making things hum for Charcot by placing him shortly at a West End hall.

THE competition for what is termed by Mr. C. B. Cochran, the manager, a Music Hall Aspirants' Scholarship, takes place on Friday next at Fun City, Olympia Annexe. In reality it is an amateur competition for would-be Lauders, Cinquevallis, Lloyds, &c. A great many entries have been received, and they continue to pour in by every post. The competitors will be judged by a committee of men well known in the music hall world, and thoroughly competent to perform the onerous task imposed upon them. Entries are to be sent, marked "Amateur," to Mr. Cochran at Fun City.

THE next committee meeting of the Music Hall Home will be held at the Empire, Camberwell (by kind permission of Messrs. Jesse Sparrow and Percy Ford) on Thursday next at 12 noon. The secretary (Mr. Ben Woodger) desires to thank Smith and Johnson for parcel of clothes; George Weldon, Hippo. and Circus, Dewsbury, for box collection of £1 16s.; also Mr. W. Jones, of the Windsor, Strand, for kindly taking a box for the benefit of the institution.

THE Fred W. Millis Testimonial Committee have arranged to give a grand evening concert in aid of the fund, at the Empire Theatre, Camberwell (kindly placed at their disposal by the directors), on Sunday evening, Feb. 14. The chairman of the committee is Mr. Jesse Sparrow (president of the Terriers Association), Mr. Joe Elvin being the vice-chairman; and amongst other influential names who have joined the Grand Committee are Sir Edward Moss, J.P., and Messrs. Frank Allen, Arthur Branscombe, John Brill, Albert Chevalier, Edward E. Ford, John Lawson, Horace Livermore, and W. H. Westwood. A very strong programme of leading theatrical and variety stars is being prepared, fuller particulars of which will be duly announced. An Executive Committee of the Terriers Association and friends is organising the testimonial, and all particulars can be obtained from and donations sent to C. Douglas Stuart, hon. general secretary, 28, Wellington-street, Strand, W.C.; or Mr. Harry Gage, hon. secretary for the Terriers Association, 69, Kennington-road, S.E. Tickets and bills will be ready next week.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

MASTER MAX DARWSKI next week tops the excellent bill at the Empire, Sheffield, and is assured of a great reception. He will conduct those fine marches from his own pen, "The Franco-British" and "Royal Standard," both of which are published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

MASTER EDWARD FRISBY, at the Cardiff Empire, has been received during the week with acclamation for his able singing of Messrs. Francis and Day's "If everybody were as kind as you," four or five recalls being his nightly experience. He will be heard at Hammersmith during the coming week.

MR. G. H. ELLIOTT'S delightful singing of "Sue, Sue, Sue, I'm very much in love with you" has evoked the highest approbation of the Birmingham Press, the Dispatch saying, "When Mr. Elliott comes on and renders 'Sue, Sue, Sue,' he has the audience with him immediately," and from all quarters of Great Britain come like reports, the song being a universal favourite in pantomimes everywhere. Messrs. Francis and Day have been inundated with orders for copies of the delightful number.

MISS MADGE TEMPLE will, at the Shepherd's Bush Empire, on Monday, be heard in those favourite numbers, "Esau, Esau, take me on the see-saw," and "Come, be my rainbow," both of which emanate from the publishing house of Messrs. Francis and Day.

THAT fine song, "So what's the use?" which is published by Messrs. Francis and Day, has been introduced by Mr. Henry Carlton into his smart item, The Window Cleaner, with the best possible results.

MR. HAROLD BROWN, at the London Pavilion, has made a great hit with the fine bass song, entitled "The Laughing Cavalier," by A. Du Soir and A. J. Tunbridge. It is published by the Star Publishing Company.

NOTWITHSTANDING the strong counter-attraction of the principal pantomime songs, Mr. T. E. Baker, the Northern representative of Messrs. Charles Sheard and Co., writes that firm that decidedly the most popular song of the moment in the Northern districts is "Hurrah! for the Old-age Pension." It is whistled, hummed, and sung in every market-place.

MESSRS. SHEARD AND CO. have received very many applications for their sets of illustrated song slides, through their advertisement of the same in our columns. So great has been the demand that the firm has had to cable to New York for further supplies. Messrs. Sheard wish it to be known that any order sent them during the current month will be executed at half-price, even should the present stock be exhausted. They have received many highly-complimentary letters with respect to the quality of their slides, which are generally described as "beautiful" and "splendid."

HALL'S popular "Wedding of the Winds" waltz met with so favourable a reception at the Covent Garden Fancy Dress Ball on New Year's Eve, that it was down for the Friday's (yesterday) function. Th. Pinet's new valse Boston "Charme" was also down in the same programme.

MESSRS. MELLOR, LAWRANCE, AND GIFFORD have discovered a new coon singer, by name Gordon Stretton, and he has appointed them his sole authors and representatives. His turn is in great demand by managers and agents.

MESSRS. B. FELDMAN AND CO. have this week secured two big chorus songs from the pens of Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford, named respectively "The Rainbow and the Butterfly" and "Rain, rain, go away."

MR. ROBERT ARTHUR has secured Wilkie Bard's great Drury Lane success, "Put me upon an island where the girls are few," for all his theatres. The National Music Publishing Co. are informed that this song, on its first production at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, was a tremendous and instantaneous success. It has also met with the same success at Mr. Arthur's theatres in Nottingham, Newcastle, and Glasgow. Comedians in want of a certain winner should write the National Music Publishing Co. at once for permission to sing this great comedy number.

"I WISH I HAD A PAL" and "Call round any old time" are being sung in almost every pantomime in Great Britain, including Drury Lane. Principal boys or girls who anticipate changing their songs should immediately write to the National Music Publishing Co. for permission.

ALL Manchester is now singing and whistling one of the National Music Publishing Co.'s great "Dame" songs, "You all want something to cuddle," which Harry Conlin so ably sings in the pantomime at the Theatre Royal. This is one of the many towns where this song is making a big success.

"MY LITTLE EVA," which is being so widely sung in pantomime, is, if possible, in greater demand than ever. This is also published by the National Music Co.

"KATE, WON'T YOU ROLLER-SKATE?" the National Music Publishing Co.'s latest hit, is growing more popular day by day. There are at least twenty artists making a big success with this on the halls. To those wanting a free number, we would suggest them writing to the National Music Publishing Co. at once.

MESSRS. FELDMAN forecast another craze at an early date for their song entitled "Harrigan," which is being extensively sung to the rhythm of "Solomon."

MESSRS. LAWRANCE, MELLOR, AND GIFFORD have just published their latest composition "Polly, put the kettle on, and we'll all have tea," with Messrs. Feldman, and great things are expected by authors and publishers.

MR. BERT FELDMAN has left town for his annual pantomime tour of the provinces, during which he will visit almost every production in England and Scotland.

BEFORE leaving London Mr. Feldman secured a new song, entitled "Could I but look in the mirror of your eyes," which he predicts will be as popular as "If I should plant a tiny seed of love."

MISS JESSIE PRESTON, who has met with enormous success in America, has just cabled Messrs. Feldman that their song "I want you to see my girl" is a sensational success.

MR. CHARLES R. WHITTLE has another of Messrs. Feldman's songs that should be a worthy successor to "Put me among the girls," when the time is opportune for its exploitation.

MR. G. H. ELLIOTT, who is creating a veritable furore with "I want you to see my girl," one of Messrs. Feldman's most popular pantomime songs, has kindly presented Mr. Bert Feldman with a most interesting set of cards, reproducing the photographs of the clever principals of the Prince of Wales, Birmingham, pantomime

V.A.F. AND THE AGENTS.

THE LONDON MEETING.

The deadlock which gave so much anxiety throughout last week to the well-wishers of the variety profession was brought to a sudden and quite dramatic termination at Sunday's mass meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation by the resignation of Mr. Joe O'Gorman from the Federation, and the decision to admit to the terms of arbitration the proposal that no artist should be agent at the same time. The meeting was held at Terry's Theatre, which was crowded to the doors, and much enthusiasm was displayed. Mr. Joe O'Gorman presided, and was supported by Mr. Joe Elvin, Mr. Dutch Daly, Mr. C. C. Bartram, and Mr. W. H. Clemart (secretary), while among the executive committee on the stage were Messrs. Eugene Stratton, Tom Costello, Fred Russell, Fred Herbert, Harry Blake, Fred W. Millis, Bob Leonard, G. H. Chirgwin, the Bros. Poluski, George Mozart, W. H. Atlas, Geo. D'Albert, Hal Forde, Jas. Howard, J. W. Cragg, Neil Kenyon, Bernard Stavordale, G. H. Smythson, Jeff Vendome, V. L. Granville, Geo. Sanford, Sid Bandon, Horace Goldin, Chas. MacConnell, Dave O'Toole, Andie Caine, and Fred Ginnett.

After the secretary had read the notice convening the meeting, the chairman, who was received with loud and prolonged applause, said it was three years ago that day since his colleagues and himself laid the foundations of the Variety Artists' Federation. When they did so it was after mature consideration, and with the conviction that an organisation similar to the one which exists at present was absolutely necessary for the preservation of the interests of variety artists. They had removed many abuses, but many remained to be abolished. When the last strike took place—nobody in this world mentioned the word "strike" with more misgiving than their humble servant; he did not like it—when that strike took place they were a public organisation. They were not a registered trade union, but merely a body of men and women banded together with the sole intent of benefiting one another and protecting the interests of an honourable profession. When the strike took place they were not a trades union. They became a trade union afterwards for the simple reason that they were advised to. Look at the support they would get—two millions of capital and 2,500,000 trade unionists at their back! They became trade unionists and subscribed to the funds of the General Federation of Trade Unions a sum equivalent to £100 per annum. For that they offered them half-a-crown for every member out on strike. Fancy half-a-crown to men like them; it would not be sufficient to go round once for a drink! They were paying, therefore, for their support, but when the trade union officials came in they forced them to go to arbitration after they had won their fight. When they agreed to go to unconditional arbitration, instead of supporting them the Trades Federation went over to the other side. But what did the artists care for them? Their's was a business that was totally different from all other industries that he knew of. Trade union principles did not apply to variety artists. He dared say that if they had not been mixed up with the trade unions at the time of the last dispute they would have obtained everything they wanted in twenty-four hours. (Hear, hear.) So far as he (the chairman) was concerned, the Federation of Trades Unions would not touch many more hundreds from the Variety Artists' Federation. (Applause.) When they went to the meeting arranged at the House of Commons to meet four proprietors, four artists, and three representatives of the General Federation of Trades Unions, the managers, after the artists had accepted the propositions, said, "We do not want to be mixed up in it." He wished they meant it! They had proved conclusively that they did want to be mixed up in it. However, the artists agreed to go through with the proposition, and Mr. Clemart, Mr. G. B. Sinclair, and Mr. Wal Pink and himself were chosen representatives. The terms of reference to be dealt with were (1) to determine the powers and responsibilities of the two societies; (2) re-engagements; (3) rate of commission; (4) method of collecting commission. The artists objected to the re-engagement clause in toto, but eventually agreed under pressure to place the whole subject to unconditional arbitration. Then the agents came along and said "We also want introduced clause 5, which says that no artist shall be artist and agent at the same time." It was quite palpable to everybody in that business that that clause was not aimed at any of his brother artists; it was vindictively aimed at him (the chairman), because his comrades, the Water Rats, had supplied the sinews of war to found an agency on what they thought were equitable terms, namely five per cent. commission and no re-engagement clause. He had the finest book in the business—better than any three put together—but when he applied to a certain manager and quoted terms, he said, "What about split commission?" He (the chairman) replied, "I am only charging five per cent. There can be no splitting." Then the manager said, "I can do no business," and no business was done. Other artists had not had sufficient time to lay the foundations of a business, but with the assistance of his comrades he was put immediately in the position of having a business already established, and he did a lot of work. He was the object of the present attack, but he was not going to be coerced. His opponents found out that he had twelve months' engagements booked up, and that managers would not release him from them; otherwise clause 5 would not have been submitted in its present form; it would have been "That the Water Rats' Agency be abolished." He, however, had that work to do, and he was going to work it. (Cheers.) Mr. O'Gorman then referred in terms, complimentary and otherwise, to agents, both individually and generally. One agent had said to him, "We want to keep the agency business amongst ourselves." The artists might as well say they wanted to preserve the entertainment industry for themselves, and decide that there should be no more artists! (Hear, hear.) He could not see how the proprietors could favour a state of affairs which would allow the agents to become practical despots. He was now going to make a statement to which he was prepared to adhere to the absolute letter. He had told them that he did not like strikes, and he never did like strikes. He always tried to obtain everything for his brother and sister artists by peaceful means, and he was going to tell them now that there was going to be no strike (cheers), neither to-morrow nor any other day. (Renewed cheers.) He was a Jonah, but they were not going to throw him over to the whale; he was going to jump over himself. He had come to this conclusion, after mature consideration, that even at the cost to him of the most painful incident in his life, he would rather step out of the way and let them send clause 5 before the Arbitrator (cries of "No!"). He said "Yes," because of two evils they should choose the lesser. He was the bone of contention; until the question was decided let him step out of his position, and show all the world that he was not the self-seeking, money-making hypocrite that they tried to make him out. That he was prepared to do in order to avoid a rupture which might do imperishable injury to the profession. He was convinced it would throw the business back twenty years if they had a recurrence of the strike of two years ago. He knew the confidence that his brother and sister artists had in their executive, that were they to ask them to strike they would strike. (Cheers.) Therefore, he had taken the bull by the horns, and his position was that from that night they should allow him to stand on one side, while they went on with the negotiations, which he prayed would be successful. If he was outside of that organisation their opponents could not dictate to them what he should do with his time. That was his position, and he would ask them to weigh well what he had said, and, if it was possible, avoid anything in the shape of a rupture. In conclusion, he wished to say that since they honoured him three years ago by electing him chairman of the provisional committee, which founded that organisation, and repeated that honour, they had done everything that it was possible to show him that they appreciated his rough and humble efforts on their behalf. For that he thanked them. When the time arrived, and he was placed in a position to offer his services on behalf of his brother and sister artists, he would be there not in body alone, but with his whole heart and soul. (Applause.)

MR. BARTRAM commended Mr. O'Gorman's heroic action, but said the executive committee had not since this dispute accepted the resignation alluded to, and he did not think there was any need for him to resign. They had reason to believe that they demanded nothing but that which was just when they said that an artist had a right to become an agent. Let them put their resolution and abide by it.

MR. HAL FORDE said why not let clause 5 stand? They were convinced that they had a good case.

MR. CLEMART said he quite agreed with their chairman that it would be a great deal too much responsibility to put on one man's shoulders to involve the Federation in a general strike at the present moment. He thought Mr. O'Gorman had undoubtedly discovered the key to the situation in the position that he had taken. It was a very awkward position, and all the greater credit was due to him that he had the courage to do that which many another would never have had the pluck to do. He was thoroughly convinced that if they had an arbitrator of the slightest intelligence they could prove that an artist had just as much right to do agency work as anybody else. An artist's life did not last as long as that of an ordinary commercial man. The latter might perhaps rise to the position of managing-director of some firm, and have his valet and his motor-car, but as a rule, when a music-hall artist got into the fifties, he found himself going backward, and there was no market for his work. Personally, his view of the situation was rather a difficult one, because he occupied an official position. He had not been asked to give up all individuality in the matter; but, as the paid general secretary of the organisation, he must, of course, carry out the policy of the executive committee, although, perhaps, he might not always agree. His point of view was that it was a piece of unwarrantable impertinence for agents to introduce that clause. It was outside the dispute, and they had agreed to go to arbitration before the point had ever entered their minds. They hated Joe O'Gorman like poison, and they thought by this move that they were going to put him in such a position as he would have trouble to get out of, but he asked them had Joe got out of it with credit or discredit? (Cheers.) He did not know who the arbitrator was going to be. Their object would be to find a broad-minded man who could see facts. They did not want him to be biassed in their direction, but they would take care he should not be biassed in the other. If it were not for the likelihood of protracting the dispute, he would have liked to put an opposition clause, namely, "That agents should not be managers at the same time." (Cries of "Put it in.") No, he was only pointing out what they could do if they wanted to adopt their opponents' tactics. He would remind them that the London County Council had not spoken yet. The L.C.C. moved slowly. They might raise the contention that agents should not be managers, and instance the tying down of a man to a sole agency for two years—the artist to pay the agent's costs of postage, telegrams, railway journeys, and then pay ten per cent. on every engagement the man makes for three years—they would be abuses the arbitrator would also weed out. Then they might ask that no man should be an agent who had a wife working as an artist. If they took the Agents' Association and wiped off those three classes, there would not be much of the Association left. Mr. Clemart read a letter from Mr. Askwith, the arbitrator in the Award, which by some unfortunate circumstance had only fallen into his hands that night at the stage door. It had been found in an unused letter-box at the Federation's office. It was their custom, in order to facilitate business, to send to the post office for letters, which were rarely placed in the box. The letter read as follows:—

"Board of Trade Offices, Jan. 8, 1909.

"Dear Sir,—My attention has been called to various statements in the newspapers, particularly the Daily Telegraph, of Jan. 8, referring to the dispute between artists and agents, it being alleged in that newspaper that 'the Federation frankly admit that if the members are willing the arbitration award will be ignored and the strike take place.' If this paragraph is correct, and a strike against managers is suggested, I would call your attention to the paragraph on future disputes in the award, and to the fact that the managers entirely deny any unwarrantable support of the Agents' Association. Under these circumstances it appears to me it may be advisable to discuss the subject, with a view to a meeting with the managers, if necessary, as suggested before Christmas. I should be obliged if you would call on me at one o'clock to-morrow (Saturday) here to consider the seriousness of this position of proposed breach of the award. I should be willing to ask representatives of the Agents' Association to come, too, if you should think fit. Although I can only make a request to them to that effect, I presume they may be willing to endeavour to avoid disputes. As yet I have had no communication with them. Will you kindly wire me on this point in the morning?"

Yours faithfully,

G. R. ASKWITH.

Some questions were put as to the reason for the delay in receiving the letter, and Mr. Clemart said the letter was not stamped, and he thought that Mr. Askwith's office boy may have kept it in his pocket. He mentioned that in order that Mr. Askwith would understand that there was no discourtesy on his part.

MR. TOM COSTELLO, speaking as an old performer, who, however, had luckily kept pace with the times, said he was a long-suffering sufferer from the re-re-re-engagement clause, or, as some called it, the re-enslavement clause, but which he described as a positive blood clause. He added that the writer of "At Trinity Church" confessed to him on his dying bed that it was he who suggested that clause to his employer, a prominent agent, who grasped it eagerly.

MR. FRED RUSSELL said he came there that night with the firm intention of doing all he possibly could to prevent a strike being declared. The only object he had in coming from Birmingham was to fight that question. He considered the magnanimous manner in which their chairman had acted had absolutely solved the problem. Unless a resolution was proposed giving the committee power to order a strike he would have nothing to say, but it was moved he would have an amendment.

THE CHAIRMAN: I think it is quite clear there is no intention of moving a strike resolution here to-night. Therefore Mr. Russell's last sentence is quite unnecessary.

MR. RUSSELL: We were called here for the purpose of moving a resolution calling a strike.

THE CHAIRMAN: Nothing of the kind.

MR. DAVE O'TOOLE: It has never been mentioned, ladies and gentlemen.

THE CHAIRMAN: The resolution that has been put all over the country was a very, very strong resolution, but the word strike was never mentioned, and it was not meant.

MR. RUSSELL: I say it was meant.

FRANCIS, DAY, & HUNTER, 142, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.

Mr. O'GORMAN: Everything that this Federation has done has been opposed by Mr. Russell, and I am going to stand it no longer. The resolution to be settled here was as follows, and that resolution should never have gone to the Press until it had been decided here and at Manchester to-night. The resolution is:—"That this meeting empowers the Executive Committee to take such steps as may be deemed necessary, however drastic, to bring to an immediate termination the dispute which has now lasted sixteen weeks between the Variety Artists' Federation and the Agents' Association, who are being unwarrantably supported by certain managers, whose sole intention is to inflict permanent injury on the V.A.F." We were under the impression that it was necessary for all to make a stand. We thought it was time to call a halt after the dispute had gone on sixteen weeks. There was no mention certainly of a strike, but the inference taken was a very drastic one. I do think that it is wicked for anybody to propound strike principles or accuse your executive of proposing strike principles until they came here and heard from us that it was our intention to strike. That was the time, and not last Friday, and not until the resolution was put. The resolution that we want to put here to-night is a boiled-down version. Probably I had better say that it is the original resolution with all the venom taken out. It is as follows:—"That this meeting empowers the Executive Committee to take steps to bring to an immediate termination the dispute, which has now lasted sixteen weeks, between the Variety Artists' Federation and the Agents' Association." Surely that is modest and meek enough even for Mr. Russell?

Mr. RUSSELL: If you insist on introducing personalities you will goad me into—

The CHAIRMAN: What, Mr. Russell?

Mr. JOE ELVIN (interposing) said they had come that night to do the best they could for the Federation and to prevent a strike. Mr. Russell's opinion was that there was going to be one, and everybody thought so all over the country. He admired their chairman and Mr. Russell very much, and he had seen them very happy together. That was not a time for a fall out. They were in trouble, and the trouble was not finished yet. None of them wanted the strike, but they had all to be loyal and true. Let them get out of their difficulties peacefully, but if they had to fight they would fight. He was a peaceful man, and did not like to see fighting going on. They had been fighting ever since they had been a Federation, and it was because managers and proprietors made them fight. They had gone to arbitration with the managers, but some of the latter had broken the terms of the Award over and over again. If they worked peacefully with the artists it would be for the good of everybody, but when it came to the question of the agents, they had no right to be on the map. He begged their committee to act together in the dispute, and not raise quarrels among themselves. He admired the action of their chairman, which had much simplified matters. The thing was, were the agents going to find anything to put in the way? He joined the ship when the Federation was floated—he was their trustee, looking after their "oof"—and he was going to stick by the ship. If they went to arbitration with a fair and just arbitrator they would have nothing to fear. (Cheers.)

Mr. DUTCH DALY moved the adoption of the modified resolution quoted by the chairman. He said he had many personal friends among the agents, who were, as a rule, keen business men.

Mr. DUSTY RHODES seconded.

Mr. BARTRAM moved an amendment. He thought, with Mr. Clemart, that it was a piece of impertinence for the agents, after they had agreed at the House of Commons to four conditions, to add a fifth paragraph, which was never mentioned before. They had been fighting the whole question sixteen weeks, but they had been fighting for years and years as individuals. His amendment was as follows:—"That all words after 'Committee' in the first line and down to 'drastic' in the third line, and all words after 'weeks' in the fourth line to the end of the resolution, be deleted, and that words be substituted and added that the resolution shall read as follows:—'That this meeting empowers the Executive Committee to bring an immediate termination to the dispute, which has lasted sixteen weeks, by the acceptance of arbitration with the Agents' Association on the following points: (1) Amount of commission on engagements booked for the United Kingdom; (2) amount of commission on engagements booked for abroad; (3) deduction of commission by proprietors; (4) re-engagement clause; (5) persons acting in the dual capacity of artist and agent; (6) persons acting in the dual capacity of agent and manager; (7) sole agency office contract.'"

Mr. WALTER HAST said he would second the amendment if the words "proprietors of troupes" were added to the sixth clause. That meant that no working agent should be allowed to have his own troupe.

Mr. SERVAIS LE ROY opposed the suggestion, which, however, Mr. Bartram would not accept.

Mr. ATLAS seconded the amendment.

Mr. ABEL said that they had been waiting for four months. If they were going to add clauses when were they to look for a settlement?

Mr. TOM MAXWELL submitted that they had better leave the introduction of new clauses to some future time, and pass the original resolution.

Mr. DALY inquired whether, assuming that they put the terms of reference before the arbitrator, were they in a position to add something afterwards?

The CHAIRMAN: No; but arguments could be brought to bear during the hearing.

The amendment was put to the meeting and lost. After further discussion

Mr. CLEMART read a substituted resolution, which, he thought, would be accepted by the mover and seconder of the former motion. It was as follows:—"This this mass meeting records its entire confidence in the Executive Committee, and empowers it to take steps to bring about an immediate termination of the dispute, which has now lasted for sixteen weeks, between the Variety Artists' Federation and the Agents' Association."

Mr. Daly and Mr. Rhodes agreed.

Mr. EUGENE STRATTON, who was received with loud cheers, said he was a Federationist, and he thought their chairman had absolutely removed all obstacles out of their way. He thought they were wasting time by arguing on points that would keep them till Doomsday. He maintained that they had representatives who could argue as well as the agents could argue, and if they left the question to the same people as those who served them before they would save a lot of time.

The resolution was carried unanimously amid much enthusiasm.

Mr. KONORAH, the president of the International Artists' Lodge, who was received with cheers, said he was there at the order of the Executive Committee of the I.A.L. as president, and he came because he received a very urgent telegram. He came to pledge the full support of his society in everything they did. (Cheers.) He had hoped that some outlet might be found, and that their ultima ratio might be averted; but the I.A.L. were ready to go with them to the last ditch. They had just come themselves through a fight which the assistance of the V.A.F. helped to bring to a successful termination. They had trouble also with agents, but not in quite the same way, as the laws of this country were differently constituted. He was glad that they had come to the conclusion they had done. They would never have real peace until they had fairness in all their business dealings under regulated conditions. Any other peace was only a temporary one, but it was perhaps better than open war, unless they had adequate methods and adequate means.

Votes of thanks were passed to Mr. Konorah, to the Press, and to Mr. Forbes-Robertson, who lent the theatre subject only to the cost of light and cleaning.

Mr. JOE ELVIN moved a vote of thanks to the chairman, saying they were proud of him for the action he had taken in bringing about a peaceful settlement in this dispute. He had stepped into the breach manfully and with every good intention, and he could only say, "God bless old Ireland."

The CHAIRMAN, in reply, said the only thing he regretted in leaving the position of chairman of the Federation, and leaving the Federation, was that he should be unable to participate in the arbitration which was to follow. He had got such entire confidence in Mr. Clemart and Mr. Pink that he was perfectly satisfied that they would look after their interests. Unless they made a resolution or rule that no agent or artist-agent should be a member of their organisation, then they would find him coming back and paying up his dues. He realised quite fully that he was a stumbling-block to a settlement, but even at that sacrifice—and nobody knew what it meant to him—he suffered it most fervently rather than have a dislocation of that industry similar to that which happened two years ago.

The proceedings were brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

THE MANCHESTER MEETING.

Mr. E. ADELER took the chair at a meeting of members of the V.A.F., held at the Salisbury Hotel, Manchester, on Sunday, when Mr. William Lee, a delegate of the Executive Committee, explained the negotiations which had taken place in regard to the dispute between the V.A.F. and the Agents' Association. Among the other artists present were Messrs. Albert Voyce, Mark Sheridan, the Brothers Egbert, Albert Schaeffer, Geo. B. Sinclair, W. E. Gillin, Wm. Brown, B. O'Malley, Lally Brookes, Hayman and Franklin, Fred Parr, Marie Jones, Slippere, Harry Conlin, and B. Heralds.

Mr. WILLIAM LEE, in a long speech, went very fully into the points of the dispute with agents, and criticised the action of the Federation of Trade Unions and Mr. Appleton, detailing also the points of reference agreed upon for arbitration, and referring to Mr. O'Gorman's contemplated resignation of the V.A.F. In conclusion he said: "I am perfectly satisfied it will be only a question of a very short time before the present dispute is settled. I know the settlement will bring great relief to you all; I know it will bring great relief to the agents, and we shall all be satisfied when we are able to go to work again."

Mr. ALBERT VOYCE said: All of us are working for the same cause, and I hope we shall soon see the beginning of something better, something nobler than ever existed in the Federation. In regard to the agents' dispute I have a proposition to make. The terms of reference, with one exception, were practically the same as the terms of reference originally agreed to by the Variety Artists' Federation, and therefore there was not much reason for a dispute—not much reason for the trouble; no reason for angry words. Clause 5 deals with the question of artists carrying a book. It is not within the power of any agent, artist, or manager to say no artist must carry a book; but it is within the province of the Federation to resume the position it occupied prior to this dispute, and it could do so with honour and credit and to the everlasting credit of Mr. Joe O'Gorman, who was prepared to make such a noble sacrifice as Mr. Lee had indicated. Clause 5, said Mr. Lee, had nothing whatever to do with this dispute. It has everything to do with it. We repealed a certain law in our book of rules in order to find a weapon to bring against the enemy. That clause of that law was repealed practically as a temporary expedient to enable us to fight the enemy. Therefore it is tantamount to an act of war, and it is only right and just that the terms of settlement should include this clause, and be discussed when the time comes for the terms of peace to be arranged. He asked that the twenty or thirty who had the privilege granted them under the rules to act as agents should now sacrifice themselves in favour of the great organisation which they all admired, and thus bring the dispute to an honourable and satisfactory end. He proposed therefore:—"That this meeting is of opinion that as the rule empowering certain members to act as agents only intended to meet a difficulty raised by the present dispute, no harm can be done by allowing the arbitrator to decide whether members of the Federation should be allowed to continue to act as agents." The agents insist that no artists must carry a book. It does not rest with any agent or artist or manager to say whether an artist shall carry a "book" or not, but it rests with this organisation to say whether an artist shall carry a "book." The agents want to protect their industry, and we want to protect ours. We would not like amateurs to come into our business—(a Voice: They do)—and cripple us. Let us play fair and just. Once we have arrived at an amicable settlement with the agents, will it be in their power to say whether an artist shall carry a "book" or not? It rests with the arbitrator to say whether we can carry a book or not. We want a clear, unbiased man, who knows the law of commission as it exists in the industrial world, to give us his opinion. Mr. Appleton may have been dictatorial in a way, but I think his advice was based on equity. If we went to war on Monday we should be practically in the same position later as when the war started. Agent-artists would still exist. There is nobody in this world who can stop a man entering one, two, or three industries, if he is capable and determined. I think the artist-agents who now belong to the Federation would be willing to sacrifice their membership in the interests of the great majority.

Mr. ALBERT SCHAEFFER seconded the resolution. He had come there from Birmingham because he believed there was going to be a strike. Mr. O'Gorman had done the lion's share of the work and interested himself greatly in the Federation, but no one was more bitter against artist-agents than Mr. O'Gorman himself.

At this point Mr. Schaeffer departed from the resolution, and commenced criticising the Executive Committee. Mr. Schaeffer was called to order by members of the audience, and told to confine himself to the resolution.

Mr. LEE: Mr. Chairman, if Mr. Schaeffer has any grievance against the committee he should make his complaint at the proper time and place.

The CHAIRMAN: I quite agree with Mr. Lee. When I took the chair I decided to err on the right side, but I think the time has come when I should assert myself and call Mr. Schaeffer to order. The resolution is a censure on the committee.

Mr. MUNROE: I propose that the meeting express its confidence in the Executive Committee.

Mr. VOYCE: I emphatically protest against any such description of my resolution. Have I said one word derogatory to the committee? (Cries of "No!") I decline absolutely to have it connected with any censure on the committee. Rather than that should be done I will withdraw it.

Mr. SINCLAIR: I am sorry to see that the keynote of peace struck by Mr. Lee has not been upheld by the last speakers. You must remember what you are doing by sending this proposition to London. You are allowing these agents to dictate to you. (Cries of "No!") The idea of the agents is to weaken your ranks. You do not know their methods like we know them.

Mr. HARRY VANDERBILT spoke in support of the resolution.

Mr. HENRY COUTTS asked if the agents were not within their rights in desiring to add another clause to the terms of reference before the document went before the arbitrator?

The CHAIRMAN: Certainly not.

Mr. SINCLAIR: Both sides agreed that the questions in dispute were on the original paper. It was only at the last moment that they added the clause about which all the trouble of late had arisen.

Eventually it was agreed to add to the resolution the following words: "And at the same time the question of agents acting as artists to be considered."

The resolution was then put to the meeting, and was declared carried by sixty-nine votes to forty.

Mr. VOYCE strongly resented the remark of the CHAIRMAN, who said the Manchester people wanted a little more backbone; they were more like molluscs than anything else.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Within the last few days the statement has obtained circulation in the Press that in the dispute with the agents, managers have sided with the latter, simply because they split commissions and pocket the amount.

This emanates from the executive of the Artists' Federation, for reasons I need not here labour, but whereas managers in their business over and above providing good entertainment desire to stand well in the eyes of the public, and the latter are not acquainted with the inner working of music hall enterprise, I trust you will grant me space on behalf of the members of my Association to answer those incorrect aspersions.

When after the strike arbitration was agreed to, one of the points of reference was no commission to be deducted by management either where engagements booked direct or on behalf of an agent. This to apply to existing and future contracts.

On this point I alone, in my official capacity, tendered evidence, and if not too lenghty for insertion, I attach reprint of that evidence and cross-examination. The award was issued without any comment by Mr. Askwith as arbitrator on the subject. Since the present dispute was ruthlessly started for purposes best known to its originators sixteen weeks ago, the leaders of the V.A.F. have promised our solicitor to bring the managers before the arbitrator, but up to now have found no time to do so. They have been too much occupied with losing lawsuits in the endeavour to deprive agents of their just earnings, and further to induce the General Federation of Trade Unions to assist them in issuing a million circulars warning their members to boycott music halls, or, if not, to support them in a general strike. Their success in the latter direction is best explained by the following extract from a letter sent by the secretary of the Trade Union leaders to the Artists' Federation.

"I have submitted this phase of the situation to a specially-convened meeting of my emergency committee, and I am instructed to say that in their opinion your request that all matters in dispute should be decided involves the consideration of this point, and if the negotiations fail through your refusal to submit the point with the others, they will be unable to guarantee any support in the event of an open conflict between the parties directly concerned.—W. A. APPLETON."

Trade Union leaders have heavy responsibilities, and an award being issued after costly arbitration they have, as a rule, the native sense of justice to abide by it. Besides, latterly facts and figures have been placed before these gentlemen showing, for instance, that if a salary cheque is drawn, say, for £300 on a Saturday £210, or more, goes to ten, eleven, or twelve artists, and the remainder to about fifty or sixty musicians and stage employees, most of whom belong to a Union, and thus the ridiculous spectacle in a strike or boycott would be presented of the "poor Trade Union artists" throwing the permanent employees out of work; besides, the £210 salary is generally earned two or three times over by the artists working two or three halls "on the Trade Union principle" of "one man one job." The wonder is that an association like this was ever allowed to become affiliated to a Trade Union Federation.

The managers have abided loyally by the award, and I have called a meeting of my members for to-morrow, when we shall decide as to requesting the arbitrator to give us an appointment with the leaders of the V.A.F., and take his opinion on the merit of the commission clause, on the various breaches by artists, on the continuous threat to boycott or strike, when he laid it down that no strike is to occur for twelve months without six months' notice, for it is high time that the true merits of the case were published; that an industry in which the public have invested millions be no longer jeopardised by the democrats who terrorise and coerce artists to the disadvantage of their prosperity, and pose all the while as "modern Bayards."

This is the first time, I think, that an association has laid down the edict that in order to coerce the agent it is just to avoid payment of a legitimate debt. What managers say is, they want to conduct their houses as they have been accustomed to, without hindrance and according to the award; they do not want "you" who have caused all the friction to come into their offices and dictate that they shall book artists with "you or anyone you choose to nominate."

If you have no space for the evidence placed before the arbitrator, and "the man in the street" wants to know why, at the request of agents, with the consent of artists, a fourth of the 10 per cent. collected is retained for extra work (and which forms part and parcel of the shareholders' revenue as vouched for by responsible auditors), surely the reply is the agent, as a business man, must think this prompt mode of getting his money pays him best (if it is 5 per cent. the Company does not get any profit). But the commission clause is not used for the purpose of coercing artists, and if the latter object to the mode of collection, it certainly does not mean that the contract is refused by managers.

In conclusion I leave your readers to judge what justification there is for all the hubbub and the threatening of strikes by a party which in January, 1907, were jubilant over the award, and in January, 1909, are afraid to face the arbitrator, and try to upset his award illegally.

As I finish this letter I note from the report of yesterday's meeting at Terry's Theatre that there is no strike to take place, and that Mr. Askwith has sent a wholesome warning to the leaders of this turbulent movement. But a portion of the mischief is done. The threat of the strike itself has undoubtedly injured our business for the week, and possibly for many weeks to come. It has caused managers expense and trouble to prepare for eventualities, while the charges against them of a vile and insinuating character remain on record in the Press at this moment; therefore I trust that, however lengthy, you will still find place for this communication. Thanking you in anticipation, I am, yours faithfully,

HENRI GROS,
President of the Entertainments Association.

Jan. 11.

STATEMENT BEFORE ARBITRATOR.

It has been stated that contracts are made by managers prejudicial to artists' interests, and of a nature so stringent as to prevent their general employment. I thought it might be advisable to show the necessity for some of the clauses that are in dispute, in a typical contract like the Metropolitan Music Hall, the first clause being the commission clause:—

"The engagement having been made through an agent, it is agreed that the company shall deduct and retain ten per cent., and pay the same to the said agent, or as he may direct."

In lieu of the words, "or as he may direct," I think it should distinctly state "of which 2½ per cent. shall go to the company towards the cost of book-keeping, &c., and trouble of collecting." The objection by artists is puerile; there is no hardship for them. When they only pay their agent 5 per cent. there is nothing stopped. There is considerable trouble in keeping these accounts, and the agent gives the company 2½ per cent. People may be perfectly honest and take a considerable time to pay their debts, but the fact remains, the agents have had great losses in the past. It is a claim that is not easily recoverable when an artist is unfortunate, or dies, or travels for a long time on the Continent or in the Colonies, and agents who are business men have consented to give 2½ per cent. for this collection in order to get their money promptly.

The artist appends his signature to the contract, and is a party thereto, and, in many instances, prefers it, as he knows exactly the amount that is coming to him.

The statement made that in some instances the agent claims a further commission from the artist I can scarcely credit, and I doubt if any reputable agent could be produced who has done so, and certainly none who have obtained it. But if such has been done the names of the agents ought to be published. I venture to suggest that one or two members of the Agents' Association should be heard on this.

Cross-examined by Mr. Doughty :—

Q. You probably agree to this extent, that the agent is the agent of the artist, and not of the manager?

A. The agent is the agent of the artist, and is the primary culprit. He has run salaries up for the artist, and has made salaries excessive.

Q. Never mind that. He is the agent of the artist, there is no doubt about that?

A. Undoubtedly.

Q. And it is usual in all other businesses for the principal to pay his own agent?

A. They do that now.

Q. Directly.

A. Directly. Well, I gave you my statement on that, you know, very succinctly, and can only refer you to that. I say that the agent is a business man, and that it pays him better to give us a fourth share of his commission to get his money promptly. I do not want to sit here and throw the slightest aspersion upon artists, amongst whom there are a great many men and women whom I respect. I come into daily contact with them, and have lived on terms of business amity with them, but the agents evidently think it pays them, and they ought to be the best judges. I can give you one instance of an artist——

Q. You cannot argue from single instances.

A. I would rather not, but it is a question like this: the 2½ per cent. deduction entails a certain amount of work. I can show my salary books. The commissions are all put down on one side, and lodged in the bank on the Monday, and at the end of the month cheques are drawn for them; and it stands to reason—it answers itself—that if the agent says "It pays me better to give you 2½ per cent. off my earnings than to wait until I get paid," he must have a reason for this.

Q. Do you suggest that if artists paid their agents directly the agent would lose a quarter of his remuneration?

A. I would rather not say.

Q. I would like you to answer.

A. You are asking me to throw an aspersion upon a certain number of people. I have put it in as nice a way as I could. It is a debt that runs on, and is not easily recoverable. Some of the commissions in former years ran into hundreds of pounds before they were paid.

Q. They were paid, I suppose?

A. If an artist dies and there is no estate they are not paid.

To place the entire examination before your readers would occupy too much of your valuable space. Suffice it to say that after my evidence some agents were called as witnesses, and that Mr. Askwith, notwithstanding the very strong complaints on the subject by the V.A.F. Executive, did not disturb it by his award. I venture to think this speaks for itself.

THE V.A.F. EXECUTIVE.

The following members of the Executive Committee retire this month :—

Fred McNaughton	Harry Delevine

THE V.A.F. AND ITS CRITICS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—As a provincial member of the executive who has had the honour of being voted to the chair at something like ninety-five per cent. of the meetings I have attended, an honour I appreciate to the full, may I be allowed to say a few words in reply to one or two of our critics?

One writer to The Era says: "A strong man is wanted in the V.A.F." Surely Mr. O'Gorman proved himself to be such a man in allowing himself to be made the scapegoat of the Agents' Association, and by throwing himself from the quarter-deck of the ship Federation in the interests of peace. And we have others.

Mr. Gerald has Trade Unionism at his finger tips, and, according to the gospel of Gerald, Trade Unionism signifies one man, one job. If this is so, then let it apply all round. I meet in the provinces turns booked by agents who do three acts and many that do two. I was recently engaged with a comic singer; his wife did a serio turn, and then they played a sketch. I have been engaged with a troupe; one member did a serio turn and another sang illustrated songs.

Many of us never appreciated Trade Union principles; but, having become affiliated, we loyally stood by the executive. I would like to ask Mr. Gerald—Who was more guilty than he of engineering the disastrous strike of two years ago? I was speaking to a lady—a lady who had a big concert reputation, and who recently came on the halls; she said, "I am in sympathy with your Federation, and were you to strike, I should come out with you; but I must tell you I strongly object to your Trade Union methods." This has been the excuse of many artists for not joining the V.A.F.

When Mr. Gerald was nominated for re-election as our secretary, I believe Mr. Chirgwin and myself were his sponsors, for I was against swapping horses mid-stream. I may have been wrong; and when I have read Mr. Gerald's repeated attacks on us, I have come to the conclusion I was wrong. I remember one of Mr. Gerald's supporters getting up and saying, I am an anarchist, and he seemed as if he meant it, too. Well, we don't want anarchists in the V.A.F.

If we are still to remain affiliated with the Trade Unionists of this country, we shall loyally stick to the executive. On the other hand, I think the ship can swim without any assistance from the outside. Many proprietors and managers in the provinces strongly objected to the continual threat of "We have the Trade Unionists at our back," and rightly so, I think. We are strong enough to defend our own interests without using threats of that description.

I have been shown in the provinces letters from agents of the most threatening description; on the other hand, I have seen most gentlemanly letters to their old clients. One I read said: "You can pay up when the trouble is over and I hope we shall be as big friends as ever again." Now that was something like a letter to write, and that agent had never been a performer himself. The worst letters I have seen were from men who had themselves been performers, and men I had often booked myself when they could not always get their own engagements.—Faithfully yours, F. V. ST. CLAIR.

"PEGGY PRYDE'S" NEW HOME.

An extremely popular figure in the music hall world has determined on Brighton as her future home, and taken over the proprietorship of the Sussex Hotel, East-street, Brighton. Miss Peggy Pryde is now the proprietress of this hotel. Jennie Hill's petite and dashing daughter has proved a distinct success at the halls, and, by her vivacity and witty patter, no less than by her graceful dancing and musical accomplishments, has justified the highest expectations formed of her. She is a particular favourite with Brighton audiences, and the announcement of her latest venture will be read with interest by numerous admirers.

For days past workmen have been busily engaged in renovating the premises, and it may safely be said that none has worked with greater energy than the famous comedienne. Looking in for a few minutes yesterday, a representative found Miss Peggy, working like a Trojan, putting the finishing touches to a hard week's work. "Ah," she said, cheerily, "I think we have now got things in ship-shape order to last us over Christmas, when there are to be more alterations. Yes, have been almost worried to death trying to make the place look clean and attractive."

How Peggy got the licence was quite another story. "When I went down to the Town Hall," she confessed, "I was never so frightened in all my life. I stood in the Court feeling like a prisoner at the bar! But the nice gentlemen on the Bench smilingly reassured me, and everything was all right for the time being." Since taking possession of the premises she has not had much rest. "I'm going as fast as ever I can," she added, with a smile. Peggy has received shoals of good wishes from her friends wishing her success in the new undertaking.

"I am just making this a little home," explained Miss Peggy. "I have all my professional engagements to fulfil for the next five years, but whenever I can be in Brighton I shall be here, always pleased to see old friends."

Peggy found a few moments to chat about her stage life. "Yes, I have been many years on the boards. I began at Hull when I was only eight years old. I've been all through England and America, and in Africa. . . . No, I don't bother much about making-up—very little, any old thing, does for me. My mother left me her wardrobe, and whenever I want a new 'property' I just go and rummage, and I'm sure to find something to suit."

[Photo by Talma.

MISS PEGGY PRYDE.

"Somebody told you I was as good as my mother? Well, that is a compliment. She was such a woman! Yes, it was her vitality, of course. 'Jenny Hill, the Vital Spark,' she was called everywhere."

Quaint little Peggy has long been a proclaimer of women's rights "on the stage." One can picture the vivacious and clever artist in a caricature gown and bonnet, with a caricature umbrella, delivering a caricature oration. The words literally leap from her.

"Hey? You say man rules the world? Yes! and who rules man? WOMAN!! Yes—and there's lots of you blokes here to-night know it to your sorrow."

"What is my favourite part? I have so many. Yet I think I like —— as well as any. No. I don't see the audience as a rule; I sing to a gas jet. Sometimes, when I see a man laughing very much, I single his face and sing to him—it does one so much good, a jolly face. But a cold, unemotional face—oh, how that does depress one! No, I never feel tired. There is plenty to do. Good morning."

And singing merrily to herself the inimitable Peggy tripped away to give attention to making the "Sussex" as snug and cosy as possible for the host of friends she hopes to see in her new home.—Sussex Daily News, Friday, Dec. 25, 1908.

AT Stoke County Court on Wednesday, Will Calvert, a well-known Potteries comedian, sued Frederick Wood, a turf commission agent, for £15 damages for personal injuries. Plaintiff, whilst travelling in the train, donned trousers of abnormal size which he had purchased to perform in. Defendant, in fun, slashed at the trousers with a penknife. The blade cut through both pairs of trousers, besides plaintiff's underclothing, and injured his leg. Another slash cut plaintiff's thumb to the bone, and in consequence he lost three weeks' engagements. Plaintiff was awarded £10 10s. damages.

DEATH OF HARRY HART.

The serious illness of Mr. Harry Hart, reported in our columns last week, resulted in his death on the 8th inst., at his residence, 1, Rochester-terrace, N.W., in his eighty-second year. By his decease London loses its oldest music hall caterer and proprietor who in his day did much for the cause of cheap and wholesome entertainment for the masses. The example set by Charles Morton at the Canterbury was followed by Harry Hart, as he was universally known, and the earliest programmes at the Raglan, a hall with which his name was associated in the 'sixties and 'seventies, show that in the vocal and instrumental selections the operas of Verdi, Weber, Bellini, Meyerbeer, and Donizetti were drawn upon. Standard ballads and glees were also to be heard, and it is certain that there were in those days—the days of what has been termed the public-house annexe—a large number of capable and cultured vocalists entertaining at the halls. No fewer than 300 are to be found in a list published in The Era Almanack of 1873. It was at the Raglan that Mr. Hart gave a first London engagement to George Leybourne, and Miss Marie Lloyd appeared there under the name of Little Marie. While Mr. Hart was proprietor of the Sun in 1888 the tragic death of the great Vance took place. The seizure came directly after he had left the stage. He had just finished singing "Is he guilty?"

[Photo by Palmer.

THE LATE MR. HARRY HART.

In 1867 there existed a large number of small halls that have now disappeared, some having been swallowed up in metropolitan improvements and others dying from inanition. Among them were the Apollo, Davey's, Deacon's, Eastern, Evans's, Gatti's (Arches and Westminster Bridge-road), Marylebone, the Raglan, the Regent, Scott's, the Strand (where Jolly John Nash and Kate Santley were such favourites), the Sun, the Trevor, Wilton's and the Winchester.

In the number of houses of lesser fame may be included the Eastern Alhambra, run with three houses a night under the management of Mr. Bob Fort, afterwards associated with the fortunes of the Foresters' in the Cambridge Heath-road, Mile End, and with the Theatre Royal, Margate. The Cosmotheca, in the neighbourhood of the Edgware-road also flourished, and Jenny Hill, Joe Cave, and Dan Leno all appeared there in the days of their youth.

Besides owning the Raglan, Mr. Harry Hart was running in 1867 and for many subsequent years the Alexandra, Ramsgate. In 1872 he acquired the Alexandra, Borough (which had just been rebuilt and renamed). It was originally called the Borough, and the licence was held by Mr. R. Gear, who was afterwards associated, like Mr. Hart, with amusements in Ramsgate. In 1877 Mr. Hart's name was connected with the Alexandra (Borough), the Raglan, the Alexandra, Ramsgate, and the Assembly Rooms in the same seaside resort.

In the early 'eighties the Raglan was absorbed in street improvements, and about this time the deceased gentleman acquired the Star, Bermondsey, which he presented to his son, Mr. John Hart, as a wedding gift. Mr. Harry Hart became proprietor of the Bedford in 1886, but sold that hall in 1895 to Mr. Tom Maltby, who in turn disposed of it to Messrs. B. P. Lucas and Johnson. The Bedford was the last London hall held by the veteran proprietor, whose career commenced at the Cyder Cellars in 1854. The following quaint announcement of the Cyder Cellars is from our issue of March 26, 1855:—"The C.C.—The Old Original Cyder Cellars.—Charles Brumfit begs to inform the nobility, gentry, and every other person who has an evening hour to spare (either for supper or amusement) about London, that the above well-known Supper-rooms are open every evening after nine o'clock. At that hour singing commences, supported by the first talent of the day; and suppers are supplied without the slightest possible reproach to the Cuisine. Gentlemen are requested to come in, and give the Establishment a trial.—Crede Experto." In those days a gentleman or a gentleman's gentleman could always have a song with his supper.

The funeral of the deceased gentleman took place at Willesden Cemetery at three o'clock on Monday. Many of the principal residences in Camden Town, where Mr. Hart was a big householder, had blinds down, and there was a very large following to the cemetery from the house of the deceased at 1, Rochester-terrace. Six mourning carriages followed the hearse. In the first were Mr. John Hart, proprietor of the Star, Bermondsey, and Mr. Samuel Hart, the agent, both sons of the deceased; in the second were Mr. Edward Hart, late proprietor of the Marylebone Music Hall, Mr. Jack Hart, and Mr. Michael Hart; in the third were the Rev. Mr. Spero and Mr. John Levy (nephew of the deceased); in the fourth: Mr. Harry S. Hart, the well-known agent, and Mr. Reginald M. Hart (grandsons), Mr. Archie Symons and Mr. John M. Levine (nephews). Included in the cortége were the staff of the Star, Bermondsey, Mr. A. Rowella, the late manager of that house, Mr. A. Goddard, Mr. Jack Spence, Mr. Michael Levy, Mr. Sam Levy, and Mr. James Hider, who had been in the employ of the deceased sixty-five years. There were no flowers, by request, and the plain coffin had no inscription. The funeral rites were reverently carried out by the Rev. Mr. Spero.

THE LLANDUDNO PIER COMPANY on Monday issued their report for 1908, and in view of the adverse conditions of last season it must be considered very satisfactory. The concerts season commenced three weeks later than in the previous year, owing to the lateness of Easter, and the revenue is £742. The expenses are £386 less than in the previous year, and the profit is £356 less, but it must be remembered that 1907 was an exceptionally prosperous year. A dividend of 12½ per cent. is recommended, with a bonus of 5s. per share.

NEW YEAR'S COLLECTION FOR THE MUSIC HALL HOME.

In again directing the attention of our readers to The Era New Year's Shilling Fund on behalf of the Music Hall Home we are in the happy position of being able to associate with the appeal thus being made the name of the foremost music hall comedienne—Miss Marie Lloyd. It seems scarcely necessary to remind our readers of the deep interest Miss Lloyd has ever taken in matters affecting the welfare of her brothers and sisters of the variety profession. It is her desire that her "year" will be marked by a considerable increase in the subscriptions of previous years, and she therefore, through The Era, commends the Music Hall Home to the charitably-minded. Mr. Thomas Barrasford, the President of the Fund, is again this year exerting himself in its behalf, and this fact is sufficient indication that he is satisfied as to the way in which the institution is being conducted, and that he considers it worthy of support.

Mr. Ben Woodger, the secretary of the Music Hall Home, tells us that in 1907 the inmates averaged ten, but that in 1908 there have been as many as twelve. The address of the Home is 31, Wilson-road, Camberwell, and there the matron (Mrs. Fruin) busies herself for the comfort and convenience of her "family." At present there are eleven of these, and the desire is to increase the number, which can only be done when sufficient funds for the purpose are collected.

MISS MARIE LLOYD,

The Fair Worker for the Home.

During the past twelve months three or four of the inmates have recovered their health and strength sufficiently to enable them to look for engagements. These secured, they left the Home, and the vacancies thereby created were immediately filled up. Now, this Home requires keeping up, and it cannot be kept up on air. There is no need for us to refer to all the good work which has been performed by the institution in the past, as that must for the most part be within the recollection of our readers. The ages of the inmates range from fifty to seventy-six. In all probability these men will be maintained in the Home until the day of their death, and their funeral expenses paid for out of the funds of the Home.

The Era New Year's Shilling Fund is the main source of income to the Home, and this means of sustenance is added to by the donations of artists, either given directly, or through the collecting boxes through which many managers of variety theatres collect pennies from "dead-heads" and from artists who desire free admission.

Anyone can be supplied with a collecting-card by sending a postcard to Mr. Woodger.

Briefly, we may once more repeat that the objects of the Music Hall Home Fund are to provide shelter for deserving members of the variety profession who have been stricken with poverty or illness in their declining years, or who have in other ways fallen on evil times. Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, the hon. treasurer, will be pleased to receive filled-up collecting cards addressed to him at The Era, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C., and to acknowledge them in these columns.

SHOWMEN'S GUILD OF GREAT BRITAIN.

ANNUAL MEETING AT MANCHESTER.

In point of numbers and interest the Manchester meetings this year have exceeded all previous records. All the trade societies dealing with the interests of Showland have been in session in committee at their headquarters—the Black Lion Hotel, Salford—or in public meeting assembled at the Memorial Hall, Albert-square. We understand that important matters dealing with the interests of Showland were dealt with at the Sectional Committee meetings, and the public meeting was of the most enthusiastic and successful character.

Delegates from all parts of Great Britain and Ireland were present. Notable amongst these were Messrs. Turnbull and Piper from Ireland, Messrs. George Green and Henderson from Scotland, Marshall Hill from the West of England, and delegates representing the Northern Counties, the Southern Counties, the Midlands and the Lancashire, Yorkshire and Cheshire districts.

There is one important fact very often overlooked, and that is that Manchester is the greatest centre of showlife in the world; that whilst on account of Parliamentary defence work, and for the purposes of public propaganda, it is wise and well for London to be the centre of the Executive Council, Manchester, Birmingham, Liverpool, Leeds, Newcastle, and Glasgow are all greater centres of showman life than the Metropolis. Representative showmen from all these great centres were gathered together this week in Manchester to deliberate upon and to further the best interests of the whole industry.

The Retirement of Lord George Sanger.

Before proceeding with the election of officers, the following resolution was moved by Mr. Frank Mellor, of Oldham, hon. local treasurer, and seconded by the Rev. T. Horne, organiser and chaplain :—

"This meeting of delegates of the Showmen's Guild, assembled at Manchester for its twentieth annual meeting, tenders to Lord George Sanger, the retiring president, heartfelt thanks for his services to the whole body of vandwellers, showmen, and amusement caterers. They place on record with profound respect and admiration their sense of his untiring zeal, great influence, and unstinted liberality in their interests and in the life of the humblest member of the fairground community. They wish him, in the eventide of life, all peace and abundant blessings."

Mr. FRANK MELLOR, in submitting the resolution, declared that he could not find words adequate enough to express the tremendous loss (which only the venerable age of their esteemed president had necessitated), a loss that they would all experience from the highest to the lowest in their ranks. To speak of him as the Grand Old Man of Showland and as the Empire's greatest showman were but to repeat phrases that had passed into the the vernacular of the people. In every town, in every village, and upon the highways of the land travelled they the country where they might, every little child as well as the grown up men and women were familiar with the name of George Sanger. He moved the resolution with the profoundest respect and gratitude. (Great applause.)

The Guild Chaplain's Tribute of Esteem.

At the request of the committee, the chaplain observed he had drafted the resolution submitted by Mr. Mellor. To him it was a matter of the deepest regret that the necessity had arisen to face the inevitable fact that when man reaches the patriarchial age of eighty-two years the limitations of human industry must be recognised. When we added to that dominant truth that George Sanger had lived one of the most strenuous lives of his own day, it was indeed straining all the expectations that could be reasonably demanded to ask such "a veteran after many fights" to continue to occupy the position of leader of his people. (Cheers.)

For well-nigh twenty years he (Mr. Horne) had had the inestimable advantage of being the colleague (and in many instances the very inadequate deputy) of the Grand Old Man of Showland. He was but voicing the thoughts of every mind in that great meeting when he said that in the retirement he had so well won he hoped that he would find all the joys and happiness of honoured old age, and that he would continue to have that esteem and affectionate regard in the hearts and minds of the show-loving public—that public which had by one consent ennobled him (without Royal Letters Patent) and had placed him in the highest niche of public admiration as "Lord" George Sanger.

In the dark and struggling days of their organisation, when to get from the public the barest acknowledgment of truths that were now universally accepted with regard to showman life had been an extremely hard task, it was the open book of George Sanger's life, lived in the sight of all men, that had enforced the multitude of sermons and speeches which he, their chaplain and advocate, had felt bound to deliver. To his great colleague and fellow-worker in the interests of the whole body of amusement caterers he would repeat :—

"In the glory of life's setting sun,
My brother, take thy rest;
Well hast thou fought, and well hast won
Thy guerdon with life's best."

Again from the bottom of his heart he reiterated the words of the resolution, and seconded it. (Great cheering.)

MR. CHARLES HOWARD (hon. solicitor), who presided over the opening part of the Congress until the election of the new president, put the motion to the meeting, and it was carried amidst immense applause and most evident emotion.

The Election of Mr. P. Collins as President.

MR. FRED BIBBY was bound to say that he felt it a peculiar honour to have been asked to propose to them for election the name of their new president. Before mentioning that name he could not refrain from a passing tribute to the great man who had left behind him such a record—an example of influence and munificence that it would be extremely difficult for his successors to imitate. He would hesitate no longer, but give them the name of Patrick Collins as president for the ensuing year on the nomination of the whole of the retiring executive. He felt quite sure that they would recognise, with him, that Mr. Collins, by great ability, untiring energy, and devotion to the interests of all who follow the fairs, was entitled to occupy the honourable position of president. He trusted that Patrick Collins's tenure of office would be marked by the same consequences and benefits to the whole of Showland as had marked his distinguished predecessor.

Again, he remarked, he was proud of the distinction that the Executive Council had conferred upon him by placing in his hands the resolution which he now proposed, "That Mr. Patrick Collins be the President of the United Kingdom Van-dwellers and Showmen's Protection Association, now popularly known as the Showmen's Guild." (Cheers.)

Mr. S. MERCER briefly seconded the resolution, and Mr. WILLIAM GIBSON, in a bright little speech, supported it. Mr. Gibson said that they had heard a great deal about the Grand Old Man of Showland, and George Sanger had indeed won the distinction of being the father of his people. His best wish for Mr. Collins was that "he would follow in his father's footsteps." (Great applause and laughter.) He had great pleasure in supporting Mr. Collins for the presidency. (Great applause.)

The CHAIRMAN pro tem., after the formality of asking for other nominations in accordance with the democratic constitution of the Guild, asked the meeting, by show of hands, to express its opinion, and Mr. Patrick Collins was elected president amidst demonstrations of enthusiasm again and again renewed.

The Installation of the New President.

The CHAIRMAN, with a few gracious words welcoming the president, vacated the chair, and, in another outburst of applause, Mr. Collins began his task of presiding over the meeting. Most obviously under the stress of great emotion, the new president delivered the following presidential address :—

"Fellow-showmen and friends,—It gives me the greatest of pleasure to see you all here, and to wish you all a happy and prosperous New Year. There is only one that could have given me greater pleasure, that is to have had our honoured and esteemed president and friend, Lord George Sanger, amongst us and still well and hearty enough to continue in his office, thus making it unnecessary for me to assume the highly honourable, but difficult, position of leader of the Showmen's Guild of Great Britain.

"In thanking you all for the honour bestowed on me, and for the confidence placed in me, allow me at the same time first of all to thank, in your name and in my name, my worthy and honoured predecessor—Great Britain's greatest showman, our worthy Grand Old Man and generous supporter—Lord George Sanger. May he live long and remain in sufficient good health to enjoy his well-earned retirement after his many years of hard toil. I feel that to follow such a good leader makes my position doubly difficult, and nothing would have induced me to accept this great responsibility were it not that I know that I have in our reverend friend the Guild Chaplain so capable a supporter and so hardworking an associate, and I am quite sure you will all join me in according him the heartiest vote of thanks for the difficult and onerous work done by him for our benefit and in our interest.

"To show our appreciation of these men, we cannot do better than show that we all are determined to follow the most unselfish example set us by our two Grand Old Men. I now want you one and all to faithfully promise me that you will try to be worthy of such leaders and supporters; then our cause, which is a good one, is sure to prosper, and we need not fear to go forward in faith and confidence.

"I myself, in accepting the position to which you have done me the honour to elect me, promise you that I will at all times do all that lies in my power for the good of our common cause and for the preservation of our rights and liberties. May good-fellowship be always our aim. Only by unity can we hope to succeed." (Cheers.)

Election of Executive Council.

Mr. T. HURST, hon. secretary, then proposed the election of the following gentlemen on the Executive Council for 1909 :—

For Ireland.

D. Turnbull, H. Toft.

He concluded by proposing the election of the gentlemen whose names he had read to the meeting.

The GUILD CHAPLAIN and ORGANISER, in seconding the election of the official nominees, said that the Executive Council were aiming at maintaining the democratic and popular constitution of the Guild. The divisional committees were arranged in order that the popular will might be represented and expressed; also that whenever the executive officers of the Society were concerned in either meetings or defence work in any particular county or division of the country they might always have to support them and to direct them with valuable local knowledge the divisional committee. Their organisation was growing too rapidly, and had to meet so many new difficulties that it could no longer be effectively worked from one centre. The divisional committees (and, indeed, the whole of the Executive Council) were not naminated to be merely ornamental or to confer distinction upon the men called to office.

He himself knew that it was an honour and a distinction to be engaged in the service of one's friends and fellow-workers. However true that might be, the greater principle was behind it that each committee-man was called upon to work and to be ready to give time and ability at the call of the executive officials to further the great cause they had at heart. (Applause.)

In his itinerary of the British fairs in the past year he had taken note of the men who were really enthusiastic and willing to work for the Guild, and almost every new name they had had submitted to them for election was put down at his suggestion. It was this intimate knowledge of the local circumstances which he had gathered in his visitation of the fairs of Great Britain, enriched, undoubtedly, by the knowledge and experience of the Executive Council, that had mapped out the country into working divisions and had called men from all sections of the community of the fairground to take an active, responsible, and honourable position in the counsels of their Society and in the constantly-widening field of their enterprise. He had intervened at this point in the proceedings and had taken advantage of this opportunity to explain the truly democratic constitution of their Society fully, that the whole showman world might know that the mother of trade societies in Showland stood for all the interests, however individual and sectional, and that its proud distinction was "each for all, all for each." He seconded the resolution.

It was then submitted by the chairman to the meeting and carried unanimously.

Other Resolutions and Speeches.

The HON. SECRETARY proposed and the CHAPLAIN seconded that the annual report and the Chaplain's report be taken as read and adopted. This was carried.

Both these reports have already been given to our readers, and copies (reprinted from our columns) were distributed amongst the audience before the meeting commenced.

At the request of the president, the Guild chaplain and organiser, the Rev. T. Horne, read the financial statement for 1908 :—

Income from all sources, £613 10s. 4d.; expenditure on all counts, £587 9s. 8d.; cash in the bank, £26 0s. 8d. Grand total, £613 10s. 4d.

The items of expenditure were: salaries and wages, £44 2s.; printing and stationery, £55 5s. 7d.; petty cash, postages, and sundries, £55 1s. 11d.; expenses of meetings and propaganda work, £107 5s.; grant to Parliamentary Defence Fund and Defence of Fairs Account, £215 1s.

In making this statement of their finance public the Executive Council wish it to be clearly understood that any subscribing member, on application to the Guild Secretary, The Era Offices, Strand, W.C., would be supplied with a copy of the chartered accountant's fully audited and certified balance-sheet. He wanted also to refer to the most gratifying fact that compared with some of the previous years of their existence they had doubled their income (great applause), and what was of more importance, as indicating the solidarity of Showland in trade defence, they had more than doubled their member roll. This was clearly a matter for congratulation, because the increase was most largely in the numerous body of amusement caterers who followed our fairs with minor amusements. In other words, he said, it was the poorer members of the show community (who could only be expected to give the minimum subscription of 5s.) who had rallied to the call of the executive to fall into line, and to defend their common interests. (Cheers.)

Other interesting items of financial moment were read to the meeting by Mr. HURST (hon. secretary). Amongst these were the announcement that the proceeds of the Bolton ball amounted to £13 6s. 9d., and that the showmen's benefit performance for the Bolton charities had reached the handsome sum of £41 11s. 4½d.

Messrs. Superintendent Pike and Wm. Pike, T. Hurst, G. Cornwell, and the committee of the Bolton ball were accorded a hearty vote of thanks, and Mr. Wm. Pike made suitable response.

Resolution of Thanks to the Executive Council.

The Rev. H. NORBURN, Senior Honorary Local Chaplain, moved a resolution of thanks to the retiring Executive in the following terms :—"That this meeting thanks the Executive Council of the Showmen's Guild for its excellent work in 1908." He very much feared (he observed), and his fears were largely increased by the report they had all read with so much interest of the past year's work of the Guild, that Englishmen were fast losing that grand privilege and heritage of their fathers, individual liberty.

In the better organisation and in the municipalisation of the life of the people aggregated in large towns, a great deal of the liberty formerly enjoyed by the British people was of necessity denied to them. To the great spread of social advantages he had not the slightest objection, but he could not help noticing (and he was not alone in his observation) that things were being carried much too far in excess of the right use and advantage of municipal service. They had read in the reports of their society of a new Movable Dwellings Bill. In opposition to that Bill, the showmen took their stand upon the great principles of individual freedom and civil rights.

The attempt to stigmatise them as wandering gipsies and as outcasts and outlaws in sullen rebellion against the improved conditions of social life was a libel upon them as an industrious and God-fearing class in the community. (Applause.)

In "The Showmen's Brief against the Movable Dwellings Bill" it was clearly set out that the great injury sought to be inflicted by that Bill on van-dwellers was in making a fundamental change in the administration of the ordinary law of the land, that in all sanitary and educational matters the policeman should take the place of the sanitary inspector and the school attendance officer.

It was to him a change tremendous in its range that marked van-dwellers as a class separate and apart from the rest of the community—so great that it was incumbent upon the promoters of such legislation to show to the whole of the nation reasons sufficient to justify so drastic a change, and so direct an invasion of the rights of the individual. (Great cheering.)

To illustrate from an incident in his own experience this eagerness on the part of would-be reformers and faddists to make the policeman the "whip in hand" in civil as well as in criminal matters, he told them that for the first time in his life a policeman came to his door the other week and politely presented a sheet of blue paper. In amazement he said, "What is this, officer?" The reply was "It is a warning to you that you have not yet paid your dog licence." (Laughter.)

My friends (he said), it is humorous, but it is humour of a grim nature. He asked why should the policeman be employed to do the work of revenue officials? He keenly resented the police being employed for purposes better done and less obtrusively done by revenue officers, sanitary inspectors, and school attendance officials. (Cheers.)

Turning to the annual report of his dear friend and colleague in the ministry, Mr. Horne. He had been for years past profoundly impressed by the growing importance of the Guild Chaplain's work. Quite recently on the appearance of the Guild Chaplain's report of his itinerary of the British Fairs, he had noticed the unanimity with which the Press and the public of Great Britain had appreciated the Chaplain's unceasing devotion to the cause he had so much at heart—the uplifting and betterment of the popular amusements of the people, and with that (of necessity) the uplifting and betterment of the showman. (Great applause.)

As in the matter with which he had opened his address to them with reference to the curtailment of individual liberty, so with regard to the popular amusements of the nation, he was convinced that not only did the showman do an important work, but it was becoming an increasingly more necessary work, this provision for open-air and healthy amusements for the toiling masses of the land.

They were workmen who had no need to be ashamed of the ancient and honourable craft to which they belonged. (Great cheering.)

The Sanitary Sanity of Fun and Hilarity.

He ventured to hold the opinion that the stress and strain of modern life, the speeding up and machining of industries, made hilarity and honest laughter absolutely necessary medicine for the toilers of Great Britain. He had watched the faces of men and women in their busy streets with eyes fixed and strained, and with anxious faces, evidently pressing forward on enterprises of such engrossing importance that there was never a time for a smile or a cheery word. For such workworn people the fun and hilarity of the fairground was an effective medicine and corrective. He held with the scientific experts that the sanitation of the brain was as necessary as the sanitation of any other part of our complex physical nature. (Cheers.)

The Executive Council had done admirable work in 1908. The Chaplain's work had been acclaimed in every paper, and in every household in the land, and it was in acknowledgment and in praise of that excellent work that he had proposed the resolution he had already read to them. (Applause.)

The Parliamentary Solicitor's Tribute of Praise.

Your Executive Council, said Mr. T. WATSON WRIGHT, in seconding the resolution proposed by the Rev. H. Norburn, has done splendid work in the past year. The subscriptions have been largely increased, the members' roll has been doubled, and owing to the startling and alarming effect produced in showland by the Movable Dwellings Bill of the past session the whole body of British showpeople have been welded together, and now stood full front and strongly entrenched in defensive strength against their enemies. (Cheers.)

There were before the coming session of Parliament five Corporation Bills with clauses dealing with show life. The Corporations seeking these extra powers were: Oldham, Bury, Folkestone, Cardiff, and Greenock (in Scotland). It would be the duty of the new Executive Council in committee at London next week to consider these Bills in all their bearings. He would not anticipate the resolution which he was informed would be submitted to them later, condemning the proposals of the Oldham Corporation. This, however, he must observe, that the Corporation had neglected to acquaint themselves with the previous decisions of the Private Bills Committee of Parliament.

In every instance since the Guild commenced its Parliamentary work, they had successfullly petitioned against such powers being granted to local authorities, the most notable examples being the Corporations of Halifax and Rotherham. The Oldham Corporation asked for monopoly privileges that were ultra vires and alien to the spirit of constitutional liberty. (Cheers.) He would venture to warn the Oldham Corporation that no Government would grant them a monopoly of Fair Rights, or interfere with the principle of free trade in Fairs. (Applause.)

Again, he said, the Corporation of Folkestone was seeking powers to penalise, almost to extinction, the show business by vexatious regulations that would place the showman absolutely at the mercy of the Town Council. Their association had successfully petitioned against such powers, and in the specific instances of Eccles, Hyde, Mansfield, Acton, and a score of other local authorities, on their evidence before the committee that such restrictions would be in restraint of freedom of trade, these additional powers clauses had been thrown out of every Bill.

He was confident that the Corporations in question, when the Guild laid the evidence of their previous successes officially before them, would withdraw the clauses and not imperil the success of their Bills by the dead weight of clauses that the Parliamentary Committees had invariably thrown out.

He asked them not only to pass a vote of thanks to the Executive Council of the Guild, but to rally to the support of an organisation that stood as a bulwark of defence between them and their enemies. (Great cheering.)

The CHAIRMAN submitted the resolution, which was passed with acclamation.

Protest Against the Movable Dwellings Bill.

Mr. FRED BIBBY moved : "That this meeting of showmen delegates and members of the Showmen's Guild of Great Britain in public meeting assembled, protest against the Movable Dwellings Bill."

"We claim as lawful traders to be under and obedient to the ordinary laws of the realm. We deny that special inquisitorial and liberty-destroying legislation is needed for our trade and mode of life.

"If the promoters of the measure want to deal with and to penalise gipsy life, let them make their object clear in their Bill by exempting showmen and fairground traders from its proposed penalties and restrictions."

The obvious intention of the promoters of the Movable Dwellings Bill was to deal with gipsy life, and without entering into the rights or wrongs of the proposed interference with such a wonderful race as the gipsies, he did claim that legislation, however desirable to control gipsy life, ought not to be used to oppress amusement caterers.

The Showmen's Guild came into existence twenty years ago, to counter a similar attack embodied in the Movable Dwellings Bill of the late George Smith. It was rather late in the day when they remembered the vast strides the show business had made in the past twenty years, to pass invidious and class legislation that stigmatised the travelling showmen as gipsies and pariahs of human society.

He protested in their name against such restrictive legislation, legislation intended to deprive them of the rights of free citizenship, the right to carry their ability and talent to its best market—the fairs, feasts, and wakes of Great Britain—the right to carry on a business as legitimate and as necessary as any other industry, or calling, or profession in the land. He, therefore, submitted the resolution so admirably worded which had been placed in his hands. (Applause.)

The Guild Chaplain's Denouncement of the Measure.

The GUILD CHAPLAIN, on rising to second the resolution, was warmly cheered. They had been engaged during the past twelve months in strenuous opposition to this most obnoxious Bill. With the full authority of the Executive Council of the Guild, he had entered into negotiations with its promoters, in the peaceful endeavour to obtain such concessions and amendments as would exempt all itinerant amusement caterers from its drastic proposals. (Hear, hear.)

The end of all their endeavours had been practically nil, and he was driven to the conclusion that behind this Bill, ostensibly meant (as Mr. Bibby had already pointed out) to deal with gipsy life, there was a covert intention of penalising and restricting the life of all van-dwellers, whether the lordling and his lady caravanning as amateur gipsies, the showman in the Pullman car living carriages that they saw in such large numbers at their fairs, or the veriest hooped and tilted ramshackle cart of the travelling tinker or gipsy.

They would realise the seriousness of their danger when he told them that the promoters had refused to accept the exemption clause suggested by the Guild to the effect "that the Act should not apply to any showman or fairground trader in using caravans in the pursuit of his lawful trade and business." This had been refused. The promoters had also refused his (the speaker's) suggestion that if the promoters would alter the title, and call it "A Gipsy Encampment Bill," they, as an organised body, would withdraw their opposition, and take upon themselves the responsibility of proving, whenever demanded by lawful authority, that showmen van-dwellers were not gipsies. Having thus exhausted all the resources of peaceful negotiations, the organised showmen were justified in appealing to the justice-loving sense of their fellow-citizens against a measure that invaded the rights and liberties of the individual. (Cheers.)

He was particularly anxious that it should go forth from that meeting as the official declaration of the Guild that in principle they had no objection to either registration or licensing of vans, so long as such registration and licensing were reasonable in terms and conditions, and were not used to give local authorities power to prohibit fairs and van-dwellers within their border.

He had made it clear officially to the Government in an interview with the Right Hon. Herbert Samuel, Under Secretary of State for the Home Department, that the organised showmen offered no opposition to the Children's Bill, or to the educational clauses of that Act or of the Movable Dwellings Bill. (Cheers.)

The Guild Executive Council had declared its policy upon these important matters. They held that if negligent parents or guardians of children neglected their duty to child life, or subjected children to cruel treatment, that the fact of such persons being showpeople ought not to be used as an excuse for criminal and negligent conduct.

What they did object to was this, that the medical officer of health and the sanitary inspector—the proper and competent experts with regard to all sanitary matters—were to be supplanted by the policeman, and, further, that the policeman was to take the place of the school attendance officer. ("Shame, shame.")

He protested with all the vigour he possessed against such a stigma being placed upon show parents, and he was prepared to prove at any time, and had indeed tendered ample evidence to the Education Department, that the children of showpeople were, as a whole, less liable to escape the educational net of the nation than the children of other classes in the community.

With regard to sanitary matters, there had been no failure of the Public Health Acts either in the home life or in the fairground life of travelling showpeople. The ordinary law applied with equal rigour to movable dwellings and tents as to fixed abodes. It was a cruel and unjustifiable aspersion upon an honest, industrious, and clean-living class to seek for special powers that could only be used to penalise their calling and business in life, and to interfere with their domestic and civil rights and liberties.

He, therefore, in the name of the organised showmen of the empire, protested against the Bill, and seconded the resolution. (Great applause.)

The motion was then submitted and unanimously passed.

The Organised Showmen and the Oldham Corporation Bill.

Mr. FRANK MELLOR, Oldham, moved : "That this meeting of showmen protests against the proposed monopoly of Fairs clauses in the Private Bill of the Oldham Corporation, and it pledges itself to take all possible means to defeat the reactionary proposals of the Corporation, manifestly aimed at the principle of free trade in fairs."

Mr. Mellor asked the showmen present to consider the effect the proposal would have if passed into law on their business. No less than eight important local wakes within the ever-widening boundaries of the Borough of Oldham could only be held by licence and consent of the authorities. He, therefore, had no hesitation in telling the Corporation as a ratepayer of Oldham (and, in fact, he had already done so, by associating himself with a hundred other ratepayers in demanding a poll) that such interference with the people's rights and liberties would meet with the strongest resentment. (Cheers.)

Mr. THORNLEY in an admirable speech seconded the resolution. It was to him a matter of vital moment, as a tradesman, the encroaching persistence of corporations in seeking for powers to penalise and interfere with the private trader. He had watched with admiration for many years past the way in which showpeople had catered for popular amusements, and he agreed with their reverend friends who had already addressed them that instead of local authorities putting hindrances in their way, the showmen ought to be encouraged by the corporations in their necessary work of providing for the entertainment of the people.

He seconded the motion most readily, and wished the showmen every success in the firm stand they were making against this pernicious Bill of the Oldham Corporation.

The motion was passed with acclamation. The secretary announced a committee meeting for the evening and the annual London meeting of the Guild, at the World's Fair, Islington, on Wednesday next, Jan. 20, at 11.30 a.m., when Mr. Patrick Collins would preside, and the Guild executive officials and friends of their trade defence movement would take part in the proceedings.

The meeting terminated after a session of two hours' duration.

THE STORY OF PSYCHE.—In this extremely interesting film the scenes opens with the temple of Venus. Psyche, the king's daughter, is possessed of such wonderful beauty that the people mistake her for the goddess, who is now so jealous that she threatens her with her revengeful power. As soon as the temple is deserted, Venus calls in Cupid, to whom she gives an arrow wherewith to hurt Psyche. Psyche is walking about the gardens of the king's palace and presently she falls asleep near the source of a river. Cupid comes near her, and bends his bow, but the god is so fascinated by the girl's beauty that he falls in love with her, and goes away without hurting her. In Olympus Venus rouses the anger of the gods against Psyche and her people, while Cupid begs them to protect her. The gods try to please Venus and Cupid at the same time, and order a cataclysm to ruin the country: there are earthquakes, cyclones, and lightning. In the Palace hall, whose windows open on the now ravaged country, the king and his councillors are powerless to check the damage. People gather in the courtyards, asking for help, and the king summons the soothsayers, who search for an answer in the sky. Mercury appears, and delivers a message from Apollo asking for the sacrifice of Psyche. The king will not comply with this demand, but the people ask that Psyche should be sacrificed, while she herself says that she is ready. She goes out, clad in her regal attire, followed by her women, and proceeds towards the sea by torch-light. The procession is now at the bottom of a cliff washed by the tide. Once alone, Psyche gives way to her despair. Furies from the sea come to her, and try to take her away with them, but Zephir and Aquilon protect her and lift her up on the clouds. Psyche is now in the dwelling-place of Cupid. She is amazed at the beauty of her surroundings, and still wandering she enters Cupid's palace. Cupid is displeased by her seeming indiscretion, and he sends her away. She wanders about the garden sad and lonely. When Venus sees her sitting weeping on a marble step she allows herself to be touched by her misery, and she causes Psyche to marry Cupid. An apotheosis in which Psyche and Cupid are represented in the same attitude as that of the marble group by Canova in the Louvre Museum in Paris, forms a good finish to this film, which is remarkable for the plastic of its tableaux.

DEADLY PLANT.—Two young people, one boy and one girl, under age, have been left by their father's will to the care of a medical man, who goes with them during the summer to the mountains to gather plants. The brother and sister are becoming quite proficient in the art of herborising, and this causes the boy, who has just found a deadly plant, to give it to his sister, so that she may die, and leave him her part of the heritage. But the good doctor has seen him looking for the plant, and now that he sees the young lady writhing with the pain caused by the poison, he guesses what has happened, and gives her a suitable remedy. She recovers quickly, while the young would-be-murderer is handed over to the police.

IN THE LAND OF THE MIDNIGHT SUN.—This series treats the spectator to a number of attractive country and ocean scenes. We see the good ship bound for the Arctic seas, the meeting with the first ice, the arrival of the voyagers at the land of Spitzberg, with pictures of a glacier washed by the sea, and the coast half a mile distant, and, finally, of the "Midnight Sun."

DICK IS NOT DEAD.—Dick, who might give points to our friend Jim, so well known for his eccentricities, writes to a friend of his in order to inform him that he is not dead, but simply in love, and that, like Ruy Blas, he has become a servant so than he can live near the lady of his dreams. She, having surprised this correspondence, gives notice to her enterprising butler. Eventually Dick borrows a cripple's small carriage, and ties his vehicle to the motor-car of his beloved. Thus he arrives at the same time as the lady at the end of the journey, which has been bestrewn for Dick with nasty jolts and jerks. When the poor boy is found out, the lady orders her chauffeur to rid her of the intruder. In his despair Dick throws himself under a motor-car, the heavy machine rolls him over like a feather without hurting him in the least, and as soon as he is on his feet again, he tries to find another means of killing himself; but the revolver he uses will not go off, and it is in vain that he tries to hang himself. He also throws himself out of the window, and lands in a sewer main whose man-hole happens to be open. The sewer-man catches hold of him and puts him back in the street again, where Dick, surprised and charmed at the same time, perceives his idol, and kisses the stones she has walked on. This makes the sewer-man laugh, and Dick is so furious that he goes for him with all his might, and rewards his rescuer with a shower of blows.

THE DIFFERENT AEROPLANES.—These pictures are illustrative of the Voisin Works at Billancourt, where most of the existing aeroplanes were built; Messrs. Santos Dumont, Kapferer, and Archdeacon attending Mr. Delagrange's experiments; the Henry Farman aeroplane in November, 1907; Mr. Blériot meeting with an accident at Bagatelle; the Bréguet gyroplane, the Esnault-Pelterie, the Kapferer, and the Antionette aeroplanes; the monoplane with which Mr. Blériot tried to win the prize for height, and the Wright aeroplane piloted by Mr. Wilbur Wright at the Aubours Camp. This last aeroplane has beaten all previous records.

AT-HOME DAY.—During her master's absence, cook receives a visit from Private Pumpkins. It is with real pleasure that he partakes of a leg of chicken, after which he has his coffee in the drawing-room. Suddenly there is a ring at the door. Cook pushes Pumpkins into the bath-room, and he takes it all in. He admires the comfort of it, turns on the taps, and thinks he will have a free bath. Meanwhile cook, who has friends in the cavalry as well as the infantry, opens to Bragg, a dashing dragoon, who accepts with delight the other leg of chicken, and makes himself pleasant to the girl. A second ring at the bell. What is to be done? Cook pushes her dragoon into the bathroom, where he finds himself in company with Pumpkins, who is now trying to turn off the water-taps to stop the swelling inundations. Bragg deals him a blow, and the two tumble down in a heap on the wet floor. The noise attracts the master, who has just returned, and their look of horror may easily be pictured.

Gaumont Co.

THE EARTHQUAKE IN SICILY.—The Gaumont Company has just issued a very graphic film of the recent terrible destruction wrought in Sicily by the earthquake. Houses are thrown wholesale into the middle of the streets, and people are seen wandering about aimlessly. A continuous stream of injured is being borne on stretchers to the open-air hospitals, where doctors of all nationalities are ready to receive them. A man found robbing the dead is seen between two soldiers being led away to the fate he justly deserves. The picture concludes with a few survivors awaiting their turn to be transferred to one of the ships sent to their relief.

WIFE OR MOTHER.—A young farmer's wife is awaiting the return of her husband, when a woman offering lace for sale comes by. A shawl is selected and bought, but the girl's mother-in-law taxes her with being extravagant. The girl objects to being interfered with, and tells her husband that either she or the mother must leave the house. He takes his wife's part, and the poor old woman is told to go. Shortly afterwards the man is taken ill, and the wife, not knowing how to act, the doctor says his mother must return. The wife runs away, and after careful nursing the man recovers to find his wife gone and his mother back. He gazes on a portrait of the missing girl, and the mother, seeing that he is longing for her, fetches her home. The misunderstanding is then cleared up, and they ask their mother's forgiveness.

THE TWO PIGTAILS.—Two Chinamen arrive in Paris, and while sitting on a seat somebody ties their pigtails together. They both rush away, and in their mad career bring about several catastrophes. Eventually one gets caught up by a crane which is at work, and is only released when the top of his scalp comes off with the fatal pigtail.

ENGLAND V. AUSTRALIA FOOTBALL MATCH.—The Gaumont Company has secured a good film, even though the weather was bad, of the international Rugby match between England and Australia. Very fine pictures are given of the two teams, who posed specially for the camera, as well as their entry to the field, and some very exciting parts of the game.

WEST'S PICTURES, EDINBURGH.—The Modern Marvel Company, Ltd., of the Albert Hall, has a high name for first-class films, and the firm engage a considerable number of artists during the year. Mr. T. J. West does a large business in Australasia, where he employs over 300 people.

AN UNEXPECTED SANTA CLAUS.—A trio of good fellows call on Gayboy, and during the visit, being interrupted by a pedlar, they decide to buy his stock of Christmas decorations and invite some lady friends from the theatre for a good time on Christmas Eve. Invitations are sent out, presents bought, a tree set up, and a caterer is engaged. In addition, the caretaker is secured to take the part of Santa Claus. The festivities commence with Gayboy sending his wife an intimation that he is detained on important business. His boon companions arrive along with Tottie, Dottie, Rosebud, and Dimples, and the fun begins. Having received the note, Mrs. Gayboy decides to keep her husband company, and arrives at the office just as the caretaker is dressing for his part—Santa Claus. Grasping the situation, she squares him to let her take his place. Making up ready for her new part, she gets into another office to watch the hilarity of the party. Tottie Twinkletoes gives her latest dance from "gay Paree," and then Santa Claus is invoked to bring in the presents. The mirth soon turns to surprise when Tottie gets a pair of woolsocks instead of silk hose, and Dottie in place of the expected French slippers gets a pair of rough shoes. The girls, thinking themselves the victims of a coarse joke, start a lively scene, in the midst of which Mrs. Gayboy throws off her disguise and leads her husband out by the ear.

TURNING OVER A NEW LEAF.—It is New Year's Eve, and Jones is seen making for home after watching the Old Year out—through the bottom of a glass—in a very unsteady fashion. Next morning his wife has no difficulty in coaxing him to make a promise to be done with drink, tobacco, staying out late at night, to keep a check upon his temper, and give a hand to make the home a paradise. He starts all right, but little Willie soon upsets him. The drum is a very noisy instrument, so to calm himself Jones tries a strong cigar. His wife asks him to do a few odd jobs and mind the baby, but he refuses point blank, and makes a bee-line for his club to find consolation. With a few fellow sufferers he appears happy, and they decide on a little recreation. Getting hold of a water-cart they all mount and go for a ride, but every "pub." passed claims a victim, until Jones and one or two others are left. As if in league with the Evil One, the cart breaks down outside a brewery, and whilst waiting for the repairs to be finished they go inside the brewery. They come out one by one, Jones being last to leave. He is very pleased with things in general. When he gets home his wife is delighted to see him, and, using the rolling-pin to some effect, makes him still more pleased.

MR. H. BODDINGTON, the manager of the Clapham Assembly Rooms, which is just closing its picture season, occupies the unique position of being the only licensee under the auspices of the London County Council who holds the Kinematograph Association's certificate for proficiency as a biograph operator. It is an example worth following. If all the managers of picture shows held the manufacturer's certificate, dangerous or bad operating would soon become a thing of the past.

THE Willesden District Council have decided to take action against the numerous cinematograph shows which have recently opened in small shops, with a view to ensuring the safety of the audience in case of fire or panic by the provision of proper exits.

EAST HAM PALACE.

The premier attraction here this week is the return visit of the famous bloodless surgeon Dr. Walford Bodie, who is again delighting and astounding the Palace patrons with his marvellous feats with electricity. His latest sensation, The Cage of Death, during which he sends through his body many thousand volts of electric current, holds the large audiences spellbound. As usual, Dr. Bodie is endearing himself to the hearts of the parents and relatives of those crippled by paralysis, and each evening he has given many a cripple the ability to once again use his previously useless limb.

Little Dolly Robson, one of Dr. Bodie's cures, receives the warmest applause for her dainty singing, her favourite song, "I'm always in the way," being loudly applauded. Miss Cassie Walmer gives an excellent turn, her song "Good-bye, Ebenezer" causing much amusement. In rendering this song as an American lady, coster, "Johnnie" and a Hebrew would sing it in their style, Miss Walmer's mimicry is decidedly clever and funny. Her performance concludes with a smartly-executed sand-dance, which gained for her great applause. Miss Bella Skene sings two "catchy" songs, "I want to be a Merry Widow" and "My sweet Rainbow," each being pleasingly rendered and well received.

A very clever and diverting aerial act is given by Spangles and Sawdust; Selbo, the world's greatest club juggler and china plate thrower, wins great favour by his clever and almost bewildering performance, and he received on the evening of our visit a prolonged call for an encore. Wilman, the Australian instrumentalist, is also a very popular turn, and his playing of the post-horn, French horn, and other silver instruments is well received by the audience. Some disappointment was caused by the unavoidable absence of Viviana and company in the comedy scena The Toy Shop. However, an efficient deputy was secured in Professor Rickard and his gorilla.

Alteration of Fair Date.

THE Corporation of Llandovery has petitioned the Home Secretary to alter the date of the August Fair from the 2nd of the month to the 10th. Any Welsh showman objecting to this change of date must lodge his complaint at the Home Office before Jan. 26, 1909.

Showmen and the Oldham Corporation.

WE made in these columns last week a brief reference to the reactionary proposals of the Oldham Corporation in their new Improvement Bill. Our reference was to additional powers vastly in excess of the ordinary law that the Corporation is seeking in order to secure a monopoly in fairs. The Manchester Guardian, in its issue of Jan. 12, warns the Oldham Corporation of the rashness of the effort to secure powers of the drastic nature they desire. In its "London Correspondence" the Manchester Guardian says:—

"Legislation Affecting Showmen.

"THE showmen are making inquiries why the Oldham Corporation is proposing to secure powers to prevent the holding of a fair without the licence of the Corporation. The Parliamentary agent of the showmen has hitherto successfully opposed the insertion of such a clause in every case, and such has been the effect of the decisions of Parliamentary Committees on the point that for the past year or two there have been no such clauses attempted. This year there are a number of bills in which attempts are being again made to interfere with the showmen. But the Home Office have now taken upon themselves the duty of pointing out to Parliamentary Committees that in recent years the insertion of such clauses as that in the Oldham Bill has been absolutely refused by Parliament, and no Committee is so conservative in its attitude as the Police and Sanitary Committee, to which the matter will be referred in the ordinary course."

THE information that the Home Office is undertaking the work of warning corporations that such-like proposals have already been thrown out of corporation Bills by the Private Bills Committee is of the utmost value to the organised showmen. We may go a step further, and warn public bodies seeking for powers in excess of the ordinary law in order to restrict and to penalise show business that the Showmen's Guild, if compelled by corporations not amenable to the friendly warnings of the Home Office or the Local Government Board, will, in every instance of corporations seeking such powers, as in the case of the Acton local authority, ask for costs against the corporations. In the important Parliamentary case of the Acton local authority the Committee granted the Guild its costs. We were sanguine enough to believe that, with the heavy costs secured by the organised showmen against Acton, other public bodies would learn the lesson and not waste the ratepayers' money in seeking for extraordinary powers that can only burden their Bills and cause the Committees of Parliament to punish them by the imposition of costs for vexatious annoyance and damage to petitioners.

Ruffell's Bioscope at Sunderland.

THIS enterprising firm of cinematograph renown made a bold venture for public favour at the Palace Theatre, Sunderland. There are five other picture shows running in the town, and competition is keen and up-to-date. The New Era Animated Picture Co. (Ruffell's) are opening new ventures in various towns, and intend running their numerous shows on high-class lines.

Camel Races at the World's Fair.

THERE was great excitement at the World's Fair, Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, when the preliminaries for the coming great camel races were put into rehearsal this morning. Mounted by native attendants they cantered round the vast hall in laps at a great pace. Their comic antics give promise of some rare novel sport and great fun, and will be a new addition to the enormous programme now drawing such vast crowds to the fair, and the colossal show given is much appreciated.

THE Fun City at the Drill Hall, Bath, closes a successful period to-night (Saturday).

Close of the Waverley Market Fair, Edinburgh.

SIR EDWARD Moss' annual carnival in the Waverley Market closed its doors on Saturday evening after a very successful three weeks' run. There was a huge crowd present, and it was with difficulty one could move about. No disorderliness marked the closing, and after the band had played "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem, the crowds streamed out quietly. Great interest was taken in the platform performance, and when Yukio Tani, the famous Japanese wrestler, made his appearance, the enclosure was crowded to overflowing and other advantageous positions were quickly commandeered. After the usual preliminary exhibition the Jap was opposed by K. C. Olsen, Newcastle, who, after a plucky bout tapped the mat in 7min. 45sec. Next C. Laurie, Glasgow, who made a capital stand earlier in the week, faced Tani. The Glasgow man did splendidly, and the Jap had more than once to bring into play his ingenuity to get clear of Laurie's holds. With his famous leg hold, however, Tani made Laurie tap the mat in 9min. 25sec. Laurie was presented with a silver cup for the amateur making the best stand against the Jap.

Presentation by the Showmen.

AN interesting presentation ceremony took place in Edinburgh on Saturday, the recipient being Mr. William Orr, representative of the North British Railway Company. Mr. Orr has been for a great many years associated with travelling showmen, and as some recognition for his many services in assisting them while travelling, the showmen at the Carnival presented him with a handsome gold watch and an illuminated address. Mr. G. Fronson, manager of Bostock and Wombwell's, presided, and handed over the watch on behalf of his colleagues. Mr. Thomas Howard, director of the Howard Family, made reference to the many good qualities of Mr. Orr. The recipient afterwards thanked the showmen for the gift and the kindly feeling which prompted them to subscribe for it. It had always been a pleasure to him to provide for their comfort when on the railway.

TENDERING FOR SITES AT FAIRS.

The executive council of the Showmen's Guild and the committee of the Roundabout Proprietors' and Showmen's Union, are acting together in a matter of the gravest possible importance. For the past few years advantage has been taken of showmen by corporations in the new method of advertising for tenders for sites on the fairgrounds.

This has been extremely cute business for corporations, but vicious and bad in principle and practice for showmen. It is notorious to those in the business that such methods let loose the floodgates of unfair competition, and tend to increase the bad blood existing in these keen competitive times between rival traders and amusement caterers.

We know of these things, and have watched them with growing alarm, and increasing concern. The time has now arrived for an effort to be made to put an end to these most unfair and vicious methods of competitive trading.

The Blackburn Easter Fair.

This important corporation is the last to adopt the method of advertising for tenders for their coming Easter Fair. The rents already are heavy, and the business very precarious, when the average weather conditions at Easter are taken (as they must be) into consideration.

A Deputation to the Local Government Board.

Acting for the allied trade societies, the Rev. T. Horne and Mr. George Green are moving the powers that be in this matter, so perilous with future evil if allowed to proceed unchecked.

Mr. George Green went fully into the question, and reference was made to the various statutes governing markets and fairs, and with regard to Blackburn the Blackburn Improvement Act and all their bye-laws relating to markets and fairs.

The Guild Chaplain and Organiser waited upon the Secretary to the Local Government Board, and in a long (and, we trust, fruitful interview) explained the showmen's position and claim in the matter.

Petition to the Local Government Board.

The following is the text of the petition drafted by the Guild Executive, and sent to that important department of State:—

THE SHOWMEN'S GUILD OF GREAT BRITAIN.
Offices: 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.
Jan. 12, 1909.

To the Secretary, Local Government Board.

SIR,—The committee of the above trade society have had before them the two advertisements herewith submitted.

They relate to an alteration in the methods of the Corporation of Blackburn in letting standings in their open market grounds for Easter Fair.

Our members have for many years attended the Fair; they have willingly paid the fixed tolls demanded by the Corporation; they object to the proposed method of letting by tender.

They submit that under the Blackburn Improvement Act and the Markets and Fairs Clauses Act (governing markets and fairs in the Borough of Blackburn) that the putting up of the standings for competitive tender is exceeding the powers possessed by the Corporation.

In the schedules of the Blackburn Improvement Act tolls for stalls and standings are fixed by statute, and they, therefore, respectfully submit that any new method of letting standings at prices in excess of the tolls fixed by statute is a violation of the existing law.

As traders and as amusement caterers, they carry on an extremely precarious business—a business always subject to the indeterminate elements of weather. It is essentially an open air and fine weather business—good or bad trade, and the coincidence of local holidays.

The only fair and just method of assessing tolls is by a fixed scale, having regard to the above fluctuating circumstances.

To be compelled to submit tenders introduces factors of grave danger to the stability of the business.

We hold that the whole spirit of legislation is to fix the scale of tollage in order (1) To protect the trader from undue exaction by the local authority; and (2) to enable him to accurately estimate the expenses attending his venture.

Tendering for sites (even if lawful) is extremely injurious, for it leads to cut-throat competition between rival traders, and that inevitably tends to reckless trading.

If these, our views, are in accordance with the accepted trend of legislation and the spirit of the Markets and Fairs Acts, we respectfully ask for relief in the specific case we have submitted to you.

We fear that other corporations will follow Blackburn. In fact, we know of many instances already of the vicious methods of advertising for tenders for spaces.

The amusement caterers and showmen are engaged in one of the most ancient of British industries. Over seventy thousand workers are directly concerned in its prosperity and continuance.

The industry also concerns indirectly a number of other trades. It is a highly specialised kind of work, and any departure from the ordinary and long accepted conditions of trade (and tendering for sites is a great departure) is of the gravest concern to the organised showmen, whom we represent.

Begging your most favourable consideration to the above statement, I remain, honoured sir,

Your obedient servant,
THOMAS HORNE,
Organiser and Chaplain.
For the Executive Council of the Guild.

South Wales Echoes.

MESSRS. WADBROOKE still have an attractive programme for their patrons at Pontypridd, and some smart variety turns are introduced.

MESSRS. R. DOONER AND SON at Maesteg have some interesting pictures, which have drawn good houses, also some smart variety items.

MESSRS. CRECRAFT, at Porth, still maintain their popularity. Many new pictures have arrived. The variety turns are popular.

MR. S. WHITE is at Merthyr Vale, where his new organ is much admired. With his Bioscope show he has his helter-skelter and tunnel railway.

MESSRS. HANCOCK'S Bioscope is still touring the Rhondda Valley with some good pictures and varieties.

MESSRS. WM. HAGGAR'S No. 1 and No. 2 shows are in the neighbourhood of Aberdare, where they are attracting good houses. Several new subjects are introduced.

THE World's Fair at Cardiff, with its many attractions, still proves a popular pleasure resort for Cardiff people and surrounding valleys.

Carmarthen.

THIS week again an attractive programme has been presented by Mr. Harry Cowell and his company at the Phœnix Theatre, at the Carmarthen Pleasure Fairground. On Monday The Shaughraun was produced; Tuesday, Scamps of London; Wednesday, Gipsy Vengeance; Thursday, Saucy Susan; and Friday, The Wickedness of Man. For Saturday afternoon a children's pantomime, Beauty and the Beast, was billed, and for Saturday evening The Cruel Father. The above varied programme has been most capably placed upon the boards each evening, and, consequently, large audiences have patronised the theatre.

FILM MANUFACTURERS AND EXHIBITORS AT DINNER

Mr. Robert W. Paul presided at a dinner held at the Holborn Restaurant on Thursday evening, and attended by cinematograph film manufacturers and exhibitors. The function proved a most agreeable one, for it brought into pleasant and harmonious relations many representatives of the two most important branches of the moving picture business. Amongst those present were Messrs. F. R. Griffiths (vice-chairman), W. F. Jury, W. Barker, M. Raymond, A. J. West, J. Williamson, A. E. Bromhead, T. J. West, A. Williamson, J. D. Walker, H. H. Wrench, A. Wright, W. Jeapes, J. Marten, E. T. Heron, J. Rosenthal, W. Jeffs, G. Brown, J. Avery, D. H. Smith, G. Henderson (Newcastle) F. Weisher, Haddow, Landeman, Stow, Nathan, Brockless, Bishop, Cricks, Howse, Kempson, and J. Brooke Wilkinson (secretary).

The chairman in proposing the toast of "The King," said that they were met together in the friendliest manner. At the present time the trade was in a flourishing condition, and it was getting bigger every day. It had progressed continuously for twelve years, and had now arrived at a stage when it was regarded as a very important industry in the eyes of the public. They—the manufacturers and the exhibitors—could congratulate each other upon being present at the first dinner of the trade, considered as a whole. They had had a dinner in connection with the Manufacturers' Association on one or two occasions, but had never had an opportunity of meeting together as on the present occasion. He thought that their coming together in such a manner tended to secure harmonious relations, and was for the good of the business. It was a most interesting business, and so long as they continued to delight the public they need not fear the future. Then the more brains they could introduce into the conduct of their undertakings, and the greater variety of thought they could bring to bear upon them, the better it would be for the success of the whole trade. There was plenty of room for individuality. The chairman concluded by associating with the toast the names of Mr. W. F. Jury and Mr. T. J. West.

Mr. W. F. Jury, responding to the toast, indulged in a fighting speech, in which he complained of bias on the part of the manufacturers against the exhibitors. He thought that, for the welfare of the animated picture trade, the whole matter should be thoroughly understood between the two parties—that the manufacturers should have their share of the spoils and that the hirers should have their share. He claimed that the exhibitors and the hirers were justified in getting a certain share of the profits of the business. There should be no cutting of prices—these should be maintained all through the trade. He thought it was only fair to the exhibitors, who had helped to build up the cinematograph trade, that they should not be barred or any bias brought to bear against them. He strongly condemned any lowering of the prices. It was no good selling a film at as cheap a rate as 3d. a foot when the film was worthless or of poor quality, and he hoped that the Manufacturers' Association would look at the subject in the proper light.

Mr. T. J. West, replying to the same toast, delivered an excellent address with capital elocution. They were living, he said, in very strenuous times so far as the cinematograph industry was concerned. Referring to the 3d. a foot film, he pointed out that a cheap quality meant general dissatisfaction as well as a risk of danger. The most important factor in relation to the industry was the public. He thought that the showman frequently got a great deal of credit he did not deserve. He had often, at the termination of a show, heard the encomiums of his patrons passed upon the pictures he had shown. It was the manufacturer who had enabled the showman to please the public, and so long as the public were being pleased the trade would not suffer. Mr. West expressed the opinion that everyone should do his utmost to elevate the show. It should also be made possible for the "little man" to get his films on the same terms as the "big man." The manufacturers could do much to elevate the business—in one way by refusing to have two different prices. He himself did not ask to be supplied with a film at a cheaper rate than was paid by any other showman. He was always willing to pay a fair and reasonable price for the product. In the case of a special picture, the production of which had involved much expense and trouble, it was only to be expected that the maker would charge a little more than for an ordinary film. Then those who rented films should only send out pictures concerning the quality of which no complaint could be advanced. The showman could assist the business by firmly making up his mind that he would never exhibit a picture which would offend any individual member of his audience. It was desirable that there should be formed a renters' association and a showmen's association, which would work in conjunction with the Manufacturers' Association, and it was desirable that these should help each other as much as possible. Mr. West concluded by remarking that the showmen and the renters owed a great deal to the manufacturers.

Mr. W. Barker rose to speak on the questions raised by Mr. Jury, but the chairman stated that it was not desirable to have a discussion at a complimentary dinner. A meeting would be arranged at which the matters under dispute could be thrashed out.

Mr. A. J. West proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. F. R. Griffiths for his services in arranging the concert portion of the evening's function, and to Mr. J. Brooke Wilkinson for his exertions as secretary. He hoped all would unite for the common good of the cinematograph art and industry. Mr. West interested his hearers by relating a few incidents connected with his experience of the business.

Mr. Griffiths returned thanks on behalf of the artists and himself.

Mr. M. Raymond proposed "The Press," and Mr. E. T. Heron replied.

The chairman announced that they had decided to hold, on Feb. 18, a joint meeting of manufacturers and exhibitors for the purpose of discussing the relations between the exhibitor and the hiring agent and the manufacturer, with a view to putting affairs on an amicable footing in their future work.

A vote of thanks to the chairman brought the proceedings to a close.

Roller-Skating at Liverpool.

BUSINESS continues to be good at the Tournament Hall in Edge-lane, Liverpool, where many hundreds attend daily to enjoy the exhilarating sport of roller-skating. Members of the theatrical profession, engaged in and about the city, often pay a visit, and during the week Mr. Frank Gotch, the American champion wrestler, put in several appearances and showed exceptional skill as a "rinker."

ON Tuesday evening the Skating Rink, Olympia, will be given up to a skating Cinderella, when it will be necessary for all skaters to appear in ordinary evening dress. These Cinderellas have proved highly popular on the provincial rinks under Mr. Crawford's management. On Jan. 22 he has placed the rink at the disposal of "Our Dumb Friends League," and there will be an afternoon carnival in aid of the society, to which H.R.H. Princess Christian has granted her special patronage.

INVENTIONS.

[The particulars furnished below of recent applications for patents are taken from the official records. Correspondence is invited with our readers on all matters relating to new ideas and inventions, with a view to affording them advice and assistance. Letters should be addressed to the Manager, Inventions Department, "The Era," 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, London.]

Inventors and others who have no business representative are invited to communicate with the Manager of the Inventions Dept. as above.

APPLICATIONS.

28,191. Percy Edward Slayton, of London. Table football played with draughts.

28,251.—Christopher Frederick Eckhardt and Alfred James Holladay, of London. Improvements in dolls, such as toy soldiers and the like.

28,284.—Alfred Fischer and Richard Goldenburg, of London. Improvements in vehicles suitable for purposes of sport.

28,310.—Scipio Africanus Mussabini, Charles Ransom, and John George Payne, of Wembley, Middlesex. Improvements in devices for indicating or recording points in games, and for other purposes.

28,336.—Henry William Hamblin Palmer, of Tunbridge Wells. Improvements in apparatus for photographing and exhibiting cinematograph and mutoscope pictures.

28,377.—Thomas Watson Hill, of London. Improvements in riding stirrups.

28,427.—Ronald Calcott Evans, of London. Improvement in roller skates.

28,490.—Louis Claude Joseph Bouracier, of London. Improvements in race games.

28,497.—Angel Bruno, of London. New or improved device for the purposes of amusement and entertainment.

28,515.—William Griffith Honey, of London. Improvements in apparatus for chess, draughts, and other games.

28,525.—Lucien Anspach, of London. Electric transmission of visual images.

28,564.—Henry Swallwood Yoxall and Joseph Easthope, of Birmingham. Improvements in wheels for roller skates and the like, and in the manufacture of the same.

ABRIDGMENTS OF SPECIFICATIONS.

18,323.—Gymnastic apparatus. Larsen, N., of Copenhagen.

Horizontal bars.—Relates to that kind of gymnastic apparatus known as "double booms," consisting of two beams supported one over the other in the same vertical plane, and used for combined hanging and swinging exercises. According to the present invention, the apparatus is so arranged as to be out of the way when not in use, and to be rapidly made ready for use. The frame of the apparatus consists of two standards (a, *a*1) fixed to the walls, channelled vertically to receive the outer ends of the horizontal boom beams and an horizontal U-shaped iron rail (b) fastened to the ceiling. The horizontal boom beams are divided at the centre, and are supported at their inner end by an intermediate movable upright as shown, which is provided at its upper end with rollers (*c*1, *c*2) adapted to run on the rail (b). The upright (c) is drawn to and fro by means of a rope (f) and a system of pulleys. When in proper position, it is fixed to the floor by bolts (*e*1, *e*2), and in this position, the rollers (*c*1, *c*2) enter notches in the rail (b). The boom beams (o, n, *o*1, *n*1) are carried by ropes passing over pulleys and counter-weighted. When in position they are secured by bolts. The ends of the boom beams are enlarged to fit the flanges of the uprights, and the arrangement of ropes and pulleys is such that both ends of a beam are raised simultaneously by pulling on one rope. The lower beams are suspended by bolt-hooks, which are pivoted or swivelled on the beams, so that a beam in its lowermost position may be turned over with its square underside upwards to form a balance-beam.

18,478.—Roundabouts. Westerman, H. J., of South Columbus, Ohio, U.S.A.

An aquatic roundabout is provided with animal figures constructed to carry passengers, and appearing to swim in a basin. A circular causeway (8, Fig. 2) is laid in a basin (5), and is provided with rails upon which runs a continuous series of trucks (10) bearing the figures of swans, &c. Two of the trucks are motor-driven, and the others are connected to these and to one another by a double circular framework (26, Fig. 5) connecting together all the axles as shown. Current for the motors passes through leads (37, 38, 40, Fig. 2). In order to give the appearance of swimming and to hide the joints, &c., pipes (11, Fig. 5) are arranged to spray water as shown. Additional sprays issue from pipes (6, 7, Fig. 2).

18,625.—Toys. Ahrahams, G., of Paris, France.

A spool for the game of Diabolo consists of an open framework of rushes or cane secured to rims (a) of similar material. The rushes (b) are slightly curved, and are bent round so as to be secured between a hollow metal cup (c) and a conical plug

(d). A headed bolt (e) holds the several parts together. In a modification, the parts are held together by a bolt having loose nuts at each end, washers being placed between the nuts and the plugs (d).

18,863.—Presses for playing-cards. Mosimann, H., of Bern, Switzerland.

A press for playing-cards comprises vertical legs (*a*1) on which bent or bellied spring plates (b) are adapted to slide. A post (d) carries a clamp (e) with a four-sided obliquely-cut aperture (*e*1). The cards are laid between the spring-plates (b), and the clamp is pressed down at i. The upward pressure through the bearing-piece (*e*3) causes the clamp to engage the post (d) securely. When the part k is pressed down the clamp is released. In place of the post (d) a toothed rack and spring-controlled adjustable catch connected to a plate may be employed.

TO STAGE MACHINISTS AND ELECTRICIANS. — The Manager will be pleased to receive particulars of any new stage appliances or ideas for same for illustration in this column.

Can You Invent?—Do you wish to know of prizes offered to inventors valued at £10,000, £5,300, £5,000, £4,000, £1,000, £400, £300, £200, £100, and £50? If so, then get a copy of Patents and Designs, a newspaper called into existence by Mr. Lloyd George's Patents and Designs Act, 1907, which lately came into operation. Patents and Designs, price 2d., can be had at all bookstalls, newsagents', and at the Publishing Office, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

"A QUEEN OF MUSIC."

Musical and Dramatic Episode, by S. and L. Gordon, produced on Monday, Jan. 11, at the Metropolitan.

Jim Stockton ..... MR. LEO GORDON
Captain Burlington ..... MR. DANVERS YATES
Margaret Hamilton ..... MISS ESTELLE COLLETTE

We have had sketches written round various musical instruments, and though it must be admitted that such productions give artists readily accepted chances for proving their versatility—a quality much in demand on the lesser stage—their dramatic value in a sense suffers when the heroine, to prove her skill as a violinist, arrests the progress of the story in order to display it. Still, there is something gained, when one finds the violin listened to with such appreciation as has been shown by audiences at the Metropolitan during the week. Not so long ago it was the favourite sport of the clown to make comic capital out of the king of stringed instruments, and such a turn as a solo violinist would have been regarded with much the same feeling as a selection from a band of five used to be in the days of the sing-song. The plot of A Queen of Music has an echo of the story of "Editha's Burglar." Margaret Hamilton, the heroine, is wooed by Captain Burlington, who might have said that his love was like "the melody that is sweetly sung in tune" when he heard her play the fiddle. But he was more practical, and presented her with a fine old violin, which he had purchased in Paris. Unfortunately for Margaret, Jim Stockton, a burglar, hears all about the far-famed Cremona from behind a screen, and resolves to appropriate it. On the departure of the Captain he shows himself, but the beloved violin has not so much charm as the trinkets and a jewel case that are handed over to him. The case contains a portrait of Margaret's dead mother, which she begs may be returned to her. The cracksman immediately recognises the features of his wife. Abashed by the thought that he was about to rob his own daughter, he expresses remorse; but before his departure he begs Margaret to play the melody so often sung by the dead woman so dear to both. While she is playing he restores the stolen jewels, and eventually shoots himself. Miss Estelle Collette's rendering of a Hungarian dance by Brahms shows her to be an exceptionally capable violinist, her tone and technique being admirable. She also gives artistic distinction to the hackneyed melody "The song that reached my heart." Mr. Leo Gordon is characteristic as the cracksman, and displays no little feeling in the tenderer passages; and Mr. Danvers Yates makes a chivalrous and manly lover of Captain Burlington.

AT the concerts recently held in the Winter Garden of the Hôtel Metropole, Brighton, two young singers had a great success. Both were pupils of the well-known professor, Mme. Kate Flinn, and did her great credit. Miss Ruby Cobbett is a contralto with a beautiful voice, and she won a double encore for each of her songs and five recalls. Amongst her selections were "My gentle child with you," by Godfrey Nutting, and "The Gavotte" from Mignon, which she gave with fine effect. Miss Le Hay, the charming daughter of John Le Hay, created quite a sensation with a clever little song, called "Trimming a hat." She actually trimmed a hat and wore it while she sang, winning a recall. The success of these two young ladies served to show how diversified is Mme. Kate Flinn's talent of training.

THE SKATING RINK BOOM.

A CHAT WITH MR. F. W. NALL.

Mr. F. W. Nall, the gentleman who was responsible for the opening up, management, and operating of numerous rinks in America, has kindly given us his experience for the benefit of those who have an interest in roller skating. Mr. Nall is now busily engaged operating roller rinks in this country, and is also using his influence on behalf of the Richardson ball-bearing skates, which, he tells us, are most extensively used in America; in fact, no less a proportion than 80 per cent. of the rinks now operating in the States use Richardson skates.

The life and perpetuation of roller skating lies, in a great measure, in the hands of rink managers, many of whom kill all interest in the sport among their patrons either through lax management or by their avariciousness in prolonging their skating season to an undue length, permitting their patrons to "skate themselves to death."

I am a strong advocate of short seasons, and managers who know will bear witness to the fact that it is advantageous to close at the first approach of warm weather while the skaters still retain the desire to skate, and remain closed until the advent of cold weather, turning a deaf ear to all importunities to give them "just one night of skating" for which many will petition, refusing even what may seem a fabulous price for one night's rent of the rink with its equipment for a private skating party.

By closing while your patrons still possess the "fever," and giving them no opportunity for gratifying their desire for skating, they retain that "fever" throughout the summer season, and are eager and anxious for the reopening of the rink in order that they may indulge in their favourite pastime. On the other hand, when they are allowed to skate in an indoor rink constructed for winter use only, the conditions necessarily must be such as to detract from the thorough enjoyment of skating because of the heat, for nothing is more conducive to the creation of a distaste for skating than profuse perspiration.

Some Managers Short-sighted.

Many managers, in their short-sightedness, fail to recognise the truth of the foregoing, and persist in gathering the box-office receipts regardless of the atmospheric conditions until these receipts are such that they fail to equal the disbursements. Then, upon reopening for the following season, they bemoan their fate and wonder why patronage is so much less than during the former year, and in but few cases do they blame their own selfish greed for the changed conditions.

In the cities where more than one rink is in operation an agreement between the several managers relative to their closing and opening dates can generally be effected, for the good of all if gone about in the right spirit, which course I strongly recommend.

Managers must maintain and preserve order in their rinks at all times, exacting from patron and employee alike a cheerful compliance with all house rules, having no favourites, and the violator of a rule meriting punishment should be promptly disciplined regardless of his standing or social prominence.

The failure of managers to enforce their rules for fear of giving offence to some "favourite son" is often the "beginning of the end," causing the creation of no end of trouble for the unfortunate manager who fails to require an absolute obedience to the established rules by which all well-conducted rinks are regulated and governed.

Much depends upon the way you open your season. Demand at all times a strict compliance with, and obedience to, your rules, promptly suppressing all fast skating, ejecting from your rink for cause, if necessary, patrons who persist in flagrant disobedience, and who display no disposition to respect the rights of others. By so doing your patrons quickly discover that you mean business, and will govern themselves accordingly.

People in Balconies Should Act.

You in the balconies or on your promenades can see infractions of your floor rules that possibly escape the eye of your floor manager, and, when you do, act—don't hesitate. When called before you the offender knows of what offence he has been guilty, no matter how greatly surprised he may profess to be nor how much he may "stall around." Don't stand for any nonsense: inform him that the rink is being conducted for the benefit, pleasure, and amusement of the "many" and not for the "few." Caution him, make him realise that the rights of others must be respected, and, if he is the right kind, he will heed your admonition; if he isn't, the sooner you get rid of him the better. If you see and permit acts of any nature to transpire on the floor that should be prohibited these same acts can also be seen by your spectators, and possibly skaters as well, who quickly form their opinion of you and your management if not suppressed. For the good of the cause, instantaneous action is demanded to receive the goodwill, the patronage, and the pounds of your present patrons.

Don't "compliment" your "racers"; make them pay admission the same as your other patrons—except, of course, on the nights they race. If they want to practise let them do it between sessions, and hold them down at all other times exactly as your other patrons if you would maintain order on the floor. You cannot "call" a patron for fast skating and at the same time permit a racer simply because he is a racer to skate fast, so don't do it.

Promiscuous Passes Harmful.

A promiscuous use of passes and "complimentaries" is not to be encouraged; use discretion and put them out judiciously, and where you can see some return of one kind or another.

Watch your door carefully. An honest, conscientious door-tender is worth his weight in gold, and when you get one whom you know you can trust and who requires a ticket of admission from friend and stranger alike, pay any price to retain his services, for he will make money for you. Your cashier, too, must be polite and affable, as first impressions are everything, and your patrons must be met at the entrance with a courteous smile if you would induce them to return again.

Much of your success depends upon your assistants on the floor. The primary duty of an instructor is to instruct, and the manager wise enough when engaging his corps of assistants to make them thoroughly and distinctly understand their duties and then rigidly exacts from them a cheerful obedience at all times will escape many vexations and worrisome conditions with which he would otherwise find himself beset and surrounded.

Don's make the mistake of accepting the services of "volunteer" instructors—i.e., those who offer to work (?) gratuitously. The only "work" they are desirous of performing is to skate with your lady patrons who stand in no need of assistance to the utter neglect of those who do, turning either a deaf ear to all calls for assistance or greeting such with an air of scorn and derision, which is not only resented by the one asking for help, but in many cases is the cause of this beginner, and perhaps her friends as well, ceasing to visit your rink, transferring their patronage to one of your competitors, leaving you to wonder why you never see their faces again.

Points to Managers.

A man worthy of wearing your uniform and cap is worthy of his hire, and if you cannot afford to put him on the pay-roll don't accept his services. You deceive the public, you take their money under false pretences, and you delude yourself into the belief that you "get something for nothing" when really you are getting "nothing for something" every time you accept a "volunteer's" services.

Your regular patrons quickly discover that such an instructor is not on the pay-roll, with the result that all respect for the "volunteer's" authority is destroyed. He becomes absolutely worthless to you so far as the maintenance of order on the skating surface is concerned, and furthermore he is a constant source of dissatisfaction to those of your instructors who are on your pay-roll, creating discord and arousing discontent among them because he usurps privileges which you very properly deny them.

Don't allow your instructors to become "familiar" with your lady patrons; it engenders unfavourable comment among your spectators and invites criticism and discussion that will hurt you and your business. If you will remember always that what you observe others do also, and rebuke and reprove wherever and whenever it becomes necessary, you will discover that the occasion for such action on your part will be few and far between.

Another prolific source of trouble and the means of retaining or driving away patronage is your skate-room. Much depends upon the manner in which your patrons are received at the skate-room windows and the services given them by the skate boys, of whom you should have a sufficient number in your skate-room annexe to properly attend to your patrons' wants. The cheerful exchange of skates should be insisted upon at all times, and as many times as any one patron may desire in his or her effort to obtain a properly-adjusted skate.

Courtesy Means Pounds.

Require your skate men to willingly, cheerfully, and even smilingly exchange all skates for whatever reason as often as may be necessary if you would retain the friendship and patronage of your patrons. Courtesy and affability by them means pounds to you.

Furnish the man in charge of your skate-room with sufficient help to properly clean, oil, and repair your skate equipment, maintaining always a high degree of perfection in this department, which is of more vital importance than many managers seem to realise.

I have found the easiest, best and most satisfactory way of obtaining this perfection is not to have a "general cleaning day," such as is the vogue in some rinks—a day dreaded by all skate-room employees generally—but systematise the work, dividing it into a daily cleaning of certain sizes, devoting the same day each week to this particular size, which so apportions the labour that it can be done properly, and, becoming a part of each day's routine work, receives better attention and is more carefully and cleanly done, with a much more satisfactory result.

Your skate equipment must be kept up to the top notch of perfection if you expect to continue in business, and only personal supervision on your part can put and keep it there.

Make a determined stand against dust in your rink. Don't harbour the mistaken idea that it is unavoidable; you can avoid it if you will.

Use Dust-allaying Products.

There are several dust-allaying products and contrivances on the market which will do much toward eradicating this evil; or, if you don't choose to incur the expense which their purchase entails, the good old remedy of plenty of wet sawdust will work miracles.

If you are using steel rollers you probably bewail your "black" floor: so do your patrons when they fall and find themselves as black as chimney-sweeps upon rising. You can avoid this and have your floor as clean, or nearly so, as are the floors of rinks where other than steel rollers are used by wetting your sawdust with gasoline and by a daily use of the "wet blanket drag," which is nothing more than slipping a 2 by 4 through the fold of a horse or a bed blanket, attaching ropes to the ends of the 2 by 4, and then dragging the blanket over your floor, keeping the blanket wet by sprinkling, and washing it as often as its condition makes necessary.

This treatment obviates the necessity of using pumice, chalk, or whiting, and tends in a great measure to minimise the creation of dust, besides giving you a clean skating surface regardless of the roller you use.

Good music is a prime requisite for the successful management of a rink. Have plenty of it and of such a tempo that your skaters can skate to, and with it, timing their strokes in rhythmical unison to the beats in the measure of the selection being rendered by the band.

Bandmasters are prone to consider themselves and their band an entirely separate institution and beyond the jurisdiction of a rink manager, although they never fail to come to that manager on pay day, readily recognising his authority on such occasions, but seem loath to do so when that same manager attempts to dictate what music he wants and how and when he wants it.

The best way to avoid all conflicts is to insert a clause in your contract specifying the number of selections to be played each session, the duration of each, and how long an interval of time shall elapse between selections. Have an understanding also that such music as you deem unfit for skating shall be immediately side-tracked; no matter how full of harmony a piece of music may be, it must appeal to the "feet" as well as the "ears" of your patrons to be acceptable.

Roller skating is now enjoying its greatest popularity, and will continue to do so only through the concerted action and by the hearty co-operation of those having a vital interest in prolonging the life of the pastime. It is for the benefit of such that the foregoing has been written.

WANTED, Spring Dates, for
"WHEN A LASS LOVES,"
an Entirely New and, in every acceptation of the word, Original Drama, in Four Acts, written by Tom Craven.
Manager's Opinion.
T. R., Margate,
Dec. 5, 1908.
Dear Mr. Craven,
I feel I must write to congratulate you on the successful production of your really well written, well constructed, and unusually good melodrama, "When a Lass Loves."
The receipts were excellent, and the fact that they went up each performance, culminating in a Saturday night better than is usual at this time of year, should embolden you to agree with me that you have really written a "winner." I wish you much success with it, and feel sure it will make you much money.
Yours sincerely,
(Signed) W. W. KEENE.
This is undoubtedly one of Mr. Craven's best efforts. He sustains the interest of the audience from the rise to the fall of the curtain. The plot is replete with sensational incidents and dramatic situations, and the humorous element agreeably relieves the heavier portions of the play.—The London Era.
Special Magnificent Scenery.

WANTED, Wanted, Known, Sir,—

I inserted an advertisement, asking for Music Hall Artists in the last week's issue of "The Era." May I say that I am absolutely astounded at the number of replies I received to my small advertisement, no less than 270 Artists favouring me with applications. May I by this means thank the many artists who sent in their terms, as it is impossible for me to reply to each individual. I thank all for their very kind promptitude in responding to my advertisement.

I remain, yours faithfully, ALFRED BALL.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS.

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office. Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns. Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow :—

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING, Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON, Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT MITCHELL, Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON, Empire Palace, Leeds.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER, The Empire, Liverpool.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. J. CHRISTIE, Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

Artists and Agents are requested to note that the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, Standard Theatre, Shoreditch, and the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, come within the areas absolutely barred by us. Artists and Agents are also requested to note that the Hippodrome, Aston, Birmingham, comes within the area absolutely barred by the Grand Theatre and Empire Palace, Birmingham.

INSTRUCTIONS TO ARTISTS.

Artists must have at least Fourteen Band Parts for English Orchestrations, and Seventeen Band Parts for Foreign Orchestrations. Matter of Bill, Blocks, and Specimens of Pictorials FOR ALL THE ABOVE THEATRES must be sent to CO-OPERATIVE OFFICES, at above address, THREE WEEKS before Opening, failing which Artists will run the risk of having their Engagements cancelled.

IMPORTANT.—Artists must forward Copies of Songs to the STAGE DEPARTMENT, ABOVE ADDRESS, TWO WEEKS previous to opening, with Assignments for same, which will be returned. Artists are requested to note carefully that the clause in their contracts relating to rehearsals will in future be strictly enforced. Artists' Scenery, Properties, &c., MUST be fireproofed in accordance with the regulations of the Licensing Authorities.

ARTISTS WILL CLEARLY UNDERSTAND THAT THEIR BUSINESS MUST BE FREE FROM ALL VULGARITY.

No order or contract for goods or services must be accepted for any of the foregoing theatres except upon receipt of an Official Form, issued from the Co-operative Offices, London, and signed by either Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, or the Chief Accountant, otherwise the Company concerned will not be responsible for same, and will refuse payment. In special cases, where goods are required at once, suppliers must look to the individual placing the order, who will be personally liable, unless an official confirmatory order, signed as above, is received within forty-eight hours. Invoices must be sent to the Theatre, but monthly statements should be sent to the Co-operative Offices. The individual Company on whose behalf orders are signed is solely responsible for payment. The Management will not hold themselves responsible in the event of loss of or damage to any MSS., Songs, &c., submitted for consideration.

ACTUAL OUTPUT OF FILMS PER DAY, 80 MILES.

THIS WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

THE MESSINA DISASTER. The Most Dreadful Catastrophe in the World.

Titles of Pictures:—General View—The Harbour after the Tidal Wave—Camping in front of the old Post Office—A Red Cross Ambulance—Camping on the "Piazza Cavalotti"—Cooking in the Open Air—Distributing Food—Telegraph brings Succour—A House in the San Martino Street—Rescued!—Searching for the Dead—The Sicilians leave their ghastly land for Naples.

545ft. £9 1s. 8d. Toning, 10s. THE BEST FILM ON THE MARKET. Code Word, "GIVRE."

THE HUMPBACKED MAN.

Code Word, "FLANELLE."

445ft. The Subject, £7 8s. 4d. Toning, 18s.

JANE'S GOOSE.

Code Word, "FOULURE."

Jane has just left her French village, "en route" for Birmingham, where she has a goose to deliver to a friend of her parents'; but in Paris she meets with untoward accidents, humorously depicted in this film. She does not think it is at all amusing for her to run after her goose on top of omnibuses, along the Avenue de l'Opéra, the Rue Royale, &c., but for the audience it is there that the fun comes in.

445ft. The Subject, £7 8s. 4d.

THE STORY OF PSYCHE.

Code Word, "FRINGALE."

Psyche, the King's daughter, is so beautiful that Venus is jealous of her, and she sends Cupid to wound her with his shafts, but the god, on seeing the princess so young and guileless, turns away without hurting her, for he now loves her. Venus causes all the gods in Olympus to assemble and decree the destruction of Psyche through sending a catastrophe upon her father's people, and letting the king know that the only means of appeasing the gods' wrath is for him to sacrifice the princess. Eventually the same, having been left alone on the sea shore, is carried away by Furies to Cupid's garden, where she is so sad and lonely that Venus has pity on her at last, and allows her to marry Cupid. In the apotheosis Psyche and Cupid are represented in the same attitude as that of the marble group by Canova in the Paris Louvre Museum.

956ft. The Subject, £15 18s. 8d. Colouring and Toning, £8 18s. 0d.

DEADLY PLANT.

Code Word, "FILTRAGE."

A boy and his sister have been left by their father's will to the care of Dr. Marsan, who acquaints them with the science of herborising. One day the brother gives to his sister a beverage made with a deadly plant, for should she die he would inherit her part of the fortune left by their father. The doctor has his suspicions, however, and when he sees the poor girl writhing with the pain caused by the poison, he makes her take a suitable medicine which recalls her to life, whilst the would-be murderer is handed over to the police.

445ft. The Subject, £7 8s. 4d.

AT-HOME DAY.

Code Word, "FRIMAS."

A very comical subject, depicting the adventures of cook during her master's absence, and the disastrous results of the misbehaviour of two visitors of hers.

495ft. The Subject, £8 5s. 0d.

THE DIFFERENT AEROPLANES.

Code Word, "FROTTIS."

Titles of Pictures:—The Voisin Works at Billancourt, where most of the existing Aeroplanes were Built—Messrs. Santos-Dumont, Kapferer, and Archdeacon Attend Mr. Delagrange's Experiments—The Henry Farman in November, 1907—Mr. Bleriot Meets with an Accident at Bagatelle—The Breguet Gyroplane—The Esnault-Pelterie Aeroplane—The Antoinette Aeroplane—The Monoplane with which Mr. Bleriot Tried to Win the Prize for Height—The Wright Aeroplane Piloted by Mr. Wilbur Wright at the Aubours Camp. This Aeroplane has beaten all previous records.

460ft. The Subject, £7 13s. 4d.

DICK IS NOT DEAD.

Code Word, "GATEAU."

510ft. The Subject, £8 10s. 0d.

TWO DIFFERENT BOXES.

Code Word, "FOURREUR."

A young milliner is followed in the street by a gentleman, who is so courteous to her that she allows him to carry her hat-box for her; but while they sit outside a Paris café for a little chat over some refreshment, two urchins exchange the hats for a rabbit and a chicken taken from the basket of a peasant sitting near by. The comical ending of this practical joke may easily be imagined.

198ft. The Subject, £3 6s. 0d.

IN THE LAND OF THE MIDNIGHT SUN.

Code Word, "FUSELE."

Titles of Pictures:—Bound for the Arctic Seas—The First Ice—The Land of Spitzberg—A Glacier Washed by the Sea—The Coast is Half a Mile Distant—The Midnight Sun.

460ft. The Subject, £7 13s. 4d. Toning, £1 0s. 0d.

IMITATION CRAZE.

Code Word, "FILIERE."

Mr. Kick, like the monkeys, tries to imitate everything he sees at the fair, at the café, in the street, and his movements are as grotesque as they are varied.

280ft. The Subject, £4 13s. 4d.

Pathé's Films

LAST WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

RIP'S INHERITANCE.

Code Word, "FRICHE."

BY MRS. MAXIME VILLEMAR.

This pretty subject emphasises the fact that a good action brings its reward. It is not always, of course, that the result is shown in so tangible a manner, and it is mostly in books and stories that everything ends so happily. The fact remains, however, that our friend Rip helps his benefactors in the nick of time, just when they are on the verge of being sold up for want of a few pounds wherewith to pay their rent. This film, acted by three of the best French actors, together with a very clever dog, has earned a well-merited success, and we have pleasure in informing those of our customers who are not yet supplied with same that we have a few more copies over from the factory, which we can deliver immediately.

757ft. The Subject, £12 12s. 4d.

THE BEWITCHED MANOR HOUSE.

Code Word, "FREGATE."

This mediæval legend brings into play an enchanter, a princess, and a gallant knight, and as in all such stories the enchanter casts a spell upon the princess, but the young knight rescues her from among horrible beasts in the haunted castle, and she is so grateful to the fearless warrior that she says "Yes" when he asks her to marry him. Very amusing.

379ft. The Subject, £8 6s. 4d. Colouring, £3 12s. 6d.

CHOOSING HER FIANCÉ.

Code Word, "FRICASSEE."

BY DANIEL RICHE.

Here is another instance of what a kind heart can do towards its own happiness. A girl receives three proposals at the same time, and as she finds the gentlemen equally anxious to win her, she puts them to a rather strange test. She promises to marry the one who accomplishes for her sake the most uncommon deed. It turns out that one of them having listened to the feelings of pity which arose in him at sight of a poor beggar and his little grand-daughter, at the same time as giving up—so he thought—all idea of ever winning the hand of the young lady he loves, that same young lady chooses him as her future husband.

676ft. The Subject, £11 5s. 4d.

GOOD FRIENDS.

Code Word, "FOURNAISE."

An amusing story is depicted in this film. A lady, on realising that a friend of hers has had a dress made of the same material as hers, and exactly similar in fashion, thinks very uncharitably that she will avenge herself on the other lady who has so unwittingly made her furious. Having received an invitation to tea from her "good friend," she bids her old maid-servant to dress up in the new gown, and create a sensation at the tea-party. Her plan succeeds capitally, and the poor hostess has a fit of hysterics when she sees her grotesque copy stalking into her own drawing-room.

412ft. The Subject, £6 17s. 4d.

EXTRAORDINARY RESULT

FROM AN ADVERTISEMENT.

Dear Sir,—I inserted an advertisement last week in "The Era" advertising Messrs. Barney and Berry's celebrated Phantom Skates. You may guess my satisfaction at the successful result of my speculating in your advertisement columns when I tell you that I have sold no less than 2,700 pairs of these Skates, the sale of which I directly trace to the advertisement in the last issue of "The Era." Yours faithfully,

Managing Director,

Messrs. BARNEY and BERRY.

BOROUGH OF PORTSMOUTH.

THE SOUTH PARADE PIER COMMITTEE

INVITE APPLICATIONS

for the appointment of

MANAGER of the SOUTH PARADE PIER, SOUTHSEA.

Candidates must be not under 30 years of age, have had experience in the management of Public Entertainments, and be capable organisers.

The salary will be at the rate of £300 per annum.

Applications, stating age, present and past employment, together with copies of Testimonials, must be forwarded to me in an envelope marked "Pier Manager," and must reach me not later than 10 a.m. on Friday, January 29th, 1909.

Canvassing, either personally or by letter, will be a disqualification.

ALEXANDER HELLARD, Town Clerk.

Town Hall, Portsmouth, January 14th, 1909.

BOROUGH OF RAMSGATE.

ROYAL VICTORIA PAVILION

THE TOWN COUNCIL

INVITE TENDERS

for a lease of the following parts of the above premises, for three years from March 25, 1909:—

A. The Great Hall (130ft. by 65ft.), with Stage, Dressing-rooms, &c., well adapted for Theatrical, Musical, and Variety Entertainments, licensed for Music and Dancing, &c., together with the Upper Promenade (revenue from charges of admission) and Inside Lavatories.

B. The spacious, beautifully-decorated Restaurant and Buffet (two Bars, one for the use of persons attending performances in the Great Hall), with extensive cellarage, &c., fully licensed.

C. The Colonnade Tea and Refreshment Rooms.

D. A Lock-up Shop, now communicating and used in connection with Part C, but can be let separately for a business satisfactory to the Council.

Rates, Taxes, and other outgoings will be paid by the Tenant or Tenants.

Applications must be enclosed in a sealed envelope, marked "Hire of Pavilion," addressed to the Chairman, General Purposes Committee, Albion House, Ramsgate and delivered on or before Saturday, Jan. 30, 1909.

Plan and further particulars may be obtained from the undersigned, at whose office a draft of the proposed Lease may be seen.

The Council do not bind themselves to accept the highest or any Tender or Tenders.

A. BLASDALE CLARKE, Town Clerk.

Albion House, Ramsgate. Jan. 14, 1909.

NOTICE.—All bill matter must be sent direct to the General Manager 14 days before opening. Artists failing to do this run the risk of having their contracts cancelled.—HARRY SLINGSBY, General-Manager, Empire Theatre, Hull.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. Richards.—Mr. Harry Benet's pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, is attracting crowded houses here this week. Miss Nellie Dyson gives a dashing representation of Robinson, her songs being particularly well rendered; Miss Stella Millar is a delightfully vivacious Polly, her singing and dancing winning many admirers; the chief fun-provider is Mr. Harry Benet, whose Billy Crusoe evokes continuous laughter; Mr. Lonzo Brown is an ideal representative of Friday, and he is responsible for an expert speciality in sand-dancing; Mr. Sam Saxo is good as King Kop-em; and Miss Bertha Collins wins complimentary recognition as Princess Peerless. Mr. J. H. Wakefield scores a decided hit as Little Willie Atkins; specialities are introduced by Kloof and Ramsey, musical eccentrics; Saxo, musical marvel; Will and Roze, contortionists and conjurers; the Four Verona Girls, with novel acrobatic dancing act; and Rand and O'Ryan, comedy artists.

ABERDEEN.—H. M. THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The comedy drama A Message from Mars is presented for the second time here this week. Mr. Wallace Widdicombe gives a spirited portraiture of Horace Parker; and the Messenger is ably played by Mr. William H. Brougham. Miss Rose Helene and Miss Winifred Knightley make a charming appearance in their parts of Minnie Templer and Miss Parker; and all the other members of the company give efficient support. The cleverly-arranged scenic effects materially add to the attractiveness of the play.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The Ten Loonies appear with the utmost success in a boisterously amusing sketch, Dotty, which affords them full scope for the display of their remarkable talents. B. Troba is a singularly dexterous juggler; Mr. Dare Austen and Mr. Robert Harcourt are popular as comedians; Mr. Harry Vardon shows much ability as a ventriloquist; Mr. George Laurence is a dashing comedian; Miss Nellie Walton, the "Lancashire singing mill girl," is warmly encored; and Mlle. Eldee, "the girl in the golden frame," also makes a success.

ALHAMBRA MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. John Sinclair.—Among the artists this week are Mr. Percy Forde, one of the best female impersonators on the stage; Cambo, a versatile and accomplished instrumentalist, ventriloquist, and comedian; and Miss G. Stewart, a very tuneful soprano.

EMPIRE.—Managers, Messrs. R. Calder and J. Montague.—Included in this week's company are the popular entertainers, Mr. Bert Gilbert, coloured comedian and dancer; the Brothers Gilbert, smart acrobats; Miss Marie Rose, comedienne and dancer; Mr. Jack Marson, vocalist and humorist raconteur; and Mr. Archie Murray, banjoist and comedian.

ABERTILLERY.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. J. Seaborn.—A good reception was accorded to Mr. Harry Starr and company, who produced here the first part of the week the popular Otto the Outcast; the latter part of the week is taken up by the production of Carl the Clockmaker. Mr. Harry Starr showed power and skill as Otto, his quick changes being a speciality. Mr. Will Hee gave a fine delineation of Vidocq; Daddy Bruneau was capitally presented by Mr. Alvin Sawyer; Mr. Edwin Firth did justice to the part of De Laporte; Lara, the flower girl, was effectively played by Miss Kate Norris; and Corinne was excellently performed by Miss Madge Blundell.

THE PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs. E. and H. Tilney; Manager, Mr. E. Pryce.—The well-balanced company of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley is popular here in A Soldier's Honour. Mr. Millar Anderson gives a fine and masterly impersonation of Captain Deane; Cora Lee is well portrayed by Miss Mabel Mannering; Jemima Eliza is handled cleverly by Miss Edie Macklin; Mr. C. H. Gallier makes a careful study of General Rochester; Captain Temple finds a capable exponent in Mr. T. Arthur Ellis; and Mr. Andrew Money is a capital Henry Thornton.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—The patrons at this theatre are fortunate in having provided for them a visit by Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company in the dramatic success Leah Kleschna. Miss Bessie Rignold is a capable exponent of the title-rôle. She possesses a singular charm of manner, and she exercises a restraint in the more impassioned scenes which serves to deepen the impression created. Mr. William Clayton's fine stage presence and elocutionary powers are admirably suited to the part of Monsieur Kleschna; Mr. Arthur Leigh capably enacts Raoul; and Mr. William Heilbronn is responsible for a clever character study as Schram; Mr. Algernon J. Hicks doubles the parts of General Berton and Valantine Favre very successfully; and Mr. Charles Barrett is fairly convincing as Paul Sylvanie. Miss Dorrie Turner is charming as Sophie; Miss Ethel Russell a satisfactory Madame Berton; and Miss Emmie Wallace displays marked ability as Clare. The play is well mounted.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Accrington Hippodrome Co.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Mr. Jack Haddon's pantomime Jack and the Beanstalk is being played twice nightly here this week to good houses. It is a bright and merry show, and very well exploited by the cast. Miss Alma Obrey is a most vivacious Jack, and sings and dances delightfully; Dora, the Squire's niece, has a charming representative in Miss Bessie Knight; Miss Kitty Chandos and Miss Dulcie Lloyd as the gay, youthful lovers are exceptionally good, and the graceful dancing of the Love-birds proves to be one of the chief attractions of the pantomime; Mr. David O'Toole is droll and clever as Dame Trotter; Mr. Bob Baxter is most mirth-provoking as Silly Billy; Messrs. O'Malley and Brown, Hal Forde, sen., and Tom Packer are all good in their respective parts; Miss Marie Rayner as the wicked Fairy Discordia is distinctly successful; and Miss Nellie O'Mara is captivating as the good Fairy Harmonia. Specialities are also introduced by Beattie and Babs, versatile juvenile artists.

ALDERSHOT.—ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Gladwin.—Mr. Seymour Hicks's company is here in The Gay Gordons. Mr. Frank Lincoln is an actor of marked ability and great resource, and it is pleasing to note his clever conception of Angus; Miss Nell Carter furnishes a fascinating portrayal of Peggy Quainton, and she deserves praise for her acting; Mr. Tom Graves is a great provider of fun as Nervy Nat; and Mr. Edward Nainby is another laughter-provoker as Edmund; whilst Mr. Ernest Ruston is capital as the millionaire, Quainton. Miss Ida Laurie's make-up and portrayal generally of Charlotte is good; and Miss Mabel Dent is a charming impersonator of Victoria, and sings sweetly, too. As the matronly Janet Miss Emily Mellon is capital; as Mary Miss Gladys Waring is a chic exponent; as Corpl. Smith Mr. Norman Forrest cuts a ludicrous figure in the final scenes whilst impersonating the lord; and as the society quintette Messrs. Mervyn Dene, Melville Florence, Cranston Nevill, W. Terriss, and Austin Green are good. Mr. Chas Tyers (Jack) goes through a marvellous eccentric dance which gains an encore; and Mr. Buchanan Wake does well as the lawyer. A number of others in the choruses and garden scenes help to the success. Mr. W. A. Seymour is manager of the company.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill, jun.—Pantomime has again possession of the Theatre Royal stage this week, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levey and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's company presenting Little Red Riding Hood. There are a number of specialities of a diverting character, plenty of fun, excellent vocalism, good dancing, and attractive ballets. Miss Iris Vivienne is a graceful little lady as Red Riding Hood, and invests her performance with a charm peculiar to herself; Miss Fannie Adamson is a graceful Boy Blue, her singing and dancing speeding her in favour; Miss Helen Dunscombe makes a perky and vivacious Will Scarlet; Miss Daisy Clifford is also "fetching" as Marjorie Daw; Miss May Gibson is dainty and pretty as Miss Muffitt, Boy Blue's best girl; the fun-makers are Mr. J. J. Mannix as Baron Hardup, Mr. V. Wakeman as Dame Trot, Mr. Billy Melia as Sunny Jim, and Denby and Dent as Doleful Dan and Whimsical William.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. James Burslem.—Billy Williams, the "man in the velvet suit," wins tremendous applause; the paper manipulations of Mint and Mart are really wonderful, artistic work being produced by deft fingers out of coloured paper; Corman's Juveniles appear in a clever vocal scena, their young voices proving fresh and tuneful; The Waif, a pavement sketch, is a capital portrayal of character; Allsopp and Bekwith are a clever comedy couple; Sandy McNab, in a funny Scotch sketch, The Egyptian Mummy, excites the risibilities of his audience to a remarkable degree; Leslie's Comedy Cadets appear in the military comedy scena, After Lights Out; an expert singing and ventriloquial performance is given by Mr. Harry Leslie; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilde have a novel speciality in humorous talking and singing shadows; Bradley, the cycling Jew, is a marvel on the wheel; and Staig's Steeplejack Cyclists give a unique and daring performance. The Bioscope illustrates A Catching Dance.

THE NEW PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Owen.—Special attractions are provided for lovers of the animated pictures, the leading film being an illustration of the Johnson and Burns engagement; the whistling feats of Tom Morris are clever and artistic, and his imitations admirable; the Frohmans (Will and Alicia) give a dainty musical mélange.

THE PICTUREDROME. — Lessees, Messrs. Weisker; Manager, Mr. J. Marks. — A further series of Italian earthquake pictures includes the Burning of Messina Town Hall; The Inventor's Daughter is a thrilling melodrama of a modern type, which embraces a most sensational motor race; The Rival Stone Cutters is a striking picture; The Greek Slave and some Continental views, architectural and pastoral, are the most artistic on the programme; and The Electric Hotel and The Obstinate Umbrella provide screaming comedy; a notable picture is The Kids' Strike, wherein the youngsters of two schools revolt. The Capels are duettists of a high order, their rendering of Irish ballads being awarded most enthusiastic applause. There was a crowded house, and the manager, in announcing his future plans, gave a brief but interesting speech on the making of the pictures.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manageress, Miss Ethel J. Hope.—Messrs. Edwin C. Jazon and Nightingale's pantomime Cinderella opened to a good house on Monday. It is a bright, merry show from start to finish, plenty of fun, and a capable all-round company. Miss Molly Doon, in the title-rôle, is vivacious and pleasing; Miss Vera Mayne is a dashing Prince Brilliant, with a taking style; Miss Beattie Foster makes a pert Dandini; and Miss Flo Burnett is well placed as Queen Bountiful, her vocal numbers being rendered in good taste. The comedians introduce any amount of laughable interludes. Included are Messrs. Leo Fields (Buttons), Fred Lake (Baron Crooked), Wallace Whitney (Arabella), Harry Plowden (Isabella), and the Danbys (Kuff and Kollar). Misses Cissie Gordon and Lily Hales do well in the minor parts of Marquis of Taxes and Dorothy. Several specialities are introduced in the ballroom scene. Mr. J. W. Johnson is an efficient conductor; and Mr. F. B. Woolstenhulme is business and stage manager.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Bert Dent; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry Sanders.—A Venus masquerade and picture-posing competition, open to "ladies only," for which valuable cash prizes are offered, is proving a most interesting feature here. A thrilling dramatic playlet, The House of Terror, is presented by Miss Beaumont Collins and company, the parts being cleverly played by Mr. George Ingleton as John Dason, Mr. George Blunt as Mark Verral, Miss Lucie Evelyn as Mother Grawley, and Miss Beaumont Collins as Meg Harding. Other turns include Les Currys, two smart ladies, in a musical act; Mr. Albert St. Clair, double-voiced vocalist; the Neilson Troupe, vocalists and dancers, in An Impromptu Rehearsal; Attergraph pictures of the earthquake at Messina; the Two McAleavy Marvels, trick and barrel-jumpers; the Betsons, comedy cyclists; and Mr. Bert Rayburn, comedian.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—Mr. Robert Macdonald's Dairymaids has been here for three nights. The company is a good all round one, and several new songs, introduced since the last visit, add to the enjoyment of a very enjoyable production. Miss Isa Bowman was a pleasing and sweet Peggie, and sang her songs beautifully; Miss Kathleen Severn was as winsome as ever in the part of Winnie; Mr. Dan Agar as Joe Mivens was the soul of the piece, and along with Miss Edie Martin as the maid-of-all-work made things go merrily; Mr. Frank Barclay was a capital doctor; and Miss Babs Christopher a dignified Lady Brudenell; Messrs. Manger and Telford as the two lieutenants were responsible for a lot of the fun. The piece was well put on. Mr. Chas. Harrington's company is billed for the last three nights of the week in Uncle Tom's Cabin.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood.—Captain Clayton's pantomime, Cinderella, is here this week. In the title-rôle, Miss Nita Dunville plays brightly, and scores with her songs; Miss Amy Allnutt as Prince Charming was enthusiastically applauded for her brilliant acting and fine singing; Miss Molly Revill is a bright and lively Fairy, who sings well; Miss Lottie Mellor is a graceful Dandini; and Mr. Jerrold Manville's clever impersonation of the Baron merits praise. Mr. Tom Gilbert and Mr. Woodwards as Gertie and Lilie, the ugly sisters, are a boisterous pair; and Mr. Gus Granville as Blustering Jim and Mr. C. Turner as Nervous Joe keep the house in continuous laughter whenever they are on, and in this respect Mr. Fred Dunville as Buttons adds invaluable assistance. Some clever specialities are provided by the Zola Troupe, La Belle Mascot, the Gibson Trio, the Dunvilles, Bros. Alpine, and the Royal Glee Singers. The singing is good throughout, and the humour excellent, and the scenery and dresses very attractive.

BARNSTAPLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Long Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—The first visit of The Merry Widow met with extraordinary success, packed houses extending a hearty reception to Mr. George Edwardes's company, who gave three performances here. In the title-rôle, Miss Daphne Glenne scored an instantaneous success, her acting and singing being much admired; she was happily partnered by Mr. Alec Worcester as the Prince, and their combined scenes, together with the famous "waltz," were rapturously encored. Miss Violet Hobson acted to the life the wayward wife of Popoff; Mr. Arthur Geary possesses a fine tenor voice, and his handling of Jolidon met with general approval; very clever too was Mr. H. Sinclair Cotter's portrayal of the self-opinionated Baron Popoff, his dry humour being immensely enjoyed; whilst Mr. Harry Emeric as the ubiquitous Nisch quickly established himself as a favourite. Much fun was caused by Mr. Cecil Warwick's delineation of the suspicious old soldier.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Messrs. Bliss and Bliss's pantomime Mother Goose is here. Mr. Leo Bliss as the Widow McGooseley is capital fun; and Mr. Ernest Percival is an amusing Jack. Miss May Ford is a winning Jill; and Mr. Louis Kerno a vivacious King Geezer. Miss Ethel Dunford is a captivating Prince Lothario; and the Two Rubies give specialities. Mr. Frank Probin sings well as the Demon of Folly; and Mr. George Bliss is a cheerful Septimus Snatchall. The scenery is good.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company is here. In The Merchant of Venice Mr. Henry Herbert's Shylock has considerable originality and force; Mr. Charles Trail is a dignified Duke of Venice; Mr. James Berry a good Antonio; Mr. Evered Vanderlip a pleasing Bassanio; and Mr. Lewis a successful Lorenzo. Mr. A. Fayne is very amusing as Launcelot Gobbo; and Mr. Sam Cohen a capital Old Gobbo. Miss Gladys Vandersee plays Portia with great histrionic ability; Miss Farebrother is a winning Nerissa; Miss Jean Graeme a charming Jessica; and Mr. Robert Atkins a capable Prince of Morocco. The Taming of the Shrew, Richard III., Merry Wives of Windsor, Henry V., and Hamlet are also billed.

TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Signor R. Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—Harvey's American Boys and Girls are the premier turn here this week. They render some capital songs and choruses, and their dancing is delightful. The Crown Trio give a vocal scena of a very pleasing character; the three Sisters Dixon are excellent in their songs and dances; Reg. Beauchamp quite took the audience—he had a grand reception; Jas. Shingleton, the singing collier, renders his songs in a masterly manner; a very novel and clever act, The Porter and the Parcel, is provided by Howard and Collinson; and Vernon's Bioscope is a welcome feature on the programme.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Owners and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ralph D. Fenton.—Some very seasonable pictures are on show here this week, and are being much appreciated.

BARRY DOCK.—NEW THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brogden. — Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Kimberley's company in Two Little Drummer Boys, opened to a well-filled house on Monday. Mr. Harry Scott in the rôle of Frank Carsdale scores well; Mr. Oswald Douglas as Geo. Darrell imparts considerable force to that character; Mr. Edward Bekker makes a typical General Kingsley; and the comedy parts are well sustained by Mr. Will Percy (Quiney), Mr. Dick Seddon (Timothy), and Miss Elsie Dene (Molly Meadows) Miss Mary Ainslie ably impersonates Alma Kingsley; Misses Maggie English and Maudie Douglas appear to advantage as the two little drummer boys; and Miss Violet Ingram cleverly handles the part of Drunken Meg. Mr. Tom Beasley doubles the parts of Allen Kingsley and the Rev. John Rivers.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Mr. George Dance's company is here with The Girls of Gottlenberg. As Max Moddelkopf Mr. Bertie Wright is a host in himself, his quaint antics gaining him rounds of laughter and applause; Mr. Tom Shelford is well to the fore as Otto, rattling off the songs that fall to his share with the happiest results; the important part of Mitzi is capitally undertaken by Miss Simeta Marsden, who adds considerably to her reputation as a singer and dancer; Miss May Marshall portrays the comely Clementine in excellent fashion; a winsome Elga is Miss Maisie North, who also proves herself a vocalist and dancer of merit; the swaggering Captain Albrech is well impersonated by Mr. Hugh Henson; a special word of praise is due to Mr. Chas. Berkeley for his wonderfully agile dancing as the Sergeant. The other characters are well enacted, and the large chorus and augmented orchestra, under Mr. Otto Manns' direction, do their work in capital fashion.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—A much-appreciated vocal scena is that given by Mr. John Donald entitled "A Scottish Exile's Dream," his powerful baritone voice finding full scope in the ballads selected; another vocalist who secures hearty approbation for her songs is Miss Edith Courtney; humour is supplied in no uncertain fashion by Carney and Armstrong, a couple of comedians that win a big success; Ted Karno and company are paying a return visit in their pantomimic absurdity Dinner Hour, which goes well from start to finish; Childie Stuart again proves herself a chic comedienne in some taking ditties; and Marion Armitage, in her low-comedy songs finds some admirers. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux, as usual, wind up the programme with new films.

BATLEY.—THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Whitty; Manager, Mr. Alfred A. Taylor.—Unlimited mirth, tasteful singing, effective scenery, beautiful dresses, and clever dances are features of the pantomime Blue Beard, presented here this week by Mr. Charles Constant's company. There was a crowded house on Monday night, and the performance was greatly enjoyed. Miss Daisy Lake is extremely popular as the principal boy, her vocal numbers winning loud applause; Miss Marie Duncan as Fatima is a favourite; Miss Laura Wickenden is successful as the fairy, her singing being much enjoyed; Mr. Johnny Clegg is a capital Dame; and Mr. Jack Parker scores as Bamboozlum. Specialities are introduced by Messrs. Harlin and Hanlon, the Florodorians, Russell and Gage, the Sandow Girls, Walter B. Frear, and Dolly Moore.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Robin Hood is paying a welcome return visit this week, the company being that of Mr. Lewis Waller, under the direction of Mr. F. Clive Ross. Mr. Ethelbert Edwards is again seen as the bold, lusty, and handsome Robin Hood; Mr. Laurence Tessier is an excellent Will Scarlet; and Mr. Stenson Liddiard's features and voice fit him for the part of Allan a'Dale. Much rich humour is introduced by Mr. Bruce Winstone as Friar Tuck; Mr. J. N. Briant is an admirable exponent of Richard Cœur de Lion; and Mr. H. Elliot Ball gives a fine study of Prince John; Mr. F. Clive Ross seems to be particularly well suited to the part of Little John; Miss Cahill is a charming Marion; Miss Laurie Flockton as Adela and Miss Cordelia Fitzgeorge as Alison are praiseworthy. The scenery is exceptionally good.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company opened here on Monday with Under Two Flags. In the rôle of Cigarette, a vivandiere, Miss Olive Wilton achieved a striking success; Miss Florence Melrose-Millett was delightful as the Princess; and Mr. Robert Purdie was admirable as Bertie Cecil Royellieu. In the difficult rôle of Colonel Chanteroy, the Black Hawk, Mr. Charles E. Johnson acquitted himself with distinction; and Mr. J. O. Cuthbertson appeared to advantage as Barklie Cecil Royellieu. Messrs. Charles Brook and George Porteous were effective as Lord Royellieu and Lord Rockingham; and the rôle of Lady Beatrice Guinevere was well sustained by Miss Madge Stevens. The humour of the piece was in the hands of Mr. Clarence Ibbotson, who was funny as Rake.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—This is the last week of the highly successful pantomime Jack and Jill, and all concerned have every reason to congratulate themselves. On Wednesday Mr. Geo. Lashwood had a bumper benefit, and Miss Dorothy Ward, the charming principal boy, appealed to her many admirers on Friday.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Fred Willmott and Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The star here is Miss Harriett Vernon, the favourite comedienne, who appears to the utmost advantage in her latest song-scena, A Yuletide Story; Mr. V. L. Granville appears in his protean play 'Twixt Dawn and Daylight, in which he cleverly presents several characters; and Messrs. James Willard and company produce with much success The Ace of Hearts. The impersonations of Mr. Tom Stuart reflect much credit on him. Also here are Mr. Charles Rose, comedian and dancer; Bros. Ford, comedians and dancers; the Howards, in their musical act; Mr. Leslie Race, a good comedian, and the Hipposcope.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Machnow, the Russian giant, is here, and his appearance nightly on the stage has created quite a sensation. The Eight of Hearts appear with much success in their American songs, while their dancing is certainly first class. The Lashmars appear in their smart comedy act, Bits and Pieces; and Miss Crissie Cross is aptly described as a smart singer and dandy dancer. Terry and Bentley, comedy artists, gain a good reception, as does Mr. Harry Leybourn, a really clever female impersonator. The Bioscope is also included in the programme.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—This popular theatre enjoys a very large share of patronage. It is announced that over 50,000 people pay for admission every month. This week the following films have been exhibited—Mysterious Wardrobe, The Runaway Horse, Rival Sisters, A Workman's Dream, &c. Also appearing are the Lynches, illustrated song artists, who are nightly accorded a terrific reception; and the Wedburns, funny comedians.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—General-Manager, Mr. Robert Wilson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—Under the direction of Mr. Hugh Beckett a fine series of pictures has been exhibited here.

CLIFTONVILLE HALL.—General-Manager, Colonel Fred T. Cummins.—The success of roller skating here continues to be unbounded, and new competitions are announced, including a professional championship over a distance of one mile. Doubtless this will excite the keenest interest among the many devotees of rinking.

BILSTON.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson; Business-Manager, Mr. S. Hadskiss Dawson.—Messrs. Austin and Dixon's company occupies the boards this week with Mother Goose, in which a brilliant spectacle is provided. Miss Mabel Austin makes a sprightly Lubin, and Miss Winnie Murray a sweet and charming Daisy; Mr. Sydney James as Mother Goose keeps the house in continuous laughter; Mr. Ted Lockstone (Billy), Mr. Jack Harrington (Parchment), Mr. Will Raglan (Robert), and Mr. Tom Rend (Timothy) all contribute largely to the amusement of the piece. Some exceptionally pretty dances are introduced by Mlle. Le Mair and the Elysium dancers; and top-boot stepping is done by Read and Wright.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Miss Mary Nell and Mr. George Kirk's company in the drama From Shopgirl to Duchess, present an attractive entertainment. Miss Nell gives a highly successful and praiseworthy rendering of Sylvia Grey, and proves herself to be an emotional actress of exceptional power; the Duke of St. Baynum is well played by Mr. Douglas Cecil; Lord St. Orbortrude is capitally represented by Mr. Douglas Tremayne; Mr. Frank S. Strickland is well suited as Gilbert Spate; and Mr. T Lionel Ellis is an efficient Sir Morris Maitland. Miss Beatrice Hudson is an admirable Lady Celeste Delarmere; Miss Amy R. Ellis earns distinction as the Dowager Duchess of St. Baynum. The comedy element is well supplied by Mr. Henry Gerald as Tommy Tinkler and Miss Georgie Hawkins as Tilly Dobson. Remaining parts are in able hands, and the scenic effects are really fine.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. D. J. Clark.—Reano's Band are fulfilling a first engagement here, and their fine instrumental performance is enthusiastically received. George Blunt and R. H. Knight's company in a condensed version of The Grip of Iron (with Mr. Fred Powell as Simmonet) is a leading attraction; and Lady Mansel and her troupe of clever juveniles in A Concert Rehearsal provide an interesting turn; Phillips and Merritt, society entertainers, have made a hit, and a capital programme is contributed to by Mysticus, in a clever and amusing act; Miss Stella Dell, an accomplished comedienne; Talbot and Pearce in an entertaining Japanese duologue; Miss Janette Hall, lady baritone vocalist; Mr. Ted Waite, an excellent comedian; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—Mr. Fred Karno's company of comedians in the boxing sketch Yap Yaps head a strong combination, and have caught on immensely; Langslow, shooting expert, accomplishes some startling feats while balanced on the slack wire; and Miss Irene Meldon is a taking comedienne and dancer. Other prominent turns are those of Wyotti, a smart juggler; Fred Ellis, comedian; Jack Rae, comedy gymnast; and the Hippodrome pictures.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Dick Whittington is meeting with extraordinary success, and the artists continue to appear, without exception, in the very best of form. Miss Syhil Arundale has quite captured the public's affections as Dick, her portrayal being a highly romantic and fascinating one; Miss Aimee Grey's singing and acting give special importance to the rôle of Alice; Miss Clara Reid makes a winsome Marjory, while her dancing is remarkably clever; Miss Ethel Legrette as the Princess in the second part quickly establishes herself a favourite with her exceptionally fine singing, while the clever comedy powers in "making love" to Idle Jack cause great delight; Miss Ada Whittaker is smart as Tommy, the dandy, and Miss Violet Baynton is a very good Spirit of the Chimes; Mr. Tom Foy as Idle Jack has "come" to stay for many weeks; the audience absolutely revels in his quaint fun-making; and he is well supported by Mr. Jno. Power as Fitzwarren; Mr. Arthur Reynolds as the Cook; Lupino Lane, whose remarkable agility as well as his clever dancing make him specially popular as Bottles; Mr. Eric Campbell, who makes a stalwart and vocally perfect Emperor; Wee Wallace Lupino, another clever dancer, who is made much of as Kazrac; and Mr. Harry Lupino as King Rat. Mr. Fred Whittaker gives a clever study of the Cat; and Drew and Alders make capital fun with their specialities as Captain and Mate.

PRINCE OF WALES'S, LTD.—Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Boy Blue, with its "pack of aces," all stars, has completely broken the record here. Miss Hetty King is blithe and bonny as Boy Blue, and brings down the house with her popular songs; Miss Gladys Ivery wins the favour of all with her really fine singing and acting as the Princess Gloria; Miss Rita Everard is divinely tall and shapely, and in truth very mellifluous, as Prince Opulent; Miss Connie Emerald acts and sings prettily as Marjery; Mr. Tom E. Murray keeps the house in roars with his funny japes and jokes as the Baron; Mr. Horace Mills amuses with his ludicrous but indubitably smart travesties as Martha; Mr. G. H. Elliott gains admiration with his immaculately dressed and perfectly rendered coon creations as Chocolate; Mr. Jay Laurier is rich in repartee and humour as Jiggory; and Mr. J. Alexander, as the repressed solicitor, Mr. Chatter; Mr. H. F. Graham, in his faithful "studies" of the rampageous Bull and Bear; and Miss Olive Adair, who acts gracefully as the good Fairy Roseleaf, contribute valuably to the success. The Eight Stella Girls are the "cynosure of all eyes" in their fascinating swing song, &c., and the Lyric Quartette discourse harmoniously as villagers.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—Little Red Riding Hood is now going with a capital swing, and the clever little heroine herself, Little Maudie Olmar, is the idol of the always crowded Alexandra. Miss Ellaline Thorne (Colin) puts plenty of life into her character, while her sweet, expressive singing and graceful dancing complete the audience's satisfaction. Miss Dollie Denton makes a most seductive Miss Muffit, with her alluring ways and taking songs; Miss Ivey Roze sings and acts with dashing vivacity as Prince Roseleaf, and has made herself a big favourite; Miss Joyce Stevens as the second girl, Margery Daw, lacks nothing in ability or charm, and her success is complete; Miss Winifred Norman shows an agreeable flow of spirits as the volatile Greba; and Miss Daisie Clements thoroughly shares the success as the Fairy. The comedians, Messrs. Stephens and Rennoir, as Johnny Green and Peter Piper, are fully up to date, and they are admirably assisted by Mr. Albert Schafer as Dame Durden, Mr. George Penn as Simple Simon, and Mr. Frank Blythe as the Baron. The Three Tivoli Girls lend a beauty and grace of their own to the production, the Molasso Troupe astound and thrill with their remarkable "cyclonic" dance, and the admirable Schafers vouchsafe their musical speciality to great applause.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Aladdin, as furnished by Messrs. Jazon and Nightingale, is affording Mr. Melville's patrons a rare treat. The dresses are handsome, the scenery superb, and the artists excellent. Miss Edna Latonne as the hero is endowed with a dashing style and good songs, and the Princess, as enacted by Miss Luna Lisle is captivating. The Sisters Brenton are very popular as Pekoe and Caramel; and the Misses Ada Jenner and Lily Reno are acceptable in their parts; Mr. Clifton Hall scores as the Emperor; Abanazar looms large in the person of Mr. Walter Bishop; Gin Sling, the Vizier, is well played by Mr. Frank Vant; Mr. Percy Curry evokes mirth as the Widow Twankey; and Ping and Pong are amusingly portrayed by Messrs. Rex and Ford. The Misses Cecily and Gladys Darnton are successful as the Genius of the Ring and Slave of the Lamp respectively. A number of clever specialities also appear, including the Sisters Brenton, expert dancers; and Kavados, a clever juggler.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Woman from Russia is making a successful appearance here, with Miss Adria Hill and Mr. Robert Ayrton and company. Miss Hill's fine and famous emotional powers are shown admirably in the rôle of Wanda Sonorovitch; Mr. Ayrton displays himself to signal advantage as Frank Haldane; Miss Edith Tempest gives a clever presentment of the sister, Edith; Mr. Royce Carleton has a congenial rôle in the Hon. Reginald Fitzgerald; Mr. Fred G. Ingleby makes a successful character of Captain Alexis Zarviski; Mr. Richard Pitt is well put to play James Haldane; and Mr. Horace Buckley as Jerry Moriarty, Mr. Montague Turner as Ezra Caroni, and Mr. Dighton Probyn as Wun-hi are successful. Miss Nell Ingram does well in the rôle of the slavey, Mary Ann Smith.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Robertson. — The Christian is gaining full houses and fine receptions here for Mr. Wentworth Croke's company. Miss Daisy Scudamore gives a telling portrayal of Glory Quayle, and is much applauded; Mr. Roy Redgrave shows rare dramatic power as John Storm; Mr. Herbert Hewetson is all that the part of Lord Robert Ure should be, acting with quiet force and much polish; Mr. Wilfred Noy presents the rôle of Horatio Drake to full advantage; and those of Father Lamplugh and Archdeacon Wealthy are well represented by Mr. Thomas Barry and Mr. Jno J. Hooker. The Polly Love of Miss Cora Deane and Mrs. Callender by Miss Molly Hayden are meritorious performances; Miss Muriel Marsden acts capitally as Black Meg; and a uniform merit marks the other portrayals.

PALACE THEATRE, BORDESLEY.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—Who is She? is the title of the play here, and it is carried to a very successful issue by Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company. Mr. Horace Booth succeeds Mr. Mitchelson in the heavy lead, Prince Bora, and submits a comprehensive study of the rôle; Mr. Graham Woods continues to thrill with his heroic manner and deeds as King Vladamir; Miss Violet Carlyle invests the nameless heroine with a glamour and mystery which is irresistible in its fascination; Miss Marie Robson plays the part of Theta Noveitch on clever lines; Miss Alice Barber is very worthy to be praised as Countess Ladori; and Miss Mabel Ronald, Mr. Alfred Grenville, and Mr. Edward Swinton are prominent in the cast.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—A pantomime phantasy, Polly Pickle's Pets in Petland, is scoring a big success here. The musical numbers are bright and catchy, while the dresses and scenic effects are above the average. Oswald Williams mystifies his audience. Theo Bouwmeester has a dramatic sketch, Who is Guilty? This clever protean artist portrays seven distinct characters. The Selbinis (trick cyclists), Spry and broker, is an attractive item here, full of fun and well staged; A-Ba-Be's picture postcard poses are artistic; Webb and Edna Branston are loudly applauded for their operatic duets; and a musical prodigy is Luigi Salvino. Phil Bransby (in coster studies), Carl and Mary Ohm's Circus, Arthur Boyne, Charles J. Johnson (comedians), and the Westbrooks (in a novel dancing act) complete a bright and entertaining programme.

ASTON HIPPODROME. — Resident-Manager, Mr. T. H. Middleton.—The principal turn here is Kartelli, whose display on the slack wire is marvellous; as a ventriloquist Coram is far above the average; Mersano, the King of Coins, is exceedingly smart with his tricks; the Lombards are equilibrists of a talented order; Lena Leslie is applauded for her songs; Blake and Amber have a good sketch; while Lennard and Verriker present their pictorial songs with effect.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. Walter Melville's company oepned to a good house on Monday in The Soldier's Wedding. Mr. Wingold Lawrence gave a typical presentation of Jack Brown; Mr. Gerald Jordon played the part of Charles Courtney in a painstaking manner; and credit is due to Mr. Beresford Whitcomb (Colonel James Graham), Mr. Johnny Chippendale (Tommy Spratt), and Mr. Frederick Biron (David Munroe). Miss Dorothy Richardson plays Nancy Lee to perfection and Miss Marie McAulay is a clever Julie de Beauvrais.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The Moody Manners Opera Company is providing a rich event for music lovers here this week, and it is gratifying to know that they are not slow to avail themselves of the magnificent fare provided. Madame Butterfly was presented on Monday night, and the success of the work was instantaneous. Miss Enriqueta Crichton, who played the title-rôle, quite surpassed herself, and was recalled half a dozen times at the end of each act. Both in acting and singing she was well-nigh faultless. Miss Rosina Beynon was also excellent as Suzuki; Mr. Charles Carter, although suffering from a cold, did well as Lieut. Pinkerton; and Mr. Marshall Vincent sang and acted remarkably well as the U.S. Consul; Mr. R. Bookes was good as Goro. Carmen was played on Tuesday with Miss Beynon in the title-rôle, and Mr. Paul Weiss as Don Jose, and met with the most cordial reception. Faust, Tannhäuser, Cavalleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, and Bohemian Girl are included in the week's bill. Mr. Cuthbert Hawley is the capable conductor.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Sergenson; Responsible-tenant and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—A very fine programme is provided here this week, the place of honour being worthily occupied by Fred Ginnett and company in a sporting sketch, entitled Hunting Morn. Another good sketch is given by Hy. Russell and company, and a clever turn is provided by Alfred Graham's Premier Juveniles; Jack Crawley contributes a novel act; and the Gregson Trio are responsible for much hilarity; Leah Arden, a pleasing comedienne; Sisters Desmond, duettists; J. B. Good, comedian, and Richard Hyde, society entertainer, also give the utmost satisfaction.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Fred and Downing, a pair of excellent comedians, top the bill here this week; Hammon and Wyatt, the Australian Sandow girls, also provide a good turn; and Bessie Slaughter, a fine contralto vocalist, Bi-Bo-Bi, eccentric musicians, Lizzie Glenroy, a clever Scotch comedienne, Fred Erick, a good vocal comedian, Les Valencias, acrobatic wonders, and Horace White, ventriloquist, are also well received.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—The Dairymaids, presented by Mr. R. MacDonald's company, has proved attractive here.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Les Henris, in their specialities, are the star turn at the above. Among others, Reski and Ranski have proved popular.

GAIETY.—Lessees, Messrs. Claggers.—A pictorial programme has been submitted here with success.

HIPPODROME.—The Edison Pictures and the Cineophone have proved attractive here.

BOLTON. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—Mr. Charles Constant's Christmas pantomime of Aladdin, which is now in its fourth and last week, is still being well supported, the various artists meeting with much favour from the audiences.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—A well selected variety company is appearing here, chief among which is Mr. Chas. Hera, who performs some wonderful feats of juggling; other turns are J. H. Bray, light comedian; Ruby Bijou, barefoot dancer; Harry Thorpe and Miss Zoe Coe in My Burglar; Clown Barker, in his comedy animal act, assisted by Miss Rozsika; W. E. Gillin, ventriloquist; Eric Johns, descriptive vocalist; Adah Payne, vocalist; Lanos and Montes, eccentric acrobats, in A Trip in a Motor Car; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—This week's bill contains the following excellent turns:—Lennie and Hast, in The Sea Nymph; U. C. Ugo, in "Mirthful Mysteries; Nellie Moore, a clever character impersonator; Harry Taft, comedian; Nellie Nora, in her instrumental act; Frank Whiteley, comedian and dancer; Joe Atkin, vocal comedian; Menotti, "The Stockholm Wonder," and the Empire Bioscope.

BOOTLE. — MUNCASTER THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—Chief attraction this week is Bostock's Baboons, who give a very clever performance; Henry and Tyler do some sensational trick cycle riding; George Acre is a pleasing comedian; Stidder and Dunbar do well in their musical act; and Kenneth and Kane gain favour with their eccentric dancing. Messrs. Ismay and Ingram complete the bill with a screaming sketch, entitled The New Office Boy.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROMES, LTD.—Joint-Managing Directors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Clifford King.—Haidee Lee and Wallace Kingston head the bill this week with their latest success, A Resourceful Lover, and are much appreciated. Arthur Kenney, England's greatest sensational cyclist, can rightly claim this title, and his trick-riding and daring feats hold the audience spellbound; Rita and Mark are very amusing, and show agility in their comedy acrobatic and dancing act; Bert Marsden, as a character comedian, is great, and comes in for a good round of applause; Florence Deighton, ballad vocalist, is heard to advantage; Daisy Hicks, vocal comedienne, and Carla Magda, lady gymnast, are also worthy of mention. An interesting bill is closed with the Hippo. pictures, showing a film of the Messina Earthquake.

BOSTON.—PALACE.—Manager, Mr. E. Cass.—The Shaughraun was played on Monday to a packed house. Mr. Ernest Fare as Conn was very good, and the company throughout was well up to the standard. The Octoroon was billed for the latter part of the week.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, Messrs. David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—There were but few vacant seats when Mr. George Edwardes's principal company opened on Monday in The Merry Widow. As Danilo Mr. Leonard Mackay was a conspicuous success. The part is one which suits him admirably, although he has little chance to use his fine voice. Equally popular was the character of Sonia, played by Miss Nora Barry, who proved herself to be an actress and singer of rare ability; Natalie could not be in better hands than those of Miss Octavia Barry, whose beautiful voice enables her to do full justice to the music belonging to the part; Mr. Lionel Victor made a big hit as Baron Popoff, a character in which his abilities as a comedian have full scope; Mr. Tom Redmond, with a new song, entitled "What every woman knows," was particularly good; so was Mr. Grafton Williams as General Novikovitch; while Mr. Haigh Jackson, the possessor of a really fine voice, played Jolidon exceedingly well. A new feature is the introduction of "La Dances des Apaches," most successfully done by Miss Dora Langham and Mr. Alfred H. Majilton. The orchestra, under Mr. Harrison Frewen, was unusually good; and the stage-management of Mr. Somers Bellamy deserves special mention.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Mr. Hart's Jack and Jill may rank amongst his many brilliant efforts in the way of pantomime, for the audiences are very large and very enthusiastic in their appreciation of the rich humour provided and the perfect feast of spectacular effects and lovely scenery which greet the eye from start to finish of the production. The principals are established favourites, who have won their way to favour by the display of exceptional ability.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Councillor Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Red Riding Hood is having a merry and prosperous run, and the rollicking fun and general brightness of the pantomime have long ago guaranteed its success. The principals are deserving and popular with the large audiences, whose marks of appreciation are very hearty and enthusiastic.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig. There is a fine programme here this week, and a very interesting feature is the performance of a wonderful stud of trained ponies, handled cleverly by Miss Marquis; Dennis Drew has a good voice, and he presents a military scena effectively, viz., Back to Barracks; Bonnie Goodwin (assisted by Lily Vine) scores a success with her coloured Apollo piccaninnies, who dance cleverly; the old favourite comedian W. J. Churchill elicits much laughter with his capital comic songs; A Tennis Courtship is a pretty scena, presented daintily by Maud and Sydney Wood; Arthur Gill is amusing as a many-voice entertainer; Teresa Da Silva, a vocalist with an exceptionally prepossessing appearance, is favourably received; Percy Honri combines humour with his clever performance as a concertina soloist; the Chronomegaphone presents striking talking and singing pictures of George Robey and Victoria Monks; and the bioscope illustrates the leading incidents in the wrestling match between Gotch and Hackenschmidt, interesting the audience greatly.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—There is no lack of variety here this week, and H. C. Lovell and company in a screamingly funny burlesque, Ma'mselle Pom Pom, are foremost amongst the mirth-providers; Lisbon and Barker provide an amusing comedy turn; Paul Powell's very cleverly manipulated electrical marionettes provide a fund of genuine amusement; in The Children's Birthday Party Shenton and Chicks win applause for their dancing; Eileen Douglas, in charming and dainty style, sings of "The musical comedy girl"; in a very novel performance, The Crazy Cook, Picitt and Lizette do some amusing and very wonderful conjuring; Elroy, "the Armless Wonder," submits an astounding performance in picture painting, sketching, shooting, &c., with his feet; Joe Peterman and company in two bright scenes present an amusing burlesque sketch of merit, The Singing Servants; and there are some very entertaining features in Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

BRIDLINGTON.—SPA OPERA HOUSE.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Harry Tunbridge.—Mr. Ernest Adrim's capital pantomime Dick Whittington and His Cat is a great attraction at this well-appointed theatre this week, and the artists receive well-merited applause for their excellent performance. In the character of Dick Miss Violet Oram is a smart and jaunty principal boy; Miss Madge Carew has a heavy part to perform in the piece as Alice, and does her work most efficiently; Mr. Will Daniels makes the most of the part of Alderman Fitzwarren; as Idle Jack Mr. Ernest Adrim keeps the house in constant merriment; and the cook, Ca-a-roline, finds a capital exponent in Mr. Mark Mooney, whose make-up in various characters, especially that of the Directoire Girl, gives him many opportunities of showing his ability. Frew and Frew as the sallormen Bill Buttercup and Captain Cowslip are very smart in their patter songs and eccentric dances; and the Cat is most ably played by Mr. Bert Warner, his amusing antics and cleverly-executed contortions gaining much applause. As Fairy Bluebell Miss Mary Alexander is very graceful; Miss Annie Faulkner is a fine Princess; Mr. Neville Graham makes the most of the part of the Emperor; and as the Demon Rat Mr. George Gordon plays well. The chorus is very efficient, and the staging and dressing admirable. The specialities include the great De Wynne Bros. in a most refined athletic act, their marvellous feats of balancing gaining them quite an ovation; and the Lina Trio, a charming troupe of lady acrobatic dancers, who are able exponents of their art. The whole show was well received on Monday by a full house, amongst the company assembled being the Chelsea football team, who were in training here for their Cup-tie engagement, and had been specially invited by Manager Tunbridge, and they expressed delight at the beautiful little theatre and the whole show.

THE PALACE.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Delmar.—The fine show of animated pictures this week includes some excellent coloured films, and the many humorous pictures shown keep Mr. Delmar's audiences in constant good humour.

BRIGHOUSE. — ALBERT THEATRE — Lessees, Messrs. Beanland and Emerson.—Variety reigns once more at this theatre, the principal engagement being that of the Tricky Japs in their balancing act. They are well supported by a good company of artists, including Jimmy Shields, one-legged comedian and dancer; Vasey and Ramsey in their comedy act, The German and His Butler; the Brothers Venola, comedy gymnasts; Flo Chevalier, with some good songs; Fred Herbert, with up-to-date ditties; Harry Tomlin, the versatile vocalist; Stan Aubrey, comedian and eccentric legmania dancer. The animated pictures shown by the Loyal Dominion Co. are capital.

BRIGHTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Gates; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—The pantomime, Aladdin, is still attracting large audiences here. On Monday evening the Brighton Cyclist Club paid their annual visit, and several other wheelmen were present, including members of the Brighton Wanderers, Brighton Imperial, Brighton Mitre, and the Brighton Stanley clubs. Presentations of bouquets and sprays were made by the cyclists to the leading ladies of the company, and the comedians also received gifts. Miss Aimée Roberts (Aladdin), Miss Blanche Marion (Princess), and Miss Addie Love (Slave of the Lamp) submitted charming impersonations; and abundance of fun was provided by Mr. Edwin Garth (Widow), Mr. Frank Dunlop (Abanazar), Messrs. Bennett and Martell (Tip Pit and Wot Toe), and Mr. Leo Sterling (Emperor). The Lottie Stone Quartette won hearty applause for their dancing.

ALHAMBRA.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Smith.—A very attractive programme is sustained here this week. Joe Peterman and company present the original musical extravaganza The Belle of the Orient with distinct success; Mlle. Matha wins cordial applause for her graceful gymnastic act; Will Brondele, light comedian, sings in good style; May Yoke is a charming comedienne; Boutelle is an expert juggler; Julie Gilbert, dainty comedienne, is well received; Andie West, trick and comedy pianist, is entertaining; Violet Fernie is a delightful comedienne and dancer; J. W. Ellison, a capital vocal comedian, achieves great success; and the Alhambra Picturegraph is interesting and amusing.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. J. Brown.—There is a capital company here this week. Neil Kenyon, Scotch comedian, submits a highly-amusing turn; Gus Garrick is very diverting with a burlesque of a Russian dancer; Mooney and Holbein appear with success in a comedy sketch; Dale and O'Malley, the "somewhat different comedians," are mirth-provoking; Charcot and his "automatic man" present a turn of a unique and bewildering character; the Ongars are smart dancers; Cecile François and company are well received in An Artist's Studio; Harry Brown, the American coloured comedian, wins very hearty applause; Hal Godfrey is amusing in A Very Bad Boy; and the Forsyths are musical eccentrics.

WEST PIER.—Secretary, Mr. A. W. Scholey.—The musical fairy play Sylvia in Sunland is achieving much success here, and proves especially delightful to the "little ones." Mr. Trevor Lowe makes a genial King; Mrs. A. B. Tapping gives a very humorous impersonation of the strong-minded Queen; Mr. George Howard as Jerry and Mr. Edmund Baker as Josher provide an abundance of fun; Miss Gladys Storey is a charming Sylvia; and Mr. Donald Calthrop's Chivvy is well played.

PALACE PIER THEATRE.—King's Royal Bioscope submits an entirely fresh set of films here this week, and the afternoon and evening exhibitions prove highly attractive. Don Juan is a highly interesting picture; another depicting the Waterways of Venice is admirably presented; and a panorama representing scenes of the ruins of Hyderabad is warmly appreciated. Other pictures are of a humorous character.

COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford.—Among the series of animated pictures exhibited here this week the film representing the Terrible Earthquake in Messina proves especially attractive; Rifle Bill conveys a great American drama; and Lucia de Castlemerepossesses strong dramatic interest. Among the interesting pictures are Billy's Bugle, A Day at Home, Inoculation of Youth, and Bertie's Lesson in Hypnotism. The singing pictures submitted by the Cinephone give renderings of the songs "Every Fellow's in Love with a Girl" and "John, John, John." Barrasford's Sable Operatic Minstrel Troupe are re-engaged, and appear in entirely new numbers with great success. Mr. Arthur W. Briggs' descriptive accompaniments to the pictures merit warm praise.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—Aladdin attracts full houses at each performance, the general opinion being that it is the best pantomime produced here. The scenery and dresses are admirable, and the company is a capital one all round. Miss Topsy Sinden has been indisposed for a few nights, her part of Yu-Bu-Tee (Daughter of the Moon) being played by Miss Nellie Palmer. Miss Palmer scored an immediate success, her dancing being both clever and graceful. Miss Ouida Macdermott is very popular in the title-rôle. She acts admirably, and sings with much taste. Miss Deborah Volar is graceful and effective as the Princess. She is a cultured vocalist, and does full justice to all her songs. Miss Daisy Lloyd Wood scores as Our Mary Ann, her songs and dancing being much appreciated; Miss Florence Foster makes an attractive part of Ah-Sing; and Miss Flora Gordon is a graceful exponent of the Slave of the Lamp. The comedians are all well up to the mark. Mr. Bransby Williams is quaint and effective as Abanaazr, his skits and impersonations being well received; Mr. W. H. Powell is amusing as Widow Twankey; and Mr. Alfred Clark is decidedly good as the Emperor. Mr. Arthur Sutcliffe is a pleasing vocalist, and he makes the most of his part of Pekoe.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Arty.—Here the pantomime Little Red Riding Hood is very successful. It is staged with much liberality, the scenery is very effective, and the dresses are both rich and tasteful. Miss Ethel Hall and Miss Marie Free are pleasing in their respective parts of Boy Blue and Margery Daw; Miss Daisy Dennis acts, sings, and dances well as Red Riding Hood; and Miss Violet Gillis and Miss Gertie Hall do well as Jack Horner and Miss Muffit. The comedians, Messrs Frank Hemming, K. Scott-Barrie, Crosby and Walker, all work hard and successfully; Mr. Frank Victor sings well and acts efficiently as the Wolf; and the remaining parts are all carefully played. Pretty dances are introduced by the Sylvan Quartet and the Misses Lee and Clifton.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. J. V. Welchman.—An interesting dramatic sketch entitled A Royal Heart is being excellently played by Fisher White's company. The sketch deals with Russion incidents, and it is well staged. Kurkamp, singing conductor, obtains appreciation; Alice Hollander, contralto vocalist, sings ballads exceptionally well, and in a duet from Il Trovatore is capably assisted by Kurkamp; George C. Doughty and company have an amusing sketch, Captain Cupid; Harry Bent successfully gives impersonations of popular music hall artists; Tom Parker, comedian and dancer, obtains applause; and Carlotta Lunn is highly successful as a chorus vocalist. The performance concludes with a fine set of films representing Messina before and after the earthquake. A matinée, under distinguished patronage, will be given at the Palace on Wednesday, 27th inst., in aid of the fund for relief of the sufferers in the catastrophe in Southern Italy, the whole of the proceeds to be handed over without deduction.

EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Carlotta de Yonson and company are successful in an interesting dramatic sketch entitled Sexton Blake, the sketch dealing with the case of the Neva Brotherhood. May Henderson, "the dusky comedy queen," provides an exceptionally good turn of song and dance; Joe Belmont scores with his whistling and singing turn, his imitations of various birds being faultless; Belford and Mars amuse with comedy, song, and dance; Wilson's Circus exemplifies the perfection of animal training; Pueblo and Cropp are versatile Creole artists; the Four Gilbeys are clever and attractive instrumentalists and dancers; and Dorothy Vernon is a pleasing comedienne. Interesting animated pictures conclude the entertainment.

COLSTON HALL.—The "Joseph" Poole Myriorama continues to attract good houses. Amongst new subjects added to the entertainment may be mentioned a realistic representation of the earthquake in Italy, depicting many interesting scenes of the recent catastrophe.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—In another column will be found the particulars of a new drama, by Mr. T. G. Bailey, entitled How Women are Slandered, produced here on the 14th inst. This week Mr. Walter Melville's company is on a return visit, with The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning, and had a good house on Monday (18th inst.). Willie Mason is well played by Mr. F. Roland Adair; Mr. Raymond Wood made an excellent villain of James Harcourt; Miss Nannie Mead portrays the mysterious rich lady, Vesta Le Clerc, with her usual ability; Mr. John Wilson as Joe Fleicher and Miss Marie Kildare as Poppy Slater do some good comedy business; Mr. Sidney Sarl makes a good study of Bill Slater; Miss Jessie Belmore makes an impression as Sophie Coventry; and Miss Zoe Davis makes a charming Lucy Coventry; Mr. Frank Robertson very cleverly performs as Jack Fenton; and Mr. Fred Ingram does excellent comedy work as Johnny Walker. The other characters are in capable hands, and the staging is very good.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The revised version of The Dairymaids is this week being presented here by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company, and on Monday a capital house showed their full appreciation of the excellent performance. Miss Empsie Bowman makes a delightful Peggy and Miss Vera Crichton a most pleasing Winifred; Mr. Johnny Osborne as Joe Mivens is responsible for endless laughter, and in this is equally assisted by Mr. Nelson Keys as Sam Brudenell; Mr. Percy Marshall is a breezy Doctor O'Brien; Miss Carrie Lacey ably portrays the rôle of Lady Brudenell; Miss Gladys Silvani is eminently suited to the part of Eliza; and a capital Penelope Pychase is Miss Lucy Edwin.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—At the top of the bill here are the Four Black Diamonds, transformation vocalists and dancers, who give a most meritorious performance; the Daunton-Shaw troupe of cyclists are heartily applauded for a series of daring and amusing feats; Fiorelli and Elly, barrel and spade jumpers, provide a good turn; Milner and Storey, in song, dance, and patter, please greatly; Bert Weston is highly diverting with his song "Father"; C. Torbay, comedy silhouettist, is a most acceptable turn; and Lyster and Cooke win warm applause with instrumental selections. The Farmer's Nap is an amusing picture by the Empire Theatrescope.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—The chief attraction here is Mr. Frank C. Bostock's anthropoid chimpanzee "Consul," and extraordinary interest is being evinced as to the wonderful capabilities of this animal; Ross and Grayson are very funny in their musical mélange, whilst the Sovereigns, one-legged men, give an exhibition of long jumps; Poole and Maguire take part in an entertaining comedy duo; Les Elgonas perform a number of clever gymnastic feats; the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Male Voice Quartette tastefully render two glees; and Goggin and Davis have an excellent acrobatic speciality. Clarice Clark is a winsome vocalist, and Kidnapping is a fine picture by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

BURSLEM.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Collins; Acting-Manager, Mr. Matt. Hall.—The two-houses-a-night system has taken well here, and the programmes provided are good. Miss Marion, a lively little lady, the Sisters Ely, in clever songs and dances, and Leonoto, a smart comedy juggler, supply the vaudeville items. The pictures are clear and large.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett and Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company is attracting good houses in The Prodigal Son. A powerful rendering of the part of Magnus Stephenson is given by Mr. T. W. Dunscombe; and Mr. G. E. Clive is responsible for a capital performance as his brother Oscar. Mr. Herbert Franklin gives a careful and well-considered representation of Stephen Magnusson; and Mr. A. E. Holland is an excellent Oscar Neilson. As Thora Neilson, and afterwards as Elin, Miss Dora Gregory has no difficulty in winning the sympathy of the audience; and Miss Chrissie Dunbar acts cleverly as Helga. Miss Maude Townsend is effective as Anna; and Miss Marie Tennant is a praiseworthy Margaret Neilson. The other parts are all capably filled, and the play is effectively mounted.

BURY (Lancs.). — ROYAL, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Resident-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company is here in The Silver King. Mr. Fred D. Daviss is happily placed as Wilfred Denver, and gives an artistic rendering; Nellie Denver is sympathetically played by Miss Madge Morley; and Miss Florence Hale Daviss shows signs of careful training and distinct promise in the part of Cissy Denver. Mr. Edward J. George's performance as Daniel Jaikes is as enjoyable as ever; Mr. E. Stanton Sharp is a good Capt. Herbert Skinner; valuable support is given by Mr. Arthur Wright as Elijah Coombe; Henry Corket is ably impersonated by Mr. W. Leslie Ellis; and Mr. Arthur H. Rooke is successful as Geoffrey Ware. The other parts are all capably handled, Messrs. Fred May, E. Stidwell, Charles Birch, Percy Store, and Misses Louie Male and Margaret Rooke being prominent.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Assistant-Resident-Manager, Mr. H. H. Potter.—Harry Tate's No. 1 Company in Motoring are responsible for much laughter, and their burlesque is highly appreciated. Some excellent tumbling feats are submitted by the Maximilian Trio; a capital musical act is given by the Barton and Franklyn Trio; Harold Heath is a clever dancer, and possesses a pleasing voice; Marie Francis is a dainty comedienne; Nash and Noel have some smart patter, and also shine as dancers; Prince Schaboo, Hindoo vocalist, renders his songs in finished style; and Charles E. Brown is a clever mimic. The Ottograph Pictures conclude an excellent entertainment.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Milson.—The star turn this week is that of the Wakeman Quintette, a company of vocalists considerably above the average. Alman Correze is a clever juggler, and his droll assistant causes much amusement; the Godfreys' musical sketch goes with a rare swing; Sullivan and Edwards are capital simultaneous dancers; the original Roxbys, artists on three legs, give an enjoyable scena, The Old Man's Garden; clever effects on a concertina are produced by Edwin Austin; the Rose Trio, acrobatic waiters, are decidedly smart; Farrell and Dunn are good dancers and patterers; and quite a novel turn, and one highly appreciated, is submitted by Lester and Moore, American comedy artists.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS. — THEATRE ROYAL. — General-Manager, Mr. Auguste A. Peuleve.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company has drawn big houses with Under Two Flags. Mr. Austin Milroy arouses much applause as the hero, Bertie Cecil; Mr. Will Hook is quite equal to the part of Rake; Mr. Arthur North is a satisfactory Lord Rockingham; and Colonel Chanteroy is made sufficiently forbidding in the hands of Mr. Roy Jackson; other rôles being filled by Mr. Horace Stewart, Mr. Harley-West, and Mr. Charles Brooke. High honours fall to Miss Agnes Verity as Cigarette; Miss Dorothy Lart plays Princess Venetia with grace and dignity; and Miss Daisy Carlton makes a vivacious Lavinia.

BUXTON. — OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietors, The Buxton Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—This week we have had Mr. Arthur Carlton's company in Aladdin. The pantomime was well received. Among the artists deserving of special mention are Mr. Fred Carey as Abanazar, Mr. Tony Freeman as Washee, Mr. Alf. Maynall as the Emperor, Messrs. Harrison Brothers as Sloppa and Koppa, Mr. Henry Meynard as Geni of the Lamp, Miss Lallah Davis as Aladdin, Miss Hedde Hulemann as Badroulbadour, and Mr. Fred Ramsdale as Widow Twankey. The dresses and scenery are particularly appropriate.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Miss Lena Ashwell's company in the taking comedy Diana of Dobson's, made a most successful début on Monday night; Miss Emelie Polini as Diana Massingberd, of course, is the central figure, and she obtained the undivided sympathies of the audience from start to finish; Mr. Ernest Young gave an admirable portrayal of Hon. Victor Bretherton; Mr. W. Kingsford Pearce was all that could be wished as Sir Jabez Grinley; the Misses Violet Gould, Dorothy Bell, Nannie Griffin, and Eva Leonard Boyne were good as the assistants and Miss Daisy England (Miss Pringle) and Miss Elspeth Dudgeon (Mrs. Cantelupe) rendered good assistance. The comedy was preceded by an excellent little piece, entitled The Bishop's Candlesticks, and was thoroughly played by Miss Daisy England, Miss G. de Serville, Mr. W. Kingaford Pearce, Mr. J. Benedick Butler, and Mr. Thomas Pauncefort.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—Cinderella continues to draw full houses, and the popularity of Miss Moya Mannering grows with each performance.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—A powerful programme is in evidence at the Queen-street house. At the head appears Fred Karno's company in The G.P.O. The great success of the piece is due to Mr. Kitchen. Miss Maude A. Edwards is a wonderful exponent of the ventriloquial art, and on Monday received an ovation most thoroughly deserved; much disappointment was caused by the non-appearance of Madge Temple, the musical comedy queen, through indisposition, but an able substitute was found in Miss Edith Roberts, a talented comedienne; Edie Hayes and Mona Wynne, the singing and dancing couple, are extremely clever; Howell and Scot, Hebrew comedians, cause hearty laughter with their antics and Hebrew cake-walk; a sensational aerial gymnastic act is given by the famous Bob Hanlon Troupe; Barrington, in freak performances at the piano, is an old favourite; and Harry Lawson is a clever and eccentric comedian. Two humorous Bioscope pictures complete.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Under the management of Mr. Rallo Balmain.—Her Nameless Child is the title of the interesting drama presented this week, being well-staged and capitally acted. Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company undertake the production, and the piece has done good business. Mr. J. W. Evelyn is seen again in the trying part of Anthony Ford; as young Ford Mr. Sidney C. Cranston submits a telling impersonation; and Mr. Arthur E. Pringle acts the villainous part of Lord Henry Woodville most creditably; Miss Pattie Hastings as the suffering Phyllis Ford achieves success; and Miss Mona Gray as Lady Sibil Woodville makes a favourable impression; Mr. Larry Clements (Tom Rivers) and Miss Geraldine Verner (Cravout) work well together in the comedy scenes.

PALACE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—At the head of the bill here is the American Queen of Mystery Minerva, who astonishes by her marvellous dexterity with the handcuffs; The Death of Chatterton, a dramatic sketch, is presented by Maurice H. Hoffman, Miss Ethel King and company; a capital turn is given by Cosgrove and Burns, two amusing artists, who possess most delightful voices; the Waltons, in Chinese garb, perform some clever acrobatic feats; while Sable Fern "goes down" exceptionally well; Walker and May, two coloured singers and dancers; Kinnard, a merry magician; and Lily Luraine, instrumentalist, and others, also contribute successfully.

CARLISLE.—H. M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart McKim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Mr. William Maclaren's company opened on Monday in Claudian. Mr. Maclaren, who again appeared in the title-rôle, gave a scholarly and artistic impersonation. Both in the prologue and the play proper he was splendidly effective, using his fine elocutionary power with impressive and dramatic effect. Miss Lily C. Bandmann's Almida was a finely-conceived and executed piece of work, her emotional scenes particularly were distinguished by her refined and convincing style; Mr. G. Edward Dustan as Theorus was a big success, and Mr. George Roberts was seen to great advantage as the Holy Clement. As Thariogalus Mr. Bernard Elliott contributed a sound performance, and Mr. Douglas Earle easily gained the sympathy of his audience by his effective acting as Agazil. In the slight comedy part of Belos Mr. Chal. T. Chaloner created amusement, and Miss Ruth Trafford acted with spirited ability as Edessa. The minor parts were all excellently interpreted. The scenery and dresses were unusually bright and effective, and the whole performance gave the utmost delight to an enthusiastic audience.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Morgan.—The bill is headed this week by Seener and Fridkin's Imperial Russian Troupe of singers and dancers, who give a particularly picturesque and popular performance; their dancing is distinctly novel and clever, and wins warm applause; Sibb and Sibb are again to the fore, and as trapeze artists their wonderful tricks, executed with rare skill and daring, again command admiration and enthusiastic approval; Tiny Arnold is as clever and vivacious as ever, and the Sisters Arnold contribute a successful musical sketch. Miss Teddy Edmond's company, in a sporting farcical act, entitled The Lady Jockey, keeps the house in a continuous roar of laughter, and a clever xylophone performance by the Five Vernons is a capital and greatly-appreciated turn. Carrie Joy, a comedienne with good style and a nice voice, and some excellent pictures by the Pepiscope completes.

CARMARTHEN. — ASSEMBLY ROOMS. — Proprietors, Public Rooms Co.; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—Miss Inez Howard's company is here in A Warning to Women. Miss Edith Knight is a realistic Moira Kennion, the dipsomaniac; Mr. Stephen Crossley was a success as Dr. Marcus Dread; Mr. Leslie Beaufort fills the part of Shann with ability; Mr. J. Percival Jordan as Fergus McNaughton plays in a capable manner; Mr. Balfour Dennistoun is an excellent Lord Eversleigh; Mr. John Cullen's Squire Kennion shows ability; Rev. Emmanuel Wallace finds a satisfactory exponent in Mr. Charles H. Mortimer; Mr. Ern Turner provides plenty of fun as Mike McQuade; Mr. Roland Hope is an effective Ferdinand; Miss Minnie Halstan is admirable as the cripple boy; and Sheila Kennion is well portrayed by Miss Dorothy Lambert.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Henry Masterman, J.P.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company, under the general management of Mr. Hugh Wallace, in The Lancashire Lad, is playing to large and enthusiastic audiences. Mr. Chas. Strafford offers a manly and convincing portraiture of David Elmore; Miss Phyllis Elton plays Jessie Wincote with a power and pathos that wins and holds the sympathy of the house; Mr. Ernest Vaughan as the hypocritical Max Carlton submits a clever and finished piece of acting, while Miss Nell Oliver gives a fine impression of the fierce and callous Lorna Wincote. Mr. Hugh Wallace undertakes the difficult rôle of Jem Wincote with much success; Mr. Walter Kenyon gives an extremely diverting performance as John Willie; Miss Lottie Pearce is bright, pleasing, and vivacious as Jane Alice, and vastly amuses the house; the Sisters Daisy and Gertie Gage sing with sweetness and flexibility, and their graceful dances are much admired; Miss Eminiline Rosette has an attractive personality, and she sings and acts well as Kitty de Vere; Mother Wardle is presented with quaint humour by Miss Molly Monagham; Mr. H. N. Wilkinson is an amusing Professor; Messrs. George Watson and Sydney Rudge do clever work in their respective parts.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson.—At the head of a long programme here is Ugo Nap, a comedian, assisted by Hilda Corelli, in a burlesque scena Home Without a Mother, assisted by a few local children; much amusement is caused, and the applause is unstinted; Chas. Ulrick, in barrel balancing, has great applause showered upon him; Mlle. Lumiere, in her kaleidoscope dance, is high in popularity. Warm favourites also are the Lizette Troupe, vocalists, dancers, and acrobats, and their business is pleasing, smart, and clever; the Bros. Ray as knockabout comedy cyclists create roars of laughter; O. Souplessi is a clever contortionist on the silver rings; the Les Zanonis (Lilian and Henre) as jugglers and club-throwers are neat and skilful; Hillet and Hallat sing and dance with success; Molly Augarde is applauded for a couple of good songs; and Will Marsh also sings a couple of songs in capital style. The Loyal Dominion Co.'s animated pictures form an attractive feature.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard.—The first pantomime of the season is seen here in Robinson Crusoe; or, Man Friday and the King of the Cannibal Islands, toured by Mr. Frederick Mouillot, under the management of Mr. Jas. R. La Fane. In the title-rôle Miss Mina Green makes quite a hit with her lively acting and tuneful singing. She receives ample support from Miss Daisy May, a pleasing little Polly. As Dame Crusoe Mr. Oliver J. Round is very droll; Mr. Ernest Sefton's Will Atkins proves very popular; Mr. Charles Resti is Man Friday, and scores more particularly in his Komical Konjuring act. Viviana and company should be proud of the reception given to their act, The Toy Shop, and spirited dances are introduced by the Fedora Quartette. Mr. Michael Dwyer makes an able musical conductor, and business is excellent.

CHORLEY (Lancs.).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Santé.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's capital drama A Broken Heart is here this week, and on Monday opened to a good house. The scenery is excellent. Mr. Clinton Harris gives a fine exposition of John Bernard; Mr. J. Moreton Williams undertakes Stephen Raylton in competent style; Mr. Vivian Charles is good as the Rev. Mr. Staunton; and Mr. S. Armitage wins entire approbation as Tony Tibbets. Mary Barnard is played with exceptional emotional power and undeniable strength by Mrs. Harry Foxwell; Miss Ethel Grey successfully coping with the part of Mrs. Kellet; Little May is creditably rendered by Miss Daisy Rocheford; and Sally Travner is humorously depicted by Miss Nancy Mitchell.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's Cinderella opened an engagement here on Monday before a large and highly delighted audience. The show is handsomely staged and dressed, and contains some good musical numbers. In the title-rôle Miss Ella Willmer danced with exquisite grace, her petite figure being well suited to the character; Miss Victoria Carmen sang delightfully as Prince Charming, her voice being one of great penetrative power; Messrs. Harley and Melton worked most assiduously as the broker's men, and with marked success; whilst the immobile face of Mr. H. A. Griffiths as the Baron emphasised the drollery of his assumption. Mr. Keane Harker as Pimple, the obliging one, was also very popular; the Ugly Sisters were worthily represented by Anna Beaumont and Fanny Wallace; and Miss Ida Dorrie looked smart as Dandini. The large well-dressed chorus worked in most harmonious fashion.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Colchester Hippodrome Company; Directors, Mr. F. Mouillot and Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Claud Duval, a romantic equestrian spectacle, heads this week's bill, and furnishes capital entertainment; the Five Whiteleys, speciality artists, compel the applause of all; Cash and Clare present a dancing act of much merit; Odeyne Spark dances daintily and sings popular songs; Mark Brand's eccentricities make him a general favourite; Chas. Williams is a good vocal comedian; and Pathé films contribute to the bill, which is concluded by the Morning Leader series.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—Mr. Fredk. Melville's company in Her Forbidden Marriage holds the boards. Mr. Henry Lonsdale as the hero, George Madison, thrills the audience with his spirited acting; the villain Devereux is portrayed with quite Satanic power by Mr. Louis Hector; the old rustic Lambkin is a clever character impersonation, for which Mr. Vincent Loraine deserves praise; and the funny man, Timothy Tuttutt, is a success in the hands of Mr. Fred de Vere. Mr. Wilfred Mansfield plays Sir George Lancaster with dignity and feeling; Patty, the servant, is amusingly represented by Miss Grace Emery; the adventuress, Lady Lucretia Lancaster, is ably sustained by Miss Florence Hunt; the long-suffering heroine Lucy is sympathetically acted by Miss Isla Garnet- Vayne; and the Mother Superior of Miss Grace Lester is a praiseworthy performance. The other characters are well played.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—The Love of the Princess is staged here by the T. Edward Ward company. A spirited performance of Prince Conrad is given by Mr. Wilson Coleman; Mr. Ernest Imeson presents a capital reading of Count Danillo; Mr. E. H. Dobell is successful as King of Ilarnia; clever work comes from Mr. Graham Winsford as Prince of Narava; Mr. Beckett Bould and Mr. Douglas Watson as Lieuts. Orlan and Zaroff do excellent work; Miss Maisie Hanbury in the title-rôle is very good; Miss Nellie Graham is seen to advantage as Constantia; and Miss Olive Lloyd's rendering of Lady Ramona is well worthy of mention.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell.—Mr. F. R. Benson's company opened the second week of its engagement with Julius Cæsar. Mr. Benson, in the part of Marcus Antonius, delighted his audience. His delivery of the oration in the Forum was a splendid example of the art of elocution, and roused the audience to enthusiasm. Mr. Benson and other members of his company were called before the curtain. Mr. Murray Carrington as Julius Cæsar filled the part admirably; Mr. E. A. Warburton as Marcus Brutus gave a talented exposition of the part; Miss Olive Noble as Calphurnia and Miss Dorothy Green as Portia were excellent.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—Bosanquet, the famous musician, delights his audience with his marvellous playing on the violin, imitating the human voice cleverly on one of his instruments; Callaghan and St. George (lady and gentleman) give an Irish sketch with great success; the Denaro Brothers (Hungarians) are a clever pair of acrobats and equilibrists; Florence Carlow, a dainty comedienne, sings and dances well; Zasma, assisted by Mlle. de Louie, gives a wonderfully clever gymnastic turn; Adams and Ward, acrobats, do some very clever work; and the Palascope pictures are heartily enjoyed.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—The pantomime season once again comes round, and during this week Puss in Boots is being presented by Mr. George Brydon-Phillips's company. Miss Ethel Dunbar is seen to advantage as the Marquis; Miss Kitty Vivian making a dashing Prince Ferdinand; Miss Mavis Hope makes a charming Princess Pansy; Bernard and Weston prove a couple of entertaining comedians; Mr. Tom Ashley as Dame Dorking and Mr. Leslie Digby as King Coke also contribute capably to the amusement; Miss Jeannie Langlois is a charming Fairy Hymen.

HIPPODROME THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—Marie Loftus, the great attraction at the above place this week, meets with a very hearty reception, being recalled several times at each performance; the Athos Troupe are an extremely clever quartette; Don and Mabel Keir in a Scottish scena, entitled Sandy's Return, give some good songs; Victor Courteney ("Boots" at the piano) gives imitations of banjo, musical box, &c.; Dion Wade amuses with impersonations of George Robey and others. Other artists who contribute are the Bros. Durant in their Aeroplane burlesque; Annie Heath, comedienne and dancer; and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shelley in a comedy sketch, The Ideal Woman. The Bioscope shows scenes of the recent earthquake at Messina.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. K. Draco.—One of the chief turns here is a small drama depicting an incident in the life of a society woman, and presented in an able manner by Alan Holt and company; another clever turn is that of Russell Car, an accomplished ventriloquist; the Croisit Trio perform remarkable feats of strength; the Three Chanters are responsible for some charming melodies; Jack Charman is an entertaining comedian; the Oakes comedy duo, and Belle Harcourt, comedienne, are a couple of favourite turns; and the Bioscope pictures are interesting.

CREWE.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alfred Cuthbert.—Messrs. Little and Darcy's company in Red Riding Hood is the attraction here. In the title-rôle Miss Prudence Ayrton wins golden opinions and sings well the songs "Come over the garden wall" and "Come round to tea"; Miss Florrie Bray, a commanding Boy Blue, is a general favourite; Miss Kitty Marion is successful as Prince Charming; Miss Nellie Moore is a dainty Miss Muffit, her songs and dancing meeting with unstinted praise; Miss Lilian Rose is a piquant Margery Daw, and makes a decided hit with the popular song "A tiny seed of love"; Miss Madge Seymour is responsible for a deal of fun as Maud Matilda; and Miss Tessie D'Alberti is a Charming Fairy Glowworm. Mr. Tom Melbourne makes a capital Baron Badlot, and along with Miss Nellie Moore sings a character song which goes well; as Dame Trott Mr. George Rapley is highly amusing; Mr. Richard Hamilton is clever as the Wolf; Mr. Sydney T. Russell as Simple Simon is good, and his song "Don't put me with a Suffragette," brings down the "house"; Messrs. Kerr and Koe as Johnny Green and Jimmy Stout are genuine "merriment merchants." The Sidney Girls are the principal dancers. Specialities are submitted by the Dayton Family, acrobats; the Eight Sunbeams, vocalists and speciality dancers; and Tiny May, toe dancer.

CROYDON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. Roland Daniel; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—The excellent pantomime Dick Whittington has been a great success, but the bookings prevent it continuing here after to-night. The Mezzettis in duologue The New Recruit are engaged for the week.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—The American Bioscope pictures this week include juvenile ju-jitsu and other films both interesting and amusing. Mr. James Hope, baritone, and Miss Minnie Newman, soprano, are heard to advantage in illustrated songs.

EMPIRE PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Walter Gibbons and Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Eustace Jay.—Mr. Ernest Ball and company are causing a thrilling sensation here in the realistic drama The Night Alarm. Dorothy Gould, at the piano, wins favour; Howard and St. Clair in sketch Do You Want any Coke? cause incessant laughter; Ada Cerito, comedienne, is a great favourite; Fredo and Preston are clever dancers and comedians; Sid Cotterell and company keep the audience amused in sketch, The Substitute; Claude Gardiner sings the latest popular songs with effect; Carrie Laurie's company of talented youngsters are warmly received in the entertaining skit The Belles of the Kitchen; Harry Russon, actor comedian, is up to the mark; Bugler Carr in a balancing and musical act is successful; Les Paolias are invigorating in a speciality act; and the animated pictures and beauty competition complete the programme.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Messrs. Mollison and Cooper's company is here this week with The Bonnie Brier Bush. Mr. William Mollison, a host in himself as Lachlan Campbell, is assisted by Miss Evelyn McNay, a charming and sympathetic Flora Campbell; Mr. Rutherford Mayne as Tammas Mitchell and Mr. R. B. Drysdale as Archibald McKittrick are extremely humorous; the Earl is well taken by Mr. Harold Neville; Lord Hay is played in a convincing manner by Mr. Archie W. Chappell; Mr. W. A. Mackersay as William McClure gives a finely-studied characterisation of that part; Miss Jeannie Fitzgerald is a pleasing Jeanie; Miss Elsie Vron as Kate Carnegie works well in the comedy parts; and Miss J. Worward as Margaret Howe wins much favour.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Theatre, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Hersee.—Miss Lottie Lennox, in her latest successes, arouses the large audiences to enthusiasm; the New Macs, dancers and comedians, are expert at their business; Cole-Cliffe, mimic, is good; Yetta is clever on the wire; and other good turns are:—Carl Colyer, comedian; Marstro and Mlle. Oretta, equilibrists and tumblers; Sisters Darrell, vocalists and dancers; and the Pepiscope pictures.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The Animated Pictorial Enterprises, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. A. Whitehouse.—This week Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's juvenile pantomime company in The House That Jack Built is playing to packed houses. The rôle of Jack is filled by Miss Florrie Taylor with much success, and Miss Evelyn Major is a most pleasing Jill; Miss Olive Purcell, a charming Fairy Twinkle Star, and Miss H. Jones a favourite as Colin, Gretchen being a pleasing character in the hands of Miss J. Marsden. Miss Gladys Wyse scores heavily as Wee M'Gregor; Mr. H. Hillerby is greatly amusing as Aunt Purdy; and Mr. Paddy Sloan makes the most of Squire Bounce. Messrs. Doyle and Gibson as Scragg and Scraggles, and Mr. Stanley Jefferson and Mr. Ireland Cutter as the Motor Tourists create much laughter. The Forget-me-Not Quartette provide some fine speciality dancing.

PUBLIC HALL AND PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees, Messrs. Thomson, Lewers, and Bennett; Manager, Mr. J. E. Thomson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Kerrigan.—Scott and Ward, comedians and dancers, top the bill, and are well received; Jack Ramsey is also a comedian of no mean order; and Fanny Needham is applauded for her singing and dancing. The two fine dramatic pictures Ingrate and Test of Friendship are shown for the first time in England.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—The Hutchison company is here this week with Peter's Mother. The play is exceedingly well produced, and is being liberally patronised. Miss Violet Ley plays with wonderful feeling and effect in the name-part, and Mr. Drew Mackintosh gives a manly depiction of John Crewys; Mr. Vivian Gilbert enacts Peter to the life, submitting a fine rendering of a difficult rôle. Miss Hilda Sims makes a charming Sarah; Sir Timothy is capably accounted for by Mr. Townsend Whitling, and Mr. Edward Jackson is good as Dr. Blundell. Lady Belstone, Miss Crewys, and Canon Birch are well played by Miss Mary Griffiths, Miss Josephine Roe, and Mr. Walter Russell. Turtle Doves is the lever-de-rideau.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—Owing to the absence through illness of Mr. James Fawn, the star turn here is provided by Mr. Harry Freeman, who scores an immediate success. The Paul Kramer Troupe of head-balancers are deserving of high commendation. Included in the troupe is Miss Martha Kramer, whose graceful feats of strength are an outstanding item of the show. Mackintosh and Royal give an excellent display of clog-dancing; Ida Kessanley's fox terriers are finely trained, and cause much amusement; the Langfords are a smart trio of dancers; Ruby Emmerson, a charming comedienne, is decidedly popular; Indiana gives a marvellous exhibition of flexibility. The Bioscope continues to be a well-appreciated number.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—Robinson Crusoe entered on the fourth week of his stay on Monday with unabated enthusiasm. Many new songs have been introduced, which materially add to the attractiveness of the production. Miss Carlile scores with her rendering of "Connemara"; Mr. Fred Anderson brings down the house with his efforts, "Sue, Sue" and "I'm going to retire"; Mr. Henry Eglington as Mrs. Crusoe receives tumultuous encores for "Don't you think you ought to see a doctor?" and "I want someone to love me"; and Miss Gertrude Blanch does excellently in "Mr. Wright, you're wrong."

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—Grant and Grant, American octoroons, fully deserve the premier position allocated to them on the bill, their singing and dancing being equally of first-class merit; Leonie de Lausanne apparently deserves her title of lady champion shot of the world, some of the attainments being little short of marvellous; Will Douglas's Five Jolly Bakers tickle the audience's risible faculties, whilst their gymnastic skill is far above the average; the Three Pirmans supply an interesting pot-pourri act; and Boden and Bell prove themselves highly accomplished juvenile dancers. Joe Humphreys' song, "Actions speak louder than words" has a rousing encore; Edie King quickly ingratiates herself as a comedienne and dancer; and the Bioscope and Hipposcope—particularly the former, depicting newspaper life—entertain with some highly-interesting films.

DEWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Asquith.—The Bondman pays its first visit here this week—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company. Studious and conscientious to a degree, Mr. R. Scrope Quentin appears in the rôle of Jason; in the rôle of Adam Fairbrother Mr. Oswald Lingard gives a sound performance; Greeba is most naturally and sympathetically depicted by Miss Georgina Wynter; in the dual part of Father Ferrati and the Grandfather an effective and valuable exponent is found in Mr. W. H. Rotherham; Mrs. Fairbrother is excellently represented by Miss Madge Lanerton; the Governor Testa of Mr. Wilfrid Beckwith and Dr. Boni of Mr. Fred J. Waller had a sufficiency of fibre and virility; Michael Sunlocks is represented by Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves with vigour and earnestness, which yield a most admirable interpretation; the two children, Mona and Danny, are rendered with a juvenile freshness and buoyant spirit by little Miss Gertrude Helene and Master Walter Neville.

DONCASTER.—NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. J. U. Chapman.—Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's Christmas pantomime The Babes in the Wood is being well received. Mr. Edwin Lambert is exceptionally clever as Infernalito; Mr. Dan Tandy's Wicked Uncle is well conceived; Miss Marion Scott is admired as Robin Hood; Maid Marion is represented with skill by Miss Margaret Cathcart; Mr. Dawson Dewick pleases as Soft Sammy. The transformation is beautifully executed. Specialities are submitted by the Hammersley Troupe of Lady Dancers and the Lohrenz Quartette.

DOVER.—ROYAL HIPPODROME.—The Seventeen Gordon Highlanders are the chief attraction this week, and their performance is smartly done and full of interest; a clever exhibition of dancing is given by the Sarony Sisters; and Milton and Mora prove themselves experts on the triple bar. Gibbon and Bell appear in Wanted, a Partner, introducing a pretty dance and some exceptionally good acrobatic work; while Beale and Broadway, in refined harmony and tricky dancing, promptly win the approbation of the audience. A humorous duologue is presented by Cole and Wood; and Beatrice Rene as the Cosmopolitan Girl is a complete success.

DUBLIN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Armstrong.—The Moody-Manners' Opera Company entered on their fourth and last week here on Monday, when Aida was repeated before a large audience. Mme. de Vere-Sapio, in the title-rôle, sang with much charm and grace; Mr. Philip Brozel as Radames was in remarkably fine voice, his solos being admirably sung; Mr. Charles Manners scored his usual success as Ramphis; Miss Toni Seiter was exceedingly good as Amneris; Mr. Lewys James excellent as Amonasro; and Mr. Charles Magrath did extremely well as the King. The chorus was admirable, and the orchestra, under the conductorship of Signor Romnaldo Sapio, all that could be desired. On Tuesday evening The Lily of Killarney was presented to a full house, and met with a good reception. Cavalleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, La Traviata, The Meistersingers, Madame Butterfly, Il Trovatore, and Maritana were also announced.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing - Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—The grand pantomime of Robinson Crusoe continues here with unabated success, Miss Kathleen Gray as Jack Rattins being particularly good, her singing of "A tiny seed of love" and "Antonio" being worthy of special praise; Miss Marie as the Fairy renders her musical numbers in excellent fashion; Miss Gladys White acts well and sings tastefully as Princess Saccarina; Mr. Walter Barrett acquits himself well as Davy Jones and the Cannibal King; the rôle of Man Friday could scarcely be better placed than in the hands of Mr. Frank Gala, his skating being a special feature; Messrs. Keish and Rigby as the Bosun and Mate are as amusing as ever in their knockabout work; the Carlyles, in their "Whirlwind" dance, have several recalls; and Mr. Barney Armstrong as Will Atkins, Mr. J. J. Dallas as Mrs. Crusoe, and Mr. Henry Luppo continue to keep the fun going from start to finish.

EMPIRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—The chief item here this week is Mr. Ernest C. Gittin's company, in the musical sketch The Daughter of the Regiment, which is enthusiastically received. Another attractive feature is the Tennessee Guards, in their singing and gymnastic display; Les Voces sing several vocal numbers with artistic feeling; Frances Hanlon, comedienne, is accorded a hearty welcome; the Strolling Players find ready acceptance for their musical pot-pourri act; Stacey and Williams, the comedy pair, submit an amusing turn; and Angeline, in a smart and clever juggling act, is deservedly applauded. Toff Noel has catchy songs, and the Empire pictures conclude.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Cornalla and Eddie, in their comedy acrobatic act, head the bill here, and prove a popular attraction. In a sensational gymnastic act, Botella and Virginia are the recipients of loud applause, and the Bros. Esdale are clever comedians and dancers; Eldra and his dog Prince provide an entertaining turn, and the vocalism of the Sisters Della is highly appreciated; E. S. Kempton scores as a comedian and dancer; and Miss Mabe Moss, comedienne, sings in good style. Dan Hendy, eccentric comedian, and Bert Bowden, vocal comedian, also appear with success, and Following his Mother's Footsteps is shown on the Bioscope.

ROUND ROOM ROTUNDA.—The Irish Animated Photo Co. is still the attraction here. The new series of pictures shown is followed with interest by large audiences daily, and the vocal items rendered by Mr. Patrick O'Shea, tenor, Mr. Ralph Goggin, baritone, and the excellent selections played by the orchestra, under the leadership of M. Grandpierre, win unstinted applause.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The change of programme here includes:—Marshall and Wright, eccentric comedians and dancers; Weary Wally Cleveland, comedian; Queenie Swift, soubrette; Gunn Kook, tenor vocalist; Leo Bowman, comedian and dancer; the Stanleys, comedy entertainers; and the cinematograph.

SAMUEL'S EXHIBITION PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels.—The following artists are appearing here:—Hal Howell, eccentric comedian; Fred Lolo, vocal comedian; Ned Byrne, whistling coster; Polly O'Shea, Irish comedienne; and Corney Caine, comedian and dancer.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Miss Hook of Holland, in the charming person of Miss Ethel James, is delighting the patrons of this popular house this week. Miss James is the embodiment of grace and vivacity, and is in excellent voice; Mr. Charles B. McLagan, a Dudley favourite of many years' standing, is a distinct success and highly amusing as Mr. Hook. Another part deserving of praise is that of Simon Slinks by Mr. Fred Dark; Miss Muff Carew is quaint and amusing as Mina; Mr. J. B. Fox as Captain Adrian Paap, Mr. Edward Foyd as the Bandmaster, and Mr. Frank Attree as Schnapps distinguish themselves. All the principal songs are encored, the chorus is a powerful and well-balanced one, and elaborate scenery is carried.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Midland Entertainment Corporation, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. H. Waters.—The Dardinis, comedy jugglers, are pleasing the many patrons of this house by their cleverness and comedy; Tee and Tee, musical eccentrics, are great; Hiram Travers, the original "pearly king," soon captures his audience with his catchy songs and jokes; Hesketh Meade sings "The Village Blacksmith" (illustrated) capitally; the Sisters Du Cane are charming vocalists and dancers; Nance Elder, comedienne, has songs that are complete contrasts; Will Toole is a good comic vocalist, and the Empire Pictures complete the programme.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe.—Mr. George D. Day's No. 1 company is appearing here in The Prodigal Son. Mr. Albert Ward's Oscar Stephensson rivets the attention of the house from first to last; Mr. J. Weldon Atherstone as Magnus is powerful and realistic; and Mr. Jackson Hayes excellent as Stephen. Mr. David Beattie submits a fine character study of Oscar Neilson; Miss Dorrie Roberts cleverly portrays the parts of Thora and Elen; Helga has a dashing and handsome representative in Miss Pearla Gardner; and Miss Maud Locker is an amusing Margaret Neilsen.

PALACE THEATRE. — Lessees, the United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. S. McIntosh.—An excellent bill is headed by Albert and Edmund's comedy troupe in a pantomimical real life absurdity, entitled Neighbours, which creates roars of laughter; the Vays in Life in the Slums give a vivid picture; George James's entertaining patter and songs cause great merriment; Mike Gray and his dog Dooley are popular; Henrietta and Selina delight everyone with their musical act; Sira, the one-legged acrobat, contributes a sensational act; Rose Pink, a bright and vivacious comedienne, sings capital songs.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessee, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Licensee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts; General Manager, Mr. Frank Percival; Acting-Manager, T. Edward Evans.—Miss Winifred Chalmer's company is appearing here with much success in The Master Criminal. Miss V. St. Laurence plays the heavy part of Cecile in creditable fashion; Mr. Henry L. Osmond as Telford Lestage has a strong part, which he renders with distinction; as Philip Manners Mr. Cuthbert Taylor plays with ability, and Mr. J. C. Carlyle as Ben Beaudy gives an admirable presentation. The Gentleman Jim of Mr. Charles Tolcher is a clever bit of work; Mr. Harry Cooke as Tommy Dale is responsible for some capital comedy work; Miss Lilian Burns makes a pleasing and attractive Mabel Manners; and Miss Mabel Tremere as Peggy Perks is delightfully bright and amusing.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. Lillie Williams; Business Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Large audiences are being attracted here by Newman's Original British Empire company, with a fine picture programme.

NEWMAN'S PICTURE PALACE.—A long and exceptionally interesting programme of pictures is given by Mr. Fred Newman at his popular west-end house this week.

KINNAIRD HALL.—Hamilton's Excursions conclude a very successful season here to-night (Saturday), large audiences having been the rule at every performance. On Friday night a complimentary benefit was given to Mr. Claude Howell to commemorate his twenty-first year as guide. In addition to the usual programme, a number of well-known local artists kindly lent their assistance.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Mr. Hamilton Stewart presented here for the first three nights of this week Sherlock Holmes. Mr Joseph Millane as Sherlock Holmes gives a highly meritorious study; Mr. Douglas Murray is responsible for a good impersonation of Dr. Watson; Mr. Robert Gilbert as Professor Moriarty is well placed; Mr. Walter A. Chetham is a capable John Forman; Master Thomas Russell puts in some good work as Billy; Miss Elsie Goulding ably sustains the character of Alice Faulkner; and as Madge Larrabee Miss Edith Vogne gives a good exposition of the part. Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company in When Knights were Bold is billed for the last three nights of the week.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Mr. Charles M. Bestic's company is appearing here throughout the week in The Flower Girl. In the title part Miss Beatrice Nelson does graceful and charming work, and her cultured singing is worthy of special praise; Miss Lilian Drake, brimful of energy and brightness, is an ideal Lizette de Racquet; Miss Georgie de Lara, handsome and pleasing, is an attractive suffragette, Miss Greenhill, and Miss Elsie Love is excellent; Mr. John T. MacCallum works manfully as Joe Wheeler, and whether singing, acting, or dancing, he displays fine ability, and helps the fun along in a very happy manner; Mr. Louis du Cane as Reginald Rackit has a dude part which he plays to perfection; Robert Cranny is an interesting Billy Greenhill; Mr. John Latham sings finely as Johnny Wheeler, and his burlesque duet with Mr. MacCallum is one of the features of the evening; Mr. Henry Adnes is a most lively and realistic Alphonse de Racquet; and the remaining parts are ably filled. A large and tuneful chorus is under the direction of Mr. Louis Beaufort.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Holloway.—Topping the bill here this week are the Seven Marvels, and their cleverly-varied and brightly-attractive work as singers and musicians eneures them a hearty welcome; the Three Orleans sing tunefully and dance exceptionally well; Miss Norah Noble sings sweetly and dances with much ability; Buster Brown is an exceptionally able skater on rollers, and he introduces very funny business; Miss Waldorf has a popular number in her illustrated songs; Mr. Ted Saunders is highly successful as a mimic; the Spanish Amio Trio have a novel speciality; and new pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

PIER PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes. Mr. J. D. Hunter's company is appearing here in Robinson Crusoe. The bright and funny pantomime has been produced by Mr. Matt Melrose, and the result does him very great credit. Miss Lallah Melrose, pleasing, attractive, and bright, holds the keenest interest of the audience as Polly, and her song "Will you come for a sail in my yacht?" is one of the evening's successes; Miss Cynthia Lupino is a shapely and smart Robinson Crusoe; Miss Rita Emson and Miss Kitty Emerson as Captain Lanyard and Nancy Lee are a dainty and picturesque couple, whose work is very acceptable; Miss Flora MacDonald sings well as the Fairy Queen; and Miss Judith Espinosa is a capital Princess, whose dancing deserves a special word of praise. Mr. Matt Melrose as Dame Crusoe works loyally and well, and his share in keeping the fun and laughter going is a very large one; Mr. Arthur Lanville is a highly-amusing and clever Will Atkins; Mr. George Lupino makes much of his part as Friday; Mr. Willie Hicks is a cleverly funny and effective Richard Hopkins; Mr. George Lorraine as Cannibal King adds materially to the general success; Messrs. Dennis and Morris as Jack and Jimmy are expert dancers; and Mr. Fred Earne is an agile monkey. Mr. Surtees Corne is the able conductor.

ECCLES.—CROWN THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Rogers.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company is here in Greed of Gold. Mr Henry Parr as Harry Hood plays forcibly; as Arthur Erroll Mr. Alfred Stretton makes a good impression; Mr. Vic C. Rolfe is a typical K.C.; Mr. James Jarrett gives a capable rendering of Tom Wolstead, the dumb man; much fun is caused by Mr. Arthur Beaufort, Mr. Charles E. Weed, and Miss Florrie Hayes in their respective rôles; Miss Maud M. Powell portrays the character of Dora with tenderness.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—The run of Havana has been pleasantly followed by the production of A Waltz Dream, which is a very bright operetta of the most enjoyable description. As Lieutenant Niki Mr. Robert Evett, whose reception was cordial in the extreme, makes good his claims to distinction as an operatic vocalist and an agreeable actor, his impersonation of the character being admirably sustained; in the rôle of the Princess Miss Ethel Cadman was also eminently successful, her singing being marked by culture and ability; Miss May de Sousa created a most favourable impression by her acting and singing as the leader of the ladies' orchestra; and the big drum, Fifi, was well represented by Miss May Marton. In Miss Amy Augarde the part of Fr respondent, gives an interesting fifteen minutes' chat about the many campaigns he has gone through, illustrating his remarks by actual photographs of stirring scenes of war; Minnie Duncan and Arthur Godfrey are exceedingly happy in the little coster comedy Me and 'Er; Melia and Mozarabar do some pretty scenes with trained ravens and pigeons; and the Four Figaros, a quartette of vocalists and dancers, appear in an entertainment entitled Ten Minutes on the Continent. The single-handed turns are fairly equal in merit, and include Burnetti, the original character musician; Victor Newman, the character actor, in various impersonations; Arthur Astill, a clever whistling mimic, and the "Seaweed" comedian, Fred Earle, of whom the audience would willingly see and hear more than time-limits permit. The bioscope pictures show striking views of the ruins of Messina after the recent earthquake.

KING'S THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—The second week of Beauty and the Beast, played by Mr. Fred Granville's company, has been even more successful than the first. Huge audiences have crowded the theatre, and money has had to be refused at the doors on several occasions. There is so much fun and gaiety in the pantomime that its popularity is well deserved. The abandon and humour of the Sisters Sprightly in songs, dances, and sketches are notable features in a capital all-round performance, in which the excellent comedians Messrs. Sam Foster, Juan Wood, Daleno and Stream provide much laughter-provoking business. Miss Cissie Trent makes a hit as Marmaduke Million, a village beau, and the charming young actress is nightly encored with enthusiasm for a spirited rendering of the catchy air "Have you got another girl like Mary?"; Mr. Leslie Austin and Mlle. Benita have deepened the impression made by their artistic singing; Miss Hilda de Gray as Prince Greatheart delights everyone by her graceful acting; and Kennedy's Kiddies contribute greatly to the exhilarating power of the entertainment.

COOKE'S ROYAL CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. C. Burns.—The promise of success given in the early performances of King Gold and the Lucky Little Lassie has been amply realised by the crowded houses which the piece has attracted to Mr. Cooke's bright and cosy house. The sturdy little Scotch children throw themselves into their work with an animation which repeated performances have never dulled, and there is real fun in the different scenes of the piece. Talberto and Douglas and Mr. Harry Dale by their humorous acting brightening every act. The canvases are cleverly filled in, the dresses are attractive, and the entire pantomime is on a level with the many meritorious spectacles produced at this house. There are various admirable turns in the miscellaneous part of the programme; smart and dashing feats by the Three Hodginis, "Continental Marvels," the Millwards in a pleasing and novel performance, and the always exciting musical scramble on horseback.

EXETER. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. Mouillot's pantomime Cinderella entered upon its second edition this week. New "business" and songs have improved what was already a first-class entertainment. Among the specialities for this week are the Seven Perezoffs in their juggling act, A Supper at Maxim's, which had an unmistakably cordial reception. The popularity of Cinderella is shown by the crowded and appreciative house.

THE NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frederick Sandy.—Colonel Gaston Bordeverry supports his claim to be the world's greatest rifle and pistol shot with some really startling and sensational feats; an excellent sketch, entitled Christmas Eve, is produced in an entirely satisfactory manner by Mr. Irve Hayman and Marie Montague, the latter a dainty little child actress; My Lady Betty, a romantic comedy episode, is performed with spirit and grace by Frank Elliston and company; the Maningos in their smart equilibristic act are well deserving of the enthusiastic reception they attain; the same remark applying to the Three Gartis; bright and entertaining business is also introduced by Vesta and Minnie Pine and the Leonards; and some interesting Hippodrome pictures round off a capital programme.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. W. Ebbutt.—Mr. Ian Maclaren in Shakespeare and old English comedy holds the boards at this house, and business is excellent. The Shakespearean selections included Hamlet, Shylock, Romeo, and Macbeth, together with David Garrick, and to each and all of these parts Mr. Maclaren gave a cultured and artistic rendering. He is supported by an excellent company, including Messrs. Mathew Boulton, F. Stafford Dawson, Guy Cunningham, Charles Kingsley, Bertram Ormerod, and Vernon O. Crabtree and Misses Gertrude Littlewood, Katherine Harrington, Ruby Maclaren, Ruth Dockray, Constance Brooks, and Gladys Carton.

FOLKESTONE. — PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Roland.—Mr. Murray King and powerful company have played to full and appreciative houses the highly successful comedy Toddles. The title-rôle was in the safe hands of Mr. Murray King, who kept the audiences alive with merriment. Mrs. Evelyn Shelley as Mrs. Joblyn, the parvenu prospective mother-in-law of Toddles, proved herself to be a comedy actress beyond ordinary merit, and was largely responsible for the success of the production. Mr. Ardene Linden's Joblyn was exceedingly humorous. A pleasing innovation was made in the second scene by the introduction of Mr. Mattie Cheshire, a society entertainer, who cleverly sang two humorous ditties at the pianoforte. The parts of Freddy Gunner and Haslitt were excellently portrayed by Mr. Aleck Chumley and Mr. C. Douglas Cox. Mention should also be made of the clever acting of Mr. Richard Webb as the Maire. Lady Dover and Mrs. Bowler were admirably acted by Miss Naomi Neilson and Miss Mabel Ormonde. As fiancée to Toddles Miss Doris Langdon scored an undoubted success, her love scene in the last scene being a delightful piece of acting.

TOWN HALL.—The "Daily Mirror" animated pictures, under the management of Messrs. Allen and Vincent, proved a highly entertaining attraction for the week.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Gainsborough Theatre Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Leighton.—On Monday and Tuesday we had The Cingalee, and the company, which is a very strong one, presented by Mr. Haldane Crichton, met with great success, crowded houses being the rule each evening. Miss Mollie Wolstenholme sang splendidly as Nanoya; Miss Pauline Hague gave a good rendering of Lady Pat; and the Peggy of Miss Alice Nixon was charming; Voreker and Bobby Warren were capably played by Messrs. Harold Wardroper and Scott Cullen, and Sir Peter Loftus had a good representative in Mr. F. W. Ford. Chorus and scenery are excellent, and the dresses pretty and effective.

GATESHEAD. — KING'S THEATRE. — Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager and Licensee, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Barton and Ashley, in Canal Boat Sal, are starring here this week, and provide some refreshing comedy; Ellis and Ellis present a terpsichorean turn, which is heartily applauded; Joe Almasis, a jumper and juggler, has a clever assistant, the act being altogether meritorious; Frank H. Fox, a comedian with a refreshing style, is successful; Clarice Sefton presents an excellent dancing act; Little Dot Moss, toy comedienne, and the Kingscope are other attractive items.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Dixon.—The Christian, presented by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company, has created much interest here. Mr. Henry Renouf enacts with distinct credit the part of John Storm. His success is shared by Miss Doris Gilham, whose Glory is a talented assumption. Other parts are in very capable hands, and the production is excellent all round.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—Cinderella is still attracting good houses, and there are no signs of diminishing interest. The pantomime is going with a swing, which guarantees support for a long time yet. Everything seems quite fresh, and from a spectacular point of view alone is well worth seeing. The principals are still getting through their fun-producing with a spirit which never fails to keep up a continual chuckle all over the house. Standing out in bold relief is the one and only George Robey as Buttons, who is ably seconded by Mr. Harry Dent as the Baron. The pair work admirably to one another. As a contrast of characters, nothing greater could be fancied, the one slow and stolid, the other alert and ever on the move. Miss Iris Hoey as Cinderella has planted herself a firm favourite, her performance being as dainty as one could wish to see; Miss Meg Hamylton as Dandini has made a great impression with her winsome presence and tasty singing; while Miss Violet Loraine gets through a great amount of hard work as the Prince with decided ability and distinction. In regard to the musical part of the pantomime, it may be assured that many of the airs have come to stay. For instance, the song in Scene 1, by Miss Loraine, "The garden of your heart," is specially catchy; but all through many songs are introduced, such as the laughing song by the Bros. Obo, "Afraid to go home in the dark" by Willie Garvey in the character of Mrs. Kilkenny, and "A white man all the time," splendidly rendered by Miss Loraine, all of which are certain to be with us long after the curtain is finally dropped on this pantomime.

KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—After a month's run of A Waltz Dream we are having a three weeks' visit from Havana, in which Mr. George Edwardes's company were welcomed by a crowded and enthusiastic audience on Monday. As Consuelo, Miss Gertrude Lester returns to the theatre where she was so successful a year ago, and in acting and singing she proves an ideal representative of the Cuban belle; Mr. T. C. Maxwell as Jackson Villiers makes an excellent lover, and his fine voice is heard to much advantage in all his musical numbers; Mr. George Gregory as Nix, the melancholy bo'sun of the Wasp, made a great hit, as he plays from the first scene to the last with a lugubrious air of settled woe that has exactly the opposite effect on the auditors; as the yacht's boy, Reginald Brown, Mr. W. H. Rawlins is in a somewhat novel rôle (for him), but as far as the humour is concerned he could not be better suited. His topical song was much enjoyed. Miss Luna Love, who made a hit in pantomime in Glasgow two years ago, returns in this play as Anita, and acted, danced, and sang with infinite gusto all through; her "Apache" dance with the melancholy bo'sun was a huge success. Mr. Will Hindson is well suited as the amorous Frank Charteris; and as Don Adolfo, Mr. Frank Hector proves himself an able comedian and dancer. Mr. Edward O'Neill plays the part of the scheming Diego with the necessary melodramatic seriousness; Mr. Campbell Bishop is duly dignified as the Mayor of Havana; Miss Jessie Broughton received a hearty and well-deserved encore for her song in Act 2; Miss Florence Phillips as Tita acted with brightness and animation, and her various dances were received with acclamation. The scenery of Messrs. Joseph Harker and Alfred Terraine gives a picturesque setting to the play; and the large chorus and augmented orchestra were kept well in hand by Mr. Andrew Maccunn.

ROYALTY, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Carpenter.—The attraction here this week is furnished by Mr. Seymour Hicks's company in The Gay Gordons, which achieved a great success on its previous visits. In the part of Angus Græme, Mr. Stanley Brett acts with energy and enthusiasm; his merry little touches of side-play all tend to make the character highly diverting. Miss Maie Ash as Peggy Quainton deserves praise for her interpretation of this part; her singing meets with instantaneous approval, and for her songs, "See-saw" and "You, you, you," she has hearty encores. Miss Lily Maxwell as Victoria Siddons gives a fine performance, and her pleasing vocalisation is heard to advantage in several pretty numbers falling to the rôle; the eccentric and alert humour of Mr. E. Statham Staples finds a convenient channel in the part of Nervy Nat; Miss Nellie Dade is well suited as Charlotte Siddons; Mr. Ernest Forrence acquits himself well as Andrew Quainton; a fine performance is that of Miss Ida Mann as Janet McLeod. Other parts are well looked after, and the chorus render their work in fine style.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Christie Grant.—Cinderella is in a flourishing condition, and every week finds something new being added, thereby assuring the pantomime a prolonged run. The principals are untiring, and Mr. Whit Cunliffe has been particularly fortunate in his choice of character—Dandini—which he fills to a nicety, and plenty of scope is given him as a vocalist, which the audience thoroughly appreciate. The leading ladies have a large say in the success. Miss Violet Halls and Miss Queenie Finnis are very popular, and their singing and dancing provides sound enjoyment; while the drolleries of Messrs. Geo. French and Barry Lupino are responsible for continual outbursts of laughter. The scenery, dresses, and ballet are a specially pleasing feature of the production.

PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—The gay and attractive pantomime Diccory Dok is still being played to splendid houses, and from the enthusiasm shown it is evident Mr. Waldon's patrons come again and again to see their favourites. As principal boy, Miss Flora Cromar has made many friends; while her partner, Miss Ella Retford, repeats her former triumphs at this house. Misses Fraser and Haley, the clever duettists, make another attractive boy and girl; and a third pair of lovers are smartly represented by the Sisters Bartholomew. Amongst the comedians, Mr. Syd Walker (Prof. Pillbox) shows a genuine sense of humour; Mr. Peter Bermingham (Wee Hughie) supplies local colour; Mr. Harry A. Gribben is a good burlesque Squire; as the Dame, Mr. Ainslie Barton does well; Mr. Cliff Lake (Squills) and Mr. Walter Dale (Sparkle) are also good.

METROPOLE, LTD. — General-Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Crowded houses are assembling here nightly to enjoy Messrs. W. H. Hallatt and Walter Howard's company, in the stirring military drama, Her Love Against the World, in which Mr. Fred Emery gives a fine impersonation of the hero, Eric, Earl of Strathmere; while Miss Grace Heywood makes an impressive heroine as Princess Iris of Idalia. A pleasing part is that of the boy, Lionel, nicely played by Miss Rossie St. John; the villain of the play is Ulric, Prince of Ravensburg, powerfully rendered by Mr. Lewis Gilbert; some amusing comedy is introduced in the complicated love affairs of Katinka (Miss Gertie Reid) and Gretchen (Miss Hettie Ferguson), whose lovers, Henrid (Mr. Henry B. Lewis) and Fritz (Mr. John Mill), also make love at cross purposes; Miss Blanche Steele as Shulah and Miss Julie de Esco as Corona are pleasing exponents of their parts; Prince Maurice gets a good rendering at the hands of Mr. Victor Rowland; while Mr. W. H. Hallatt is equally successful as Prince Othmar. The officers of the Saxonian army are ably represented by Mr. Chas. R. Hann as General Gassier, Mr. Webster Gray as Colonel Esterhazy, and Mr. A. B. Cushman as Colonel Lindorf. Mr. A. H. Hallatt as an army surgeon gives a satisfactory rendering of the part. The drama is very well staged, the camp scenes being highly realistic.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden. — Robinson Crusoe, from the pen of Mr. J. Hickory Wood, and produced by Mr. Milton Bode, is the fare provided this week. Miss Jennie Lynwood makes a sprightly Robinson, and gets through her work well; as Polly Hopkins, Miss Lucy Coventry is one of the successes of the piece, her all-round work, together with her singing and graceful dancing, at once making her a pronounced favourite; Miss Luna Lyndon is a smart little actress, and does well as Jenny Perkins; Miss Rosie Bartlett makes a neat Lieutenant, and her singing of "I want you to see my girl" is quite a feature; a popular artist is Miss Rose Cabani, to whom is entrusted the part of the Empress—she is well known in the city, and meets with a capital reception; to Mr. Harry Ugar is allotted the eccentricities of Mrs. Crusoe, and he carries through the part in good style; Mr. Percy Johnson makes a good appearance as Bill Crusoe. Much of the fun, however, is due to Keith and Merson, who as Samuel Salt and Peter Pepper keep the house in an uproar; the work of the former is particularly good. Very favourable mention must be made of Larola, who seems exactly suited to the impersonation of Friday; his antics are both pleasing and clever, and his work genuine. It is singular that the part of Will Atkins should be allotted to a Scotch comedian, yet Mr. Donal MacDougal makes the most of his part, and meets with a good reception; the Six Lancashire Lasses and the Georgia Trio add to the attractions of the pantomime, which is excellently staged. The ballet is neat and the chorus powerful and well balanced, and, in all, the show must be pronounced a success.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—Joe Peterman's company heads the bill, and in a burlesque operatic sketch, The Butler's Party, comes out well; as a comedian, Coverdale does many smart things, and has many clever sayings. His turn is responsible for much merriment. Well known in the city is the Glenroy Troupe; their dancing is thoroughly appreciated. That clever Japanese combination, the Ten-Ji Troupe, pay a return visit, and prove a very decided attraction; their sleight-of-hand, in conjunction with their smart juggling and mystical work, go far to please. L'Incognita is a soprano with a wonderful range of voice; her singing is delightful, and her songs are excellently rendered. In her present voice she will never lack for engagements. Annie Purcell is indeed a favourite in Glasgow, and her choruses are taken up with zest; Frank Street gives a very clever impersonation of R. G. Knowles, and is well received; Argo, the farmyard mimic, and Harry Simms, comedian, are also included, and meet with a fair share of patronage; the Bioscope films, depicting cross-country work by Italian cavalry, is also very much appreciated, and terminates a good programme.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock.—The entire entertainment this week consists of the pantomime Robinson Crusoe, in which a plentiful supply of popular songs and choruses keep crowded houses in good humour. Miss Amy Randolph makes a delightful Robinson; and Man Friday is well handled by Mr. Tom Gilmour, who also doubles Captain Scuttle. Mr. J. Telly Dilsen as Mrs. Crusoe is responsible for a good deal of side-shaking; the Sisters Selwyn and the Sisters Poole Pelham are graceful dancers and pleasing singers; Messrs. Justin and Mantell are a pair of clever acrobats, who interpret the characters of bailiffs, Bom and Bim; Miss Dora Lindsay as Fairy Pearl sings pleasingly; and Mr. Brete Harte as Kernoodlum is an amusing potentate. Other effective parts are Polly Perkins, by Miss Elsa Arnell; Sam Spar, by Miss Cecilia Maynard; with Raffo and Jacko, by Messrs. Joe Carlyle and Paul Johnson. The pantomime abounds in good scenic effects.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—Mlle. Liane D'Eve, the famous French chanteuse, tops the bill here, and her dainty style and catchy songs prove highly popular, despite the fact that they are in French; the Juggling McBans give a very smart display of club juggling, with quite a lot of new and novel feats; Leo Dryden takes well in his descriptive songs and scenas, "The White Man" proving an especial favourite. Nellie Hewitt and Elsie May contribute a particularly good musical turn, in which a clever club-swinging item is introduced; Lozelle, in his trapeze act, is well received, and heartily applauded for a really novel turn; Arthur Croxton is a smart light comedian, and has also a genuine gift of mimicry, his children's studies being specially good; and Mark Leslie as a coon is deservedly recalled for his smart dancing.

PALACE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Richard Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry M'Kelvie.—The principal turn is provided by Hayman and Franklin, popular delineators of Hebrew comedy, in a new and original duologue, entitled In the Hotel Lobby. They have many admirers here, and their reception on the opening night was accordingly very hearty. The Il Trovatore selections by Miss Ethel Pender Cudlip and Mr. Claude Anderson were well rendered and thoroughly appreciated. Chard's Dog Circus is a clever and novel turn; Edwards and Dacre appear in comedy duologue, entitled "What a Life"; and Olive and Owen provide a vocal scena, "The Roadside Tinkers." Nell Cotter is a sprightly comedienne; Edie Veno, eccentric comedienne, and Selbo, expert juggler, also did exceedingly well, the entertainment concluding with a series of up-to-date Bioscope pictures.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—A specially strong company here is headed by Yukio Tani, the well-known exponent of ju-jitsu, and some exciting wrestling bouts have taken place. A house crowded to overflowing on Tuesday witnessed an exciting contest between Alex. Munro, the Govan wrestler, and Tani, in which the local man held out for fifteen minutes, and won the stake of £20. The company includes several good musical turns, notably that of the Courtiers, in a musical mélange founded on The Bohemian Girl; Amelie de L'Enclos in several beautifully-rendered solos; and Helen Guest, in popular illustrated songs. Cliff Ryland, quainter and more irresponsible than ever, keeps the audience in roars of laughter; Bellen and Stock's company, including Master Edward Garratt, take well in the racing playlet, An Outside Chance; Enzer, the soldier juggler, gives a clever display, assisted by Miss Clarice, the lady ji-jitsu expert; the Falcons, in their comedy acrobatic act, also prove one of the best items on a varied and interesting bill.

GAIETY, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Dick Whittington and his retinue have gone after a successful stay of a month, and this house has fallen back on its old variety clothes. The management are to be congratulated on this week's company. Heading the bill we have Oswald Cray and company, in a dramatic sketch, The Biter Bit, which is strongly presented, and rewarded by a good reception; Rosie Dawn renewed her acquaintance with the Anderston folks, and delighted them with her clever dancing; the Sisters Lotus gave a couple of tuneful duets in creditable style; Geo. Westland, a pawky Scotch comedian, was in great demand, his patter being decidedly original and amusing; Jack M'Cormack, also a Scotch comedian, sang well; but the turn of the programme, from a humorous point of view, was undoubtedly Clarke and Glenney, in an absurdity entitled The Haunted House. This little sketch was excruciatingly funny, and was accompanied throughout by roars of laughter. The animated pictures—grave and gay—are well selected, and by no means the least interesting part of a grand entertainment. The popular manager, Mr. Bowerman, takes a benefit on Thursday, Jan. 28, when a greatly augmented programme is promised.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—The Westwood Family head the bill here this week. Two of the members are remarkably fat—Wilfred, who weighs 21st 7lb, and Ruby, who weighs 17st; their ages are eleven and fourteen years respectively. The Brothers Diania are amusing comedians; and the Sisters Lorraine sing and dance in fine style. Marie Ross, a clever comedienne, is worthy of praise; The House Decorator, A Fascinating Game, and An Energetic Woman are most amusing pictures shown by the Bioscope.

GLOSSOP. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. and Mrs. John Walter's bright and clever pantomime production is here this week. Miss Violet Thorne secures many admirers by her dashing representation of Robin Hood; Miss Lily Miller is a sweet and dainty Maid Marian; Miss F. Parkinson and Miss Kitty Chester as the Babes are contributors of no mean abliity. As the Bold Bad Men, Mr. Martin Haley and Mr. Dan Raynor are an able and humorous couple; Mr. Sam Lewis in the character of the Baron is great as a laughter-maker.

GLOUCESTER. — PALACE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—The Richards Trio of acrobats supply a laughable and clever act; and the Five Tritons put on an excellent musical turn. Harry Friskey, comedy juggler, is responsible for the heartiest of laughter; and Miss Flo Banks goes well with some capital songs. Tate and Tate are good in The Barmaid and the Customer; and the Czar Troupe of Russian dancers pay a welcome return visit. Mr. Harry Wenburn also pays a return visit, and his comic songs are appreciated; Edie Gray and company, in harmony and dance, are a trio whose voices blend well; Percy Farrimond, the singing collier, sings a good song; and the Bioscope is a head-liner this week with Italian Earthquake film.

KING'S HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea. — The Italian Earthquake film is the cause of crowded houses this week. The pictures are of a very vivid and realistic type, and a triumph of animated photography. Illustrated songs complete a remarkably good programme.

GRAVESEND. — GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Wright.—Leonard Mortimer and his No. 1 company are producing their telling sketch, The Little Captain, and receiving a great reception nightly; Will Nosam, the chocolate coon, sings well; Maggie Rimmer, "everybody's idol," scores in her songs; Phillips and Bristow are, as they are styled, wonderful dancers; the Menzies, in their funny comedy act, The Suffragette, evoke roars of laughter; Tom Carney, comedian and dancer, obtains a success; and Charles Craston, quaint comedian, causes much fun.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — ROYAL AQUARIUM. —Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. Henry Swinerd's company in Dare-Devil Dorothy is paying a welcome return visit. Mr Will Brereton as Silas Crump keeps the house in roars of laughter; Mr. Walter Astley sings well as Harold Vivian; Miss Nellie Harcourt is a big favourite as Judith, her singing and dancing being greatly applauded; Miss Ethel Griffies and Miss Nellie Valentine are very good as the sisters Ruth and Dorothy; Mr. Walter Nugent makes an excellent Captain Dudley, and Mr. William Troutbeck is very funny as Smith.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Gilbert.—Rosie Lloyd is a big favourite with her popular songs; De Lil introduces some mystifying illusions; Martin and Son are successful with their illustrated songs; the pictures are first-class, and the films of Messina are the object of special interest.

THE GEM.—Lessees, the Yarmouth Amusement Centre, Ltd.; Resident-Director, Mr C. B. Cochran; Manager, Mr. Sidney Lawrence.—An exceptionally fine set of films is being shown this week, the coloured one illustrating the Ghosts Legend being worthy of special mention. The song "As the world rolls on" is illustrated by some excellent coloured slides.

GREENOCK. — ALEXANDRA THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—The Merry Widow was presented here for the first time on Monday by Mr. George Edwardes's company, and made a great hit. The singing, dancing, and acting of Miss Mysie Devine in the title-rôle is fascinating; Mr. Frank Greene, with easy and finished acting, fills the part of Prince Danilo to perfection; Miss Ada Thomas enters cleverly into the delicate humour of the rôle of Natalie; Mr. Ripley Evans as the Vicomte Camille de Jolidon acts and sings in accomplished style; Mr. Edward D'Arcy as the Baron is vastly entertaining; Mr. Fred Fowler, with his quiet, unforced humour soon makes himself a prime favourite as Nisch; Mr. Clifford Seyler as General Novakovitch does well; Mr. W. Allison as the Marquis de Cascada is good, and Miss Katie May as Frou-Frou contributes a spirited dance. The girls at Maxim's are handsome and picturesquely gowned, adding much to the brilliancy of the scene.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the Greenock Empire Syndicate; Responsible-Manager, Mr. Edward McCormick; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun.—Mr. Fred Eustace and company are scoring in the sketch, The Amber Light; the Two St. Johns submit a clever act, and Gertrude Moore, coon artist, is popular. Other turns include Ondra, comedian, juggler, and horizontal bar artist; Donaldson and Emslie, vocalists and sketch artists; and Charlie Stewart, a pleasing tenor. The Bioscope maintains its popularity.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—That versatile entertainer Jack Lorimer tops the bill here, and meets with a most cordial reception; capital turns are also provided by Volta, the electrical magician; Stella Stahl, comedienne and dancer; Will Mitcham, vocal and musical tramp; Chorley and Conner, comedians and dancers; Thomas and Taylor, in Fun on the Midland; and the Dromoscope.

TOWN HALL.—Proprietors, the Greenock Corporation.—The B. B. Picture Company is still here, and good audiences attend nightly. Variety turns are contributed by Miss Jennie Sneddon, vocalist, and Mr. Willie Hayward, instrumentalist.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's romantic drama, The King and the Unknown Woman, is being presented in effective style. Mr. James Stillwell gives an impressive portrayal of Prince Loris; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan vividly realises the scheming character of Prince Meneki; Miss F. Conyers Radcliffe is excellent as the mysterious prisoner Zoro; Mr. W. R. Winning acts with dignity as General Platz; Mr. Cyril Harrison does well as Captain Gara, and Miss Norman Dumayne as Else, Miss Muriel Inglis as Countess Melveitch, Miss Cissie Podmore as Schnappe, Mr. William E. Passmore as Corporal Stack, and Little Elsie Clark as Cascar also contribute to a successful performance.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Dr. Bodie, after only a brief absence, is here again, and is repeating his former success. His composite performance, which includes an interesting electrical demonstration, an hypnotic séance, and an exposition of bloodless surgery, is received with warm appreciation; Williams and Warden contribute a smart Irish comedy speciality; Musical Silvo is a clever performer on a variety of instruments; Cade Burnett is an actor-vocalist with good songs; Bella Skene dances and sings pleasingly, and Dolly Robson is a capital vocalist and dancer.

GUERNSEY.—THEATRE ST. JULIAN'S.—Lessee, Mr. Ed. Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—Our first pantomime this season, The Babes in the Wood, is introduced by Mr. John A. Thomson, and immense houses have rewarded the enterprise. Everything is bright and attractive, the music tuneful, the setting rich, and the dresses superb. Miss Pattie McCarthy in the title-rôle immediately establishes herself a favourite; Miss Norah Carlton is bewitching as Maid Marian, scoring particularly with her vocal efforts; Miss Norah Prendergast (the Queen) and Mr. Frank Halpin (Will o' the Wisp) are to be complimented upon their combined musical numbers; Mr. Lovell Rowland (Weary Willy) and Mr. Herbert Walton (Tired Tim) are responsible for the lion's share of the comic element; Mr. Gus Walker makes the most of his opportunities as Pansy Blossom; and Mr. Digby Ross is the wicked Baron. Many attractive novelties are introduced, including that clever artist, Miss Cissie Williams, speciality dancer; the Sisters Thornton, international dancers; and the Butterfly Troupe. A sensational turn is provided by Les Milicent Frères. The chorus is strong, and work well together under the bâton of Mr. Arthur Sheldrake. Mr. Frank Medhurst is general-manager.

HALIFAX. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—The D'Oyly Carte principal répertoire company has delighted big audiences at the Royal this week, The Mikado, Iolanthe, The Yeomen of the Guard, and The Gondoliers being played. In Iolanthe Mr. Charles R. Walenn gave every satisfaction as the Lord Chancellor; Mr. Leicester Tunks and Mr. Stafford Moss (as the Earl of Mountararat and Earl Tolloller) sang well; Mr. Fred Billington sustained his popularity and reputation as Private Willis; as Strephon Mr. Sydney Granville was admirable; Miss Ethel Morrison made herself popular as the Queen of the Fairies; Iolanthe was nicely played by Miss Beatrice Meredith; Miss Clara Dow won all hearts as Phyllis; and Miss Mabel Graham, Miss Bertha Lewis, and Miss Lillias Engholm gave every satisfaction as Celia, Leila, and Fleta. Every praise is due to Mr. T. Silver for the way he handled the band, chorus, and principals, as conductor.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Mr. James Kiddie's excellent pantomime Cinderella has played to densely-packed houses every performance. The cast is a long one, but special praise is due to Mdlle. De Rose as the Prince and Miss Edie May as Dandini. Mr. W. G. Wesley is a distinct success as Maud. The Lisando Brothers introduce a smart and clever hand-balancing turn.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Reg. H. Foster.—Les François are an undoubted feature of the Palace programme this week; their hand-balancing and tumbling is quick, smart, and clever. The troupe is well dressed, and had a splendid reception. The Warsaw Brothers, comedy musicians, pay a welcome return visit; Deans and Wilton are two funny acrobats; the Stannings are a troupe of clever juvenile dancers, introducing a clever little mite as a solo dancer; Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Hayes produce a diverting sketch, The Other Mrs. Brown. J. H. Greener, singing pit lad; Bernardo, comedy juggler; Sybil Montague, ballad vocalist; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux complete.

HAMILTON, N.B.—HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. Renè Clayton.—Pantomime is the attraction at this popular little house this week, Mr. Jack Haddon's company appearing in The Babes in the Wood. Miss Millie Engler, who combines a fine stage presence with a charming voice, scores a deserved success as Robin Hood; Maid Marian is pleasingly and prettily played by Miss Dorma Morgan; excellent low comedy work is done by Messrs. August and September as Soppy Sam and Noby Tyke; Mr. Harry Ellerton does well as the Dame, as also does Mr. Chas. May in the rôle of the Baron. The Kentucky Trio are warmly applauded for their dancing.

HANLEY. — ROYAL. — Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—A second edition of Mother Goose was seen on Monday, when new songs and business were successfully introduced. Business continues brisk, and brilliance is proving the keynote of success.

GRAND.—Proprietors, Hanley Theatres and Circus Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—The Boissets in The Bricklayers are the main magnet here. The Earthquake in Italy is splendidly shown by Mr. Tom Moore on the Bio-tableaux. Henry and Francis, comedy vocalists and instrumentalists, are very clever; Alexander and Scott, coon impersonators, are a hit; Martin Henderson, the blind musician, brings down the house; Norman Osborne has a unique ventriloquial act, entitled The Actor and the Call Boy, which is received with loud applause; "Billy," a most cleverly-trained horse, does everything but speak; and Rosie Reval is a success with her truly brilliant dancing.

KING'S.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy; Manager, Mr. H. Kennedy.—The pictures shown are well selected. Mlle. M. Margot sings some sweet songs with great charm. Sacco, the fasting man, continues well during his incarceration of forty-five days. He will fast until Ash Wednesday. He is being visited by large numbers.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith.—A well-contrasted variety entertainment is provided here. Wood, Wells, and Wilkins win favour in their comedy specialities; the Sisters Belmont dance with agility; Alpho, the ventriloquist, is funny; King and Derwin carry through their sketch with brightness; Marco Duo, triple bar comedians, excel in their speciality; Kydd and Kydd furnish some merry patter; Revill Hill portrays Lancashire character with skill; and Mme. Zilla mystifies by her demonstration of second sight.

HARTLEPOOL. — EMPRESS. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albert Mathams.—Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope is still displaying films of quality such as to attract capital business. A splendid picture is that of The National Dances of Australia, as also is the one of The Land of the Gold. Considerable interest is centred upon The Fisherman's Fiancée, and laughter prevails whilst the pictures of The Milliner's' Pranks, The Tailor's Dummy, and The Runaway Dog are being shown. A "Do as You Please" competition and a Sunday concert are announced.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company opened here on Monday in The Prince and the Beggar Maid. The arrogant Prince Hildred was powerfully played by Mr. Ivan Cleveland; Prince Michael was presented by Mr. Graeme Campbell with dramatic effect; Mr. Walter Howard filled the rôle of the good-natured Prince Olaf consistently; Miss Annie Saker gave a fine interpretation of Monica; Mr. Francis Hawley submitted a good character sketch of the self-interested Bishop; and the comedy relief was pleasingly supplied by Miss Elsie Walton as Viola and Mr. Reginald Payne as Lieut. Karl Stromberg. Good assistance was rendered respectively by Miss Ivy Millais as Camiola, Mr. Reginald H. Stephens as Captain Hector, Mr. Kendal Chalmers as the dumb servant, and Mr. J. Chamberlain as Col. Wellenberg.

HIPPODROME.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Vivian-Fisher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—The principal feature in a good programme is a West African wonder-worker Yangar, whose appearance and mysterious disappearance, not only of himself, but of a variety of articles, is quite bewildering. Miss Ivy Adelaide is an attractive comedienne and dancer; Cora Corina dances and sings in different costumes with much success; Dan Filmer is comic as a vocalist and dancer; Mdlle. La Freya's artistic visions, as they are entitled, are very original and effective; and Mr. J. P. Walsh is an admirable vocalist.

PAVILION.—General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—An agreable change is offered to the patrons of the pavilion by the appearance of Mr. A. B. Tapping and company in The New Boy. Mr. Tapping as Archibald Renwick is the principal actor, and treats the title-rôle admirably; Dr. Candy is well taken by Mr. Maule Cole; Felix Roach is effectively embodied by Mr. Frederick Moyes; Mr. E. Harrison makes an excellent French master; and Bullock and Stubber are well taken by Mr. C. Hawthorne and Mr. Farren-Taylor. Miss Edith Cruikshanks, in the character of Mrs. Renwick, gives delightful distinction to the part; and Miss Blanche Bayley interprets the servant with much brightness. The part of Nancy Roach, taken by Miss Clarissa Selwynne, is conspicuous for its winsomeness and charm.

HORWICH. — PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessees, the Horwich Theatre Co.; Manager, Mr. R. H. White.—Mr. A. Campbell Kelly's company in The Trail of the Serpent is paying a return visit. Mr. Kelly's impersonation of Ralph Hammond is a telling performance. Mr. Geo. Keith is a fine, manly Gerald Kingston; Gipsy Jake and Ben Chucks have capital exponents in Messrs. H. Glenny and H. K. Penn; Mr. Joe English, as William Higgin, has a part that suits him to perfection; Mr. Bernard Webb is a dignified Sir Gerald; Miss Mabel Spencer is a sympathetic Ethel; Miss Florence Spencer plays Rose Wilson (William's Tulip) effectively; and Miss Nana Cameron's Rachel is powerful.

HUDDERSFIELD.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—At the top of the bill is Miss Jennie Johns, comedienne, with some taking songs. The other artists appearing are Archie Pitt, comedian; Tamamoto, a clever Japanese performer on the wire and rope; Mrs. Bennett and Edward Cranston in a sketch entitled Poor Master; F. V. St. Clair, who gets a good reception for his local topical songs; King Luis and partner in a difficult and gracefully-executed Risley act; and John Marx, the great weight-lifter, in his record performance. A touching story without words on the Bioscope completes the programme.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Mortons, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The pantomime still runs gaily along, and good houses have been the rule throughout the run. On Monday several new lyrics were introduced which have added to its interest. The comedians have won their way to the front by sheer merit, and it is only fair to say that Mr. Jas. Chippendale, to whom has been allotted the rôle of the Dame, is the best of that body. Miss Mimi Fisher has created a good impression for her work as principal boy; Miss Hersee has proved an attraction with her well-trained voice; and the Monte Carlo girls are dainty dancers.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Manager, Mr. Tom Bogue.—A new musical comedy, Gay Bohemia, was produced last Monday. The quality of the music is excellent, and the libretto fairly witty. Miss Rose Hersee, cast for the principal rôle, does good service; Miss Maud Marshall fills the rôle of Lucy with considerable credit; Mr. Tim Ryley works hard as the Hon. Bertie; and Miss Alice Payne made a capital American journalist.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Mortons, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—For Love and the King is a striking play, which is much appreciated by the audience. Mr. Watson Mills, the author, finds scope to demonstrate his powers as an actor as Jarval; Mr. V. Stanley is well cast as Prince Uros; and Miss Rosalind Tate is a fine representative of Princess Athene. The rest of the company do good work.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—The Little Colonel, a charming sketch, and Frank Harwood (the actor-vocalist) are favourite turns here. Dave Samuels delivers some amusing patter; the Sisters Draycott are good harmonising duettists; the Hyde and Cody Trio, Ford and Maxwell, and Winnie Stanhope complete a capital company.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—Appearing here are Miss Molteno and company, Maston, the Gentrys, Renson and Waite, and the Itrams.

THE CIRCUS.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—Animated pictures, which include the Ruins of Messina, are being shown, and are getting large audiences.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company is here playing Second to None. Miss Ward as Nell Greystone achieves great success, and Miss Grace Harlington as Mary Greystone is much admired. Mr. Leonard Williams gives a manly interpretation of Harry Wilding, whilst Frank Wilding loses nothing at the hands of Mr. Chas. Halling. Mr. C. W. Spencer gives a finished reading of Sir Reginald Greystone, and Mr. Frank R. Gwyn-Richardson scores as Lieut. Archie Ballater. Mr. J. G. Maine plays well as Sergeant Jack Horseman. Mr. Geo. H. Davis (Joe Ruggles), Mr. H. Macauley (Private Flutter), and Miss Clarrie Yandell (Norah) are a lively trio. The evil genius, Captain Philip Mannering, is cleverly impersonated by Mr. Frederick F. Loyd. The scenery, uniforms, and dresses are much admired.

ILKLEY.—KING'S HALL.—Proprietors, the Ilkley Urban District Council; Licensee, Mr. Frank Hall.—On the last three nights of last week the Menston Amateur Dramatic Society performed Iolanthe in aid of the Ilkley Coronation Cottage Hospital.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company opened on Monday with the romantic drama, From Slave to Princess. Miss Dorothy Last played the heroine with grace and ability; and Miss Agnes Verity acted the part of Princess Claudia with admirable discretion. Miss Daisy Carlton scored greatly in the comic character of the Maid; in the exacting rôle of Prince Julian Mr. Austin Milroy deserves high praise; and as Michael Bardoni, the police spy and traitor, Mr. Roy Jackson acted with good effect. Mr. R. Harley West was excellent as Col. Alexis; and as Patrick O'Brien Mr. Will Hook made the most of the exceedingly humourous scenes. Mr. Fred Clifford as Peter, Mr. Fred Hilliard as Otto, and Mr. Geo. Porteous as King Adrian were all praiseworthy. At Cripple Creek is also in the week's bill.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The talented company known as the Elliot Savonas met with a great reception on Monday for their charming musical scenic display in the Palace of Orpheus. The saxophone band is delightful, and the variety of strange musical instruments employed combine to make a unique entertainment. Miss Nellie Ridgway cleverly sings and dances on a tight wire; and Mlle. Florence is very pleasing in her illustrated songs. A Japanese magic entertainment, by Yettmah and Sasa San, is bewildering and popular; Cookson is a clever ventriloquist; Pat Lynch as the dancing demon is vociferously applauded; Signorita Eloina, gymnast, is very active on the swinging bar and slack rope; Wilton Heriot and company have a comedy sketch, entitled An Anglo-American Alliance, which gives scope for plenty of fun and quick-change; and the Bioscope concludes.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Locke.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company is here this week with The Great White Chief. Mr. Mansell Fane gives a manly portrayal of Leo Stanley; Mr. Hugh Brady is excellent in the part of Reindeer; Mr. Geo. Butler plays with force as Hartley Deane; Mr. Millar Wilson causes amusement as George Rupbert Walker; Miss Pollie Denville is a charming Latika; Miss Amy Ross Clyde is a capable Martha Jane Curley; and Miss Dulcie Lawrence handles the part of Hester Stafford with skill.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Edward Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—Mr. John A. Thomson's pantomime The Babes in the Wood is drawing crowded houses here. Miss Pattie McCarthy is a shapely Robin Hood, and Miss Nina Carlton is a dainty Maid Marion; Miss Norah Prendergast is the Queen of Good Intent, and Mr. Frank Halpin figures as the Spirit of Evil; whilst the Babes are represented by Miss Cissie Williams and La Belle Sylvia. Mr. Lovell Rowlands and Mr. Herbert Walton cause much amusement as Weary Willie and Tired Tim; Mr. Gus Walker is very funny as Pansy Blossom; Mr. Ross Warren keeps the ball rolling as Blinker; whilst Baron Graball is creditably played by Mr. R. Digby Worsley. Excellent specialities are introduced by Les Millicent Frères, who do some marvellous trapeze work; the Sisters Hypatia, who are really expert dancers; La Belle Sylvia, a delicious acrobatic dancer; the Sisters Thornton; and Miss Cissie Williams, a graceful toe-dancer. The pantomime is well mounted and staged; the chorus is comely; the songs are taking; and the orchestra is under the able bâton of Mr. Arthur Sheldrake.

KETTERING.—VICTORIA THEATRE.—Managers, Messrs. A. Bailey and Co.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company is here with A Royal Divorce. As Napoleon Mr. Keith Fraser presents a powerful and artistic portrayal of the character; Mr. Percy H. Vernon admirably plays the wily Talleyrand; and Mr. Ernest Plumpton is successful as General Augereau. Miss Winnie Tempest gives a very fine rendering of Josephine; and Miss Reine Lowrey is dignified and capable as Marie Louise.

KIDDERMINSTER. — NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—We have a visit this week from Messrs F. Marriott Watson and Sanderson Moffat's company in the romantic costume musical drama, entitled What a Woman Did. In the rôle of Rafaelle Duroc Mr. Marriott Watson excels; while Mr. Sanderson Moffat is equally good as Conrad de L'Orme; Mr. Reginald Kloof cleverly enacts the rôle of Black Pitou; Miss Florence C. Florence is very clever as Elise de L'Orme, Conrad's wife; and Miss Phyllis Graham as Little Conrad is real. There are some excellent songs and good dancing, and the mounting leaves nothing to be desired.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. Pareezer.—Mr. T. Arthur Jones has attracted large audiences here this week with his successful drama, When Other Lips. In the part of Ted Daunton Mr. T. Arthur Jones makes an excellent sailor lad; and Mr. Juan d'Alberti as Basil Cunningham acted with ability; Miss Marie Daventry as Ruth Lingley capably presented the typical heroine; and in the comedy parts Miss Lizzie Lemmon as Kitty Topwash and Mr. Cecil H. Raymond as Tommy Neccles kept the house in roars of laughter.

KIRKCALDY.—NEW PAVILION.—Lessee, Dr. Walford Bodie.—The leading attraction this week is the Bodiegraph, which is showing some excellent pictures, including views of Messina before and after the earthquakes. Turns are also provided by Prof. Glennie, who presents a clever and unique marionette show; Max Merlin, the human crocodile, who performs some wonderful feats of contortion; the Bros. Robson, comedians and smart dancers; Harold Carlyle, a local comedian of undoubted ability; and Garland, a good coster comedian.

LANCASTER.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—This week Mr. Chas. Draycott's company is here in a round of plays, which includes The Stolen Birthright, The Octoroon, Sorrows of Satan, The Shaughraun, East Lynne, and It's Never Too Late to Mend. The first-named piece was presented on Monday evening to a good house. Mr. Chas. Draycott appeared with much success as Stefano; Mr. Geo. Steel made a capital Prince Andrea Celsi; Mr. George Arthur and Mr. Wilfred J. Short were acceptable as Count Taddeo and Prince Silvati respectively; and Mr. Chas. H. Herbert did exceedingly well as Prince Antonio. Mr. Chas. Draycott gave a splendid portrayal of Princess Miranda, and was ably supported by Miss Marie Ellis as Fidella Silvati and Miss Eva Norman as Nita. The staging was excellent.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—Alf. Gibson, comedian, is the star turn this week, and is recalled at each house. A very clever sketch, Two's Company, is presented in splendid style by Ferris and May; Frank Hartley, juggler, is paying a return visit, and is well received; and Mlle. Pollo gives a smart gymnastic act. Fred Land, comedian, causes roars of laughter; and St. Ruth and Conyers sing well together. The Hippograph is still an attraction.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. George G. Ridley.—The pantomime season being now at its height, Leamington is taking its share in the happy form of amusement this week. The attraction is Mr. Milton Bode's Aladdin, and the production is generally conceded to be the finest he has ever staged in this town. Crowded and most enthusiastic audiences each evening demonstrate what the local verdict is. The piece is beautifully staged and dressed, and abounding in delightful songs, graceful dances, and some excellent comic business, it goes with a merry swing from start to finish. Miss Blanche Astley is a delightful Aladdin, and sings and dances extremely well; whilst Miss Elsie Skillings makes a charming Princess. Quite a feature of the pantomime is the Directoire costume and song by Miss De Loriere, whose impersonation of Pekoe is a distinct success. Miss Eva Chadwick also makes an excellent Niese; Mr. John E. Conan provides a deal of fun with his extremely clever performance as the Widow, and his skits on the suffragette and the Merry Widow evoke roars of laughter; Mr. Will Gane, an old local favourite, helps materially with the fun as Lip Tung Tee; whilst the antics of the Fimans are both clever and amusing. Mr. Harry Morgan is capital as Abanazar; and Mr. Stanley Fields commendable as the Emperor. Another meritorious performance is Mr. Neville Delmar's Grand Vizier. The specialities include Collins's troupe of dancers, who are a decided acquisition to the pantomime, and the Moxon Trio, in their acrobatic act. An excellent chorus and augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. E. F. Trevor, adds much to the success of the production.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Mr. John Hart's pantomime, Sinbad the Sailor, continues to draw full houses, and deservedly so, for the production is full of life, colour, and harmless fund. In this latter connection much clever work is done by Mr. Rowland Hill, whose "dame" is a mirth-provoking personage. Mr. William Stephens as Hinbad adds considerable to the general merriment; whilst those experienced pantomimists, Harrigan and Holt, contribute a generous quota to the fun. Of the specialities, big success is achieved by Radford and Valentine, whose comedy turn is quite one of the most enjoyable features. The whole production goes with a merry swing, and the two matinées are also well attended.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Aladdin entered on a new lease of life here on Monday, when some successful new features were introduced and additions made to the cast. Tray and Rich add materially to the strength of the comedy element, their eccentric business and patter being provocative of much merriment; another popular addition is Miss Adela Rane, who, as Slave of the Ring, sings and acts in charming style; Mr. Sidney Vincent as Abanazar and Mr. Tom Dunmore have also elaborated their parts to some purpose, and each assist largely in many enjoyable interludes. The production generally has been brightened up all round, if that were possible, and great crowds besiege the theatre nightly for early admission.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—That prince of illusionists, Horace Goldin, is the bright particular star of this week's bill, and his performance is much enjoyed. Fred Edwards and company are provocative of great merriment with the sketch Kleptomaniacs; W. J. Ashcroft, the famous solid man, makes a successful reappearance; Thora constitutes an interesting mystery; a capital turn by the Dumond Trio goes exceedingly well, as also does a neat speciality by Clark and Hayden. Of the rest, May Edouin, Jeannie MacKay, and McCann's Dogs achieve good success at every appearance.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—Harry Roxbury here presents Tubby Edlin in a novelty item, The Cowboy Millionaire, and the entertainment is well to the liking of full houses; a clever comedy effort by Emerson and Baldwin is also a popular line; J. C. Piddock and company score with the screamer, The Capture of Venus; the Columbia Comedy Trio get a satisfying reception; that wonderful dancer, My Fancy, is doing her inimitable turn; and capital entertainment is also subscribed by the Woodwards, Arthur Prince's Mascots, the Radford Duo, and Bijou Juvenile Troupe.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—A clever comedy item, Dingle's Double, is played as leading turn, and great is the laughter thereat. That popular vocalist, George D'Albert, is rendering some new items with unexampled success; a pleasing novelty by Estrella is a much-enjoyed feature; and the comedy contributions of Maxwell and Francis are as popular as anything in the bill. Of the rest, Phillips and Terry (always favourites here), Fred Sheppard, C. Russell, and Jules Kiaro are doing particularly well.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—King's College Boys are the lead here, and achieve solid success nightly. The Three Cunards find an appreciative reception of their speciality; the Alskarno Trio are very popular with clever work; whilst Nat Watkins and Steve Bartle are prominent amongst the merriment-makers.

LEICESTER.—PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald

entertaining. The American Bioscope pictures clearly show The Devastation at Messina.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—Mr. G. M. Marriott's company, owing to the success achieved last week, is retained, and with A Modern Millionaire is topping the bill. Miss Edith Finlay is very good as Millie Maydue; Mr. Geo. M. Marriott scores a success as Joe Bingham; and Mr. John A. Stimson is funny as Billy Walters. The Munroe Comedy Team are popular favourites in a most enjoyable turn of melody, mirth, and music. Another turn who scores a well-deserved success is Emma Don, a very smart character comedienne. Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope is again a special feature. George Norton, comedian, raises much laughter, and others contributing acceptable turns are A. Barraclough, descriptive vocalist; Cherry Lass, comedienne and dancer; and Cissie Esdaile, vocalist.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Company; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles R. Craig.—Business here continues to be most satisfactory. The principal films this week include The Last Roll Call; or, Grandfather's Birthday, A Roman Idyll, A Nobleman's Pleasure, The Water Sprite, Gratitude, A Duel with Dynamite, A Broken Heart, Father Buys a Picture, and Man and Latchkey, which are interspersed with turns by Henry Villiers, a clever impressionist, depicting characters from Dickens, and Esta May, vocalist, whose song "Antonio" is enthusiastically sung by the audience.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The attraction this week is provided by a welcome return visit of Mr. Harry Tilbury's company in the domestic drama His Dishonoured Wife, in which Miss Belle Tilbury plays with her accustomed success as Florence Lindon. Mr Victor Rae is very good as the hero, Frank Lindon; Mr. Horatio Sinclair is most effective as the evil genius, Lord Devant, who is assisted in a capable manner by Mr. Edwin Brown as Tom Redman; Mr. Harry Tilbury creates great merriment in the comedy part of Micky Doolan; Miss Etta Spalding as Araminta Dustpan is also the cause of much laughter; Miss Spalding plays well the child part of Mabel Lindon; and Miss Arline T. George as Alice Harvey and Mr. Fred Owen as Neil Locksley are also deserving of special praise.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. W. Heath.—Mr. C. Watson Mill's company is paying a return visit here in A Warning to Women. Mr. Harry C. Robinson strongly portrays Dr. Marcus Dread; Mr. William Vane submits a manly and telling impersonation of Shaun; Squire Kenyon is cleverly delineated by Mr. Henry Rutland; Mr. W. Palliser Acock is an amusing Ferdinand de Joules; Miss Blanche St. Albans gives a fine rendering of the difficult rôle of Moira Kenyon; Miss Ellen Beverley deserves praise as Molly O'Moore; and Miss Edith Rutland is very successful as Myles; the remaining parts are all in good hands.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Benson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Woolstencroft.—The Faludy troupe of Hungarian acrobats head the bill here this week, and give an exceptionally smart turn; Tiny and Mite, child vocalists, provide some excellent singing and dancing; Princess Pochantus, who sings "An echo in the wood" in grand style, is deservedly applauded. The bill includes popular comedians in Mr. Charles Tempest and Mr. Oliver Conroy. A really marvellous performance is that of Mlle. Marjutti; the Four Spanish Goldinis are very clever in their carpet-spinning and electrical novelties; and Miss Ida Fair, comedienne, and the Bioscope pictures complete.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Lessees, Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Walter; Manager, Mr. J. Frank Walker.—The Sovereign pictures are still the leading features of the programme here, supplemented by the Pardys, in their drawing-room entertainment, and Miss Marie Roberts, an excellent contralto vocalist.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Licensee and Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—Pantomime has been inaugurated here this week by Miss Lillie Williams's production of Dick Whittington and His Cat, which has the advantages of up-to-date songs, attractive dresses, and a good setting. The cast includes Miss Gertie Douglas in the name-part, of which she gives a pleasant rendering; Miss Hetty Lind, who makes a charming Alice; and Miss Cicely Kent, to whom is allotted the rôle of Mary Ann, the cook. Miss Osceola Martinek and the Imperial Glee Singers are prominent with choice vocal numbers; other outstanding specialities are contributed by the Pichel troupe of Risley acrobats; and the Ten Corneville Belles provide some smart dancing. Mr. Sam Thomson as Idle Jack and Mr. Harry Loftus as Captain Bailey take the lead among the comedians; and with Mr. Harry Gilmore as the Cat, Mr. Phil Conway as Alderman Fitzwarren, Mr. Richards as the Sultan, Messrs. Henry Jones and S. Jackson as Lazy Bill and Reuben, and Mr. Kemble and Miss Olive Carter as King Rat and Queen Cat keeps the audience amused.

LIMERICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. George Victor Fogerty.—Mr. Dickie Clare's musical comedy company is here in Lucky 'Liza, and gives entire satisfaction to appreciative audiences. As Silas Slim Mr. Clare proves a very fine character-actor; and Mr. T. W. Benson makes a really clever Paul Pettitoe. Mr. Norman Lee is good as Peter Pettitoe; and Mr. J. W. Forrest is very capable as Bill Biffins. The Misses Louie Astor, Lily Bell, and Beckie Sterling dance very gracefully; and as Sadie Potts Miss Evelyn Wood is chic and clever. Miss Helen Douglas makes a sage and sensible Maria Pettitoe. As Virginia Blatherwick Miss Kitty Clark is very good; whilst the hit of the evening is made by Miss Vesta Brownie as Eliza Bird, her singing and dancing being much applauded.

LIVERPOOL.—ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Here this week Mr. Walter Melville's new drama, The Beggar Girl's Wedding, paid a first visit to Liverpool, and was received with every satisfaction. Besides being charmingly staged, the work was interpreted by a sound and accomplished body of artists. Miss Vashti Wynne as the "girl" played with an intensity and artistic appreciation that was pleasurable to witness; a manly Jack Cunningham was depicted most ably by Mr. Otto Minster; the eccentric Doctor Millbank found in Mr. James C. Taylor a very worthy exponent; Mr. Herbert Lloyd made a humorous Dicky Storm, being greatly assisted with the comedy by Miss Daisy Maynard (Tina Torkington); Norman Marsh was well presented by Mr. Ernest G. Batley; Mr. Herbert Morgan made a sufficiently villainous Gilbert Lindsay; and good work was also done by Mr. Ellis J. Preston (Robert Grimshaw), Miss Olive Warne (Maud Villiers), and Miss Doris Whyte (Elsie Cunningham). A matinée was held on Wednesday.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—That admirable play, With Edged Tools, paid a return visit to this popular theatre during the week, and was welcomed by large audiences, who evidently remembered the value which Messrs. Armitage and Leigh always give, both in quality of work and selection of artists. Mr. William F. Grant again presented his powerful study of Jack Meredith; Miss Marie Leonhard showed high accomplishments as the sympathetic Jocelyn Gordon; a rôle that stood out prominently and with considerable effectiveness was that of Victor Durnovo, skilfully handled by Mr. Campbell Goldsmid; as Sir John Meredith Mr. J. A. Rosier deserved great praise, his work being commendably sound; Miss Alice Ethel Belmore proved a pleasing Millicent Chyne; Miss Marion Fawcett acted with dignity and refinement as Lady Cantourne; the part of Lady Herries was neatly presented by Miss Florence Dulhunty; Mr. J. Pockett did well as Maurice Gordon; and Mr. Charles Hartopp proved a manly and vigorous Guy Oscard.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—A most interesting and very pleasing entertainment was during the week given by Zeynard's lilliputians, whose equestrian and speciality acts elicited great applause; the banjo juggling by the Howard Brothers proved eminently acceptable; Fred Storey and company gave some excellent scenes dealing with the story of "Rip Van Winkle"; the exclusive cinematograph pictures showing the training methods of the famous boxers Johnson and Burns were witnessed with attention; Alice Maydue provoked endless laughter with her songs and patter; the Gems provided a pretty musical mélange; Doroswami played the violin with unusual skill; as comedy acrobats the Creo Brothers showed to much advantage; and also in the list were Dan Fraser, an amusing Scotch comedian, and Billy Hobbs, coon comedian and dancer.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville.—The Woman Who Went Astray, given here this week, was received with considerable favour. Miss Gwynne Warren held the part of the "woman," acting with dramatic force; Mr. J. Shinton was an excellent Captain Frank Julian; Miss Ada Ryder charmingly portrayed Violet Harvey; and the humour was adequately supplied by Messrs. E. Roland and Todd Squires.

LYRIC. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Haley's Prize Juveniles headed the programme here this week, and delighted everyone with a pretty carnival scena, which introduced the two small duettists "Spot" and "Dot"; the Schiavonys troupe of acrobats went through some able feats; an attractive musical speciality, The Sons of Toil, came from the Corcoran Bros.; the popular vaudeville artists, Spry and Austin, were given a cordial reception on their return visit; Smith and Johnson, the coloured duo, pleased, as usual; Johnny Dwyer had several new and humorous songs; as a female impersonator Letine gave much satisfaction; some neat acrobatic work was shown by the Brothers Zenary; and Alec Kennedy rendered several acceptable songs.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Pantomime held sway here during the week, Mr. William Holland sending an excellent show bearing the title The Forty Thieves. As Ali Baba Mr. Bob Selvidge created great fun, receiving valuable help from Mr. Chris Le Brun, who as the faithful donkey, Percy, was always at his heels; Miss Dolly Tree sustained the part of Abdullah with great satisfaction; Robb Wilton added immensely to the fun with his very amusing Cogia; Mr. William Bosco was a diverting Cassim; the Sisters Tree introduced a neat dancing and singing turn; the Misses Sadie Cassell, Phyllis Wardroper, Mabel Hope, and Fancy Free gave a clever exhibition of dancing; and other well-held parts were those of Morgiana (Miss Cecilia Gold), Ganem (Miss Bertha Clifton), Chief of the Police (Miss Frances Haskoll), and Hasserac (Mr. Jack Waller). The pantomime was staged in an admirable manner. In addition variety turns were given by Charles Cardow, comedian, and the Five Juanitos, acrobats.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—Here during the week the stock company gave A Royal Revenge, from the pens of Adrian O'Connell and Eugene McCarthy. Mr. Sydney Grant played very effectively the rôle of the King of Spain; Mr. David G. Noble made an excellent Pedro de Castro; Mr. R. Seath Innes acquitted himself as the hunchback, Mzeda; Mr. Tom H. Solly created a deal of amusement with his Michael Sancha; Miss Florence Palmer was particularly well suited with the character of Cosa Casilda; Miss Lilian Radbourne creditably impersonated Angela; and worthy support also came from Messrs. E. D. Allen (Don Juan), Leo Montgomery (Manuel), Cecil Ravenswood (Friar Dominic), and Miss Gertrude Entwistle (Paquita). Mr. Anthony Brown's bioscope showed the latest films.

OLYMPIA.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—Foremost here throughout the week was the exceedingly funny sketch Casey's Court, with Will Murray as Mrs. Casey; a realistic representation of the catastrophe known as the Johnstown flood was watched with deep interest; Fred Kitchen and Frank Lister's company gave a capital dramatic sketch, No. 99, in which Mr. Lister appeared; the songs given by Millie Payne kept the audience in good humour; Seeley and Rhodesia went through an entertaining turn of juggling, mirth, and music, which was highly gratifying; Bertha Stuart found much favour for her Scotch character songs; a refined drawing-room musical act by Florence and Lillian pleased greatly; Harry Bedford brought his latest amusing songs, which were acceptable; and Ida Kathrena, "the Dolly Girl," had a satisfactory turn.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—Great business continues to be done at this new place of entertainment. The big line this week has been Karno's Dandy Thieves, with Mr. George Hestor as Sergeant Lightning and Miss Aggie Morris in the rôle of Lady Easem; those exceedingly funny ones Wild, Willie, and West caused the audience to shout with laughter; Valvero's naval bombardment was a neat and uncommon show; the bioscope showed a striking picture of the earthquake at Messina; Leslie and Player proved very diverting with their comedy duets and patter; Leonard Charburn's troupe of youngsters gave a pretty scena, A Picnic up the River; as lady acrobats the Redcar Trio were distinctly good; a picturesque turn was that entitled The Kiltie's Camp, into which singing, piping, dancing, &c., were introduced; Rizarelis gave a sensational revolving trapeze act; and the list also held the names of Horace Sade, characteristic dancer, and Tod Lowen, comedian.

GRAND TIVOLI.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jasper Redfern.—The animated pictures shown here twice nightly continue to attract. During the week the following artists provided a pleasing vaudeville entertainment:—The Forrest comedy company, with a laughable sketch, My Friend the Enemy; Fame and Fortune, burlesque boxers; Chant and Chant, conversational duettists; Baby Sophie, a tiny vocalist; J. H. Carney, quick-change and high-stilt specialist; Kitty Cameron, soubrette; and Shirley Liggins and company, coloured exponents of comedy and harmony.

PARK PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. Jasper Redfern.—Here a good selection of bioscope pictures is also given twice nightly. During this week the following artists appeared:—Mark Merry, comedian; Wells and Warlock, comedians and dancers; the Vanderbilts, with a musical comedy-drama; Lillie Lemain, with a pretty speciality, "The Living Marionettes"; Henri Sonaba, who gave a musical instrumental act; and the Saletos, with a clever balancing and acrobatic performance.

NEW CENTURY PICTURE HALL.—Proprietors, The New Century Animated Picture Company, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter W. Hook.—Good business is being done here with some fine bioscope pictures. During the week the following were included in the programme:—The Earthquake at Messina, The Prize Camel, The Tricky Convict, Detective Nick Carter, The Last Cartridge, The Little Flower Seller, and A Child's Devotion. Illustrated songs were also given.

LLANELLY.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Z. Andrews; Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—Mr. Leon Vint's amalgamation of varieties is here this week doing well. Mr. Vint has a strong company, including Mme. Vint, the clever somnomist; the Misses May Bound and Georgie Jeans, Welsh vocalists; Wee Wullie, a young Scotch comedian; Miss Gertie Boyd, a clever soprano and sketch artist; Miss Lillie Le Main, a dainty dancer; Miss Gertie Vint, serio; Miss May Lillianne, instrumentalist; the Sisters Verner; Dare and Maurie; Clarence Cowell, comedian; and the Misses Dudley, Millie Morgan, Mona Ray, Nellie Roylett, who, together with Miss Marie Beresford, the clever musical directress, are all very good.

ATHENÆUM HALL.—Secretary, Mr. H. Boulton.—Here we have the Hopkins (Ted and May) in pantomime, The Babes in the Wood. Miss May Hopkins is a very charming Robin Hood; and Maid Marian is daintily taken by Miss Ethel Rainsforth. Miss Marie Lawrence and Miss Jean Beresford, as Will Scarlet and Phyllis respectively, do very well; the two Babes are capitally represented by the little sisters, Effie and Dunnie Sinclair; Mr. George Grant makes a good Baron; and Mr. George Kelly is most successful as the Baroness. Messrs. Ted and Dick Hopkins as the Robbers are irresistible; the Misses Enid Lane and Edith Rainford are clever as Polini and Alan-a-dale. Miss Ellalene Gastella is a charming Fairy Queen.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Resident-Business-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard opened here on Monday with The Forty Thieves, and fully sustained his high reputation. Mr. A. G. Spry as Ali Baba and Mr. Paddy Dupres as Mrs. Ali Babi kept the house in a perfect furore of laughter; they were ably assisted by the Donkey, impersonated by Mr. Dan Loan. Miss Josie Farrington as Ganem played and sang in an artistic manner; Miss Nellie Barnwell as Morgiana succeeded admirably; Miss Olive Astor as Abdallah played and sang with gusto; whilst Miss Elsie May as Hassan and Miss Mabelle May as Nebedia charmed the house by their clever dancing.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Drama and musical comedy has given place this week to pantomime, Mr. Graham-Falcon's company appearing in a most successful representation of Cinderella, which has already been favourably dealt with in these columns. The whole company work together with most happy results, the bright singing, smart dancing, and gorgeous costumes, added to which we are treated to a genuine fund of humour, all tending to a thoroughly enjoyable entertainment.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—The Janowsky troupe of acrobats are scoring a big success here this week, the programme presented being responsible for large and delighted houses. T. W. Lenner (comedian), S. F. Gilbert (tenor vocalist), Florence Leonard, and Flo Wright being also in the bill. The Biograph is showing a number of interesting films, including Black Beauty, A Family of Cats, A Redskin's Justice, and The Young Tramp.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Love, the Conqueror, is presented by Mr. Frank Lindo and his excellent company. As Brian Norval Mr. Frank Lindo gives a masterly performance, and is the recipient of well-earned applause; Miss Marion Wakefield as Mistress Beatrice Mortimer plays with admirable intensity, which commands due appreciation; Miss Nellie Benson acts gracefully as Dame Norval; and Miss Maude Leslie-Cudd makes a vivacious Susan Shortly. As Sir John Mortimer Mr. N. Shields is capital; Mr. Richard Walsh is very amusing as Peter; Mr. D. Lawrence Doyle proves successful as the rascally Count Leon Lascelles; Mr. Harry Belford as Andrew Allbertree and Mr. Tom E. Lewis as Capt. Rupert Armadale are responsible for sound impersonations; and Mr. Leo R. Neilson ably presents William of Orange. The scenery is effective.

MAESTEG.—TOWN HALL THEATRE.—Lessees, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. G. F. Knowles.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company appeared here on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday before large audiences in In Holy Russia. Mr. Henry Compton did full justice to the part of Colonel Richard Forrest; as Laurie E. Steragoff Mr. Geo. F. Doyle displayed fine dramatic power; Mr. Rolf Leslie was commendable as Count Gregoris Petrolski; Mr. J. Rice Cassidy as Micky Nolan was as funny as ever, and kept the houses in roars of laughter; Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy showed much ability as Renée Rubinoff; Mme. Natolski was cleverly impersonated by Miss Alice Holland; and other minor parts were well sustained by efficient artists.

MAIDENHEAD.—TOWN HALL. — Secretary, the Town Clerk.—Sinbad the Sailor was presented here by Mr. John A. Thompson's company on the 15th and following night. Miss Amy Cooper sang well as Fairy Goodheart; Miss Edith Wallis was good as Sinbad; Mr. Syd H. Morton was an entertaining Captain Bluebottle; and Mr. Syd Godfrey an amusing Mrs. Sinbad. Special dances were contributed by the Coral troupe, the Sisters English, the Sisters Macrae, and Oak and Elm.

MAIDSTONE. — PALACE THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—A pleasing visit is being paid by Mr. Percy Hutchison and Miss Emma Hutchison's company in Somerset Maugham's charming comedy Mrs. Dot. Miss Nancy Beresford in the title-rôle has a part which is exactly suited to her lively temperament, and she scores heavily, her acting all through being excellent. Miss Emma Hutchison's interpretation of the haughty aristocrat Lady Sellenger could scarcely be improved upon. Mr. Frank Lacy as James Blenkinsop, the cynical but kindly man of the world, gives a clever and well-thought-out interpretation of the part; Mr. Charles A. Staite as Freddie Perkins is responsible for some hearty laughter for a clever piece of comedy acting. The remaining characters are in good hands, and the play is excellently mounted.

MANCHESTER. — GAIETY THEATRE. — Proprietor, Miss A. E. F. Horniman; Manager, Mr. B. Iden Payne; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edwin T. Heys.—The Christmas production here, The Knight of the Burning Pestle, has so far proved an unquestionable success, the bookings being ample, and the general attendances large. Good as the opening performances were, they have now attained to a standard that is very near to absolute perfection, the whole of the cast, citizens and players, working together with remarkable smoothness and humour. The matinées of Alice in Wonderland are also successfully continued.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—The Babes in the Wood, as presented by Messrs. Cullen and Carthy's company, may fairly claim to be one of the best pantomimes on the road. The singing is good, the fun always brisk and enjoyable, and the scenery and dresses are elaborate and pleasing. Incidental to the story, specialities are introduced with great success by Les Belles Americaines, a quartette of smart acrobatic dancers; Dolly and Elsie, in juvenile song and dance; the Melbahs, musical instrumentalists; and Messrs. Cullen and Carthy, assisted by Little Cluley, who keep the house in roars with their whimsicalities. In addition to the work of all these, much clever business is contributed by Miss Bessie Cohen as Robin Hood, Miss Ruby Roys as Maid Marian, Mr. Arthur Stratton as the Baron, and Mr. Fred Melville as Hearne the Hunter (an excellent vocalist).

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—Mr. Horace Stanley and company are here this week in The 10.30 Down Express, which is presented with success twice nightly. Prominent in the cast are Mr. T. Arthur Plummer as Jack O'Malley, a well-drawn heroic character; Mr. F. Wilberforce as the villainous Jack Inderwick; Miss Kate Kilpack as Peggy Potts; Miss Cora Linda as O'Malley's sweetheart, Bessie Leigh; and Miss Myra Mayne as Olive Coombes, an exacting part well played. Mr. Horace Stanley as Sam Wagstaff and Miss Ida Fane as Letitia Leigh are responsible for a deal of fun. All the minor parts are cleverly filled.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Hewitt.—Mr. Harry Burns presents here the pantomime of Robinson Crusoe. It is an entertaining production, and very prettily staged. Mme. Du Roche as Crusoe and Miss Marie Belle as Polly Perkins sustain the initial rôles in engaging style, and contribute some good singing; Mr. Harry Curwen makes an excellent Dame Crusoe; Mr. Arthur Aiston well develops his opportunities as Will Atkins; and Messrs. Alfred Weldon and G. H. Woodleigh are really capital as the Pirates. Other good parts are smartly handled, and graceful evolutions and dances are added by Bert Coote's troupe of Yankee Doodle Girls.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—Top of the bill here this week are George Auger and company in their novel and amusing playlet Jack the Giant-Killer. A star attraction also are some exclusive pictures of Johnson and Burns, the pugilists, in various training exercises. Hermann Melot, the well-known conjurer, is as successful as ever; the Four Holloways do some wonderful acrobatic feats, including trick cycling on a tight-wire; Henry Carlton is seen to advantage in his Window Cleaner sketch; and other good turns are provided by Alf Chester, versatile comedian; Beatie Kent, comedienne and dancer; Tom Collins, light comedian; Harry Clifford, comedian; and the Yankee Doodle duo, Jack Ross and Sue Lewis, in a truly comic and remarkably clever dancing act.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Manager, Mr. Wilson Barry.—The Sands of Dee is still "going strong." Dolly Elsworthy, ably supported, is well received in a delightful playlet Sweet Mistress Dorothy; the Delevines are very clever in their scarecrow dance; the Cumberlands as trick cyclists and acrobats are exceedingly smart; De Gracia's elephants are well trained and entertaining; the Martineks made a hit in their Rag Doll act; Jack Smiles, comedian, dances and smiles well; Dora Barrington, in song-scena, Sentiment and Jest, sings well; and Helen Trix is good at the piano. Up-to-date pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Freece; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—B. A. Rolfe presents the Ten Dark Knights, including Jack Smith, ably supported, in a capital coon act of singing, playing, and dancing. The great Roland, assisted by Marjorie Russell, is a first-rate illusionist; Charles Miller's elephant trio are wonderfully well trained; Paulton and Dooley are very funny as eccentric trick cyclists; Alec Kendall makes a hit with his smart patter; Will English, a coloured dancer, is excellent; Emlyn Jones and quartette are first-rate singers; Wilson and Waring are amusing in comedy act A Bit of Nonsense; and Vere and Royal, comedy duo, are entertaining.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. R. Trippett.—John Tiller's comic pantomime Little Red Riding Hood as presented here this week is a fine show, the scenery, dresses, and dancing—by the Poppy Quartette—being all excellent. Prince Charming is nicely played by Maisie Jerrard; and Decima Brooke is very pleasing as Red Riding Hood. Considerable amusement is caused by Fred Russell as the Baron; and by Will Lytton and Walter Watson as Johnny Stout and Johnny Green respectively. Emmie Franks is a smart Tommy Tucker; Louie Davies as Margery Daw is a neat dancer; Howard Ward as the Grandmother is good; Florry Page sings well as the Fairy; and Dave Laird as the Wolf is capital.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Decima Moore, the well-known actress and singer, is the star here this week, and meets with a good reception. Daisy Irving, a charming comedienne, has a sweet voice; Reynolds' Minstrels are entertaining in coon songs and dances; Minnie Wheaton sings and dances nicely; Beatrice Macadam in a musical act is excellent; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard in sketch Coming Home are vastly amusing; Mr. Bartlett Garth and company are good in dramatic episode The Snowstorm; whilst other smart items are given by Stratton, a lady impersonator, and Leonard Gale, vocal comedian. Ruffell's Pictures complete.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—Zona Vevey and Max Erard, after a highly successful week at the King's, Longsight, are delighting large audiences here with their altogether excellent vocal scena. Lallie Brooke sings "The old sundial" in an effective manner; Diana Hope and company present in powerful style a society episode Her Good Name; the Victoria Troupe are charming instrumentalists; Les Zelovas are neat acrobatic equilibrists; Jim Cunliffe, light comedian, has a pleasing style; the Rangers do some wonderful trick cycling; and Burns and Bentley are deservedly applauded for their simultaneous dancing. A White Shirt and A Tale of the Revolution are shown on the Bioscope.

HULME HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baker.—The Six Brothers Luck top the bill here this week in Lift-'Ems, Ltd., and cause no end of laughter, the piece being screamingly funny. The Pasquali Brothers are exceedingly clever as tumblers and equilibrists; Harry Zetter makes a big hit as a comedian and eccentric dancer; the Wyffs are amusing in comedy sketch St. Valentine's Day; Jack Martin scores with song, "Taking his own wife's part"; Natalia and Diana give a very clever trapeze performance; Conan Dewson is excellent at the piano; and other smart turns are offered by the Bros. Milford, good dancers; M. H. Thiessen, with well-trained dogs; and Val Marome, vocalist. Rembrandt, lightning artist, did not appear on the occasion of our visit.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. Michael; General-Manager, Mr. W. W. Keene.—Mr. Edward Graham-Falcon's spirited pantomime company has this week presented, with complete success, Aladdin. Speciality turns are contributed by the La Dor Troupe of acrobats; the Misses Carrie Warner, Amelia Graham, and Louie Wells as dancing girls; Mr. Albert Lawrence, who sings "Dear Heart"; and Percy Galino, whose bone solos are cleverly rendered. Miss Amy Bellwood gives every satisfaction in the name-part; Miss Daisy Kersey is equally successful as the Princess; Mr. Albert Lawrence's Widow Twankey is excruciatingly funny without being vulgar; Mr. J. G. Forde is good as the magician; Mr. Will Burton is amusing as the Emperor; and Miss Georgie Mansell makes a delightful Slave of the Ring.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—His Father's Teacher is a pathetic little sketch, in which Miss Crissie Francess and Miss Ethel Green are successful. Amandus, the cosmopolitan facial mimic; Allen and Austen, comedians; Byron, comedy clay modeller; Fred Dunstone, comedian; and Mlle. Rosina, expert instrumentalist, also contribute to an all-round entertaining programme.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—The pantomime Aladdin opened here on Monday to a good house. Miss Marie Wall makes an admirable Aladdin; the Princess has a pleasing representative in Miss Emmie Cousins; and Miss Ruby Hayes as So-Shi, Miss Cissie Cowan as Pekoe, Little Babs Lloyd as Electra, and Miss Ivy Rochefort as Kasrac appear to advantage in their respective characters. Hayes and Watson provide plenty of amusement as Bo-Bi and Bo-Ko; and Mr. Bob Stephenson is brimful of humour as Widow Twankey.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Mohamed Ben Mohamed Troupe of genuine Arabs head the bill here, and meet with a hearty welcome; Edward Crossland's Merry Makers submit an excellent turn, introducing good vocalism; the Four Dorrans provide a capital item; and Lilian Travelli, vocalist, Henry and Blanche in a speciality act, Martino, the man-frog, Sam Dalton, comedian, and Abel and Welsh, grotesque eccentrics, also entertain. Excellent films are shown by the biograph.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Matthew H. Glenville and Fred. Osmond's pantomime Aladdin reaches the high-water mark of provincial pantomimes. Miss Hettie Zillwood is a dashing Aladdin, and sings capitally; Miss Maggie Hobart combines a charming presence with a sweet voice as the Princess; Mr. M. H. Glenville makes an imposing figure of the Emperor; Mrs. Twankey is played with irrepressible humour and verve by Mr. Arthur E. Behan; Mr. Fowler Thatcher is a capital Abanazar; Misses Cissy and Kitty Behan and Mr. Freddie Edwards, Mr. Fred Osmond, and others contribute to the success of the performance. Specialities are given by the Brothers Lavelle, comedy acrobats; the Three Behans, in an amusing quick-change act; the Ella Willmer troupe of dancers; and the Gando sextette of male vocalists.

NEW PICTURE HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Hunter; Manager, Mr. E. H. Jones.—An excellent series of pictures this week includes In the Shadow of the Law, Customs Officers' Revenge, Dressmaker's Dummy, and The Sandwich Woman.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Ed. Jowsey; Manager and Licensee, Mr. W. K. Chatto.—Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime Humpty Dumpty, which should rank amongst the most successful, finishes this week. The principals are to be congratulated on their efforts in providing such a fine performance. The principal boy and girl have been ably undertaken by Miss Florence Wix and Miss Barbara Babington, both of whom have won a great reputation. The gentlemen of the company worked with a right good will to keep the fun going, and in this were eminently successful. The scenery and dresses have been pleasing features of the production.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company occupies the boards here this week in the new romantic play The Prince and the Beggar Maid. Miss Ethel Bracewell in the rôle of Princess of Illyria is a dainty figure, and wins the hearts of her audience as well as that of her Prince Olaf. Mr. Ernest Cox, in the latter part, makes an ideal soldier-lover, and the adventures of these two, supported by a capital company, form a fascinating story. Mr. Alfred Brandon is exceedingly good as Prince Hildred, and the parts of his brothers are well represented. Miss Gertrude Branscombe as Camiola, the beggar maid, is all that can be desired, and Miss Jessica Black is pleasing in the rôle of Viola. The piece is admirably staged.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Chas. Rembges.—Jake Friedman, Anglo-Dutch comedian, and his company give a fine performance here in their Dutch operetta Happy Holland; Leslie and Stevens sing beautifully in their act Love Levels All; Zarmio, juggler, does some smart tricks; the Austral Trio give an enjoyable musical entertainment; Reggio Bros. display great strength and agility in the gladiatorial act; and Chas. Carr, the Brooklands, and Joe Dale all give enjoyable turns.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Manager, Mr. C. E. Nicholls.—C. T. Alrich occupies the star position here this week; his impersonations, lightning changes, and travesties of

About six weeks ago I was suffering with

PIMPLES

ALL OVER MY FACE.

I was also suffering with SCURF IN THE HAIR. Being rather alarmed, I asked a friend's advice, and he recommended me to take "Clarke's Blood Mixture." I purchased a 2/9 bottle, and within a week I found marked improvement. The pimples and the scurf is entirely gone. I cannot tell you how thankful I am at having taken "Clarke's Blood Mixture," and I shall recommend it to everybody, as I think it only right that such a remedy should be known.—(Signed), JOHN HENRY JONES, known as "Little Johnny," Llandudno's Popular Comedian, Thorndale, Llandudno, Feb. 24, 1908.

VANISHED LIKE MAGIC,

conjuring prove as clever as they are pleasing. John Wills and Bessie Mackenzie are exceedingly good in a vocal scena, and Harry Nelson, with his songs and patter, creates roars of laughter. The Society Quartette do some clever dancing; the Gladenbercks provide a wonderful turn; Hinton and Wooton's football match on bicycles rouses great enthusiasm; and Harry Morris and Edie Coalville also add to the entertainment.

MOTHERWELL.—New Century Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hales.—Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred Darcy this week present their comic pantomime The Forty Thieves. Miss Mary Poulton is bright and dashing as Ganem, singing her various songs with an abundance of go; Miss Isa Bell cuts a smart figure as the Captain of the Forty; Mlle. Carita is sweet and dainty as Morgiana; Mr. Wal Croft, a great local favourite, finds a congenial rôle as Ali Baba; Mr. Reg. Ewen appears with success as Cogia; Mr. Ted Wootten is well suited as Cassim Baba; Mr. Chas. Weldon does well as Mustapha; and Sandy and Carl are a couple of excellent knockabouts. Specialities are the Esmeralda Trio of dancers, the Five X Rays, comedy acrobats, and the Cavalotte Bros., instrumentalists.

NELSON.—Grand Theatre.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Greanwood; Business-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Mudd.—The chief attraction of a capital bill is Vonetta, illusionist and lightning protean actress, who has proved a rare draw. Other contributors are Gilroy, novelty ventriloquist; Trevor D'Alby and company, comedy tramp and rag artists; Dan Kino, in a nautical scena, "Boys of Britannia's Navy"; Tom Lloyd and Geo. Millard, comedians; and the Brogdens, a clever comedy couple.

NEW BRIGHTON.—Winter Gardens.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. H. E. Jones and A. Douglass.—This week Mlle. Mattie Lund heads the bill here and sings delightfully; Baddow, ventriloquist, has made a success; Mr. Charles Santon, the double-voiced vocalist, is also a great favourite; Juggling and oil painting are done by Mr. Charles Field, assisted by Mlle. Mansell; and Mr. A. H. Drinkwater is a light comedian with a good appearance. The animated pictures are being carefully selected.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Mr. Arthur's production, Aladdin, still continues its phenomenal success. Happy Fanny Fields is quite in her element as Gretchen, and dances, sings, and chatters herself into popular favour; Miss Violet Lloyd is a refined and graceful principal boy; and Miss Maud Thorne is dainty and winsome as the Princess; Miss Florence Hersee and Miss Doris Dean uphold their well-merited popularity; Mr. Harry Tate, in his impressions of various comedians, his "golfing" and "motoring" and general business, continues to win unstinted applause; while Mr. Malcolm Scott, Regan and Ryan, and Mr. Horace Lane are all going strong.

Tyne Theatre and Opera House.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Humpty Dumpty continues to further increase in popular favour, and crowded audiences each night witness this brilliant and amusing production. Mr. Arthur Prince keeps the house in great good humour with his ventriloquial entertainment and other specialities, and both he and Ida Rene (the principal girl) win fresh admirers nightly; gaiety is added to the pantomime by Miss Lily Iris, the charming principal boy, who sings and acts in a most attractive style; the low comedy business of Mr. J. E. Nightingall, Carlton, Shaun Glenville, and Jock Walker adds to the enjoyment; and the beautiful scenery, magnificent dresses, and well-balanced chorus all contribute to the great success of the production.

Palace Theatre.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—The second week of the Carl Rosa Opera company's season opened with Lohengrin, and the great master's inspiring music was never more perfectly rendered, principals, chorus, and orchestra fully realising the poetic spirit of the beautiful opera. Mr. Hans Roberts makes an ideal Lohengrin, and sings with great sweetness and power; the vocalisation of Miss Elizabeth Burgess is delightfully fresh, and she renders her songs in a manner which merits praise; a convincing study of Telramund is given by Charles Victor, whose voice is heard to great advantage; Miss Doris Woodall undertakes the part of Ortrud with passionate and intensely real art; and Mr. Arthur Winckworth is a splendid Henry, and portrays the character with fidelity and enthusiasm. During the week Rigoletto, Faust, Carmen, Il Trovatore, Tannhauser, and the Bohemian Girl will be presented.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; Manager, Mr. H. G. Elliott.—The pantomime Red Riding Hood, now in its second week, is attracting crowded houses at every performance. Full of delightful singing, graceful playing and dancing, and much excellent fun, there is not a dull moment. Special mention should be made of Miss May Merry, Miss Jessie Templeton, Mr. Laurie Barclay, and Mr. C. K. Martinetti.

Empire Theatre.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—The special attraction this week is provided by a sketch, All About a Bout, in which Frank Gotch, the wrestling champion of America, is exploited. The entertainment is more humorous than otherwise, and is delighting the sport-loving public of Newcastle. A wonderful novelty is presented by the Ten Zerbinis in the Enchanted Glen, a musical and scenic display, which is exceptionally pleasing; Walter Munroe further endears himself to the hearts of the Empire patrons by his clever dancing and witty Irish songs; and Charles Guyer and Ida Valli go well in a clever American comedy act. Fayre and Manning, the two in green, Stein Eretto Troupe of wonderful hand-jumping acrobats, Sybil St. Elmo, Rhoda Paul, and Frank Sylvo also contribute splendid variety; and the Bioscope, depicting the famous Gotch Hackensmidt match, is of special interest.

Pavilion Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—The place of honour this week is filled by Madame Albani, assisted by Victor Marmont, pianist, and Herr Zakovsky, violinist. Other artists on an excellent bill are Denwartz Troupe, Frank L. Gregory and Troupe, Signor Barbalonga, Jack Marks, Wyndham and Waters, and Elmo and Rego.

Roller Skating, Exhibition Buildings.—Manager, Mr. Fred B. Crowe.—This pleasing and healthy pastime shows no sign of waning popularity, and each session sees the floor crowded with enthusiastic skaters. The professional championship race, to be decided on Jan. 28, is now the topic, and many entries have been received.

NEWPORT.—Lyceum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. Fred Melville's company produced Her Road to Ruin to good houses here this week. As Jess Willoughby Miss Beatrice Edwards makes the utmost of a heavy and difficult part; May Willoughby is played with natural charm and grace by Miss Alice Bowes; and Mr. Henry Wolson displays plenty of spirit in the part of Frank Temple. Mr. Duncan Jarrow introduces realism into the character of Tom Wells, the poor journalist; Mr. Alex. Bradley as Philip Hardy makes a typical villain, and Miss Nellie Bonsor is particularly successful as Mary Dawson. Mr. V. R. C. Moore puts plenty of life into Chas. Cholmondley, and Mr. Dave Clarke makes a dignified Bishop. The fun of the piece is admirably catered for by Mr. Harry Talbot and Miss Marie Wright, and their turn of light comedy in the third act is exceedingly diverting.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—A strong bill here includes J. P. Ling, a mimic of excellent ability; Harry Herbert, a comedian in good form; and Gladys Hooley, in an original scena, Fiddle and I. J. W. Rowley sustains his reputation; the Two Kays provide a pleasing musical turn; and Alexandra Dagmar roused warm applause in her success "A Marriage of Mayfair." The Iukushimas (Japanese troupe) perform some wonderful acrobatic feats; the Bioscope shows some interesting pictures of the recent earthquake in Italy. The star turn is undoubtedly supplied by Hubert Carter as David Garrick in a sketch by Louis Cohen, in which he is supported by Mrs. Calhaem, Miss Helen Russell, Messrs. Alex. Crighton, Frank Norman, and H. A. Stafford.

NORMANTON.—Picture Palace.—Messrs. Dobito and Buxton have opened these rooms as a picture and variety palace on the twice-nightly system, and are meeting with well-deserved success. Electric light has been installed and a gallery erected. Variety items are supplied by Mr. Fred Dobito, baritone; and Dobito and Buxton, duettists, are well received. The pictures are projected in fine style by Mr. Frank Lee.

NORTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Messrs. R. C. Buchanan and Ernest Stevens's pantomime, Jack the Giant Killer, written by Mr. Stanley Rogers, is proving a great attraction here this week. As Jack Miss Madge Allen is a bright and attractive principal boy; Miss Lilian Errol plays with distinct success the part of Margery Daw; Miss Evelyn Robson is seen to advantage as Queen Caressa; and Miss Madge O'Niell makes a good Mephisto. As Dame Gabble Mr. Harry Farrow gives a droll and clever performance; Mr. Charles V. Sandford scores as King Fad; Mr. Johnny McElroy as Simple Simon creates much hearty laughter; Mr. W. S. Stevenson is well placed as Blunderbore; Messrs. Fred Fulton and Bob Anderson as the Giant's Cooks are very amusing; and some excellent dancing is introduced by the Duguesne Trio. The scenery and dresses are satisfactory.

Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The Three Raymonds, in their refined musical dancing act, top the bill here, and have made a great hit. Messrs. Elliott and Kennedy, Yorkshire and Irish comedians, are clever; Miss Patty Yole, comedienne and dancer, comes in for a hearty reception; the Balzens, Japanese entertainers, are very smart; Mr. Barney Noble, comedian, is popular; and the Mouldoscope is as entertaining as ever.

NORTHWICH.—Pavilion.—Proprietress, Mrs. Fletcher; Manager, Mr. Phil Royston.—The company of artists engaged this week includes Hewson's Æolians, in harmony, song, and dance; Miss Lot Lonsdale, a pleasing singer; Jack Kent, comedian; Chris Sylvene, on bar and rings; Burn and Burnard, in good sketch, and the Bioscope.

Central Theatre.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden.—Edmund Tearle and company are here this week with The Three Musketeers, Jeannie Deans, Virginius, Hamlet, East Lynne, and It's Never Too Late to Mend. They opened on Monday with The Three Musketeers, and the play was very ably presented. Mr. Tearle's strong performance of D'Artagnan was well supported by the fine delineation of Miladi by Miss Kate Clinton.

NORWICH.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company are here this week in A Sailor's Wedding. Miss Mary Pemberton pleasingly acts the part of Mary, and Miss Winifred Pearson deserves praise as Lenore de Gresac, whilst Miss M. Sadie made an admirable Polly Clarke. Mr. C. W. Standing was indeed good as Gordon Crake, and Mr. Cecil Klein equally so as Sir Victor Lascelles; Mr. T. French Smiles was successful as Giacomo, while Mr. Walter Pemberton as Jack Hawkins and Mr. Gerald Ford as Bill Burns created the humorous portion of the piece. The other characters were ably accounted for. The scenery, mounting, and acting were much appreciated.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—An enjoyable programme is submitted this week. The New York Comedy Four as vocalists and comedians are much appreciated; Ike and Will Scott are very humorous in their turn; Mlle. Renée's instrumental performance is very entertaining; Gwennie Hasto is a pleasing singer and dancer, while Ryan and Hall are amusing acrobats, comedians, and burlesque wrestlers. The other turns are Arthur Slater, the "man in white," who gives a pleasing whistling scena, A Day in a Garden; Tennyson and Wallis, comedians, and Walter Emerson, the "six foot of comicality." The Hippo Bio is very good this week.

Agricultural Hall.—Mr. Charles Thurston's Fun Carnival finished on Tuesday evening, having experienced a capital season.

Agricultural Hall Assembly Rooms.—The New Era pictures continue interesting, and Mr. Wilson Martell sings some excellent songs.

NOTTINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Cinderella still continues to attract large and appreciative audiences. It is running with extreme smoothness, and all concerned are to be congratulated on its undoubted success.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—The pantomime Aladdin is still satisfying large houses. The acting, singing, and dancing have been excellent all along, and every night has added to the popularity of the artists engaged.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—The King and the Vagabond, produced by Mr. Laurence Irving and company, is exceedingly attractive. Mr. Irving assumes the rôle of Louis XI. with eminent success, while Miss Mabel Hackney makes a delightful Gringoire, and the other members of the company all do well. Mr. George Leyton in his military scena, The Last Muster, is well received; and Vanando, who produces a really novel ventriloquial act, evokes storms of applause and laughter. The Jackson Family are extremely accomplished instrumentalists, and the Eight Lancashire Lads please all by their clever dancing; a really acceptable juvenile song and dance act is presented by the Crisps, and Miss Edie Endon, in song and dance, secures due recognition. Bob Hamilton, a Scotch comedian, and a sketch by Matt Wilkinson and company, together with the usual Bioscope pictures, complete the programme.

Royal Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Woodward's sea lions and seal form an excellent first turn here. The patience and perseverance necessary to train such unpromising material must be enormous. Leslie Brothers, in an undeniably first-class musical act, meet with well deserved recognition; and the efforts of Blanche and Powell in a similar direction are appreciated. Raven Wood is a card manipulator of extraordinary aptness; and the humour of Robbie Roy, a Scotch comedian, convulsed the house with laughter. The Five Broadway Girls, looking very charming and dancing well, earned ample recognition, whilst the humorous acrobatic feats of Cummin and Seaham caused both wonder and amusement; Maxey and Pete present some exceptional trick cycle riding, and prove to what perfection this art has been brought. Some good films on the Barrascope conclude a first-class programme.

NUNEATON.—Prince of Wales's.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joseph Coyle.—Mr. Harry Benet's talented company is providing a treat here by the performance of Sergeant Brue. Mr. Denis Lydon in the title-rôle and Mr. H. Quininborough as Crookie Scrubbs are responsible for some excellent comedy, and keep the house in a constant state of hilarity. Mr. Lister Morrah as Michael Brue acts capitally, and his singing is much appreciated—he and Miss Mabel Davis as Mabel Widget give a fine rendering of the duet "A night in Venice"; Miss Daisy Dale as Aurora Brue is successful and charming; Miss Ray Anderson makes a dignified and imposing Lady Bickenhall, and her excellent singing meets with much approval. The other parts are all capably filled. The well-drilled chorus and excellent mounting add much to the effect gained.

OLDBURY.—Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor Mr. Jas Tyrer.—This week's programme includes Messrs. Glyn and Glyn, a diverting couple; Prof. Oliver, coon delineator; and Miss Annie Blanchard, vocalist. The pictures are up to the usual standard.

OLDHAM.—New Grand Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Mayall.—My Mimosa Maid, played by Mr. Frank Curzon's company, drew a large audience on Monday. The company includes Miss Marie Studholme, and the popular artist was delightful in the part of Paulette, her singing and acting being as clever as ever. Miss Ruby Gray sang her numbers admirably as Marcelle, and received much applause; Miss May Garstang in the part of Mme. de Pilaine was capital; and Miss Eva Sandford as the flower-girl, Popitte, was very smart. Mr. Chas. McNaughton as Victor Guilbert was responsible for some excellent comedy and clever dancing; Master Archie McCaig as Bock is worthy of special mention for really clever acting; Mr. Chas. E. Paton was also to the fore as Max; and Mr. Percy Carr sang well as M. Emile Gerard. Mr. A. Jackson did good work as Grone; Messrs. Powis Pinder and Leslie Winter as Capt. Laurier and Lieut. Courmandet were capital officers of Zouaves; and a powerful chorus and augmented orchestra was ably directed by Mr. Harry R. Matthews.

Colosseum Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—Mr. Walter Melville's company occupies the boards, and a good audience welcomed The Girl Who Wrecked His Home. Miss Louise Hampton as Bertha Marshall gives a fine portrayal of the title-rôle; Mr. Fred W. Goddard makes a manly Jack Marshall, and his enemy, Leonard Kenyon, is played with suitable vindictiveness by Mr. Walner Gregory, his accomplice, Val Raymond, being capably sustained by Miss Winifred Whyte. Miss Ida Thompson cleverly enacts Winnie; Miss Lulu Bowers is charming as the grown-up girl; her sweetheart, William Stevenson, was well played by Mr. Alfred Richards; and the younger Willie is amusingly represented by Master Dick Evans. A rich vein of comedy is capitally exploited by Miss A. Burdete as Lottie and Mr. F. Hope as Tommy Biffin.

Empire Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—At the head of a capital bill here is Ernest Shand, whose reception is most cordial. Harry Tate's company in Fishing causes hearty laughter; John Warren presents a military mystery in The Magic Carpet in clever style; Stewart and Morgan sing delightfully; the Bros. Babusian perform their daring equilibristic act cleverly; Marion Fletcher proves a capable operatic vocalist; and Fritz Kornau whistles in fine style. Fred Peake and company in a dramatic sketch, At Break of Day, win success; and the Bioscope concludes one of the best programmes submitted here.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Kilrow.—Mephisto is the principal attraction here in a mystifying illusory act, ably assisted by Miss Winifred Attondue. Frank Hardie and company in a military sketch, For the Honour of the Regiment, act very well; Miss May Loftus presents a novel dancing turn in a really clever manner, gaining much applause; Cestria, the original comedy juggler, provides a very amusing and clever act; Miss Rosa Loader, musical mimic, is excellent; Kirk and Saraski in an aquatic performance are smart; Clifford Stuart is a most versatile comedian; and Julian Ross is a smart light comedian. The Dottoscope concludes.

Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—Abato and Hurst appear in a comedy act, and Princess Pauline, comedienne, sings some good songs. Frank Coyle again proves most popular and amusing; Gold and Sterling have a good act in The Maid and the Artist; Adele Lincoln is smart in song and dance; Arthur Schofield is a good comedian; the Bros. Lane are very good on the bars; and a fine picture on the Dottoscope concludes.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Thorne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. Sharrocks.—Messrs. Sydney Cooper and the Tally-ho Trio staged Cinderella here on Monday, and have been drawing large crowds. Miss Jessica Brooke in the name-part is a pleasing heroine, and gains much applause; Miss Madge Daly is a dashing Prince Charming; and Miss May Maddison is no less successful as Dandini. Miss Ida Scott is a most engaging Fairy Godmother, and sings well; Mr. Eric Farr as the Baron is a clever comedian, and he is ably seconded by Mr. Harry C. Momber as the Page. Messrs. Newham and Latimer in the characters of the sisters Cordelia and Camelia cause much laughter; the Tally-ho Trio introduce some very good harmony; the Sisters Florence do some smart dancing. The miniature coach and ponies are very pretty, the staging and dressing of the show really excellent, and there is a powerful chorus.

OXFORD.—East Oxford Theatre.—Lessees, East Oxford Theatre, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Stuart.—Mr. Julian Malvern's company is here with I Defy the World. Mr. F. B. Woulfe gives a robust and clear rendering of Leon Darville; Mr. Max Coutts is also very efficient as Count de Beaulieu; Mr. Charles Conway ably enacts Laroche; Mr. Alfred Denning comports himself well as General Delaporte; Mr. Walter Clarke is a success as Andre; and Mr. Eddie Vane as Najac, Mr. Alfred G. Raymond as Bochan, and Mr. Chas. M. Julian as Samuel Wozzle are all amusing. Miss Maude Lilian is effective as Maria Wozzle; Little Dorothy Love does well as Fanchette; Miss E. Loraine is graceful as Pauline Delaporte; and Miss Florence Delmar gives a powerful rendering of Blanche Darville.

New Theatre.—Proprietors, the Oxford Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. C. Dorrill; Assistant-Manager, Mr. G. T. Lucas.—Messrs. Lyn Harding and Sidney Cooper's company is paying a first visit with The Flag Lieutenant, and a crowded house on Monday gave the heartiest of welcomes to this successful play. The company is an exceptionally good one, and well deserved the hearty applause of the keenly-appreciative house. Mr. Lionel Atwill gives a talented performance in the title-rôle, his natural acting and good-humoured style quite infecting his audience; Mr. George Mallett is uncommonly good as the Vice-Admiral; Mr. H. Montague Love thoroughly enters into the part of Major Thesiger; Mr. E. S. Petley does very well as the Doctor; Mr. Hugh Wakefield and Mr. Lyonel Watts are an amusing pair of midshipmen; and Mr. W. J. Yeldham is a diverting General Gough-Bogle. Miss Florence Jackson acts with sympathetic power as Mrs. Cameron; Miss Viva Birkett is a handsome and fascinating Hermione; and Viola Hood, Mrs. Gough-Bogle, and Lady Dugdale find capable exponents in Misses Marjorie Dore, Stella Leigh, and Winifred Vallant. A return visit of The Flag Lieutenant will be eagerly looked forward to.

Town Hall.—Poole's Myriorama is, as usual, attracting large audiences here, and a strong variety programme adds to the attractions of the pictures.

PAISLEY.—Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Mr. Savile's pantomime Puss in Boots has entered on its fifth and last week's run, having to be withdrawn in the height of its success to allow of touring engagements previously entered into being fulfilled. The pantomime has been financially and in all other respects an unbounded success. The artists have all worked hard and harmoniously together, the esprit de corps among them being decidedly pronounced. Miss Daisy Morell (Colin), Miss Katie Yates (Princess Ivy), Miss Florence Lewis (Prince Rudolph), Miss Moyna Hill (Phyllis), Misses Mabel Earle and Jessie Jukes (Jack and Jill), Miss Topsy Johnson (Felina, the Fairy Queen), among the ladies, and Mr. Walter Kooney (King Grabbus), Mr. Harry Karr (Dame Shortly), Mr. Fred C. Fields (Baron Rumphiz), Mr. J. K. Macfarlane (Sandy Macmuggles), Mr. Glen Alva (Sir boots), Mr. Arnold Harley (Digestus), among the gentlemen, are all to be complimented for their brilliant work, nearly all of whom have this week contributed new songs. Nor can the La Belle Trio, dancers—Misses Edna Evelyn, Becca Stirling, and Lily Bell—be forgotten. Their artistic Terpsichorean exhibitions have invariably been greeted with the most vociferous applause. Mr. Bernard A. Leslie, who goes on tour with the pantomime, has again proved his undoubted worth and ability in the capacity of stage-manager. Mr. Savile's benefit is billed for Friday evening, when, among other attractions, Mr. George Robey (Theatre Royal, Glasgow) has kindly consented, with the equally kind permission of Mr. Robert Arthur and Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, to appear.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Stead.—A capital programme of excellent variety is provided here this week. W. F. Frame, the well-known Scotch comedian, tops the bill, and wins golden opinions for his entertaining abilities; Sinclair and Whiteford, in their farcical comedy Getting Even, both score heavily; Florence and Rose Showell sing with much charm favourite and classical songs; the Howards, the originators of silent-thought telepathy, submit a marvellous performance; Mlle. Haydee's miniature vaudeville theatre is a source of intense enjoyment; Kitty Beresford, comedienne, has a hearty reception; Stanley, the singing collier, has many admirers; Delafiore plays on the xylophone with masterly ability; and the Bioscope pictures again provide interest and amusement.

PEMBROKE DOCK.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Tom Barger; Business-Manager, Mr. Norman Barger.—Mr. Teddy Myles and company extend their visit, and remain here for the first three nights, presenting Murder Will Out. Mr. Teddy Myles in the rôle of Mat Harrison, a dog fancier, makes a "hit" with his song; Miss Queenie Fraser-Brunner as Aurora Floyd does well; Mr. W. Fraser-Brunner as Steve Hargrave plays excellently; and the other parts are well supported. Mr. Crossley presented Ted and May Hopkins in The Babes in the Wood on Thursday.

PENTRE.—Tivoli Palace and Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Gunn.—Topping an entertaining bill here this week are the New York Comedy Nippers, in a clever pantomime and dancing act. Addie Dorina, in her production, entitled Dr. Spot's Patients, gives an admirable impersonation of the various characters as a quick-change artist; the Cromwells deserve praise for their unique juggling turn, which is much appreciated; Miss Hetty Knight contributes some smart up-to-date songs; a musical turn of a high order is given by Les Fransettis, comprising selections on the harp, violin, and xylophone; Wright and Elton are seen to advantage in a comedy act, entitled The Lady Artist; Sam Spira gives a delightful entertainment; and smart patter and humorous comedy numbers are contributed by the Rowntrees.

Drill Hall.—Will Stone's twentieth-century pictures continue as popular as ever.

PENZANCE.—St. John's Hall.—Mr. Harry Stewart's Royal Troubadours are here. Mr. Harry Stewart as a Protean quick-change artist maintains his reputation; Miss Kitty Woodford's trained dogs and Miss Graham's beautiful collection of birds are applauded; Leonard and Mac are two funny comedy merchants; Master Clyde Stewart, the "little boy with the big voice," is clever; and Doretta has a sweet voice and a charming manner, and is a graceful dancer. Miss Beatrice Wynne, a particularly sweet soprano, wins spontaneous encores. The Bioscope shows some remarkably clear pictures.

PERTH.—The Perth Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. W. A. Seymour's company in The Gay Gordons is here this week. Mr. Charles Childerstone scores an unqualified success as Angus Graeme; Edward Carlton as Nervy Nat and Robert Rivers as Edmund Siddons each give an excellent performance, and contribute much of the humour; Mr. Harry W. Johnson gives a good representation of Andrew Quainton, the American millionaire; Mr. Stafford Dickens as Corporal John Smith and Mr. Arthur Woolley as Archibald Speedy give every satisfaction; while Mr. R. H. Vallis is well received as Jack MacPrisky; Miss Marie West is a charming and go-ahead Peggy; Miss Kathleen Dighton as Mary McLeod is very attractive; Miss Florence Somers meets with much acceptance as Victoria Siddons; Miss Louie Emery as Charlotte Siddons could not be improved on; and the part of Janet McLeod is well rendered by Miss Sophie Lingwood.

PLYMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Cinderella still pursues its way without sign of waning popularity. Miss Maisie Ellinger is a strong favourite as Prince Charming, her smart style and general debonair bearing admirably suiting the part; Miss Lucie Caine is graceful and attractive; and the Misses Louie Tinsley and Denny Fitzherbert as the ugly sisters, Phyllis and Zena, prove themselves humorists of no mean order; Messrs. Woodhouse and Wells as Bill and Ginger are a couple of the smartest patter comedians that have yet appeared at the Royal; whilst Mr. W. H. Kirby as Peter Pepper keeps the audience convulsed with his exceedingly droll style; Mr. Arthur Paterson as the Baron contributes no small share of the success of the evening; whilst Mr. A. C. Passmore works hard as the Baroness.

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—The Saxons, described as the human pillars, furnish a very clever entertainment, their feats of weight-lifting and their exhibitions of strength being warmly appreciated; the Brothers Huxter, American speciality artists, supply a wonderful exhibition of acrobatic skill, which deservedly finds much favour; the Five Bom-Bays are heard to advantage in some tuneful plantation ditties, whilst their dancing is of a very high order; Oakdene, comedy ventriloquist, is a first-rate exponent of his particular art; the Musical Keiths' turn is one of the most interesting in the bill; Ray and Calden extract much merriment with their comedy act; and Arthur Woodville (light comedian) and Elsie Kerry (comedienne) complete an enjoyable evening.

PONTEFRACT.—Alexandra Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Tom Diacoff.—Effie White introduces an artistic, not to say sensational, kaleidoscopic dance, which, with her graceful postures and the wonderful lighting effects, is indeed a thing of beauty; Ghita Corri shows a remarkable range of vocalisation, and is in addition a refined and cultured singer; Jessie Star is a Scotch comedienne in "kiltie and a' that" with a "Lauderesque" lilt in her songs; Leo, a ventriloquist, is exceptionally endowed; George Prince is a smart comedian, and the description applies equally to Will Dalton; the Three Sisters Lee are nothing if not versatile, for they dance, sing, and put in some clever acrobatic business; Edwards and Ward are comedy entertainers with quaint fancies and dancing; Fred Athalan does some astonishing feats of head-balancing; and Parker and Parr are good in a capital scena, Taffy and the Toff. In addition there are the pictures.

PORTH.—Tivoli Palace, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—A packed house was secured on Monday, the chief attraction being the Andos troupe of Japanese equilibrists, whose daring performances are accorded a hearty reception. Tom Joy is an all-round comedian, and his songs are greatly appreciated; Ada Fawn makes a hit, her singing meeting with the greatest approval; a notable turn is that of Henry Hilton, conjurer, whose quick and clever movements are watched with the greatest interest; Bonnetti and Corrie, eccentric jugglers, furnish much genuine fun; the Woolhafs, in their comedy act, are a smart couple; the sketch, entitled The Collar Stud, by Muir, Bartlett, and company, is as fresh as ever, the audience being kept in roars of laughter throughout. The Palacescope, as usual, never fails to please.

PORTSMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—The boards this week are in the occupation of Mr. Martin Harvey and his company, who opened on Monday night to a highly-appreciative audience with The Corsican Brothers. The rôle of the two brothers Franchi was handled by Mr. Harvey in his characteristically artistic manner, his remarkable development of the characters being followed with the utmost interest. The light-hearted Emilie de Lesparre was brightly interpreted by Miss N. de Silva; the libertine Chateau Renaud was skilfully treated by Mr. Albert Mansfield; his friend and second, M. Favrolles, was well played by Mr. Chas. J. Cameron; Miss Mary Rorke was well suited as Mme. dei Franchi; and other important parts found effective exponents in Messrs. A. E. Raynor, Percy Foster, Fred Wright, sen., Philip Hewland, and Miss Maud Rivers. The duel scene in the Forest of Fontainebleau was a fine exhibition of stage-craft. The Conspiracy preceded, and the latter part of the week is taken up with A Cigarette Maker's Romance, The Breed of the Treshams, and The Only Way.

Prince's.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Agate.—The concluding week of Cinderella's merry career is at hand. The pantomime has proved a bonne bouche of frivolity, pretty music, and charming scenery provided by Mr. Elliston under the stage-management of Mr. F. Mulvey. Great credit also attaches to Mr. Basil Horsfall, whose direction of the strong orchestra and chorus has materially contributed to the success of the entertainment. Miss Maude Mortimer, whose benefit was announced for last night (Friday), is as bright and vivacious as ever as the Prince Florizel, and pretty and demure Cinderella is quite at home in the hands of Miss Connie Leon; Misses Edith Barwell and Annie Cohen do well as the Sisters; Mr. Geo. Belrose and Mlle. de Velin as Father Time and Fairy Progress sing their duet very effectively; the Harvard Sextette, attired as Pierrots, sing a capital song; the Six Monte Carlo Girls gracefully display their Terpsichorean abilities; and the principal comedians, Messrs. W. T. Thompson, Stanley Vandyke, Victor and Lewis are funny as ever.

King's.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—The programme includes the Four McNultys; Rapoli, the Herculean Juggler; a sketch, Avenged, ably presented by Edith Lewis and company; Jack Hayworth; Andrews and Thompson in The Robe and the Romany; the Aribos; the Bros. Wills, the eccentric "gentlemen"; Will E. Stopit; Rose Elliott; and Reginald Bolton and company in a laughable farce, The Editor's Imp.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Capt. E. H. Warren Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—A musical comedy sketch of local interest is the premier attraction this week. The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory, as produced by Arthur Watson, Flo Stanley, and a troupe of comical comedians, is brimful of good, healthy fun, and thoroughly deserves the applause it receives. The Carpos Bros. perform some wonderful head-to-head balancing tricks; Cull Pitt and Adele prove themselves adept illusionists, their patter being very amusing; Fred Curran sings several quaint songs, chiefly parodies, in great style. Other excellent items are provided by Florence du Barry, comedienne; Chas. Rowen; and Phern and Phern, eccentric musicians. Payne's Bio-Photoscope shows new and interesting pictures.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris; Assistant-Manager, Col. F. W. Roberts.—A full house and plenty of enthusiasm are to be expected when Miss Evie Greene is here, and this visit is no exception to the rule. The talented actress-vocalist both sang and finally recited to the delight of her admirers. Dutch Daly is a favourite with his clever performance on the concertina and his droll stories. Other turns are the Hiatts, the Gilberts, Dex, Oliver Martyn, Margaret Ismay and Coons, and Jenny Reeves.

PRESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Pantomime has invaded Preston this week, and Mr. J. F. Elliston's company in Puss in Boots is exceedingly popular. The story is well told, and the dresses and scenery are really excellent, while the comedians have plenty of scope, and "gags" anent local matters and national political events are numerous. Mr. Harry Edlin as Baron Rumphiz and Mr. Harry Rogerson as King Grabbus cause much laughter, and fun reigns fast and furious; Miss Zona Joy is most entertaining as Gretchen, and contributes a Dutch song and dance which wins applause; Miss Ethel Ra-Leslie, who takes the part of Colin, makes an excellent principal boy, and is a firm favourite from the start, acting with plenty of dash, her fine voice being heard to great advantage; Mr. Augustin Symonds as the elder brother is also another clever comedian; Mr. Fred Lincoln is the Dame Shortly, and creates roars of laughter; as Sly Boots Mr. Hal Bert is very clever, and performs some smart acrobatic feats; Miss Gladys Christie as Princess Ivy is very winsome, and sings and dances well; Miss Bessie Herbert is a dashing Prince Rudolph, and Miss Gladys Hicks a most engaging Phyllis; Miss Issa Steel is the good Fairy Filma, and a very clever turn is introduced by Zelina as Fritz, the juggling waiter. Mention must also be made of the King's Trumpeters by the Three Lorimers, who add much to the grandeur of the march of the Silver Amazons. A very pretty and novel effect is provided by the "bubble fountain," seen for the first time here.

Royal Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—When John Tiller's name is associated with pantomime the public take it for granted that the "show" is good, and that the public is not mistaken is evidenced by the crowded houses (twice nightly) to see Jack and Jill here this week. It is certainly the finest production ever seen at this house, and in the grand Scotch ballet, "The Gathering of the Clans," the audience were aroused to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Jessie Vernon as Truth, the Good Fairy, and Oscar Karno as Carl, the Wicked Genius, are both very good in their respective parts; Mr. Harry Cotton is a mirth-provoking Baron Jolliboy; Bruce Green as Dame Durden is exceedingly funny, some of his gags being very original; then Mr. Horace Jones as Guyer, the Page, and Jean Gaynor as Trim, the Prime Minister, are another duo of comedians who keep things going merrily whenever on the stage; F. le Cren and H. le Cren as General Biff and Private Boff contribute very largely to the comedy, and their acrobatic dancing is a feature; Miss Adah le Cren is a bewitching Fantine; as Jack and Jill Miss Cissy Iris and Nelly Grimshaw are delightful exponents, and both sing and dance themselves into popular favour; Miss Nelly Rodney as the Princess charms with her dainty singing and dancing, while Miss Harriett Fawn makes an ideal Prince Fearnaught. In addition to the very excellent chorus of pretty girls the Le Creu Trio, the Tiller Quartette of Dancers, the Eight Merry Midgets, and the Imperial Ballet Troupe contribute specialities, and combine to make the pantomime the huge success it undoubtedly is.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Dick Whittington and His Cat holds away here this week, and a capital pantomime it is. The dresses and scenery are fresh and good, and the chorus, though not large, is very efficient, and the book bristles with jokes. Mr. Carl B. Stoars is the evil genius, Rodent, and Miss Dolly Harcourt the Good Fairy Silverstone, who are always both in evidence at the right moment; Miss B. Varley makes an excellent Dick, and sings and dances well; Miss Ida Brophy is a very acceptable Alice Fitzwarren, who also sings prettily, and Miss V. Dudley an imposing Captain Ralph Mainbrace. Mr. Syd Crossland as Sarah (the Cook), J. T. Ellis as Alderman Fitzwarren, and James Curry as Idle Jack are a trio who never fail to raise a laugh whenever they appear; Messrs. Herbert and Rennie are a clever pair of knockabouts, who do well as Toby Fore and Bob Aft (the Bo'sun and Mate of the Lively Polly); Mr. James Stratton is a clever Thomas the Cat and a ratter who would put any terrier to shame; Mr. George Bishop, who possesses a good voice, is very good as Ali Hafez, the Emperor of Morocco, and Miss Beatrice Moore as Princess Zorilda, his daughter, is also a favourite. The principal dancers are the Four Oowana Girls, a clever quartette, who are also efficient vocalists, and they win much applause. The Enrico Martialo Trio appear in Scene 8 in their sensational juggling and balancing act, and prove an exceedingly popular addition to the capital company, which is drawing good houses.

ALWAYS to the front, Messrs. William H. Broadhead and Son, the enterprising amusement caterers, are about to erect a palatial skating rink in Preston. The site they have acquired is in the centre of the town, in close proximity to the tram centre. The floor space will be 245ft. by 95ft., and constructed entirely of maple, laid by a patent process ensuring a perfectly even surface; the floor alone is estimated to cost £3,000. There will also be a learners' department. The interior will be elaborate in decoration and electrically lighted, and a good band provided. It is expected to be ready in about six weeks' time.

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. George T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Boothman.—Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell have eclipsed their former efforts with their juvenile company in the pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, which is attracting large and appreciative audiences. The performance of the Two Babes, Leslie and Marjorie, by Little Peggy McDonnell and Miss Sissy Wise, deserves unstinted praise; Miss Dolly Dodds is a favourite as Maid Marion; and as the principal boy, Robin Hood, Miss Daisy Wood leaves nothing to be desired. Miss Jennie Hughes as Fairy Dewdrop also receives her share of applause; Mr. J. G. Aitken as Sandy Simple causes roars of laughter; and Messrs. Graham and Barron as Willing and Weary bring down the house. Mr. Harry Leander deserves a word as Friar Tuck; and we must not omit Mr. Jimmie Watson, who impersonates Lucinda Lovejoy in capital style, and Mr. Neil Hardy, whose Baron Strangeways is very good. The Grand Bird Ballet, the Fairy Ballet, and the Statue Ballet, together with the International Dancers and Marguerite Quartette, add to the success of the piece.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Ernest Mansell.—Mr. G. Brydon-Phillips' company, from the Lyric Opera House, Hammersmith, is here with the successful pantomime Red Riding Hood. The engagement has proved highly popular, the audiences being large and enthusiastic. Miss Kittee Rayburn has elicited admiration for her representation of the dashing Prince Amoroso, and her musical numbers have been encored nightly; Miss Tena Corelli, in the title-rôle, did splendid work, and the same may be said of Will and Alice Vokes as the Squire and Margery Daw. The Wicked Wolf and the faithful Poodle were admirably played by Messrs. Harry and James Ewins respectively; and great fun was caused by the appearance of Messrs. Bishop (Simple Simon) and Vale (Johnny Stout). The Fairy Gossamer of Miss Edith Jefferies was an artistic contribution to the success of the show. Mr. Tom Carrick scored well in the responsible part of Dame Trot, and Mr. Henry de Solla was an effective Lawyer Slyfox. The pantomime was finely staged, and special mention should be made of the mechanical change from summer to winter. The chorus was strong and capable, and all round, in fact, Red Riding Hood went in first-rate style.

RAWTENSTALL. — GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; General Business-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—This week we have Mr. Fred Granville's pantomime company here with Little Aladdin. Miss Minnie D'Aubyn is a thoroughly capable Aladdin; and Miss Belle Brocade a charming and dainty Princess. Miss Gladys Wells also scores as the Fairy, her songs being greatly enjoyed. As the knockabouts, Harley and Hardon are a great success; Mr. Happy Attwood is an immensely funny Widow Twankey; Mr. Harry Kirk a capital Abanazar, and Mr. Herbert Lewis a droll Emperor, with a capable supporter in Mr. Harry Keeble as the Vizier. As Pekoe, Miss Ethel Dunville is satisfactory.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton.—Mr. William Greet's company is paying another visit with The Sign of the Cross. Mr. Cyril Austen-Lee acts very powerfully as Marcus Superbus; Miss Constance Little gives a highly effective and sympathetic rendering of the part of Mercia; Mr. C. Yorke as the Emperor Nero, Mr. Charles Aldred as Sigellinus, Mr. J. Weatherall as Licinius, and Mr. Frank Wood as Glabrio act exceedingly well. Miss Beryl Hamilton assumes regal dignity as the Empress Poppæa; Miss Edith Drayson plays the part of Stephanus with pathos and feeling; and the remaining characters are all well sustained. A full chorus of male and female voices render the incidental music very impressively. The play is put on the stage in a very complete and satisfactory style.

THE PALACE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco.—The artists engaged include Ethel Arden, who is supported by George Abel and company in the sketch Three of a Kind; Tom E. Hughes, an amusing comedian; the Floradoras, who are very successful in the musical comedy Two's Company—Three's None; the Two Tays, comedians; the Three Orros, Herculean performers on the silver chains; Ray Maskell, an attractive comedienne; Arthur Royce, a clever entertainer at the piano; and La Belle Duchess, who gives a novel turn with her two boxing stallions, ponies, and dogs. Some good pictures are also shown on the bioscope.

REDDITCH.—PUBLIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. F E. Field.—Miss Maggie Morton presented on the 15th and 16th Is Life Worth Living? The drama is very popular here, and big business was the result. Lionel Roy was well sustained by Mr. Pringle Roberts, Peter Slacks by Mr. Charles Mirian, and Joe Flop by Mr. W. Howson were excellent performances. Mesdames Miriam Richards, Margaret G. Davidge, Amy Lloyd-Earle, and Nina Harding, as Isabel, Babs Dabs, Sally Slacks, and Madge Roxton proved themselves most capable. The scenery and effects were all appropriate to the drama, especially the steam roller, which was received with much applause.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Burton.—Dottridge and Longden's pantomime Aladdin is the welcome attraction here. The scenery and dresses are bright and tasteful. The title-rôle is in the hands of Miss Ray Wallace, whose popularity is early established by a bright and winsome manner; Mr. Leonard Russell makes an imposing Emperor, his vocalism being particularly good; Miss Mildred Bryan, a capital Princess So-Shi, wins golden opinions; Mr. Bert Harrow takes premier honours as Abanazar, his merry wit and humour being quite irresistible; Mr. Joe Robins creates roars of laughter as the Widow Twankey, and with Miss Flo Collier as Sau-Cee contributes a capital burlesque on the railway porter; Miss Jennie Hallworth is a lively and vivacious Pekoe, and Mr. Hugh Cedar an amusing Wishee Washee. Miss Marion Walker deserves a word of praise for a charming impersonation of Won Lung. Specialities are introduced by Mlle. Pauline Rivers' Quartette, the Cestrian Quartette, and the Children's Dream of Toyland.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—An attractive bill of fare is presented here this week. Who's Won? a sporting sketch, is submitted by J. Collinson and company with effect; Boyne and Hope display considerable histrionic ability in An Emperor's Divorce; Slippere is a blind entertainer of exceptional talents; Lily Turner, descriptive vocalist, scored a success with "New Year's Eve"; Bert Lytton is a capital "swell comique"; the Fitzroys, gymnasts, are a clever couple; Renol, mimic, and the Bioscope pictures complete the programme.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Jackson Family; Business-Manager, Mr. Jno. Jackson; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Jackson, sen.—Seldom have we seen such a clever performance as that of Captain Walter Ashcroft's seals and sea lions. They balance and juggle and play instruments with almost human intelligence. France and Stewart present an interesting sketch, The 100 to 1 Chance; Heeley and Meeley, in Two Lucky Tramps, are both clever and amusing; Harry Drew is a vocalist of great power; Tony Iveson both amuses and astonishes his audience at the piano; Master Lloyd Shakespeare, cornettist, Escourt, entertainer, and the Hippodrome pictures also appear with success.

ROTHERHAM.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. Edgar Fox; Resident-Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler.—Pantomime again provides the bill of fare at this house, Mr. Harry Roxbury's company presenting Mother Goose. Miss Maud Prenton is highly successful as Colin, Miss Marjorie Prenton is a sprightly Phyllis, Miss Lily Palmer a smart Jill, and Miss Lois Caris as Fairy Content sings with considerable success. Mr. Harry Roxbury is most amusing in the title-rôle; Mr. J. W. Gallagher is responsible for much fun as Jack; Mr. George Castrey does well as Eric; and Mr. Fred Hutchings is deserving of mention as Muggles. The Lemaires are capital as the Horse, and Fred Guinness is a clever Goose. The Royal Welsh Entertainers give a highly finished musical turn, and Sydney J. Russell's Four Sydney Girls are seen in a number of clever dances. The Miltons in their comedy skating turn are rapturously applauded.

THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company is here with The Midnight Wedding. Mr. Alfred Paumier is a manly Paul Velmar; Mr. John Nesbitt is seen to advantage as the Crown Prince Leopold; Mr. A. E. Winnington Barnes scores as Lieut. Eugene; Mr. F. Booth Conway is a capable Captain Rudolph; Miss Gwladys Faunce a smart Kathie; Miss Nesta Sandford as Rozel, alias Satanella, shows ability; Miss Yvonne Orchardson in the dual parts of Second Lieut. Karl Helsburg and Princess Astrea gives a highly finished rendition of difficult rôles.

DRILL HALL.—The Chas. W. Poole's No. 1 Myriorama is on an annual visit here with an excellent selection of pictures. Specialities are introduced by the Royal Banzais, Japanese jugglers and equilibrists; the Seven Bramusas, juveni'e musicians, whose selections are vociferously received; and Dai Davies, a finished comedian and bird imitator. Films of the Messina earthquake are shown through the bioscope.

RUNCORN.—PUBLIC HALL THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Public Hall Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. E. S. Lea.—Mr. Haldane Crichton's Cingalee company has been secured for this week. Miss Mollie Wolstenhulme makes an attractive Nanoya; Miss Pauline Hague as Lady Patricia is a delightful singer; Mr. Jack Crichton provides a store of humour as Chambhuddy Ram; Mr. Douglas Munro impresses one as Boobhamba, and Mr. Scott Cullen presents a typical Bobby Warren. Mr. Walter Wardroper is seen to advantage as the Hon. Harry Vereker, and is well backed up by Miss Maudie Ray, Miss Edie Burton, Miss Ada Moore, and Miss Dorothy Temple, a galaxy of entertaining tea girls. Mr. F. W. Ford does well as Sir Peter Loftus, and Mr. Harry Edward Ray manages to draw a good deal of genuine amusement from Myamgah, his dancing also being much enjoyed.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. Fred Granville's funny pantomime, Babes in the Wood, written by Joseph L. Barry, is proving an excellent draw. Miss Cissie Paris is a dashing Robin Hood; Maid Marian by Miss Marie Elsie is full of graceful vivacity; the Babes are very cleverly presented by little Violet Wilson and Baby Boden; the fun is kept rolling by the Kimberley Boys as the Ruffians, Mr. Norman Hall as the Baron, Mr. Alf. Brooks as the village schoolmarm, and Mr. Will Donnett as the page, Razzle Dazzle. Mr. H. Val Morgan as the Demon, Aconita, and Miss Hilda Brendt as Sylvania, the fairy, both sing well. There are several specialities, including Miss Cissie Paris, charming vocalist, Miss Marie Elsie, comedienne, the Kimberley Boys, eccentric comedians, Boden and Wilson, clever juveniles, Mr. Alf. Brooks, funny comedian, and the Six Emerald Gems. Some of the eight scenes are very pretty, and the choruses and manœuvres are well sustained. The whole is under the general management of Mr. Norman Hall.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—The principal attraction this week is Houdini, the handcuff king, who introduces his can trick to the astonishment of the large audiences. An excellent variety programme also includes the Merrions (Will, Harry, and Fred), vocal and instrumental comedy entertainers; Connie Mascot, comedienne and dancer; Clito Clifford, smart buck and sand dancer; Akbar, gymnast; Harry Fife, comedian and raconteur; Rose Cambray, burlesque artist; and Mark Cowan, clever comedian.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatter.—Mr. Alfred Northway and Mr. W. V. Garrod's company had a good reception when they commenced here with A Country Girl in London. Mr. W. V. Garrod ably sustained the part of Frank Gordon; Marjorie Hamilton was effectively played by Miss Bertha Kingston; Mr. Leonard Booker cleverly portrayed the adventurer, Godfrey Clinton, and was ably assisted by Mr. Clifford Marle as the ne'er-do-well, Job Smithers. Miss Josephine Colona gave an impressive performance as Gwendoline Gordon, and much enjoyable comedy was contributed by Mr. Seymour Perry as Wilberforce Puddyphat and Miss Ethel Whitely as his wife, Adelaide. The staging and scenery are good.

OPERA HOUSE AND ASSEMBLY ROOMS, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; General-Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Shepherd.—In addition to some excellent animated pictures illustrating the earthquake at Messina there are The Evasive Lodger, Mr. Fuss, London's Milk Supply, The Rent Collector, Gallant French Guard, and Jim Smith, Boxer. Mr. Tom Sherlock also pleases with his song, "Skylark."

SCARBOROUGH.—LONDESBOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Waddington; Manager, Mr. Carpenter.—Mr. Herbert Ralland's company gives His House in Order. Miss Elsie Roberts admirably sustains the rôle of Nina; and Mr. Herbert Beaumont gives a really fine performance as Hilary Jesson; Miss Peggy Rae acquits herself very creditably as Derek Jesson; and as Filmer Jesson, M.P., Mr. Parish Robertson appears to advantage. Miss Victoria Wray and Miss Avis Grahame are very good as Geraldine and Lady Ridgeley respectively. The remaining characters are ably sustained by Mr. Randolfe Reade as Major Maurewarde, Mr. Richard Dalton (Dr. Dilnott), Mr. Dudley Stuart (Pryce Ridgeley), Mr. Langford Browne (Sir Daniel Ridgeley), and Miss Katie Neville as Mlle. Thome.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. L. Garside; Manager, Mr. F. P. Morgan.—Mr. Edward Marris' pantomime Dick Whittington is staged here this week, and is a very good all-round production. The scenery and dresses are very attractive, and the singing is of a high standard throughout. Miss Etty Waldron is very successful as Dick; and the Emperor of Morocco is capably presented by Mr. Arthur Lawrence. Miss Nora Doone as the Emperor's Daughter is excellent in every respect; and Miss Doris Gilbert acquits herself remarkably well. Mr. Joe Waldron keeps the house in the best of humours; and is ably assisted by Mr. Will Vester, as the Ugly Woman, Mr. Hubert Pearce, and Messrs. Billy Watson and Will Naylor, with Mr. Dick Nash as the Cat.

THE AQUARIUM.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—The Adras give a very clever performance on the high ladder; and Harry Blake, comedian, is exceedingly funny. The Orchids are well received as a vocal comedy duo; Carney Bros. score a great success; and Cumminger and Colanna provide a very interesting turn. Other artists appearing are Franco's Royal Midgets; Gicardo, the young juggler; and Arthur St. Clair.

THE NEW HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Tully. —Lillie Langtry heads the bill here, and is very popular, her songs and dancing evoking the most enthusiastic applause; the Rolands Bros. are particularly smart equilibrists; Joe Oliver scores well; and Park's Eton Boys and Girton Girls are a well-trained troupe of juveniles, whose singing delights all. Devid Donaldson and Frances Ferina are well received in their sketch, The Veteran's Birthday. Herbert and Linden deserved great praise; and Alfred Engene is very clever.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—The Eve of Her Wedding occupies the boards here this week, the company being Mr. Wilson Benge's. An effective study of George Tremain is submitted by Mr. Wilson Benge; the Squire Leverton of Mr. Arthur Keano is a realistic portrayal; Dick Leverton obtains skilful treatment at the hands of Mr. Henry Danson; as Giovanni Mr. Fred Rivers is consistently good; Dean Clifton's rascality is vividly depicted by Mr. Wallace Campbell; and in the dual rôle of Paul Cairshaw and Hyram P. Younger; Mr. Charles Groves, jun., exhibits much skill; Jack Herne is effectively drawn by Mr. Edward Keith; Mr. Charles Digby as Rudolph creates amusement; a winning assumption of Mavis Leverton is contributed by Miss Sadie Smith; Renie de Telle is skilfully treated by Miss Effie Bartlett; and Miss Daisy Cook as Gwendoline Younger acts praiseworthily.

SHEFFIELD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—A large audience gave a hearty reception on Monday to Mr. J. A. Robertson's delightful extravaganza Butterflies. The beautiful scenery and the lovely dresses were the theme of general comment. There was a large and capable chorus, and the augmented band was under the direction of the composer, Mr. Robertson. Mr. Richard Green sang with his accustomed ease and sympathetic verve as Max; Mr. Blake Adams, a well-tried Sheffield favourite, again proved his claim as a fine character-actor by his clever comedy in the part of Christopher Podmore; Mr. William Spray was good as Yarker; Mr. Alfred Selby was the humorous representative of Paul; and Mr. W. Louis Bradfield kept the fun going in his characteristic manner as the irrepressible Widgery Blake. The ladies were all charming and talented, Miss Georgie Corlass, Miss Phyllis Monkman, and Miss Stella St. Audrie especially distinguishing themselves. The dances introduced were loudly applauded, and the artistic classical terpsichorean scena "La Naissance d'un Papillon" by Miss Phyllis Monkman was enthusiastically received.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. Henfrey Aldred.—Mr. Hart's annual, Goody Two Shoes, is being played to large and well pleased audiences. The exquisite ballet, "The Butterflies' Ball," is pronounced by competent critics to be the finest spectacular scene ever witnessed on the classic boards of the historic Arundel-street playhouse.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. William D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Robinson Crusoe has surpassed all records at the local "Home of Pantomime," and the beautiful scenery, splendid dresses, catchy songs, and talented company, headed by Miss May Mars, the beautiful and charming Crusoe, are cheered to the echo nightly. As mirth-providers Elton and Elma, comic bar-performers, and Mr. Arnold Richardson (Billie Crusoe) are A1, and some good dancing, &c., is done by the celebrated Brewster Troupe. Miss Cora (of the talented Sisters Cora) has made a big hit with Kate Carney's great motto song "Poverty street," and Miss Rita Vincent's sympathetic rendering of the beautiful ballad "Starshine" is encored nightly.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The company this week consists of Mr. J. F. Preston's sketch company in a short version of the exciting drama Rogues of the Turf; Campbell and Barber, in a daring and sensational cycling act; Brix and Annie, who cause merriment in a comic interlude Fun in a Barber's Shop; Mr. Charles Vincent, comedian; Miss Lily Esplin, serio-comic comedienne; Mr. Victor Travers, comedian; Miss Lill Gorman, vocalist; the Mayvilles, in their novel Lilliputian fantoches entertainment; the Coloured Meisters; and Master Max Darewski, the talented young composer and pianist, who conducts a full band in "William Tell" and other popular selections. New animated pictures conclude the performance.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne. —The Futurity Winner, Mr. Joseph Hart's American racing sensation, was loudly applauded on Monday by a large audience, and others who appeared with deserved success were Mr. Henri Bekker, comic conjurer; Miss Lena Wylie, soprano vocalist; La Belle Greta, the graceful Spanish danseuse and vocalist; the Carlins Trio, equilibrists; Mr. Will Sullivan, eccentric comedian; the amusing and agile Three Garganis, comic acrobats; the Barrascope, with splendid new films; and the popular ventriloquial humorist Mr. Fred Russell, with his "old pal" Coster Joe.

THE Montgomery, the Grand, the Central, and the Pavilion are all doing good business as picture theatres, with the latest topical, comic, romantic, fantastic, and dramatic films.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Director, Mr. W. Yates Gregory; General-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baugh.—There is an attractive vaudeville programme here this week. Ishmael, Indian illusionist, exhibits some bewildering conjuring tricks; the Cheers have a most pleasing cat show, remarkable items being cats jumping through fire-hoops and dropping from a height to be caught in a blanket; Mark Brue's eccentric songs and act, "On the Railway," are loudly applauded; the Sisters Redfern, dancers and instrumentalists, contribute a refined and smartly-put-on performance; Will Owen entertains with dances and Tyrolean songs; Irene and Morton give a capital comedy and dancing scena, "The Hobo and the Maid"; and Ray Sun is a dainty and clever comedy vocalist. New Bioscope pictures are very well appreciated.

SMETHWICK. — ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—A crowded house rocked with enjoyment at the funny pantomime presented here this week by Miss Edith St. Clare's very capable company. Heading the list of well-known artists is Miss Edith St. Clare as Aladdin, an ideal principal boy, who shows plenty of dash and go; Miss Lily Lonsdale is a charming and dainty Princess; Prince Hi-To-Nee and Loo-Li-Ah-Te have prepossessing representatives in the Sisters Brand; Mr. Fred W. Graham is a highly successful Widow Twankey; the Emperor is entrusted to Mr. Frank A. Wood, a most capable exponent of the part; the Brothers Brookes (Chinese Policemen) cause endless amusement; Mr. Ernie Myers as Abanazar keeps up a continual strain of fun; the singing of Miss Mabel Robarts as the Fairy Queen is greatly enjoyed; and Mr. George Parry is seen to advantage as Wot-is-it. The specialities include the Krakes, the Canton troupe of dancers, and the Brothers Brookes. The music is specially written by Mr. Walter B. McMillan. The book is by Mr. Jas. J. Hewson. The whole production is in the capable hands of Mr. Fred W. Graham. Mr. Ed. Landor is an excellent conductor, and Mr. B. Haldane is the courteous business manager for Miss St. Clare.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Directors, Messrs. Geo. Conquest and Richard H. Nerney; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Her Fatal Marriage is being presented here by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hinton, Mr. Travis Green, and Miss Ruth Zillwood. Mr. Arthur Hinton presents an effective impersonation of Zaco Malletto; Miss Ruth Zillwood likewise displays skill and force in the rôle of Myra Malletto; Mr. Victor Millard makes a studious character of the curate, Wilfred Grey, who is well supported by Miss Lydia Audre as Lily; Mr. Gerald Bryne as Paul, the half-witted, is decidedly good, and Messrs. Percy Morton Wright and Henry Emmerson as Colonel Crichton and Detective Smart respectively, with Mr. Fred Hewitson as Jim Rogers, are all capable.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE WINTER GARDENS. —Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary and General-Manager, Mr. R. Singleton.—A highly enjoyable entertainment is provided by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's excellent company in the picturesque comic opera Tom Jones, which was presented on Monday to a large audience. All the principal characters were successfully portrayed. Miss Florence Smithson depicted the rôle of Sophia with irresistible daintiness and charm, her exceptional vocal powers being warmly appreciated. The comic element was effectively sustained by Mr. George Elton, whose volatile humour and versatility in the part of Benjamin Partridge created much merriment. The fine old English gentleman Squire Western was characteristically impersonated by Mr. Ambrose Manning; Mr. Harry Welchman submitted an artistic representation of the title-part both histrionically and vocally; Mr. Cyril Lane gave a grotesquely humorous impersonation of Gregory, and was ably assisted by Mr. Lionel Braham and Mr. T. Macmillan as Grizzle and Dobbin. Miss Joan Ritz was captivating and pleasing both in acting and singing as Honour; Miss Alice Oppitz gave a highly creditable delineation as the grand dame Lady Bellaston; Mr. John Morley played very well as Mr. Allworthy; the same may be said of Mr. Deane Percival as Blifil; and Miss Mary Southwell did well as Miss Western.

SOUTH SHIELDS. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—Messrs. E. C. Jazon and Richard Nightingale are presenting Mr. Edwin C. Jazon's pantomime Dick Whittington here. Miss Maud Beaumont is a sprightly principal boy; a captivating Alice is Miss Vera Snowdon; Fred Ward is good as the idle apprentice; and Fitzwarren and Sarah are well accounted for by William Miller and Allen Amber. Excellent specialities are introduced by the Willoughbys, acrobats and comedians; the Vandas, on globe and silver wire; Pierce and Ward, comedians; Salida and Vone, Creole performers; and Terry and Snowdon, duettists. The singing and dancing are excellent, and the scenery and mounting all that can be desired.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, the South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—Burke, Andrus, and Frisco, in their absurdity Trafalgar Square at 4 a.m., are well received. An addition to the excellence of the entertainment is F. W. Purcell's company in That Brute Simmons, the company being supported by Mr. Julian Cross, Mr. Geo. Delaforce, and Miss Oliph Webb. A popular favourite is Nellie Coleman. The Gathering of the Clans is here for another week, and the children evince exceedingly good training and go through their evolutions very smartly. Other good items are the Vetter Bros., athletes; Tom Moore, comedian; Jenny Linn, comedienne; and the Bioscope.

TIVOLI, LAYGATE CIRCUS.—Proprietor, Councillor J. K. Hall.—R. C. Note is a popular comedian, and has a good reception; Sam Voss has a novel song scena as the street quack doctor, and scores heavily; Harry King, comedian, is also an attraction; and the bill is strengthened by the Bioscope.

STALYBRIDGE. — HIPPODROME. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Fioni; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. A. Jackson.—Nellie Wallace occupies the premier position on the programme, and her efforts as a character comedienne are most entertaining; Rose Gower is a sweet songstress, who is encored; and Astley's American circus, which is paying a return visit, has enhanced its popularity; Tom Gott is a new comedian, who is warmly applauded, and other excellent turns are given by Karoly Cynski, a clever musician; Harry Tullett, comedian; Mlle. Ameda, hand and foot equilibrist; the Cascoellas, comedy acrobats, &c.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. A. McLeod Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. E. Johnson.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is here with The Village Blacksmith, and Mr. Sam Livesey is again seen to advantage in the title-rôle, a character in which he exhibits much power and vitality; Miss Maggie Edwards is in the part of Kate Strong, and plays it with appropriate feeling; Miss Lily Leicester is a sweet child actress, and appears as Harry Strong; Captain Leo is represented by Mr. Albert Sinclair, who acts the villain in a most natural manner; capital studies of character are presented by Mr. Thomas E. Marshall and Mr. T. C. Livesey as Jeremiah and Sal Perkins; and the other persons of the drama are in excellent hands, and the whole is well staged.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leo. Weisker.—Pantomime comes as a welcome change to the usual variety programme, and Mr James Kiddie's Little Aladdin bids fair to become popular. It is a merry little production, and full of laughter-exciting incidents throughout; Miss Marie Beresford is the Aladdin, and her sweet voice is heard with pleasure in many favourite songs; a charming Princess is Miss Lily Lyle Jefferies, who immediately wins her way with her delightful singing, especially in "A tiny seed of love," in which the whole house join with wonderful effect; Miss Lily Ennes is a dashing Pekoe, and she also sings well and gains much applause; Miss Emmie Milsted (Darkie Diabolo) is at once a favourite, her dancing being graceful and clever; and Miss Rose Pareezer's fine voice and pleasing appearance as the Geni are much appreciated. Miss Vibran Weaver and Miss Fannie Douglas are pretty attendants; and Miss Sophie Melrose (Fan Pit) and Miss Mabel Milsted (Frou Frou) are both very attractive. The funny business is splendidly carried out by Mr. Walter Furvis (Abanazar), Mr. Dick Harcourt (Emperor), Mr. W. C. Bland (Widow Twankey), Mr. Joe Bell (Wishee Washey), Ray and Ross (Spy and Kop), and Mr. Barry Gilmore (Spotter), whose antics are very amusing. The costumes are pretty, and the staging excellent. The excellent chorus and orchestra are under the conductorship of Mr. John S. Kershaw.

STOCKPORT. — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's remarkably successful pantomime Dick Whittington continues here this week in the height of popularity. The excellence of the entertainment is being recognised and appreciated by a crowded and delighted audience at every performance.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, the Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black. —The chief attraction here this week is Jan Rudenyi, who displays his ability as a violinist in a musical romance, The Power of Music, which is greeted with marked appreciation; an old favourite in Tom Bassett, actor-vocalist, repeats his former successes; the Smart Set in their refined drawing-room vocal entertainment are thoroughly pleasing; Martell is a clever equilibrist; Fred Horsfall, vocalist and mimic, gives amusing imitations; and Dunn and Reano, comedy gymnasts; May Audrey, comedienne; and Dancit, "queen of the golden clogs," add their full share to the evening's entertainment.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES. — CASTLE THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—Mr. James Welch's company, in When Knights Were Bold, is attracting large audiences here. Mr. Henry J. Ford enacts the heavy rôle of Sir Guy de Vere with the greatest success, not a dull moment being permitted; Mr. Vernon Sansbury is excellent as Isaac

WHAT ARE MILLIONS TO THE MAN WHO IS ILL

Only a bitter mockery. The world is full of delights in which he cannot share. He can buy them but not enjoy them, and is poor despite his millions. This is specially true of the dyspeptic—the man who cannot digest his food. When the stomach ceases to effectually perform its natural work, food ceases to nourish and causes pain, heartburn, wind, acidity, and a host of other troubles which spoil life. Perfect digestion is the foundation of sound health, and that is assured by the use of the world- renowned digestive tonic and stomachic remedy, Mother Seig el's Syrup.

Mrs. S. A. Carter, of Welbeck Street, Castleford, Yorks, writes on April 13th, 1908: "I lost much time and money upon medicines which quite failed to cure me of indigestion before Mother Seigel's Syrup was recommended to me. But soon after I began to take that remedy a new world opened to me. I could again breathe freely, my appetite retu rned, and so did my old strength and energy."

MOTHER SEIGEL'S SYRUP

Mother Seigel's Syrup is now also prepared in Tablet Form as Mother Seigel's Syrup Tablets. Price 2s. 9d.

Isaacson; Mr. Cecil Clayton is very funny as the Hon. Chas. Widdicombe; the Rev. Peter Pottleberry, D.D., is cleverly acted by Mr. Guy Lane; Mr. H. Agar Lyons does well as Sir Brian Ballymore; and Mr. Talbot Homewood and Mr. Reginald Hunter give fine representations of Wittle and Barker. Miss Agnese de Llana acts the difficult rôle of Lady Rowena in admirable style; Miss Mabel Younge makes a charming Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave; Miss Ethel St. John achieves a success as Miss Sarah Isaacson; Miss M. O'Hea as Lady Millicent Eggington, Miss Ruth Bower as Lady Marjorie Eggington, Miss Marion Ryder as Kate Pottleberry, and Miss Bessie Walters as Alice Barker, are all good. The Wrong Side of the Road precedes.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. M. Montgomery's stock company is playing here the romantic drama Scales of Justice. Mr. Fred Terriss is especially good as Antonio Cordora, an adventurer; Miss Lilian Beaumont plays the dual part of Mary and Jenny Maxwell with great skill; being well supported by the rest of the company; and Payne's Bio-Photoscope shows some excellent films.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—Mr. Gar Kiddie's pantomime Little Bo-Peep is drawing crowded houses here this week. Mr. W. H. Gatty has a fine baritone voice, and is well applauded; Miss Elsie Peach as the Fairy Queen is responsible for some very good singing; Miss Lizzie Payne is a charming Bo-Peep; Miss Ivy Gallard does well as Boy Blue, her vocal talent being thoroughly appreciated: Mr. Harry Royde as the Baron is good; Mr. T. W. Groves makes himself popular as Granny Brown; Messrs. Grapho and Jackson are good comedians; Mr. Willie Harris as Tommy Long, and Mr. Albert Stern as Rastus Brown, are responsible for some clever eccentric dancing. The scenery and dresses are excellent.

STOKE-ON-TRENT.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; General-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Moroney.—Mr. Arthur Carlton's pantomime company in Puss in Boots has been transferred here from Worcester, where it has had a successful run. It is a breezy and bright little show, with plenty of good singing and a lot of amusing and clean comedy. The scenery and dresses are elaborate, especially worthy of mention being the reproduction of the Court of Honour at the Franco-British Exhibition, and the final scene, The Palace of Sunshine. In the latter takes place the procession of bearers, with the arms of various English cities and boroughs. Mlle. Lucretia is a charming Colin, and her songs, especially "Oh, oh, Antonio," meet with much favour; Miss Evelyn Desa is a pleasing Princess Iris, and her banjo selections are much appreciated; Miss Nancy Renshaw in the coloured part of Pompey submits "Sue, Sue, Sue" in a dashing manner, and is quite a favourite; the comedy duets of Carl and Carr are well given; and other members of the company and chorus give able support.

SUNDERLAND.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General-Manager, Mr. Alexander Telford; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Sydney Reach.—At this theatre the pantomime Sinbad the Sailor continues to attract large audiences, and on Monday night it entered upon its second edition. All the best of the original work has been retained, the story itself remaining unaltered, and laughter and applause were continuous during the evening. The new songs are in themselves a special feature. Miss Jessie Wilton as Sinbad takes her part with her usual spirit, and won great applause for her song "It's lovely to be in love"; while Miss Christina Roy was greatly admired for her rendering of the serio-comic song "Call round on Sunday"; Miss Madeline Rossiter was as pleasing as ever in her part of Princess Zorilda, and together with Mr. G. W. Desmond, scored a tremendous success in their duet, "If I had a pal like you," followed by a fascinating dance. Miss Rossiter's dancing called forth great admiration on all occasions; Miss Cissie Brand gave her usual dashing portrayal of Heesatoph; and Miss Roberta Svensden, the Fairy Queen, had ample scope for her excellent vocal powers in her song, "Come, be my rainbow," for which she received hearty applause. Miss Hope Trevelyan's rendering of the song "Whispers of love" was also highly appreciated. Mr. Will Johnson continues to support his part of Mrs. Sinbad to the unbounded satisfaction of his audiences, and has established himself a universal favourite with all. His latest song, "I told you I'd come," had an excellent reception. Mr. Frank Lynne continues to endow Binbad with a host of comicalities, and caused much laughter with his song, "If we hadn't any women in the world." Messrs. Lynne and Johnson gave an excellent timetable gag, which created much amusement. Messrs. Walton and Lester, "the world's worst wizards," have also introduced a new act in their nursery scene, which takes almost better than did their previous one, which is saying a great deal. They sing an amusing duet together, "Oh, those girls!" which proved an excellent hit, and also gave a good bookmaking gag, assisted by Mr. Lynne, which was well received. The sailors' chorus gave a splendid rendering of the "Excelsior" quartette; while Little Nellie Denver sang a pretty lullaby and executed some clever step-dancing. Mr. Chris Harland is to be congratulated on his excellent decorative lighting schemes, which called forth warm praise on all occasions, and especially in the "Rainbow" song. It is to be hoped that the pantomime will finish equally as successfully as it began.

AVENUE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. John Pellow.—The pantomime at this house has this week taken the form of "two shows a night." Miss Lena Page gave a good account of herself as Dick, while Miss Nellie Merton gave a pleasing portrayal of Alice; Mr. Fred Spencer as Fitzwarren's cook, and Mr. George Rydon as Idle Jack are equally good in their respective parts, both being a source of unending merriment; Miss Florence Hylton is a dashing Sir Algernon de Mash, and scores well with her singing; Hannaway Bros. are at their best and keep things alive; Mr. Denis McCarthy as Fitzwarren is also prominent. There are many others in the cast all of whom do excellent work.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden; Assistant-Manager, Mr. George Dunn.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company in The Old Folks at Home are here this week. Miss Maud Warburton gave a very natural performance of Dorothy Robin, and Mr. H. E. Herbert established himself a warm favourite as Andrew Ross; a powerful contribution came from Mr. Frank Liston as Lord Howard Kenilworth, who is ably supported by Miss Kate Froud as the adventuress, Patricia Bathurst; Christopher and Martha Robin were impersonated in a convincing manner by Mr. Eugene and Miss Clara Santley; Mr. T. E. Vane was much admired for his clever handling of Hugh Lovel, and Mr. Arthur Dudley was good as Jock. The comedy was in the hands of Miss Maudie Grayson and Messrs. Frank Caffrey, William Myers, and Harold Shuter. The Excelsior Glee Singers also gave some very acceptable selections.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—The bill this week is topped by that favourite vocalist and mimic Miss Lydia Yeamans, and last night she proved that she is still a talented entertainer. Her rendering of "Sally in our alley" was excellent, and her imitation of a child-singer earned her quite an ovation. The act of The Moto Girl, presented by Mr. Frederic Melville, was also very interesting, and caused considerable amazement on every side; Pat Rafferty sang some very amusing songs in his usual genial manner, which created great laughter; Frank Cass, vocal comedian, also gave an excellent account of himself; the Three Welsh Girls were a very pleasing vocal trio; and the Bros. St. Clair were both clever and amusing in their renowned cycling act; Alf. J. Holt, mimic and whistler, gave an interesting turn; one of the chief events of the evening was a sketch, Slippery Jim, presented by Messrs. E. Dagnall and company, all the participants in which proved themselves to be of great histrionic ability. The sketch had an excellent reception.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry N. Phillips; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—An excellent programme of pictures is on view here this week; romantic, topical, and fantastical, all being of equal interest. Most noticeable was An American's Trip Through Europe. The Sunderland v. Sheffield United Cup tie match also evoked much enthusiasm. There were some capital humorous films, which created great amusement.

SWANSEA.—THE GRAND.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Page.—Mr. Wentworth Croke presents in faultless fashion The Prodigal Son at the Grand this week. Mr. Hugh Montgomery is to be congratulated for an exceptionally fine rendering of the part of Magnus Stephensson, and Mr. Gordon Macintosh as the brother, Oscar, by the faithfulness of his acting, makes the character a live one. Miss Valerie Crispin as Elin possesses great talent.

THE STAR.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—Miss Marie Dagmar and company appear in The Tyrant. Miss Marie Dagmar as Tisbe was unquestionably the success of the evening. Rudolph Prince de Roma had a fine impersonator in Mr. Edward E. Louis, and as the Tyrant Mr. Roy Fortesque displayed undoubted talent.

THE EMPIRES, LTD.—Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—Excellently staged, and acted in first-class style by Miss Mary Redfern and company, the dramatic sketch The Yellow Fang takes the Empire by storm this week. Harry Grey (the Australian Nugget), with new up-to-date songs, surpasses his former successes here—which is saying a lot. A Scene at the Fairgrounds enables Albertus, the American oddity, and Jessie Miller, a lady cornetiste, to shew undoubted cleverness; Tom Bryce, in a musical comedy A Dude's Wooing, displays cleverness and versatility; Gladys Mavins, in The Eton Boys' Rehearsal, dances and sings in great fashion; and Percy Hannan, the American tenor robust, uses his voice to advantage. The Three Prestons, in The Liftman's Rise, make a big hit, and Olive Armindale is tuneful and dainty. Messina pictures on the Bioscope concludes a great bill.

THE PALACE.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—The leading pictures at the Palace this week are Shakespearean films, Richard III. and The Tempest, vocal items being given by Miss Kate Eaton, Mr. George Parkes, and Messrs. Thomas and Woods (banjoists).

SWINDON.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Mr. Percy Williams' company in the drama, The Fatal Wedding, is here this week. Howard Wilson is skilfully handled by Mr. Cecil A. Melton; Mr. Percy Ballard ably performs the part of Robert Curtis; Mr. Arthur Vernon is amusing as Toto; and the role of O'Reilly is well filled by Mr. Frank Ashley; Miss Ethel Kay presents a sympathetic rendering of Mabel Wilson; and Miss Elaine Vanbrugh as Cora Williams acts with power; the Bridget of Miss Ethel Barjient is very good; and the child actress, Miss Lulu Wohlmann, gives a clever delineation of the character of Jessie, the little mother.

TON-Y-PANDY.— ROYAL. — General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—Mr. Roland Yorke and company are here this week in The Old Home. Daddy Dean is admirably played by Mr. Chas. Franmore; the Rev. Eric Armstrong has an able exponent in Mr. H. Denton; Mr. Yorke is thoroughly suited as Lord Avondale; Dr. Warburton is safely entrusted to Mr. J. W. Braithwaite; Mr. F. L. Connynhame does well in the comedy part of Sam Adams; Miss Gertrude Bonser elicits warm approval as Hazel Dean; and Mrs. Braithwaite ably upholds Bridget Donoghan.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. Will Stone.—Topping a great bill here is Marie Jones, protean actress, who fully merits the reception accorded her; Forest and King, novelty dancers do well; Harry Walker is a smart comedian; Savaro, an accomplished siffleur; and Lillian Clown Agouste is praiseworthy.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company in The Catch of the Season is proving a great attraction here this week. In the principal rôle of the Duke of St. Jermyns Mr. William Greene does extremely well, his singing being decidedly good and his dancing excellent, and he is accorded frequent encores; Miss Dorothea Clarke is a winsome and fascinating Angela, and is repeatedly applauded for a really clever piece of acting; Mr. Joseph Bruce makes a capital study of Lord Dundreary, and keeps the house in roars of laughter by his amusing impersonation; Miss Edna Eden is a typical Lady Crystal; whilst Miss Barry Eldon and Miss Kate Robertson as her two daughters both give excellent interpretations; Mr. Franklin Miles as Sir John Crystal is well placed, and Mr. Geoffrey Berwick is seen to advantage as Mr. Wm. Gibson; Miss Claire De Vere as the Duchess of St. Jermyns gave a charming representation, and Miss Grace Hampton also did well as Lady Caterham. Mention must also be made of Master Ernest Grata, who gave a very creditable performance as Bucket, the Page, his acting being very amusing, whilst he was encored several times for his clever rendering of his songs.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Wilton Dale; Business-Manager, Mr. C. Hoskins.—Hippodrome season.—A strong programme is presented this week, in which, perhaps, the Bioscope takes first place, as the management present the film of the Italian earthquake for the first time out of London, and also Italian Cavalry manœuvres. D'Arc's marionettes in clever representations of music-hall stars are also the great hit of the evening; Randolph King in his one-man programme of quick change impersonations; La Belle Margo in a pretty trapeze act; Nina St. Elmo, a dainty comedienne; Norman Holt, a clever raconteur with the aid of his concertina; and Albert Hall, comedian, complete an excellent programme.

TYLDESLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. W. Brierley.—Man and Wife is being presented here by Messrs. Van Biene and Traynor's company. Mr. John F. Traynor gives an earnest and impressive portrayal of Paul Revere; Mr. E. M. Hamilton realistically depicts the evil-disposed Captain D'Esparre; Colonel Latour has an admirable exponent in Mr. Edward Van Biene; Mr. George Overs as the cripple, Jean, does well; and Mr. Ambrose Horton is a commendable Sergeant Jacques. Miss Kate Hallam in the part of Marcelle acts with grace and feeling; Mrs. Revere receives careful attention at the hands of Miss Marguerite Thorne; and Miss Dora Hamilton is a sprightly Rosette. The twins, Bimbo and Bambo, are humorously impersonated by Mr. E. Hall Eldon and Mr. Geo. Vinning.

WARRINGTON. — ROYAL COURT.—Proprietor, Mr. Joseph Beecham; General-Manager, Mr. A. M. Loader; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. Smiley.—Mr. Leonard Boyne's company is here in Raffles. Mr. Eille Norwood in the title-rôle displays histrionic ability of a high order; Mr. Arthur Willoughby is a dignified Earl of Amersteth; a buoyant Viscount Crowley is found in Mr. Cecil Brymer; Mr. E. W. Thomas is successful as Bedford, the detective; a really clever character sketch of Crawshay, the burglar, is that submitted by Mr. Dalziel Heron; Mr. Harold West acts capably as Harry Manders; Miss Agnes Knight is a stately Lady Melrose; a charming Lady Ethel is Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald; Miss Lucie Milner submits a clever study of Gwendoline Conran; Miss May Brooke is well placed as Miss Vidal; and Miss Dorothy Gordon pleases all with a faithful interpretation of Marie. A pretty curtain-raiser is A Lesson in Shakespeare.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, the Franco-British Animated Picture Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. Turner; Manager, Mr. J. Waters.—There is an excellent company here this week, and the Four Scoreys, who head the bill, supply an excellent musical turn, their playing on a variety of instruments being capital. Annie Lang is a dainty comedienne and dancer; Jack Holland a quaint comedian full of funny sayings; and Arthur Atkinson's illustrated songs are a source of much pleasure. The pictures are a choice collection.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. G. D. Bradbury.—A hearty reception was accorded Mr. Herbert Darnley's company on Monday in The Brigands of Tarragona. Bull and Hemsley score well in the sketch Fun in a Music Shop; Flo Inman is a dainty comedienne; the illustrated songs of Belle Braham are much enjoyed; Olms and Carbeth are smart juggling comedians; Colin Mail, a good singer with good songs; and Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor, American comedy artists, are good singers and dancers, and their sketch The Dancing Master is very funny.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby.—Messrs. Bateman and Conquest's company, in The Crimes of Paris, is here. The drama, which is full of interest, includes Mr. Herbert J. Walton in the important part of Pierre Pelport, a moneylender, his acting being most artistic; Vicomte De Vismes is ably embodied by Mr. M. Cooke; Mr. Kendrum Milson makes up well as Jules Martel; and Pepin Cardel is ably presented by Mr. Clavering Craig. The Dummy, the Dandy, and the Plunger are effectively impersonated by Mr. Geo. Conquest, Mr. Geo. Harvey, and Mr. J. E. Abbot respectively; humour is shown by Mr. Roy Hylton in the rôle of Joshua Johnson; Miss Carrie Jones is responsible for a capital rendering of Charlotte; and the part of Lizette is ably depicted by Miss Christine Bickerstaffe. As La Belle Helene Miss Flora Hastings is all that can be desired.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Richard Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Berson.—Pantomime reigns here this week, and is reigning most successfully, too. It is sufficient proof of this to say that it is that of Messrs. Pardoe and Miss Lottie Holland, and they tell once more the fascinating story of Cinderella, who, in the person of Miss Nellie Rose, creates a most favourable impression. She is a charming young lady who acts excellently. The same, too, can be said of Miss Lottie Holland, who as Prince Charming is as charming as the name implies. Miss Beatie Howard is capital as Princess Rosala; so, too, is Miss Dora Round as Dandini; Mr. Geo. Hyam as Scoot is very clever, and full of fun; while Messrs. N. and J. Dench as Eva and Maud are also very funny. Altogether it is an all-round capital show.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Tom Kuner.—Mr. John Gerant is this week presenting the popular military play At Duty's Call before large audiences at this place of amusement. The play is founded on a story of Gordon and Khartoum, and is told in a thrilling manner, keeping the audiences spellbound. As Harold Alison Mr. Gerant has a part admirably suited to him, and General Gordon is well depicted by Mr. Ernest St. John. Miss Beatrice Western is very charming as Dora Drummond, and Miss Ada Roscoe acts with much power as Salema, while all the other parts are well sustained.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. A. E. Dobney.—The Gallimore Trio of comedy artists are already popular here, and continue to please; Johnny Holland and company in screaming comedy are also old favourites, and are being retained for another week; the novelty dancing (in one rope) by the Australian Twin Andersons, Lillie and Minnie, is indeed a novelty, and is taking immensely; John Lloyd, the genuine singing collier, gains popularity with his audience; Mayme Cannon is a dainty and clever comedienne, whose style is most captivating, and she undoubtedly has a good future before her; Rose and Wold in comedy bounding wire act are smart; Jack Neil, eccentric Scottish comedian, is here again; Jamie Piper, a young instrumentalist, and some splendid films shown by Raymond's Bioscope are also attractions.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE. — KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. Geo. Edwardes' Merry Widow company is paying its first visit here this week, crowded houses being the rule. Miss Daphne Glenne as Sonia proves herself an artist of exceptional ability; very praiseworthy is Miss Violet Hobson as Natalie; Miss Eileen Clanford is extremely good as Olga; Miss Mary Florence excels as Sylvanie, and Miss Enid Forde's Prascovia is entitled to eulogy. Miss Mabel May is commendable as Frou-Frou; Mr. Alec Worcester gives an artistic impersonation of Prince Danilo; Mr. H. Sinclair Cotter makes the most of Baron Popoff; as the Vicomte Camile de Jolidon Mr. Arthur Geary gives a fine portrayal; whilst Mr. Harry Emeric as Nisch, Mr. Tom H. David (Marquis de Cascada), Mr. Spencer Lloyd (M. de St. Brioche), Mr. Cecil Warwick (General Novakovitch), and Mr. Clinton Reynold (M. Khadja) all excel in their respective rôles.

WEST STANLEY. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Proprietors, The Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Kelly.—Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds present with realistic effect the powerful play Woman and Wine. Miss Violet Sims is a sympathetic Mary Andrews; Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds plays with much ability as Dick Seymour; Miss C. St. Elmo takes the part of the notorious Marcel Rigadout with success; and Mr. R. Foulis as Alphonso Beandet and Mr. Milne Taylor as Hugh Seymour are very good; Mr. Edwin Kisby is an effective Pierre Crucru. The comedy parts are amusingly presented by Mr. Harry Harrop, Mr. W. Manning, and Miss Ethel Vinroy.

VICTORIA THEATRE—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. C. Rawes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. C. W. Montrose.—The Kurios, in their scene, introducing mirth, magic, and mystery, head a fine bill here; Geo. Battle, actor-vocalist; the Bros. Lydamore, the sporting duo; Renée Glendower and company, in the sketch Lady Borgia; the Rewcars, song and dance artists, and the Vicoscope are other attractions.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie; Secretary, Mr. Tom Swinton.—Are You a Mason? is presented here by Mr. Chas. Macdona's company, and the screaming farce had a fine reception from a crowded house on Monday. Mr. E. H. Patterson was very droll in the part of Amos Bloodgood; Mr. H. Langdon Bruce created enthusiasm by his fine comedy work as George Fisher; as Frank Perry Mr. Stanley Groome was thoroughly at his ease; Mr. G. P. Polson presented an entirely acceptable character-study of John Halton; the Hamilton Travers of Mr. E. E. Clive was responsible for many hearty laughs; Mr. Wilton Ross played Ernest Morrison cleverly; Miss Adelaide Grace was excellent as Mrs. Bloodgood; and the Eva of Miss Rita Narcelli was thoroughly sound. Miss Rita Johnson as Annie was pleasingly natural; a remark which also applies to Miss Dulcie Verney's Lulu. A Bad Penny proved a capital curtain-raiser.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Secret Service is billed here. Mr. Hamilton Stewart makes the most of his opportunities as Captain Thorne; Mr. Airelsford is in the capable hands of Mr. S. T. Ewart; Mrs. Varney is well sustained by Miss Evelyn Ward; Miss A. Bruce-Joy is a captivating Edith Varney; and Miss Mona Hungerford deserves great praise for her impersonation of Caroline Mitford.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Co.—J. W. Hall's efforts as a comedian are as successful as usual; as a comedy juggler Raglus proves highly diverting, while all his tricks are performed in a very clever manner; the Enchanted Iona is a turn out of the common, in which mystery and merriment are introduced; Barney Murphy has a good reception for his imitations of different comedians, and the Three Bordellas give a neat athletic entertainment. Bert Castle obtains quite an ovation for his songs; Miss Ethel Loftus is a comedienne entirely above the ordinary; Walter Wade is highly applauded for his absurdity Legs, and Dalton and Euston are meritorious comedians. Interesting pictures are shown by the bioscope.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Co.—The chief picture, depicting the brigands of the Calabrian district before the earthquake, proves very interesting. The remainder of attractive and instructive films include:—An Indian's Honour, Nocturnal Thieves, and Oscar is Kidnapped. Tom Reed, a diverting comedian, proves very popular with large audiences.

WOLVERHAMPTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard; Resident-Manager, Mr. Gerald Spencer.—The Love that Women Desire is being presented here this week by Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company. Mr. Herbert Pearson as Philip Carnaby makes a typical young yeoman; Squire Abingdon and his son Richard have two sufficiently villainous representatives in Mr. J. O. Stewart and Mr. S. Leigh Courtney; Mr. Wilton Reed plays consistently as Frank Hardy; and Mr. Francis Cavanah is very successful as Dr. Brandeth. Effective comedy business is introduced by Miss Dorothy Hildebrand as Patti Swift, Mr. John Hignett as Dennis O'Rourke, and Mr. J. W. Wilkinson as P.C. Sowerbury. Miss Maud Hastings as Sybil Thornburn is a very acceptable heroine, her acting in the last scene being particularly good; Miss A. G. Clyndes plays with force as Madge Abingdon; and a capital representation of an Indian maiden is given by Miss Vere Rose as Marquinha. A special word of praise is due to the excellent way in which the drama is mounted.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—Clark and Hamilton, who top the bill here this week, are a remarkably smart comedy duo. Their best item is the song and dance "Chrysanthemum," which is given in a very elaborate Japanese stage setting. Another good vocal and dancing number is that of Ted Curtis and his piccaninnies; Le Strad, in impersonations of celebrated musicians, is well received; the comic juggling of the Brothers Idento creates much amusement; and other interesting items are the Sisters Lavender, duettists and dancers; Jessie Lee, comedienne; Ethel Walker, with songs at the piano; and the Empire pictures.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—Variety show twice nightly has succeeded pantomime, and Mr. Carlton has provided a very strong and attractive programme, which includes Mr. Chas. Parker's Æolians, premier dancers and vocalists; Primrose and West, clever acrobatic comedy balancers; Will Saunders, eccentric comedian; Mill May, the youngest protean artist; McAskell, a comedy conjurer; May Vincent, a capable American vocalist; Vivian Foster, comedian; Wilfred Burrand, impersonator; the Tossing Austins, clever sleight-of-hand artists; and some capital pictures of the Messina Earthquake.

WORKINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. McKenzie Morgan.—The pictures here are as good as ever, and are varied by clever performances by Messrs. Mueller and Coyne, eccentrics, and Alma Curzon, with her latest song successes.

QUEEN'S OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Jackes.—A Woman's Passion is here played by Stephen Pritt's company. Mr. Edmund Grogan as Lord Vale is painstaking and effective; Mr. David McFarlane as Sir Randall Derrick is good; and Mr. Archie Helsby fills the rôle of the gipsy chief ably. Vicary is excellently portrayed by A. B. Douglas, and as the dwarf page Little Poulton leaves nothing to be desired. Winifred Hamlyn, the heroine, is finely represented by Miss Emmie Barton; and Claire Trevenen has a capable and charming exponent in Miss Rose Mervyn.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor and manager, Mr. John J. Scott.—This week E. W. Selman has proved a big attraction with his humorous songs; Howard and Wallace are most amusing in the sketch, Taming a Wife; and Jerome Howard takes well in his monologues.

YORK.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Miss Hook of Holland is being played this week by Mr. Geo. Dance's company, and the theatre has been crowded by delighted audiences. In the title-rôle Miss Gertrude Melville gives a dainty impersonation, whilst her singing is one of the most pleasing features of a charming performance. A lively Mina is seen in Miss Cissie Sephton, whose quaint humour has been heartily enjoyed; as the unctuous Mr. Hook Mr. Alfred Wellesley is aptly placed—he never misses an opportunity, and gives a finished performance; Mr. Frank Crimp is in every respect an excellent Van Royt, singing in his well-known style; Mr. Walter Balfour is also a finished vocalist, being heartily encored for his song; Mr. Geo. Mudie, jun., overflows with humour as Schnapps; and Mr. Fred Lynn as Simon Slink has ample chance to prove himself a comedian of the first rank. The scenery and dresses leave nothing to be desired.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooks.—Arthur Dandoe is causing much amusement in The Phonograph Belle, a sketch given with great success by his company; Maude Courteney gives her pleasing entertainment with success; Mr. "C." tells some anecdotes in excellent style; Frank Leon's dancing is a special feature; Shirley and Ransome's sketch 'Arf a Quid is as popular as of yore; and the Three Calbas, Ajax and George, and Lizzie Kirk complete a company in which there is not a weak item.

EARLY DELIVERY.

A TAX ON SALARIES.

A law has just come into force in Sweden compelling every foreign artist performing publicly in that country to pay a heavy tax of not less than 10 per cent. upon the entire earnings of every individual. Leaders of orchestras are feeling the inconvenience of this tax more than the individual music-hall performer, for where the proprietor of a band has to pay the tax upon each of his instrumentalists respectively, the single-turn artist, performing independent of others, has simply to forfeit a portion (one-tenth) of his or her salary to the Government. Articles upon this subject, advising hotel proprietors and theatre-managers to support Swedish artists, have been appearing in the Swedish newspapers in great number since the Act came into force on Jan. 1. Writing upon the question, our Göteborg representative says the tendency of this new legislature has been to drive foreigners out of the country, so as to enable Swedish artists to have the field to themselves.

Our correspondent expresses the firm opinion that, under existing circumstances, English artists, and particularly foreign orchestras, would do well to avoid making engagements in Sweden, unless they contract so highly as to sufficiently cover this very heavy tax. Movements to get such an Act into operation have been set on foot from time to time, but without success, during the past two or three years, but no sooner was a recent agitation made than the same became law, taking most of the foreigners by surprise. In an interview with Miss G. E. Hunt, who is at present in Göteborg with her "English Ladies" orchestra, our representative was informed that the tax is making it extremely difficult for foreigners to place contracts with Swedish hotel proprietors. "People," said Miss Hunt, "are very reluctant to engage our orchestras on account of the agitation that Swedes should patronise only their own bands and their own artists. In fact," Miss Hunt went on to say, 'I am having to considerably increase my fees in order to cope with the tax, and, unfortunately, I had signed my agreement to perform in this town before the police notices were distributed. My advice to agents for British artists is to avoid all contracts in Sweden. I feel confident that many who arrive here from England would have thought twice before venturing upon such a scheme had they been aware of the extremely high tax upon foreign artists. When considering the diminishing encouragement to foreigners, caused no doubt by the passing of this Act and the agitation which has been the result of such legislation, I can assure you that I would not have allowed any of my orchestras to remain in Sweden had it not been for the fact that in many cases the engagements had been commenced, and that there had been a number of special requests for my artists to perform here."

Continuing, Miss Hunt expressed the opinion that it was most unfair that outsiders are permitted to perform in England without fear of any special tax being imposed, whilst English people abroad have individually to pay heavily for the privilege of fulfilling engagements in certain Continental towns. Referring then to the political side of the situation, Miss Hunt said the Swedish people, in her opinion, would gain largely by the tax referred to. The foreigners, she held, are so taxed here that little chance remains for any money to be sent out of Sweden; for what each individual artist has left of his or her salary after meeting the tax must be spent in food and lodgings, and other necessaries which are purchased in the country. "Unfortunately," she concluded, "the same circumstances do not prevail in England, or the poor people of our country might feel the benefit, if money from foreign artists had to be spent in the country instead of being allowed to go out." Our correspondent has interviewed several other leaders of first-class orchestras abroad, each of whom expresses similar views to those of Miss Hunt, who may be taken as an authority, so far as orchestral matters are concerned. It may be mentioned, in this connection, that Miss Hunt, referred to above, is the daughter of Mrs. Hunt, of orchestral fame, who is known so well not only in the South of England, but on the Continent.

AMUSEMENTS IN BARCELONA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BARCELONA, JAN. 11.—The reception accorded to Henry Arthur Jones's comedy-drama El Hipocrites at the Teatro Principal upon the opening night has been continued throughout the week. The company has now settled down, and the individual artists have mastered the difficulties of their different rôles. There is no doubt that El Hipocrites is the success of the season, and is assured of a long run at this theatre.

THE Teatro Apolo last week presented Hamlet. Shakespeare is very popular here, and A Midsummer Night's Dream, which was produced at the Novadades a few months ago, was a success. The productions at the Apolo cannot, however, be taken seriously, and although Hamlet as presented was far from being a travesty upon the play, still it could not be quoted as an artistic rendering.

AT the Teatro Nuevo Suffragettes are satirised in a mystical playlet, Si las Mujeres Maudersen. The first scene represents the interior of a laundry, when the news arrives that the House of Commons has granted women the vote, upon which all the laundresses throw down their work and prepare for the general election, for which the public are invited to select two Cabinets, one composed of men, the other entirely of women. Needless to say, the ladies are elected, with a female Prime Minister. Now the fun commences. We see women policemen and women soldiers—in fact, women everything. An amusing musical number is introduced, in which the lady Cabinet Ministers are depicted sending important State messages upon picture post-cards. The laws passed by this enterprising Parliament, whilst putting a heavy tax upon bachelors, still do not permit a married man to be out of doors alone. The playlet winds up with a general revelation. At the end man gets his rights through the aid of woman's old enemy—a mouse.

THE Circo Barcelones announces the ultimate days of the Ali Ben Hassan Troupe of Arabs. The Four Imperial Girls finished on Friday last, as did also Liane d'Eve. The Three Sisters Romano continue to charm all by their graceful dancing, these clever young ladies being also acrobats of no mean order.

IN spite of the formidable opposition of the Circo Barcelones, the Soriano continues to do good business. Mlle. Juliette's Sea Lions prove a decided attraction; and a novel act is provided by the Fedriani Troupe, acrobats on horseback. Drawee, Frisco, and Hambo have now been transferred to the Salon Doré, where they are a great success. Also on the programme are Topsy and Tapsen, acrobats; the Clown Brosca with his splendidly-trained animals; and the Trio Charis, acrobats.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

In the presence of a large and enthusiastic audience the season of grand opera in English opened on Saturday, Jan. 16, with every prospect of success. Three representations of The Ring of the Niblung are to be given in the course of the four weeks' season, as well as performances of The Mastersingers and Mr. E. W. Naylor's new opera, The Angelus. The success of the Ring in English last year fully justified Dr. Richter in his belief that native vocalists could sing in grand opera, and the large number of English singers engaged is a welcome feature of the present season, while the great conductor's untiring zeal in training young native vocalists, many of whom have had little or no stage or operatic experience, should lead to excellent results. The Rhine-gold, given on Saturday, is the prelude to Wagner's great music-drama, and as the performance was given without a break from half-past eight until nearly eleven, the audience, until the close, had no opportunity of applauding an admirable representation. All the principal parts were in experienced hands. Mr. Clarence Whitehill sang Wotan's music with splendid breadth and beauty of tone, and acted the god in a most dignified and impressive manner. Mr. Thomas Meux also gave a powerful impersonation of Alberich. Equally successful were the spirited Loge of Mr. Walter Hyde and the womanly and expressive Fricka of Mme. Gleeson-White, whose vocalisation was admirable. Mr. Maurice D'Aisly also deserves hearty praise for his singing of Froh's music, while the two parts of Erda and Flosshilde were most successfully undertaken by Mme. Edna Thornton. Miss Edith Evans, the Freia, showed a great advance on her former efforts, and the two giants, Fasolt and Fafner, were cleverly rendered by Mr. Robert Radford and Mr. Francis Harford. Mr. Charles Knowles made an effective Donner, and Mr. Hans Bechstein, as on former occasions, proved a capital Mime, and the music of the Rhine Maidens was gracefully sung by Miss Alice Prowse, Miss Caroline Hatchard, and Mme. Edna Thornton. The superb playing of the orchestra under Dr. Richter, and the realistic scenery added greatly to the success of the first performance.

On Monday The Valkyrie, the most popular of the four dramas of the Ring, was given with brilliant success by the English artists. Two American ladies, Mrs. Frease-Green and Mrs. Saltzmann Stevens, both of whom have studied under M. Jean de Reszke, made their first appearance at Covent Garden in the parts of Sieglinde and Brünnhilde, and had a most hearty reception from the large audience. In the first act Mrs. Frease-Green, who has a flexible voice somewhat light in character, hardly did full justice to her powers, no doubt through slight nervousness, owing to a first appearance, and the beautiful duet in this act between Siegmund and Sieglinde lost much of its customary effect; but Mrs. Frease-Green showed evident ability as an actress, particularly in the wonderful second act, where Sieglinde's despair at Siegmund's death in the fight with Hunding was finely expressed. Mr. Walter Hyde has before proved himself an excellent Siegmund, and his fervent singing and manly acting on Monday night were warmly recognised by the audience. The rough, uncouth Hunding was admirably sung and acted by Mr. Robert Radford. In the first act the somewhat sudden appearance of dawn was hardly so effective as the more familiar slow breaking of dawn while the lovers sing their duet. In the second act Mr. Clarence Whitehill as Wotan surpassed himself by the nobility and power of his singing and dignified bearing. His scene with Brünnhilde, where his affection as a mortal clashes with his duty as a god, was masterly in its dramatic expression. Mrs. Saltzmann Stevens made a handsome Brünnhilde, and sang the music with great charm. She can hardly be described as a dramatic vocalist, but in the gentler moods of Brünnhilde she was extremely pleasing, while her beautiful rich voice made a most favourable impression. Mme. Gleeson-White sang the music of Fricka admirably, and the fight between Siegmund and Hunding on the rocks was capitally managed. At the fall of the curtain the audience displayed great enthusiasm, and insisted on five recalls. Such a fine performance of the difficult second act of Valkyrie does more for the cause of grand opera in English than a host of lectures and letters on the subject. The characters of Gerhilde, Ortlinde, Waltraute, Schwertleite, and Rossweisse were most ably sustained by Miss Caroline Hatchard, Miss Edith Evans, Miss Alexander, Miss Maria Yelland, and Miss Dilys Jones. The scenic effects in the last act were fully up to the Covent Garden standard, while the splendid orchestra was, as usual, above reproach. Dr. Richter conducted.

An excellent performance of Siegfried was given on Wednesday evening, and although the opera commenced at the early hour of half-past six the house was well filled when the curtain rose on the first act. Mr. Peter Cornelius, who appeared as Siegfried, sang with great spirit and fervour, while his buoyant and graceful action and fine figure fully realised Wagner's youthful hero. All the business of forging the sword was admirably carried out, and the anvil fell apart under the sword on this occasion at quite the right moment. The Mime of Mr. Hans Bechstein was extremely weird and grotesque, and it would indeed be hard to find a better exponent of the part. Mr. Clarence Whitehill sang the music of Der Wanderer grandly, and the terror of Mime, who sees under the disguise the god Wotan, was cleverly expressed. At the fall of the curtain after the first act Mr. Cornelius had a most hearty reception, and was recalled several times. In the forest scene of the second act Mr. Thomas Meux as Alberich deserved praise for his singing, and the beautiful playing of the orchestra was a delightful feature. Siegfried's fight with the dragon was, as usual, a somewhat tame affair, and one felt quite sorry for the poor dragon, who sang so well, for though he looked fierce and smoked like any motor-'bus, he had not a ghost of a chance against his active opponent, let alone the magic sword, and was completely knocked out in the very first round. It is a pity this fight could not be made more effective, for at Covent Garden under the clever stage-management of Mr. W. Wirk all things are possible. There is a famous dragon in Fleet-street, built on far better fighting lines, who would give Siegfried much more sport. Miss Caroline Hatchard sang the Waldorgel music charmingly; and the sepulchral tones of Mr. Francis Harford as Fafner were very effective. After the second act Mr. Peter Cornelius, with Mr. Bechstein and Mr. Meux, again received warm applause. Mrs. Saltzmann Steven, who was so successful on Monday night in the Valkyrie, again appeared as Brünnhilde; and Mme. Edna Thornton was heard to great advantage in the music of Erda. The scenic effects in the last act were most striking, and the orchestra, under Dr. Richter, played superbly.

OWING to the recurrence of the indisposition of Mr. Dan Rolyat, who is playing the Baron in Cinderella at the Adelphi Theatre, Mr. Vincent Erne again took his place last Saturday and Monday, the 16th and 18th inst.

"THE BABES IN THE WOOD" pantomime finishes a successful run at the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham Junction, to-night. Mr. Frank Seabrook, the acting-manager of the pantomime, has during his stay made himself very popular with both artists and staff.

THEATRICAL WEDDING.

A wedding of considerable interest to a large number of the inhabitants of Doncaster was solemnised by special licence on Tuesday at the Collegiate Church of the Holy Trinity, Stratford-on-Avon, the contracting parties being Mr. John William Chapman, only son of the late Mr. John Martin Chapman and of Mrs. A. Chapman, of Doncaster; and Miss Ada Florence Faux, only daughter of Mr. Henry Faux, of Sparkbrook, Birmingham. The bride was given away by her father, and was attended by Miss Nellie Ashford, as bridesmaid, Councillor Joseph Grime, J.P., of Manchester, officiating in the capacity of "best man."

The bride was attired in a Directoire costume of rich cream cloth, handsomely trimmed with cream silk braid and hand-embroidered buttons, a pretty silk net embroidered blouse mounted on satin, and a large picture hat of cream moire silk, ostrich feather mount and plumes. She carried a hand some shower bouquet of tuber roses and lilies of the valley, and wore a dainty diamond bracelet, both presented by the bridegroom. The bridesmaid wore a silver-grey costume of Cotele cloth, trimmed with aluminium and silk braid and mauve Parma velvet, with embroidered buttons. Her ornament was a pearl pendant, presented by the bridegroom, and she carried a shower bouquet of Parma violets, also the gift of the bridegroom.

The service was choral, the organist playing selections from "Tannhäuser," and concluding with Mendelssohn's "Wedding March." The officiating clergyman was the Rev. W. Gardner Melville, the Vicar of the Collegiate Church of Stratford-on-Avon.

After the ceremony, a reception and lunch were held at the Swan's Nest Hotel, Stratford-on-Avon. Later in the afternoon the happy couple left amid the cordial good wishes and congratulations of their friends for London, en route for Torquay, where the honeymoon is being spent. The bride was presented with a pearl and diamond necklet and pendant, together with a handsome silver-mounted lady's dressing-case, subscribed for by a number of personal friends. She was also the recipient of numerous other presents, and several substantial cheques from her father and relatives.

The bride's present to the bridegroom was a diamond stud and pearl pin, and amongst the numerous other presents received by the bridegroom was a handsome dressing bag with silver monogram fittings, subscribed for by personal friends. A large number of employees at the Doncaster Grand Theatre and the members of Mr. Chapman's staff took advantage of the occasion to present him with a beautifully illuminated address.

Mr. Chapman has a large number of activities and pursuits, and his interests lie mostly in Doncaster. He is an old boy of the British School, the present headmaster of which points to Mr. Chapman as ranking amongst one of the most successful of present-day business men who have received their early education at the British School. Mr. Chapman has organised local funds for charities, and is taking an active interest in a benefit concert, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to the relief of the sufferers by the earthquake in Italy.

MRS. CHAPMAN (MISS ADA FLORENCE FUAX MR. J. W. CHAPMAN.

As manager and lessee of the Old Theatre, in Doncaster, and managing-director of the Grand Theatre and Empire, he has been closely identified with the theatrical profession for over twenty-one years, and there is no provincial theatrical manager who commands greater respect. Not the least fervent amongst the numerous good wishes and warm congratulations that were received came from the members of the profession. In addition to managing the theatre, Mr. Chapman controls three other businesses, and is trustee for several estates.

THE second concert of the present season of the Crystal Palace Orchestral Society will be given on Saturday evening, Feb. 13. Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock, the musical director, has arranged an attractive programme. Sir Edward Elgar's cantata King Olaf will be given, and will be preceded by the overture to A Midsummer Night's Dream (Mendelssohn). The principals will be Miss Ethel Wood, Mr. Gwylym Richards, and Mr. Julien Henry. The Crystal Palace orchestra and choir, numbering 300 performers, will take part. Mr. F. W. Holloway will be at the piano, and Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock will conduct.

Two concerts will be given at the Crystal Palace on Good Friday, April 9. At the afternoon concert the artists will be Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Gleeson White, Mme. Clara Butt, Mr. Charles Saunders, Mr. Kennerley Rumford, and Sir Charles Santley. Assistance will be given by the London Symphony Orchestra, the Crystal Palace Choir (augmented), and the Crystal Palace Military Band. Mr. Holloway will act as organist and Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock will conduct. At the evening concert Miss Phyllis Lett and Mr. Alfred Heather will be the artists, and the full band of the Coldstream Guards will be conducted by Lieut. J. Mackenzie Rogan. The accompanist will be Mr. Albert Fox.

THE artists engaged up to the present for the Handel-Mendelssohn Festival at the Crystal Palace on June 19, 22, 24, and 26 are Miss Agnes Nicholls, Miss Edith Evans, Mme. Clara Butt, Mr. Ben Davies, Mr. Walter Hyde, Mr. Watkin Mills, Mr. Kennerley Rumford, Mr. Robert Radford, and Sir Charles Santley. Principal violin will be Mr. W. H. Reed, Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock will be the organist, and Dr. Frederick Cowen will conduct. The London Symphony Orchestra will also take part.

To celebrate the Mendelssohn centenary the Dulwich Philharmonic Society will give a performance of Elijah in the concert room of the Crystal Palace on the evening of Jan. 30. The artists will include Mme. Conly, Misses Amy Sissons, Fannie Goldsbrough, Dorothy Fagge, and Jessie Smerdon and Messrs. B. Franklin Taylor, Thorpe Bates, S. J. Ladbrook, and Llewellyn Evans. Mr. C. H. Kempling will be the organist and Mr. Arthur Fagge the conductor.

BARRINGTON ON ENCORES.

Mr. Rutland Barrington gave an interesting lecture on "Encores" to the members of the O.P. Club at the Criterion Restaurant on Sunday. Miss Jessie Rose, who presided, in introducing Mr. Barrington, said: Ladies and gentlemen, your very kind reception of me to-night has made me so bold that I can no longer say, as I had meant to do, that I am nervous at finding myself in the place of honour to-night. I think the O.P. Club shows much courage in electing a chairwoman to rule on these occasions instead of a chairman, for you run a great risk every time of finding one who is at heart a Suffragette, and will rule you with a rod of iron. However, like Phœbe Meryll, I love all brave men, so you are safe for to-night. I have been asked to introduce to you that rising young actor, Mr. Rutland Barrington, whose career I have watched with interest almost from the cradle—my cradle—and as I am as anxious as you are to hear what he has to say about encores, I will at once give way to him, only thanking you from my heart for the wonderful kindness you have shown to such an obscure artist as myself.

In the course of his address Mr. Barrington said:—I have canvassed opinions in all directions on the subject of encores, and I find the votes I have recorded for and against fair and equal. Very few people are undecided on the matter. I need hardly say I did not consult any of my confrères, all of whom detest encores, and are bitterly disappointed if they do not get them. Of course, we know that the original meaning of encore—viz., sing it again—has undergone a modification, and now appears to mean, as a rule, sing something else—the same tune, if you like, but another verse. This has been greatly brought about by the modern lyric writer, who invariably has more to say than he can put into two, or even three, verses. It is also, I think, an established fact that he leads you to suppose that the verses go on improving in interest with number, and both he and the singer would be intensely disappointed if the audience stopped at the hors d'œuvres, and declined to discuss the fishy verse which he might have on the menu. I have heard managers declare that encores are a great test of an artist's capability, and it is just possible that the fact of this statement having leaked out might account for the bewilderment that all of us must have felt on certain occasions, when the readiness to comply with—one might almost say forestall—the wish for a repetition has been so pronounced as to leave the public no option in the matter.

In one popular London theatre there is a well-defined intention of always insisting on certain encores, which have become in a way traditional, and there is an equally well-defined sensation of annoyance on the part of a certain section of the audience at this insistence, culminating in many cases in a written remonstrance to the management, which is thereby placed in a most invidious position, for it is the easiest possible thing to freeze a friendly audience into an antagonistic one; while if the motive in refusing encores be honestly to save time, it very frequently defeats its object, and causes an awkward hiatus in the dialogue. In the case of some musical comedies that might not perhaps be considered a drawback by anyone except the author, in which case, that drawback becomes an advantage.

Many people say that hearing a pretty melody or clever song attracts them to the extent of wishing to hear it again, with a view, possibly, to memorising it, and from this point of view an encore is an advantage to them; but surely the advantage to the manager would be greater if they paid another visit, so that we may consider that advantage a drawback.

The reply furnished to my question by the first lady to whom it was put opened up a fresh view of the subject, which is not surprising when we consider the feminine capacity for throwing new light on all subjects. It was also indicative of that kindly thought for others which is, as a rule, so inconspicuous in man. She said, "I disapprove of encores because I think it must be such a tax on the artists." Now, while I personally hold the opinion, shared, I honestly believe, by the whole of the theatrical profession, that no artist should ever be called upon, under any pretext whatever, to pay taxes, except of course those spelt with an "I," it is an undoubted fact that if the taking of encores is a tax, it is met with a resignation denoting great nobility of character, and as nothing that conduces to the advantage of such a desirable end can possibly be regarded as a drawback, the womanly argument leaves us, as it so frequently does, vide Virgil, in statu quo.

How often one has heard the expression applied to an insistent audience, "They will have their money's worth." But if we come to analyse this, what a misleading statement it is. They have paid to hear the piece once, not twice, and as I am sure that no right-minded person would impute to the public a desire to get more for their money than they have any right to, we must either look elsewhere for the solution of their desire for encores, or discard the expression which has the drawback of being ambiguous combined with the advantage of a notorious means of expressing that drawback, and if you are able to gather clearly from this what I mean, you have the advantage of me.

It is generally admitted that nervousness is a great factor in the success of an artist, and I fancy few people would deny that there is no great future in store for the débutant who plays a part on a first occasion with the aplomb usually acquired by experience. An encore to an artist so constituted may be regarded, I think, as a drawback, the result probably being to still further inflate an already somewhat exalted mental attitude; but to an artist of the true nervous temperament there is no possible doubt whatever that the stimulus of a deserved encore is an advantage almost impossible to overrate.

It is a moot point whether the acceptance of an encore lies in the province of the artist or the musical director, formally called the conductor, and my contention is that, in the case of a solo, the artist could decide, while concerted numbers are left to the discretion of the conductor. I once argued this out with very capable musical director, who insisted that it was his affair to decide all encores, an opinion which he modified to a certain extent on my pointing out that if he took one for me which I did not consider to be one, or which I was possibly anxious to avoid on the ground of overtaxing a strained throat, it was always in my power to walk off the stage and leave it to the band. To be able to do this is undoubtedly an advantage, but it would be at the risk of creating a breach in the perennial entente cordiale existing between conductor and artist, which might present itself to the critical mind as a serious drawback. So there again we are balanced.

One advantage of allowing the granting of encores to remain at the discretion of the conductor would be that if he considered the song had not been very well sung he could refuse to take it, and the artist would probably be aware of the reason. But if, in spite of that, the public insisted on it, he could not well advance that reason except to the artist, who would be forgiven for doubting him in view of the applause received, which is another item on the drawback side of the ledger.

The origin of the custom of encoring is, I fear, lost in the mist surrounding the prehistoric age, as is also that one of giving matinées at half salary and doing precisely the same amount of work as at night; and it seems to me that it must have been initiated by an author, for there is no doubt that in these modern days an author reckons upon a certain number of encores, and is thereby enabled to curtail his work by a certain number of minutes, keeping in hand the material which, in the case of many musical comedies, can be put equally well into another work.

My personal feeling on the matter is that an encore is a compliment paid to the artist as well as an expression of the desire to have a repetition of something that has pleased; and I am by no means averse to getting encores myself—so much so that with very slight encouragement I would read the whole of this paper again! I hope this will not have the effect of causing you to receive my peroration, which, believe me, I am about to make, in absolute silence, because that would be a serious drawback to my present intention of taking advantage of all future invitations I may receive at your hands. I am quite in the dark as to whether or no I have thrown any light on the subject, but this may perhaps be demonstrated in the discussion which, I understand, is the next item on the programme. I can only thank you, in conclusion, for the courteous hearing you have extended to my first attempt at a lecture, and, by way of peroration, I will ask you to bear with me while I quote some lines bearing on the subject written by one of our little-known poets:—

To be or not to be—shall we encore
And bear the brunt of further melody,
Or be content with what has gone before?
Nor tempt these artists further flights to try
To die, to sleep! But how, then, shall we sleep
Save by allowing softly-spoken lines
In place of music cadences to creep?
Noise is the drawback that will bid us pause
And writhe uneasy on our padded stall;
And yet it should advantage us because
In noiseless slumber we should lose it all.

Mr. Henry Lytton, Mr. E. F. Spence, Mr. Alfred F. Robbins, Mr. T. McDonald Rendle, and Mr. Carl Hentschel took part in the discussion.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The production of the domestic drama entitled Mother, which has been written by Miss Sheila Walsh, the leading lady in The Broken Heart, which is being played at the above house, took place on Friday, the 16th, and proved a great success. The drama is full of interest, pretty scenes and good acting are provided, and when on tour the play should prove very popular.

The scene of the first act is laid in an old Cornish village. Mr. and Mrs. Fairweather have set their hearts upon the union of their daughter, Nellie, and their adopted son, Frank Rodney; but a black cloud appears when Stephen Carrington, who vows, despite the opposition of her father, to win Nellie and change her cotton frocks to satin gowns. On Frank's return, after many years abroad, the pair become engaged, but the same evening Nellie agrees to go away with Carrington. The elopement is, however, stopped at the critical moment. The second act finds Nellie and Frank married, but evidently they are not very happy. Stephen again appears, and by a hold he has over Frank, compels Nellie to go away with him, and at the same time betrays the hiding-place of Frank to the naval authorities, by whom he is "wanted," and arrested, though he proves to be innocent of any offence. The third act is a most successful one, and is set in Stephen Carrington's mansion, and here Nellie is secretly visited by her friends while Stephen is engaged with his guests in the card-room, and, as a result, resolves to return to the old home, a resolve she is about to keep when her father returns, and there is an intensely dramatic scene between father and daughter, which is interrupted by the guests. Carrington, in his rage, strikes the girl, and is felled by her father. Rounds of applause greeted the close of the scene, and Mr. Foxwell and Miss Walsh were recalled, the latter being presented with a handsome shower bouquet. The play ends with the return of the daughter, who brings with her the papers showing the innocence of her husband, and everything ends to the satisfaction of the audience.

Miss Walsh played the part of Nellie remarkably well; Mr. Harry Foxwell was very good as Duncan Fairweather, skipper; Mr. John Kelland enacted Frank Rodney cleverly; Mr. Martin Williams ably portrayed the character of Stephen Carrington, and on him depended a great deal of the success; and the other parts are all in capable hands. Mr. Edward Rawlinson enacted Jasper Randon, Mr. Tom Armitage Tommy Noblets, Miss Emma Rainbow Martha (Duncan's wife), Miss Nancy Mitchell Polly Crumpet, and Miss Daisy Rocheford May, Nellie's daughter, and all gave quite capable performances.

A CHAPLET of flowers, bearing the inscription "A last tribute to a dear friend from the Kennington Theatre staff," was among the wreaths sent on the occasion of the funeral of the late Dr. Noble, of Kennington, who was one of the oldest and most respected patrons of the theatre.

AN ATTACK ON THE ORCHESTRA.

Mr. Rutland Barrington in his lecture to the O.P. Club at the Criterion Restaurant on Sunday made the following remarks:—"While on the subject of musical directors, may I be allowed to ventilate a grievance which I believe is shared to a great extent by audience and artist alike? I allude to the strenuousness of the orchestra accompaniments, which not infrequently amount to a a battle in which the overwhelming odds must end in the defeat of the singer. That many composers recognise this danger is certain, and is very strongly indicated by Arthur Sullivan, who took advantage of every opportunity to write unaccompanied quartettes, quintettes, and chorus, all of which are among the most popular numbers in his operas, and which are literally supported by the band with a few occasional chords, these only being inserted to keep the voices in tune. The orchestra has its opportunity in the overture and entrancts, and in my humble opinion should, at all other times, be the lifebuoy of support for the singer, and not the foaming wave of melody beneath whose resistless force he or she will inevitably drown. I do not wish you to imagine for one moment that I am pointing to any one particular musical director; my contention being that, with one notable exception, they are all subject to the praiseworthy desire to make the most of their share of the entertainment, and in extenuation I might suggest that it is unfair to expect them to add to their other accomplishments a knowledge of the Italian language. Why should all our musical terms be expressed in Italian, and how on earth can we all be expected to understand what is meant by piano?"

Mr. François Cellier has replied, in an interview in the Westminster Gazette, to these and other observations in Mr. Barrington's address:—

"Whoever Mr. Rutland Barrington was aiming at in his speech, I am quite certain it was not me. Sir Arthur Sullivan was a perfect master of the situation."

"Mr. Barrington suggests that the orchestra should be as a lifeboat to the singer, and not a foaming wave to drown him?"

"I quite appreciate the metaphor," Mr. Cellier replied, with a smile; "and it is scarcely necessary to remind Mr. Barrington that Sir Arthur Sullivan was often a good deal more than a lifeboat to him! Indeed, in one particular phrase in Patience, Sir Arthur put in a strenuous note for the sole purpose of saving Mr. Barrington from falling overboard. So far as the 'drowning' of the singer is concerned, that tragedy may come about from three causes, either together or separately—bad scoring, bad orchestra, and bad singing, but as a rule this difficulty is removed during rehearsal."

With respect to Mr. Barrington's remark as to whether the singer or the conductor should determine the question of taking the encores, Mr. Cellier pointed out that, so far as the Savoy was concerned, the matter was settled by the management.

"Mrs. D'Oyly Carte has received many letters complaining of encores, and they have been stopped because it was found that the enthusiasm of the people in the pit and gallery led to the annoyance of the occupants of the stalls. Many things in relation to encores would probably surprise the public if they were generally known. In The Yeomen of the Guard, for instance, we always have a passionate demand for a repetition, which I avoid with the utmost care. All lovers of this opera will remember the quartette towards the end, 'When a lover goes a-wooing'—a very sad number for Phœbe and Jack Point. The latter retires in distress at the loss of Elsie, and Phœbe is left on the stage to mourn the loss of Fairfax. Not only have Fairfax and Elsie to change too quickly to allow of the encore being taken, but Sir Arthur Sullivan expressly desired that a repetition should not be given, on the ground that the dramatic effect would be utterly spoilt. And that is why we always turn a deaf ear to the clamour of the audience for a second performance of that quartette."

A stout defence of the orchestra against the charge of over-strenuousness was made by Mr. F. Orcherton, the secretary of the Orchestral Association, who was himself in the Savoy Orchestra for fifteen years.

"You will never in any other orchestral performances get such pianissimos as are to be heard at the Savoy," he said. "The question of encores is entirely a matter for the conductor."

BRIGHTON MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

The Brighton Musical Festival, which closed on Saturday last, when afternoon and evening performances were given, proved highly successful from a musical point of view, and it is anticipated that the financial aspect will be satisfactory. Mr. Joseph Sainton, musical director of the municipal orchestra, and Mr. Robert Taylor, conductor of the Brighton Sacred Harmonic Society had been busily engaged during the past three months with the rehearsals of the principal works submitted at the Festival, and may be warmly and deservedly congratulated upon the results of their efforts. The performance of Sir Edward Elgar's The Dream of Gerontius on the opening day (Wednesday) attracted an overflowing audience in the Dome, and the rendering of the masterly work (conducted by the composer) was excellent. Sir Edward Elgar, in a letter to Mr. Robert Taylor, congratulated him upon the success of the chorus, who, he said, "sang splendidly." The augmented orchestra did well, and the solos were finely rendered by Mr. John Coates, Mr. William Higley, and Miss Alice Lakin. The programme also included Sir Edward Elgar's symphony, In the South. Thursday evening was devoted to Wagner selections and S. Coleridge-Taylor's Bon-Bon Suite—the latter a series of six beautiful and romantically toned numbers. In the latter Mr. Julien Henry gave the baritone solos admirably. In the Wagner selections the soloists were Madame Agnes Nicholls, Miss Gertrude Lonsdale, Mr. John Coates, and Mr. William Higley. The performance of Elijah on Friday evening was a veritable triumph for the orchestra, Brighton Sacred Harmonic Society, and the soloists, Madame Agnes Nicholls, Miss Gertrude Lonsdale, Mr. Webster Millar, and Mr. Watkin Mills. Mr. Robert Taylor conducted. On Saturday afternoon the leading feature of the concert was the performance, with Mr. Joseph Sainton as conductor, of Elgar's new symphony, which met with an enthusiastic reception. Liapounow's pianoforte concerto, performed for the first time in England, was rendered very artistically by a gifted pianist, Mr. Arthur Newstead, who was splendidly supported by the orchestra. Sir Charles Villiers Stanford conducted his Irish Rhapsody in D minor and his "Attila" suite; and Sir Alexander C. Mackenzie conducted his own "Britannia" overture. Songs were rendered by Miss Alys Bateman and Mr. W. A. Peterkin. The principal feature of the final concert on Saturday evening was the impressive rendering of Tschaikowsky's "Pathetique" Symphony, No. 6, by the orchestra, conducted by Mr. Joseph Sainton. Mr. Edward German conducted his own highly descriptive "Welsh Rhapsody"; Mr. Percy Frostick played Paganini's violin concerto in D; Madame Ella Russell and Mr. Watkin Mills contributed songs; and the orchestra closed the Festival with Tschaikowsky's Solennelle Overture, "1812." Mr. Joseph Sainton, the conductor, was recalled again and again with intense enthusiasm.

MR. HENRY DOUGHTY will go on tour this spring with a new version of the drama Godfrey Stirling, produced by him at Fulham in 1905.

"RED RIDING HOOD" AT THE LYCEUM.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

Queues outside the Lyceum entrances are attaining remarkable proportions, and both at matinée and evening performances the ranks of waiting patrons have extended to record lengths. The popularity of Messrs. Smith and Carpenter's second pantomime at the Lyceum promises to exceed that of their first, and, from all appearances, the run might well extend beyond all customary limits. The story of Little Red Riding Hood, as dealt with by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carpenter, is designed to engage the attention chiefly of the youngsters, and in inventing and producing the pantomime Mr. Carpenter has exerted his ingenuity to excellent purpose. The laughter of the little ones is agreeably evident; but there is no lack of hilarity on the part of their elders, who find in the comedians a constant source of mirth.

The prize principal boy of last year, Miss Dorothy Craske, is retained for the part of the Prince, and adds to the number of her admirers. She wears many striking costumes, looking especially smart in the scarlet uniform of the first part. Later, she wears a pretty satin suit of mauve, which is ultimately changed to a still more handsome one of violet hue. Miss Craske gains the plaudits of all with her singing and dancing, her rendering of "Tom, the Bombadier" and of "Sue," to which she adds a cleverly-executed dance, characterised by some novel steps, being particularly favoured.

A comedienne youthful in years but mature in ability, is found in Miss Marjory Carpenter, daughter of the popular managing-director, who enchants all by her dainty rendering of the title-rôle, her ingenuous manner giving added prettiness to the part. Miss Carpenter wins all hearts by her charming little scenas with her Teddy Bear, and pleases the eye with her light and graceful dancing, which is executed with wonderful finish. Miss Alice Russon is a winsome Margery Daw, carrying through her love scenes with agreeable archness. Her acting and singing is distinguished by much girlish grace, and she shares equally in the success of the "kissing" duet with the Prince, which is loudly encored; while her "Rainbow" song and dance, embellished by special effects, is accorded a similar distinction.

Our Good Fairy has a fascinating exponent in Miss Eva Kelland, whose appearance is enhanced by glittering robes, in which precious stones sparkle lustrously. Her songs well suit her cultivated voice, "Shadowland" being so effectively sung that a repetition has to be given.

In comedians the pantomime is rich. An overwhelming reception awaits Mr. Julian Rose, whose sagaciously witty Hebrew Baron is the cause of laughter loud and long. The fun of "Levinsky's Wedding" is uproarious, and Mr. Rose's dry drollery exercises an influence that is irresistible. Constant diversion is also created by Messrs. Forman and Fannan, who share the comic responsibilities of Jimmy Green and Johnny Stout. They are the cause of incessant laughter with their "cross-talk" and their numerous oddities, of which there is no stint. Mr. J. D. Hunter purveys much quiet humour as Dame Trot. He is the buxom old woman to the life, and his efforts at mirth-making are always welcome. Mr. Charles Penrose and Mr. Charles Ludlow are diverting representatives of Simple Simon and Silly Sammy, Mr. Jack Roker and Mr. Harry Gardner have small but useful rôles in those of Gaffer Giles and the frisky donkey; the robust voice of Mr. S. Major Jones declaims the lines of the Spirit of Evil with power and effect; and his subordinates, the Wicked Witches, have consistent representatives in Misses Avice Scholtz, Mollie O'Mara, Lina Imperiali, Marcelle Hudson, and Adie Webb.

The name of Espinosa looms prominently in the bill, and the production owes much of its effect to the clever dancer and comedian bearing that name. In addition to arranging the ballets, processions, and evolutions, four characters fall to his share, and each is marked by quaintness and skill. Realistic in every detail are his impersonations of the Wehr Wolf, the Scarecrow, the Snake, and Mr. Punch. His marvellous agility is shown in a variety of movements, which are at once novel and striking. The première danseuse is again Mlle. Ray Espinosa, whose pirouettes are executed with such grace and finish that the house applauds with enthusiasm. Her pas de deux with Mr. Espinosa are admirable examples of the art of terpsichore. Familiar figures of nursery lore have comely representatives in Miss Kitty Upton as Jack Horner, Miss Marie Clements as Miss Muffit, Miss Alys Hardy as Tommy Tucker, Miss Naomi Barton as Mary Contrary, Miss Juliette Susini as Peter Piper, and Miss Rita Pereira as Georgie Porgie.

The twelve scenes unfolded in the pantomime include many sets of remarkable beauty, which do infinite credit to Mr. E. C. Nicholls and assistants. Buttercup Dell is a charming realisation of a sylvan retreat, while in a woodland glade water lilies are seen peeping out of a pool, with cornfields glistening in the sun beyond. There is an instantaneous change to winter, and, after a momentary pause the wood, hitherto clothed in summer verdure, is shown with frosted trees and snow-clad hills, which sparkle in a myriad of electric lights. The final scene is one of remarkable grandeur, worthily representing the Palace in the Happy Isles. It is a vast combination of exquisite designs, in which gorgeous hues are combined with artistic effect. The crowning glory is obtained in the playing fountains, invented and arranged by M. Maurin, the exquisite designs portrayed under ever-changing lights sending thrills of admiration round the house. The mechanical effects are by A. R. George and assistants, and every opportunity for their ingenuity is afforded in the scene of the Animated Alphabet, and in Toyland, where all sorts and conditions of toys move about in fashion most grotesque. The properties are by W. Mountain and assistants; Mr. F. B. Fidge is responsible for the electrical effects, of which so much use is made throughout the production; and the floral decorations, which prove of such value to the mounting, are by J. Baumler and Co.

The variety and number of the costumes are quite bewildering, and Mme. Stafford and Morris Angel and Sons are to be complimented on the effect gained. The simple colours of the rustic dresses are in effective contrast with the military uniforms and elegant suits of the other members of the company, and the eye is constantly delighted with the picturesque raiment worn in every scene. The wigs are by Mr. C. H. Fox. Mr. S. Major Jones, who has an expert assistant in Mr. Henry Armstrong, is again to be felicitated on the smartness with which the production goes under his stage-management. A word should be devoted to the work of the augmented orchestra, which, under the direction of Mr. H. Sullivan Brooke, acquits itself irreproachably in the rendering of the music, which forms a melodious accompaniment, and contains many airs of a fascinating character.

The harlequinade finds a place in the programme at matinées, when numberless children are diverted by the drollery of Mr. Harry Gardner as clown, Mr. Charles L. Ludlow as pantaloon, and Mr. Arthur Medwin as policeman; and the duties of harlequin and columbine are discharged by Mr. Jack Roker and Miss Eunice Broadwood.

"HUMPTY DUMPTY" AT THE BROADWAY.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

This successful pantomime is running its course merrily. There are some changes and many additions to the already smart dialogue, and clever topical hits are included. Clever Miss Harold Alexander, whose songs at the piano have been such an attractive item, now introduces a Violet Charlesworth lyric entitled "Good-bye, girlie, I must go" with great success. There are many other improvements and innovations since the opening performance, all advantageous to the production. Miss Edna Morgan continues her delightful impersonation of Rudolph, and has made herself a great favourite; Miss Cecilia Maude's fine voice is heard to advantage in her rôle of Fairy Queen; Mr. Charles Goff has made a great success as Humpty Dumpty, of whom he gives a clever portrayal; Miss Cissie Cecilia is a bright and clever Prince Spritely, and Miss Violet Cecilia is a dainty and pleasing Cherry, their cultivated instrumental turn being warmly applauded; Mr. Roland Chester sings artistically as the Demon, and acts well; Mr. Fred Eastman continues his clever performance of King Solumm, and is a huge favourite; while Mr. Stratton Mills as Martha is quaintly humorous. Mr. Carl Howard is excellent as Bison Bob; Messrs. Fremel and Fremel are most amusing as Brick and Brack; and the remaining parts are well acted. Teller's Superba Quartet are a decided attraction. Mr. Bertram Iles, the popular and courteous resident-manager, is indefatigable in his efforts to secure the comfort of patrons.

"WHITTINGTON" AT THE CORONET.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

Mr. Robert Arthur's Coronet pantomime of Dick Whittington continues to run smoothly on the road to success. Since the first night its pace has naturally quickened, especially in the kitchen scene, which rather dragged on the first night. Considering that the pantomime has been running since Dec. 21, 1908, there are remarkably few changes. Miss Constance Hyem, the blithe, bonny, and vivacious hero of the story, had to give up owing to indisposition recently, and her part was filled at a moment's notice in most creditable fashion by Miss Constance Fox, who is to be warmly congratulated on her capable fashion of getting the management out of an awkward dilemma. Miss Constance Hyem came back to the cast last Saturday, and sings and acts in most charming and commendable style as the dashing Dick Whittington. Miss Anita Edis also had to give up the part of the Princess of Morocco, and Miss Brook undertook the part. A permanent change in the cast is that of Mr. Bertram Noel as Alderman Fitzwarren vice Mr. Alec Kendal, and to Mr. Noel is entrusted the celebrated ditty composed by Miss Violet Charlesworth, entitled "Good-bye, Girlie," which appeared in this week's Dispatch, and he comes on as a sandwichman and sings it to great applause. Especially noticeable, in addition to Miss Hyem's charming rendition of "A tiny seed of love," are the droll duet between Harry Randall as Mrs. Desiccated Edwardes and Mr. Edward Lewis as Idle Jack, "Do you remember," and the pretty song "Some day," daintily rendered by Miss Dorothy Firmin as Alice Fitzwarren. The duet between Alice and Idle Jack, "I want you," also possesses much merit in its pretty refrain. Miss Jean Gordon still dances delightfully, and Miss Gwen Thomson's Salome dance is also meritorious, while the tiny Sisters Herbert gain great applause. Needless to say, the part of Mrs. Desiccated Edwardes now fits Harry Randall like a glove, and he misses no chance of a bit of fun or harmless raillery against the idiosyncrasies of the moment, especially good being his suffragette outburst in Act II. The faithful feline of Mr. Johnny Fuller and the Demon Rat of Mr. Ernest Laws would be difficult to improve upon, and one and all work with a will to keep the production up to concert pitch throughout.

"ROBINSON CRUSOE" AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

[SECOND NOTICE.]

Nothing but congratulation is due to Mr. J. Bannister Howard on his pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, now in the full tide of success in the Crystal Palace Theatre. Little alteration or cutting has been found necessary, the only difference being that the piece plays about a quarter of an hour less than on the first night. As is usual with Crystal Palace audiences, a feeling akin to friendship exists between the artists and their patrons, and the number of floral tributes of admiration which are nightly handed across the footlights is remarkable.

Miss Lillie Lassah, in the title-rôle, is as bright and dashing as ever, and scores heavily with her new song, "Mary," which she now sings in the second part, in place of "Boys," and for which she obtains many encores, similar distinction being won by her "Postman" song in the second scene. Miss Venie Clements is a tower of strength to the production, her natural cleverness and versatility giving great point to her many songs. Her "Teddy Bear" effusion, with "babby" imitations, and "Oh, sir, go hon!" sung with Mr. Bert Edwards, would have been encored until further notice had time permitted; but it was with "Oh! Oh! Antonio" that she made her greatest success, the Apache dance with which this number finishes being accorded an ovation. Mr. Harry Zietz has made his part of Friday a real joy to the youngsters, who must all recognise in his every gesture the close reproduction of Defoe's untutored savage. Another carefully-studied impersonation is the Monkey of Mr. Leon Dubois, every simian trait and movement being faithfully portrayed. A clever and agile rope act must also be set down to his credit. Mr. Bert Edwards has plenty to do as Will Atkins, and gives full rein to his funniosities, being seen at his best in his songs and scenes with Miss Clements.

The Mrs. Crusoe of Mr. E. Harvey White is one of the best dames we have seen, his get-up in fashionable evening dress in the last act being most grotesque. Miss Lallie Campbell is Aphrodite, the fairy queen, and her song, "I'd do anything in the world for you," goes very well. Her adversary, Davy Jones, is as weirdly dramatic as ever in the hands of Mr. C. Gifford.

The Melody Four, with their very varied accomplishments, make a welcome change to the ordinary business of the pantomime. Mr. Scott Russell's fine voice and presence render the Cannibal Sultan a noticeable figure.

The Passmore Brothers' exertions, in their respective rôles of Captain and Mate, result in continuous merriment; and Miss Cissie Murphy's "Rainbow" song, with its pretty colour effects, goes excellently. Mr. Leonard Gautier's incidental music is of a high order. A successful photograph of the entire company in the Palace scene was taken the other night, and should prove a pleasant souvenir of one of the best of Mr. J. Bannister Howard's productions

"BLUEBEARD" AT THE CAMDEN.

Besides being the hero of innumerable musical pieces, including Offenbach's celebrated opéra-bouffe Barbe-Blue, Bluebeard was the subject of a two-act tragedy by no less a personage than the Earl of Ellesmere, and of a serio-comic Oriental romance in one act by the celebrated Bishop Heber, author of the hymn "From Greenland's icy mountains." Neither of these authors has been drawn upon for the libretto or the lyrics of the pantomime Bluebeard, presented at the Camden by Messrs. C. St. John Denton and Peter Davey, the entire production being devised and arranged by the latter gentleman. Mr. Hugh Mytton, the author, as far as one can judge by the representation, has exorcised the spirit of dramatic seriousness, and has given to the Camden townfolk a version of the story that never causes one the slightest tremor as to the fate of Fatima, or the triumph of Selim. Mr. Ben Albert as representing the blue-bearded one is not particularly concerned with imparting to that tyrant an Oriental colouring. He takes all sorts of liberties, and in his rendering never gets away from the humour of Cockaigne. His justification is to be found in the peals of merry laughter that punctuate his funny business, his songs, his patter, and what may be termed his "spoof." His lecture on work and his terse description of "capital" are among the best things to be heard during the three hours' pantomime frolic. An excellent comedian, too, is Mr. Ernest Rees, the Sister Ann of the cast, who has a series of lectures, everyone of which is distinctly precious. Mr. Rees is arrayed in a series of wonderful garments, and his burlesque of the ancient ballerina is quite as droll as his appearance in Sister Ann's walking costume, in which her dameship's digits are protected from the frost by a diminutive muff ornamented with violets. His grotesquerie appeals especially to the spindle side of the audience, and it is without an atom of vulgarity. He shares with Mr. Ben Albert the triumph of a really funny burlesque love scene. Miss Addie Lennard is both a picturesque and a romantic goatherd, and so well graced and well equipped an actress is rarely seen in the part of principal boy. She gives a touch of pretty sentiment to her part, which, by her graciousness and charm, is lifted into interesting prominence. Unfortunately on the night of our visit Miss Lennard was handicapped by a severe cold and attendant hoarseness, and in consequence she had to cut her songs in order to get through, but one could always recognise in her impersonation of the rescuer of Fatima the work of an actress of real ability and undeniable charm. Miss Lydia Flopp's personal beauty gives all the necessary realism to the rôle of Fatima, and her song given while seated on the arc of a crescent moon is an attractive number. Miss Lottie Sargent as Wilhelmina, the Dutch girl, has a popular number in "I don't want to go home in the dark," and with her troupe of boys and girls in the costumes worn by the side of the Zuyder Zee she makes a very successful appeal to the suffrages of her audience in a catchy and tuneful number. Ferguson and Mack, who some years since used to amuse us with McCarthy's Mishaps, are concerned in furthering the cause of laughter, and they score in a special bit of sporting spoof with Mr. Ben Albert as a bookmaker. Miss Violet Vaughan, a smart and dapper naval lieutenant is heartily applauded and recalled for her singing of the popular ditty "The white man"; Mr. Harold Carson is responsible for the part of Mustapha; Mr. Harold Clemence is effective in the rôle of the baboon; and Miss Helen Cunningham plays Shacabac neatly. Mr. Leslie Hughes, who did so much for the popularity of this house a few years since, has resumed the position of manager, much to the delight of his many friends.

"CINDERELLA" AT THE WEST LONDON.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

It was pleasing to find a crowded and good-humoured audience assembled on a recent visit within the walls of this old Marylebone playhouse, and the enthusiastic reception given to the hard-working artists engaged must have been very gratifying to Mr. William Bailey, jun., the author, and to Mr. Samuel James, the producer, of the pantomime. A prominent feature is the bright and tuneful music, so ably interpreted by the band. As Prince Rupert Miss Kitty Tims wins rounds of applause, and her bold and dashing methods, coupled with her excellent voice, make her a warm favourite. "Oh, oh, Antonio!" "A song about the boys," and "Hats off to the King" are her most successful numbers. Mr. Will Skelton is drolly amusing as Baron Boldheart; and Mr. Will May is a decidedly quaint Billy Buttons, full of eccentric quips and cranks. Miss Victoria Rochester, as the Fairy Godmother, sings with tasteful effect. "All the world loves a lover" is her most catchy item; whilst the duet "Shadowland," with Mr. Frank Viner, the Demon Discontent, is another melodious effort, well applauded. Mr. George Cave as Arabella Jane and Mr. Arthur Stevens as Lucretia Maud, the inevitable Ugly Sisters, add much to the gaiety of the pantomime. Both these comedians labour unceasingly and play into one another's hands admirably. Some of the situations, with Billy Buttons and the Baron, are full of genuine humour and cleanly fun and at times the house rocks with laughter. Miss Alice Wade is vivacious and sprightly as Dandini; Miss Louie Belrose as Rosalind dances nimbly and sings well many popular ditties, including "Anywhere will do," "My pretty piece of Dresden china," "I don't care if there's a girl there," and "Won't you waltz the Merry Widow waltz?" Miss Phyllis Yorke is a dainty and refined Cinderella, and her winsome ways and pleasing smile gain the hearts of all; whilst her rendering of "I want somebody to love me" and "Sweep" is tastefully effective. The rest of the company work hard, and the chorus could hardly be improved upon. The dresses are bright and clean and the stage effects beyond reproach, the Transformation scene being a series of harmoniously-coloured pictures worth going a long way to see. With the "house full" boards out nightly Mr. Bailey may with every confidence look forward to a lengthy run, even for this old record-breaking pantomime house. Mr. James Sinclair, as usual, looks after the comfort of visitors in his accustomed genial way.

"RED RIDING HOOD" AT KENNINGTON.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

The career of the Kennington pantomime is being continued with unabated success, huge crowds patronising Mr. Robert Arthur's well-appointed theatre at both matinée and evening performances. Sparkling music and charming pictures combine with first-class fun to secure the success obtained by Red Riding Hood, for which Mr. Frank Dix has written an effective "book." Local interest is secured by the depiction of historic places in the neighbourhood. The Village of Kennington Cross, where the earlier events of the pantomime are enacted, is a very charming set, glowing with delicate hues. Admiration is commanded, too, by the scene of The Glade, an exquisite piece of sylvan setting, with a waterfall dripping picturesquely at the back. A Butterfly ballet is introduced, every species of the insect being displayed in glorious profusion, out of which the première danseuse, clad in golden raiment, emerges and performs a clever pas seul. A veritable transformation is then effected, the scene being obscured by a mass of descending foliage, while golden rain completes a picture of exceeding loveliness. The culminating triumph is the Conservatory of Vauxhall, where the pantomime ends in a blaze of splendour.

Favour has been found by all the chief artists. The brightness and buoyancy of Miss Lulu Valli are invaluable in the principal part, and Boy Blue has won the greatest admiration. Miss Valli has a fresh and tuneful voice, which finds appreciable use in her songs, those of "A White Man" and "Are there any more at home like Mary?" being especially favoured. Miss Queenie Essex as Miss Muffett is the personification of daintiness and charm. She dresses with much taste, and her pretty ringlets effectively crown her charming costumes. In singing and dancing Miss Essex is particularly good. "It's a handy little thing to have about you" being rendered with much humour; while "Sue," sung as a duet with Miss Valli, and supplemented by a clever dance, exerts a fascinating influence. The Poluski Brothers share equally the responsibilities of a large part of the fun in the rôles of Johnny Stout and Willie Green. They are indefatigable humorists, and their numberless diversions are rewarded by incessant laughter, for which their comic duel and popular "Didn't we? Yes, we did!" are largely responsible. A dame of much originality is presented by Mr. Leonard Teel, who lends masculine quaintness to Mother Hubbard. His immobility of feature enhances the effect of many witticisms, and his agility, which enables him to cross the stage in a series of kangaroo-like jumps, appeals powerfully to the sense of humour. Mr. Rob H. Howard has taken the place of Mr. Ernest Thiel as the villainous Squire Vaux, of whom he gives a melodramatic rendering in keeping with the part, his vocal abilities being also prominent. The Wolf is represented by Mr. Harry Benson, who makes of him a most ferocious animal, and the dog Snatcher has an alert and realistic exponent in Mr. Fred Zietz, whose canine proclivities are very pronounced. Miss Winifred Delevanti invests the title-rôle with much freshness and delicacy, and her youthful voice gives agreeable expression to the pleasing lines of the part. Miss Violet Edge, who appears in the interpolated rôle of a ragged orphan, sings "Daddy" in a cultivated voice. Miss Florence Ray makes a comely Fairy Queen, and exercises her benign sway with every effect. Jack and Jill have prepossessing exponents in Miss Angela Ward and Miss Marjorie Moore, who carry out their duties of second boy and girl with constant gaiety and good spirits. Tiny Tim is a smart Tiger; and Miss Rosa Costa completes the cast as Bertie.

The fun of the Schoolroom scene is furthered by Mrs. Victor's Folliettes, the "Teddy Bear" song and dance of Miss Lily Lang being well done. Miss Monica Bevan, the première danseuse, executes her pas seul in finished style, and the terpsichorean evolutions of Sinclair's Eight Radium Girls are remarkable for prettiness and skill. Unlimited credit is due to Miss Madge Martin, who produced the ballets, and everything proceeds with the utmost smoothness under the stage-management of Mr. Alec Flood and Mr. Philip F. Howley. The reputation for musical excellence which the Kennington Theatre has won is enhanced by the music by Jullien H. Wilson, some of which is of quite an operatic character, and the chorus do admirable service in its rendering.

ELEPHANT AND CASTLE THEATRE.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

Mr. Charles Barnard is doing enormous business here with his excellent pantomime The Babes in the Wood, which has wonderfully improved since our last visit. Miss Kitty Clinton's impersonation of Robin Hood is a distinguished performance. Her two principal songs, "A White Man" and "A tiny seed of love," are very successful, many-toned bells placed in various parts of the theatre supplying a remarkably pretty effect to the latter. Miss Alice Maple is a dainty Maid Marian, and continues to sing with much success "I couldn't come home in the dark." Her song, "My sweet little violet," followed by a clever dance, is also a popular number. The bewitching Babes, Miss Gracie Mortimer and Miss Hester Reeve, still delight both young and old with their excellent dancing and pretty songs. Miss Gracie Mortimer sings a song on "Home," into which she introduces a capital dance; and Miss Hester Reeves's introduction of "I know a lovely garden" provides her with ample opportunity for displaying her sweet voice. Their duet, "A pretty piece of Dresden china," is a delightfully pleasing number. The clever Sisters Morgan are quite established favourites, singing "Sue, Sue, Sue" as a duet in a most pleasing manner. Their other two duets, "Antonio" and "I want you to see my girl," are also popular. In the latter number they are assisted by a very youthful artist, who completes an admirable trio. These two vivacious artists are to be commended upon a fine and energetic performance throughout. A clever couple also are Rita and Roma, whose speciality dancing act and the accompanying song "Oh, Mr. Montagu" is greatly appreciated. Mlle. Rita is also seen in a clever grotesque dance, and Mr. F. C. Roma sings a very humorous number, "Is everybody happy here?" Messrs. Barrett and Knowles as the Wicked Robbers are irresistibly droll, their song, "What, what, what," with a screamingly ridiculous waltz gag attached, being quite the funniest thing in the show. Their "terrible" fight in the wood is also something that would send the most sober-minded individual into fits of laughter. Mr. Will Lorenzi continues to cause much merriment by his droll impersonation of the Nurse Wilhemena Wilkins, who dances the "Merry Widow Waltz"; and Mr. Edward de Vere infuses a good deal of comedy into the character of Friar Tuck; he is also responsible for the stage-management of the production, and is to be congratulated upon the smooth running thereof. Mr. Charles Clarke makes quite a terribly wicked uncle of Sir Rupert de Guille. In his duet, "What a terrible thing that would be," sung with Mr. Will Lorenzi, he has introduced a topical pantomime verse which is much to the liking of his audiences. Another excellent piece of foolery is the introduction of a burlesque quartette upon "The baby on the shore." Miss May Cartwright as Content, the good fairy, is a very graceful artist, and is extremely successful in her song "Seaside."

Mention must again be made of the last scene depicting the Earl of Huntingdon's Palace, a most elaborate setting, the dresses also being very fine indeed. The choruses are catchy and tuneful, and some well-arranged dances are executed by the Castle Girls and the Sisters Harcourt. Mr. Fred Bernado (late of the Alexandria, Birmingham) is now in charge of the front of the house, and during the short time he has been here, by his kind consideration for the comfort of his numerous patrons, he has made many friends. Mr. J. Truswell Holt is an energetic and courteous Press manager. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. W. Stephenson, contributes in no small measure to the success of the pantomime, which will continue for four weeks longer, making a run of eight weeks.

"BABES IN THE WOOD" AT THE SHAKESPEARE.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

A rush is being made to Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett's pretty theatre at Clapham Junction to see the pantomime, which comes to a close this evening owing to the bookings previously made. The Babes in the Wood has proved an especial delight to children, and on Saturday afternoon last the theatre was occupied by a crowd of youngsters, most of whom were present at the invitation of the Mayor of Wandsworth. His Worship occupied a private box, and three ringing cheers were given for him in the interval. The Shakespeare is renowned for the effectiveness of its scenic display, and some handsome sets are provided. An effective sunrise is secured in the Bower of Roses, and the Land of Flowers, which ends the first part, is a magnificent display, in which a veritable living garden is presented, a bevy of ladies bearing in procession a specimen of almost every variety of bloom. The Hall at Huntingdon Castle is an imposing finale, the palatial interior being peopled by a vast crowd picturesquely arrayed, the handsome costumes showing up admirably under the rays of light which illuminate the scene.

High places in popularity have been obtained by all the leading artists. Miss Nancy Hearne continues to win golden opinions for her vivacious presentation of Robin Hood. Her songs have become the rage, and "I want you to see my girl," "Have you got another girl at home like Mary?" and "A White Man" never fail to receive encores, the audience joining lustily in the choruses. A dainty Marian is found in Miss Lena Brickwell, who wins scores of admirers by her pretty face and her bright and pleasing acting. Her songs, amongst which may be specially mentioned "Come round on Sunday," are sung with charming effect. The Babes, Miss Dorothy Miller and Baby Hutt, must be warmly commended upon the capable manner in which they sustain their respective parts. Both are gifted with vocal ability, and their duet, "Run away from old man Goblin," is smartly executed. "In Idaho" is cleverly rendered by Miss Miller, and "Good-bye, Teddy Bear," in the case of Baby Hutt, wins hearty recognition.

Mr. Nat Clifford as the Baron has established himself a warm favourite with Clapham playgoers, and to his untiring efforts much of the success of the pantomime is due. He is a comedian of ready resource, and extracts the utmost humour from the part. His rendering of the tongue twister song "Sea Shells" is one of the hits of the piece, and caused roars of laughter. Mr. Harry Phydora makes a diverting Dame, and is responsible for a good deal of the fun. His songs include "When I was in the chorus of the Gaiety" and "There's a girl inside," both of which are sung with good effect. Mr. Will Harris makes the most of the part of Georgie, and gains an encore for his lyric, "I planted it in the garden." Mr. Jack Denton is a jovial Friar Tuck, and acquits himself with credit; and Messrs. Fyne and Hurley are as droll a pair of robbers as could be imagined, their humorous antics and clever buffoonery being highly relished. The Two Missouris as Snatcher and Catcher have an opportunity of introducing their trampoline act, and their clever acrobatic and springing feats are watched with admiration. The Miltons as Louisa and Jack Slim also render valuable assistance. The fine voice of Mr. Glanmore Jones as the Demon is heard to excellent advantage in several songs.

The Fairy Moonbeam has a talented exponent in Miss Eva Colton. She has an excellent voice, which is heard to particular advantage in "The beautiful land of Nod," and there is quite an operatic flavour about her duet with the Demon. Miss Florence May as Dolly, Miss Winifrid Howard as Will Scarlett, and Miss Vera George as King Richard also contribute valuable assistance. Miss Beatrice Harold's Twelve Gipsy Girls appear in several charming costumes. Despite their Romany title they prove to be a troupe of comely English girls, who execute a number of novel and daring dances with much energy, springing on to one another's shoulders and posturing gracefully in equally precarious positions. Their tambourine dance, too, is a very pretty display. Another speciality from whom much enjoyment is derived is that of the Shakespeare Glee Singers, who render some well-chosen selections in harmonious fashion without allowing the humorous element unduly to obtrude. The chorus work very hard throughout, under the bâton of Mr. Alf. J. Lawrance, who himself displays the possession of a baritone of no mean excellence by rendering solo the chorus of one of the songs.

"BABES IN THE WOOD" AT KING'S, HAMMERSMITH.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

The success of the pantomime has exceeded all expectations, and has established the record for Mr. Mulholland's annuals. The "house full" boards appear at every performance, and one hears of delighted visitors from all parts of the metropolis and beyond. It is not to be wondered at that the pantomime has been stamped a huge success, as the production is very refined, and at the same time intensely funny, and appeals quite as much to the old as the young. A second visit shows that the rough edges have been smoothed down, and the result is vast improvements all round. For this a deal of praise must be bestowed upon Mr. Joseph R. Tate, the producer and stage-manager. The principal fun-maker is Mr. George Mozart, really a host in himself. While he is on the stage the audience is rocking with laughter, and his gags and comical acting are always keenly appreciated. If it were possible for Mr. Mozart to have achieved additional distinction as a comedian, his appearance at the King's as the Baron Swanker has done it. Another success has been made by Mr. James A. Watts as Phyllis Macwhackington. He works indefatigably, and causes uproarious mirth by his quaint make-up and singing, and quite a furore is caused by his splendid burlesque of Miss Maud Allan in the "Spring Song" dance of Mendelssohn. Immensely popular in Hammersmith is Miss Marie Dainton for her charming rendering of Maid Marian. Her songs are pleasantly sung, and her mimicry is an entertainment in itself. Equally popular is Miss Winnie Browne, who, as Robin Hood, has become a favourite here. Exceptionally good-looking, and with a handsome figure and nice style, she gains many friends at each performance. Miss Browne receives many encores for her song "I should like to have a shot at that," which has been specially written by Charles Willmot and H. E. Darewski. Miss Gwennie Harcourt as Tilly, the maid-of-all-work, is funny, and acts well with Perks, the page, quaintly played by Mr. Alec Godfrey. The two myrmidons, Percy and Cecil, are portrayed by Messrs. Hall and Earle, two dry humorists and exceedingly clever acrobats. The babes, Dorothy and Norman, undertaken by Miss Vera Sanders and Miss Elsie Forster, have little to do, but do it very well. Miss Madge Bell as Lovelight is pleasing, and Mr. John Sandbrook's fine voice is heard to much advantage in the song "Revenge." The Asturias, dancers, are composed of a clever set of young ladies, who gain much well-deserved applause. The chorus is a decidedly attractive one, and sing and act with animation. Mr. F. J. Dowling's scenery is the subject of much admiration, and the orchestra, ably directed by Mr. B. J. Paterson, leave nothing to be desired. With ten performances weekly to control, no little responsibility is cast upon Mr. Norman Walters, the very capable acting-manager, but he overcomes all difficulties and troubles with judicious suavity.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Jan. 18, the Musical Play, entitled "HAVANA."

Dalstonians are experiencing a treat this week, for the stage is occupied by Mr. George Dance's company in the musical play Havana, which thus starts its first tour in suburban London. The incidents of the "book" as arranged by Mr. George Grossmith, jun., and Mr. Graham Hill, the lyrics by Adrian Ross and George Arthurs, and the music by Leslie Stuart, are thoroughly to the taste of the audience, judging by the applause which is continuously maintained. Mr. Cecil W. Parke gives a manly rendering of the character of Jackson Villiers, of the steam yacht Wasp, and he sings and dances admirably; Mr. Bay Russell is equally happy in his rendering of the Hon. Frank Charteris; he is an alert dancer, and "The little supper party laid for two" goes remarkably well. Mr. A. Gordon Begg is Bombito del Campo; and his son, Thedon Adolfo, efficiently represented by Mr. George Story, is quite an interesting character, the leading part he takes in the pretty songs "The telephone" and "Hullo! people!" constituting him quite a favourite. Two of the funniest characters in the piece are Reginald Brown, the yacht's boy, represented by Mr. Tom Seymour, and Nix, bo'sun of the Wasp, played by Mr. H. C. Barry. The way in which Mr. Seymour sings "Filibuster Brown" and "How did the bird know that?" brings down the house. Miss Hebe Bliss scores effectively as Consuelo, Bombito's niece. Her song "I'm a Cuba girl" is nicely rendered, and her general style is pleasing. Miss Helen Langton acts with admirable effect as Isabelita, Bombito's sister; Miss Maud Lennard is a pleasing Teresa; Miss Gladys Guy is a charming Anita; and others in the cast are Miss Maud Seymour (a fortune-teller), Miss Elsie Deighton, Miss Jose Sullivan, Miss Kathleen Haddon, Miss Beryl Gordon, Miss Rosa Sullivan, Mr. Frank Scaley, Mr. Harry Campbell, Mr. Henry Holland, and Mr. James Davis.

A COPY of "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the council meeting, held at 353, Strand, on Tuesday, Jan. 19. Present:—Mr. Clarence Derwent (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. F. Morland, Clive Currie, Chris Walker, Robson Paige, J. Poole Kirkwood, Cecil Brooking, C. F. Collings, Cecil Raleigh, Misses Rose Mathews and Marion Lind, and Mr. Hubert Blount (secretary).

The secretary received instructions to write to a member, drawing his attention to the bye-law providing that a member cannot introduce the same friend more than twelve times in the year.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. It was decided to put up in the room a list of members who have paid their subscriptions up to date.

A letter was read from Mr. Herbert Dansey with reference to starting a play-reading committee, and the secretary received instructions to write and thank Mr. Dansey for his interesting letter, but regretting that the council considered the matter impracticable.

The hon. solicitors reported that they had advised a member, and had received a letter from a member, on whose behalf they would like to take counsel's instructions. Mr. Mote informed the council that he had written to the Income Tax Commissioners with reference to the demand note for £1 3s. 6d., payable on the debenture interest, and it was decided in future to deduct from the debenture interest the tax, and enclose to each debenture-holder a letter explaining, drafted by Mr. Mote.

Mr. Arlton read the Finance Committee's report, which the council adopted.

The council decided that in future the entire agency work be undertaken by the secretary only.

The secretary read a letter from Messrs. Boots, Ltd., expressing their regret at their inability to accede to the proposition that members of the A.A. should continue their subscriptions at the old terms, and received instructions to write another letter to Messrs. Boots, thanking them for their letter, and asking them whether they cannot exempt members of the A.A. from the extra fee of travelling exchange.

The following nominations have been made for the new council:—

Marion F. Lind, proposed by Marion Sterling, seconded by E. Story Gofton.
Frank J. Arlton, proposed by A. Morrice Seaton, seconded by Frank Dexter.
Richard Green, proposed by Dora Levis, seconded by Sylvia Morris.
Langford Reed, proposed by Sylvia Morris, seconded by Dora Levis.
J. Poole Kirkwood, proposed by F. J. Arlton, seconded by Robson Paige.
Frederick Morland, proposed by Robson Paige, seconded by Cecil Raleigh.
Fewlass Llewellyn, proposed by Rose Mathews, seconded by Clarence Derwent.
Lewis Casson, proposed by Frederick Morland, seconded by Robson Paige.
Agnes Imlay, proposed by E. Nolan O'Connor, seconded by William Dexter.
Clarence Derwent, proposed by Fred Grove, seconded by Charles Bruce.
Cyril Cattley, proposed by Clive Currie, seconded by George Bellamy.
Cecil Brooking, proposed by Frank Bayly, seconded by A. Morrice Seaton.
Rose Mathews, proposed by Cecil A. Collins, seconded by Joan Pereira.
Esmond Gilbart, proposed by Fewlass Llewellyn, seconded by Chris Walker.
Sebastian Smith, proposed by Clarence Derwent, seconded by F. J. Arlton.
Fred Annerley, proposed by Clarence Derwent, seconded by F. J. Arlton.
C. F. Collings, proposed by Murri Moncrieff, seconded by Arthur Dennis.
Arthur Applin, proposed by Frederick Morland, seconded by Cecil Brooking.
Robson Paige, proposed by Joan Pereira, seconded by Georgina Hamilton.
Clive Currie, proposed by William Pringle, seconded by Walter Ringham.
Jackson Wilcox, proposed by Cecil Brooking, seconded by Percy Crawford.
Italia Conti, proposed by William Pringle, seconded by R. Mayne-Young.
Cecil Raleigh, proposed by C. F. Collings, seconded by Frederick Morland.
C. Hayden Coffin, proposed by Frederick Morland, seconded by Clarence Derwent.
Helen Haye, proposed by Clarence Derwent, seconded by Cecil Brooking.

The council decided to close the rooms at seven o'clock for the present. It was also decided to place writing material in both rooms, as far as space will permit.

It was decided to institute a "House Committee," in order to arrange the rooms according to the best standard of comfort. The secretary received instructions to write to Misses Bensusan, Harcourt, and Mahone, asking them to serve on this committee, of which Messrs. Arlton, Brooking, and Paige were elected members.

A letter was read from Miss Gilbart, suggesting that concert artists should be eligible as members of the A.A. The secretary received instructions to write to Miss Gilbart, thanking her for her suggestion, and saying that it was under consideration, and would be heard at the general meeting.

Mr. Derwent suggested that the council should send some expression of opinion to the Play Actors on the result of their general meeting, and the secretary received instructions to write to the secretary of the Play Actors to the effect that the council had heard with much pleasure the decision arrived at with regard to the A.A. clause.

Mr. Brooking explained the scheme of "Telewriter," and the secretary received instructions to obtain full particulars of the working.

Bernard Stevens (proposed by J. Dixon Kenwin, seconded by Montagu Wigan), Estelle Wilson Stead (proposed by La Baronne St. Eon, seconded by Clarence Derwent), Mabyn Fay (proposed by J. Dixon Kenwin, seconded by Charles Danvers), Arthur Claremount (proposed by Brember Wills, seconded by Florence Wynn), and Grace W. Denbigh-Russell (proposed by Olivia Glynne, seconded by David Denard) were elected. The council sat until 7.15.

OBJECTIONS TO THE MINIMUM.

Miss Rose Mathews presided at a meeting which was held at the Actors' Association rooms on Sunday to discuss the question of the Minimum Wage.

Mr. FREDERICK MORLAND said his first objection was that the £2 minimum made no provision at all for beginners, and seemed to suggest that anyone, as soon as he or she came on the stage, should be entitled to the £2 minimum. Whether it was a boy who started as an office boy at 10s. a week, or whether it was a young man going into the Army or the Law—in neither case did he expect to earn at once such a wage as would entirely support him. He thought the principle that applied in all other professions was a principle which should apply in their profession. He did not see why they should insist that anyone coming on the stage for the first time, and being given a part, should have a right to claim the minimum in the same way as a person who had had experience. They had no right to expect that managers would undertake to exclude beginners altogether from their companies. They must not expect managers to look after actors' interests. Actors must look after these themselves. They had, perhaps, a right to try and arrange that only a certain number of beginners should be members of a particular company, but these beginners ought to expect a smaller salary than people who had experience. If they separated the £2 minimum and made it stand by itself they were striving after something which would do little or no good; but if they combined with that some demand for a more certain engagement that would be a different thing altogether. If they could make it the rule that the engagement should be for the tour or the run of the piece they would have got in the thin end of the wedge to a more definite engagement. It was the fortnight's notice, which was supposed to be the unwritten law of the profession, which caused such an element of uncertainty. They started off on a tour of ten, fifteen, or twenty weeks, but they had no assurance that their engagement would be longer than three weeks, and it was always open to the management to dismiss them on a fortnight's notice.

It was said that the present system was in favour of the actor who could throw up his engagement for something better; but if actors were going to think merely for themselves their cause was entirely hopeless. They must think of managers as well, and they could not expect a manager to be considerate to the actors if he felt that they would "chuck him up" at the first instance if someone offered them more. To obtain more certainty they might give up their illusory advantage of being able to throw up an engagement at a fortnight's notice. He had another objection to the £2 minimum, and that was this, that it did not really help the poorly paid actor as much as its advocates suggested it would. The real harm that came to their calling was from the cut-throat competition of one worker against another. People sometimes complained that the managers took the man who offered to come for the least money. He would think that hard lines when he found an actor who did not try to get as much as he could out of the managers. The only way to get rid of this was to do away with the competition amongst themselves. How far would this minimum do away with the competition amongst those who were at present badly paid? It was obvious that it would do away with the competition from below. The man who had secured £2 a week would know that no one could come and underbid him for 30s. unless he broke that rule. It would, to a great extent, ensure that the lower paid should not compete amongst themselves. But while the man who was earning £2 was not to reduce his salary to any extent at all, the man who was earning considerably more might. This competition might not affect him much in ordinary tours, but they all knew what summer tours were and summer terms. Let them take such an instance of this of two men, one earning £2 and one £4 or £4 10s. Both had got engagements for the spring and autumn. They finished up their spring engagement in May, and expected to begin again in August, and the manager was looking out for somebody at £2 a week, because in summer they must not expect full terms. The man who was earning £2 a week might not reduce his salary by 1s. The man who was earning £4 might come for as much less as he liked. If a manager was looking out for someone to fill a fair part he might very well say he did not mind running to 10s. more to get the man who earned £4 to play the part, though if neither were allowed to reduce their salary the £2 man would certainly get the engagement. The man who had been earning a good salary, and had been out of work a considerable time, would come and say, "I will come for £2 or £2 10s.," and he was competing against another man who could not reduce his salary at all. The people who were paid the smallest salaries would say that was very unfair. He objected to the £2 minimum because, while it was a hard and fast rule for certain salaries, it was not a hard and fast rule for the salaries above them. Even if they left the people paid up to £2 10s. out of the question altogether they would have competition. People who had good positions on the stage would go and underbid one another in order to get work. He did not see how they were to expect actors and actresses as a body to work whole-heartedly for a reform which would leave them entirely in the position in which they were to-day. When they advocated that no engagement should be taken up in the Agency for less than £2 someone proposed that the Agency should report how many engagements in the last three years had been made for less than £2, and it was stated that seven had been made. Some people seemed to think reform could be obtained by every actor and actress making up their minds they would not work for less than £2. That was perfectly futile. What was the good of a person who never dreamt of taking less than £4 or £5 solemnly recording his determination never to take less than £2? Another suggestion was that not only should they refuse to work for less than £2, but they should refuse to work in companies in which salaries of less than that amount were paid. If that resolution were taken by a large body of actors there would be a great deal of inconvenience. There were questions which concerned all. One of the most burning was payment for matinées and another was payment for rehearsals. While they were rehearsing they had a perfect right to claim that if the manager disposed entirely of their time they should receive payment for it. Payment for matinées was really a question of adjustment of salaries. Managers would not find any very great change in the amount they had to pay out; and actors and actresses would feel in the much more satisfactory position of knowing exactly what they were engaged for, and that everything above that was to be paid at the same ratio. The objections that he held to the £2 minimum, as it had recently been put forward, were:—

1. That it made no provision for beginners, who he did not think ought to claim the salary of a competent actor or actress.

2. That the £2 minimum by itself without a more definite engagement, without their being able to look forward to a certain number of definite weeks of engagement in the course of the year, was very little use, and that therefore while they were striving for a £2 minimum they ought also to strive for more definite assurance of work.

3. That the £2 minimum was unfair if it prevented the badly paid from reducing his salary, while it allowed the better-paid actor to reduce his as much as he liked.

4. That it did not affect the competition amongst better-paid actors, which was one of the greatest evils under which the profession was labouring.

5. That it was a reform which would only benefit a comparatively small part of the profession, which undoubtedly they ought to support as much as possible, but a general reform of the theatrical profession should be wider, and there were burning questions, such as payment for rehearsals and matinées, which should be taken up in any scheme of reforms advocated by the Actors' Association.

The discussion which followed was contributed to by Mr. Langford Reed, Mr. Chris Walker, Miss Davies Webster, Miss Eleanor Gilbart, Mr. C. F. Collings, and Mr. C. Cattley.

Mr. Morland replied, and a vote of thanks to Miss Mathews for presiding was carried unanimously.

AN AMENDMENT SCHEME.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—The minimum wage question is a big one, and to ensure any amount of success we must dig much deeper than has yet been done. It will of necessity entail some troublesome radical change, but I have endeavoured to think out a scheme whereby the change shall be as little as possible, dovetailing it in with our present system. The solution of the difficulty, so that we may obtain an advantage all round that shall be a real one, may be but the adoption of a choice of evils. I think it will be. But what may be an evil at first, may, after all, be a blessing in disguise. But some course must be taken. All that has been said on this subject is no doubt good and sound, taking into consideration the basis from which the start is made. This is the point at issue. In my opinion the basis of all the argument so far is a false one—unsound, unreliable, unbusinesslike—and anything built upon it must come to failure. It is assumed that actors and actresses, in their professional calling, can be dealt with in the capacity of wage earners on a similar basis to that of an ordinary trades union. How is this possible? For in no sense can our work be measured or calculated as can that of an engineer, a boilermaker, or any mechanic. Take any trade you choose connected with trades unionism. Should a master engage a man belonging to the union or otherwise, and that man's work be bad, or inferior, or only just below the standard required, who suffers? The master only who engages him, and who pays him his wages. Bad and inferior mechanical work can seldom be a matter of opinion, but of absolute fact. It can be thrown on the scrap heap, relegated to a lower price for special sale, and is always subject to inspection, alteration, &c., before being put on the market. But this one fact remains: the man who engages the inferior mechanic is the only loser. Now how can our profession be pushed forward on any basis that applies to mechanical work of any kind. As a profession we depend upon the appreciation of the public, as shown by the attendance at the theatres. At the present time that appreciation is very strictly limited. Nothing approaching what it might be. We play to but a very small percentage of the community. Many reasons may be assigned for this, but by far the greatest reason is inherent in our own ranks. Consider the influence of the incompetent, the bad or inferior workman in our midst. His bad work reflects directly on everyone with whom he comes in contact; not only the man who engages him and pays him, but the resident manager of the theatre in which his inferior work is done, and his fellow artists, by reason that his bad work means immediate bad business and discourages good business generally. Where the effect of his bad work ends there is no telling. It has gone out to rankle in the minds of an audience. You cannot exchange it. You cannot throw it on a scrap heap. You cannot lower the price of it and sell it by auction like a pair of boots, a gas stove, or an umbrella. His bad work may curtail the tour or cause it to be abandoned. Thus, unlike the mechanic, he directly interferes with the financial position of his fellow-artist. They require a right to protect themselves from him which no system of trades unionism will give. Bad work with us means bad business, and low salaries must be the rule so long as so much bad business is general. Then consider, the theatre is not an actual necessity to the public. Close all the theatres in the country for a month, six months, or twelve, it would not interfere much with public concern, but merely affect individual interests, and the public would simply laugh at the strike which had brought about the state of affairs. How can it be hoped to improve financially the artistic side of the profession by adopting schemes applicable only to the mechanical side of life, seeing the great difference of responsibility consequent upon bad or inferior work. In the case of the mechanic the loss is individual; in the case of the profession it is general.

It is, of course, no simple task even to suggest a sound practical policy that shall place the profession, so far as individual members are concerned, in a better financial position. That is the object of the £2 minimum idea. In theory the idea is good, of course, but in practice, if attempted on the trades union basis it would carry with it the elements of its own failure, being absolutely impracticable, and would only extend the evil it should seek to remove, viz., the presence of the incompetent in the ranks of the profession. The removal of the incompetent is necessary with a view to better business generally. Some action requires to be taken, and I think there is an alternative policy that would more effectually meet the case than that suggested by a general demand for a £2 minimum, carrying with it the possibility of a strike (for the one without the other is a grotesque absurdity), and realise the general wish without interfering with the salaries of the leading parts, except to increase their value, and without infringing on the domain of the labouring classes, even by the remote possibility of a strike. The root of the evil lies in the indifferent performances given week by week, and consequent limited attendance of the public. The result is obvious. Correct this and automatically you will correct many of the evils from which the profession suffers, particularly artists' salaries and short unremunerative tours. Chaos reigns with us as a profession, and the various sections with identical interests (dependent upon the appreciation and attendance of the public) are working in antagonism to what should be a direct combined effort.

It is necessary to consider the groundwork from which we start, and be sure that we are not working in the dark.

Can it fairly be said:—

1. That the profession is overcrowded.

2. That in its ranks are very many who are incompetent as actors and actresses.

3. That while many of these incompetents hold engagements, many fully qualified by sound ability and experience are lacking employment.

4. That the incompetents obtain and hold their positions by reason of the low figure for which they offer their services, and at which they accept parts.

5. That in consequence of this incompetency the state of business is much below what it might be, and would be, were the incompetent alienated out of the profession.

If all the above can fairly be answered in the affirmative, then there should be no great difficulty, and no time lost, in dealing with the matter, for it is evident that the incompetent is dealing disaster all round. He must be removed, not encouraged, unless he can remove his incompetency.

What brings him in possession of the engagement he is incompetent to fill? It would not be tolerated in any other calling, but is in our profession, and why? There is no one to say "No" to him except the manager who engages him, because he comes cheap. This would not matter if the result of his incompetence fell only on the man who engages him, as in every other business, but it doesn't. It strikes a paralysing blow at everyone connected with the particular production, seeing that it is calculated to, and certainly does, bring about bad business. Then why does the touring manager keep him? He either does not, cannot, or will not, recognise the failure, and there are other secondary difficulties of perhaps a minor character which I need not mention here. Why does the resident-manager engage a company on sharing terms in which the incompetent flourishes? The resident-manager only knows the cast from the day bill supplied, of which he may recognise three, or at most four, of the names, and if he only engaged companies the cast of which he knew to be sound all round, his theatre would be closed six or seven months out of the twelve. I am only speaking of melodramatic companies in the provinces, yet I think it is generally true of most companies. Even in the better-class companies he knows he must not expect too much, and much that is only just passable goes for what is good and sound.

I cannot tell, beyond what I have said, why the touring manager retains the incompetent. All I know is that he does it, and does it persistently, and there is no authority to tell him either that he must not, or that it will pay him better not to do so. But, seeing that it is a matter of direct interest to all concerned, especially the resident-manager for the particular week, there should be such an authority, properly organised, to acquaint the touring manager that not only is a single change desirable in the cast, but that a greater standard of excellence is required before any bookings can be entertained anywhere after a given date. In like manner could a few wholesome complaints be made by the artist and touring manager. The initial step might be taken by the resident-manager through his association, but for several reasons I don't think he will take the first move. He will look after his own interest, and I fear lose sight of the fact that that interest, so far as the attendance of the public is concerned, is bound up in the general interest.—Yours faithfully,

G. L.

ACTORS' UNION.

The usual committee meeting of the Actors' Union took place on the 15th inst., and the following were present:—Messrs. Frank Gerald, James English, Walter L. Rignold, Edward Y. Rae, Henry Bedford, Paul Lovett, E. Howard Templeton, H. Tripp Edgar, Clifford Rean, Langford Reed, Cecil G. Calvert, Robert M. Taylor, and Kenneth Blackmore, secretary. Communications were received from Messrs. F. Rawson Buckley, Frederick P. Loyd, Jerrold Heather, D. Lewin-Mannering, J. Hastings Batson, Edward Chester, Arthur Bawtree, Frank Strickland, George P. Lester, and Bruce Lindley.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The Club scheme was discussed at considerable length, and it was decided that a plebiscite of the members of the Union be taken on the subject.

A proposition that any member wishing to resign should be asked to reconsider his or her decision in view of the benefits likely to arise out of the Club scheme was carried.

Twelve new members were elected.

The secretary reported six engagements settled last week through the Actors' Union agency.

A well-attended meeting of the Actors' Union was held at the White Lion Hotel, Horsefair, Birmingham, on the 14th inst., with Mr. F. Rawson Buckley in the chair. Amongst those who were present were Miss Lily Belding, Mr. Alfred Richards, Mr. Fred W. Goddard, Mr. Herbert Goddard, Mr. Geo. P. Lester, Mr. J. Mackay, Mr. Albert Wainwright, Mr. E. Rayson-Cousens, Miss Leah Marlborough, Miss Edith Hall, and Miss Frances Harold. The Chairman, following the usual custom, opened the meeting by placing before those present the aims and objects of the Union, after which topics of general interest were discussed.

RELIGION AND THE DRAMA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In your last week's issue, under the above heading, appears the report of an interview with Mr. Forbes Robertson, in the course of which he refers to my brother's play, The Servant in the House (produced in America a year ago and still running there), and says of it: "It goes farther than the English mind would tolerate. Certainly the Censor would not sanction it. Even if it could be produced in England by some device on a Monday, the theatre would be empty on the Tuesday," &c.

Allow me to correct Mr. Robertson's first statement. The play has been sanctioned by the Censor; it was duly licensed for England as far back as June, 1907; and, but for the timidity or lack of enterprise of certain managers to whom it was submitted, it would have been produced in London soon after that date. No "devices" therefore, is necessary for its forthcoming production in England.

I do not dispute Mr. Robertson's right to his opinion, but he must be gifted indeed if he can so confidently foretell the verdict of the entire British public. So The Servant in the House is to be permitted just one night's run in England? I scarcely dare to gainsay so dogmatic an assertion; and yet I have known instances of the capricious British public reversing the pre-judgments of the most expert theatrical managers! Mr. Robertson must pardon my excessive hopefulness, and indulge me in the belief that The Servant in the House will merit a slightly better fate in England than he allows for it. I have not played in the piece in America for six months without observing something of its effect upon audiences throughout that country. It has been translated and dramatically represented already in eight or nine European and other countries, and I shall be really quite disappointed if England prove behindhand in what appears to be taking the shape of a universal success.

Mr. Robertson proceeds: "The idea is that an Oriental takes a position as butler in a modern household on the condition that he retains his robes. You see him as the curtain rises. He is laying the table, with his back to the audience. Soon he turns suddenly, and the audience beholds—our Saviour! However reverently it be handled, the idea would shock an English audience."

This again is misleading, although I am far from suggesting that Mr. Robertson intended it to be so. The audience does not behold our Saviour. It sees the Bishop of Benares—long-lost brother of an English vicar and an English working-man, whose ordinary human identity is made quite clear at the outset of the play. The character is not represented on the stage as a re-incarnate Christ (there is no such attempt at the merely sensational "shock" which Mr. Robertson's words may be taken to imply). His actions are emulative of Christ's teaching—a very different matter from physical depiction of Christ on the stage, as in the Passion Play, for instance; and the "Oriental robes" to which Mr. Robertson attaches so much significance, are the natural garb of an Eastern bishop, assumed under no particular "condition"—as the reader of the play (published in book-form in England) can see for himself.

I can assure Mr. Robertson that quite a considerable number of the clergy—Anglican, American, Canadian, and divers sects—have witnessed The Servant in the House, and, far from being "shocked," have borne eloquent testimony to its profound truth and its deep spiritual influence upon humanity at large.—Yours faithfully,

EDMUND KENNEDY.

38, Sydney-road, West Ealing, W.

MR. CHARLES KLEIN, the American playwright, has written a new play, entitled The Third Degree, which deals with certain police methods used for the purpose of extorting confessions from persons accused of crime. The play has proved successful in several of the larger cities outside of New York.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—In your notice of Her Forbidden Marriage last week at Yarmouth you say that Mr. Leslie Nutter was a funny Jenkins. It should have read—Yours faithfully, JACK STEWART. Royalty Theatre, Chester, Jan. 19.

PLOTS AND PLAGIARISMS.

A correspondent who is by no means satisfied with the decision in the recent Amasis case, sends us scenarios of the plots of the two plays for comparison by our readers:—

"SON OF THE SUN."

Mentah, a brigand chief, abducts Ta-Ta, daughter of the King of Egypt. Her lover, Muimui, is condemned because he has killed a sacred cat. The cat, however, was not killed, but is in possession of Mentah. Muimui is granted seven days to find the Princess, as anyone finding her can claim her for his bride.

The brigands take Ta-Ta to their cave, which Muimui, with his elderly sister, enters in searching for her. They are both made prisoners, but Muimui and Ta-Ta are released to obtain a ransom, while the sister is held as hostage. The brigands send word to Amen-Amen, the High Priest, who wishes to marry the Princess, and has designs on the throne, that the Princess can be ransomed for 4,000 golden rings. He brings the money, and has the elderly sister palmed off on him.

Mentah, disguised as a priest, arrives at the Temple first and befools the King. Then Ta-Ta and her lover arrives, and also Amen-Amen with Phyrana, when Amen-Amen discovers he has been deceived. Mentah is then discovered and condemned to death, but is saved by Phyrana on condition that he marries her. Mentah discloses that the cat was not killed.

"AMASIS."

Prince Anhotep arrives at Memphis, where there is great rejoicing, as he is to marry Amasis, Pharaoh's daughter. Amasis is secretly loved by Cheiro, a scribe. Anhotep confides in Amasis that he has killed a sacred cat, the penalty for which is death. He eventually admits killing the cat, and the populace demand his death, and he is eventually sentenced.

Cherito, in order to save the life of Anhotep, declares that he killed the cat, the consequence is that he gets condemned to death as well.

Ptolemy, the Court embalmer, endeavours to embalm the Sacred Cat by a patent process, which kills him, and Pharaoh decrees that Ptolemy's death is sufficient to justify Anhotep and Cheiro being pardoned.

Cleophar eventually produces the cat embalmed, which, however, has been killed by drinking poisoned milk, which Bosibus was about to kill himself with, but he is prevented by Princess Plasterpoms, who induces him to marry her to save his life. Pharaoh pardons Bosibus, but makes him pay various marriage taxes.

Pharaoh takes Phizz for his wife.

Mr. Adrian Ross, in an article in the World says: "The recent decision of the Amasis case has again called attention to the dangers of plagiarism that are incurred by playwrights, and still more to the peril of an action for plagiarism that besets innocent authors. The cases that have been tried bearing on the subject have been generally most unsatisfactory in their course and result. There is hardly any dispute that is more likely to lead to unjust verdicts, except, perhaps, the familiar action for breach of promise of marriage. The average judge knows very little of the signs of plagiarism as distinguished from accidental similarity; the average juryman knows less than nothing. The Cingalee case showed the latter fact; the Amasis case, with all respect to the learned judge, gave some proof of the former point. . . .

"I confess that in the Amasis case I should have considered it a stronger evidence of plagiarism if the sacred animal on whose murder the two plays turned had been a cat in one and a crocodile in the other, and if parallel lyrics had not alluded to the proverbial nine lives of the victim. Anybody thinking of the consequences of killing a sacred animal would select the cat for treatment in ancient Egypt as naturally as the cow in India; and only if these creatures were already engaged would he substitute a crocodile in the one case and a peacock, perhaps, in the other. Similarly, anyone treating the death of a cat in a humorous manner would at once recall the proverb 'Care killed a cat,' and with it the adage about the nine lives. If he had just seen a lyric embodying the same idea he would probably try to devise something less hackneyed..

"Now, if the author of Amasis had made the corpus delicti a crocodile, but treated it with humour inappropriately feline, the inference against him would have been really strong. That is what the average man does not see. People do not plagiarise matter so much as treatment. When a manufacturer sets out to steal a patent, he imitates the process, not the actual material employed. If the patent is worked with nitrate of soda, he tries to imitate its results with nitrate of potash. If the liqueur is made with brandy, he uses whisky. Of course, an unskilful plagiarist simply steals the whole—merits, defects, and all. He has not enough technical skill to disguise what he has taken. A change of title and of the names of characters is enough for him. But the similarities alleged between plays in actions for plagiarism are usually either the unimportant details that no thief would leave in the stolen property, or the broad features that are alike in countless plays of the same type. . . .

"I remember two musical pieces coming out within a fortnight of each other. The first two lines of a song in each were identical in melody and harmony. One song was by Sir Arthur Sullivan: luckily for the other composer his work appeared first, or he would have been charged with plagiarism. I wrote part of the libretto of an opera a good many years ago and showed it to several managers. Since then I have seen, and even collaborated in, more than one piece embodying some of the main ideas of my hitherto unpublished effort. If my original collaborator had been approached by a speculative solicitor or a volunteer dramatic detective, and had listened to the tempter, I tremble to think what might have occurred. Fortunately, he is of so robust an intellect that I should rather tremble for the tempter.

"There is dramatic plagiarism, but it is not generally done by copying. There have been managers whom it was unsafe to trust with an original idea or striking situation; they would return the play and give the scene or idea to be worked out by an inexpensive hack. Apart from this, there is, and always has been, far more accidental similarity than conscious imitation. Subjects are 'in the air,' like inventions. Plagiarism, where it exists, is an evil, and should be put down; a wrong, and should be redressed. But the judgment on it should be that of experts who really know how it is done."

THE RICHARD WALTON CASE.

Mrs. Richard Walton, of 4, Regent-road, Bedminster, Bristol, wishes to return thanks for the appeal in The Era on her behalf. The following sums have been thankfully received:—

	£	s.	d.
A. B. F.	5	0	0
Will Haggar, jun.	2	0	0
W. Haggar, sen.	1	0	0
Miss H. Brinckman ....parcel and	0	10	6
Mr. Ed. Ebley	0	5	0
Mrs. Emanuel	0	2	6

MASTER PHILIP TONGE, who is playing in Pinkie and the Fairies at His Majesty's, has never played Little Lord Fauntleroy, as recently stated in a contemporary.

A FEW days since, through the kindness of Mr. Fred Mouillot and Mr. H. W. Rowland, the old folks from the Workhouse at Folkestone were present at the pantomime Robinson Crusoe at the Pleasure Gardens Theatre. The party, numbering 200, were entertained at tea, and presents of tobacco, tea, and sugar were distributed.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM, when passing through Paris en route for Berlin, bought the English rights of Emile Fabre's latest play, Les Vainqueurs, produced at the Théâtre Antoine in November. When the adaptation is performed Sir Charles himself will sustain the principal part, which was created in Paris by M. Gemier. The hero, Pierre Legrand, an ambitious barrister, sacrifices his domestic happiness to his ambition. M. Gemier in his performance recalled some of the most famous French counsel.

AT a meeting of the Shakespeare Memorial Executive Committee, which was held on Thursday at the Mansion House under the presidency of the Lord Mayor, the reports of the two sub-committees appointed to examine the theatre proposal and to form a scheme for an appeal to the public for funds were adopted, and further matters affecting the movement were adjourned. The Executive Committee has agreed to the theatre scheme, but the matter has yet to go before the general meeting.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER will preside at the annual general meeting of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, which will be held at the Criterion Theatre on Thursday next, at twelve o'clock noon. Sir Charles Wyndham, the president, who was announced to occupy the chair is unavoidably detained abroad.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY has bought the English rights of André Rivoir's four-act drama Le Bon Roi Dagobert, which was produced at the Comédie-Française last October. The Dagobert of the play is young, a great sportsman, but fickle, and so hare-brained that on his wedding-day, whilst deer-stalking, he forgets all about his fiancée, a Spanish princess, and arrives at the palace only just in time to throw an embroidered cloak over his hunting garments to appear decently in church. Yet the Princess does not at all mind his being late. In fact, she would have been delighted had he stayed away altogether, for she is—or fancies herself—in love with one of her cousins, and has sworn to remain faithful to him. Whilst waiting for the King, she informs Eloi, the Prime Minister, that she intends to keep her promise, and therefore wants to return home.

ELOI, dreading political complications, then hits upon a strange stratagem. He prevails upon Nantilde, a young girl employed in the palace, and who has lost her heart to Dagobert, to impersonate the Queen during the night; and he bamboozles his royal master in the belief that an oracle ordains that he (the monarch) must, after he has retired to his apartment, keep the place in darkness whilst he is with the Queen and withdraw from the room before daybreak. This queer arrangement works well during two days, and then the unexpected happens. The young Queen, forgetting her cousin and her promise, suddenly becomes jealous of Nantilde, and insists on taking her place that same night.

THE two ladies meet the King in the darkened room. The bewildered sovereign then has his suspicions, and, calling on his people to bring torches, discovers that he has been fooled. In his wrath he sends his wife back to her father, and orders little Nantilde to be hanged on the nearest tree. But the good-natured Eloi does not carry out that cruel sentence, and smuggles the girl into a convent. A few days later the King accidentally finds out Nantilde's retreat; and as he also discovers that it is she whom he loves, he makes her Queen of the Franks.

DIANA'S didactic declamations on the petty tyrannies of the "living-in" system seem to have attracted even more attention on their second than on their first deliverance, and the complete success of the revival of Diana of Dobson's at the Kingsway Theatre will incline Miss Lena Ashwell, when she needs a new play, to follow this comedy by another, instead of by a serious piece—as has been unauthoritatively suggested. Miss Ashwell has, indeed, already accepted as a successor to Diana, a clever and unconvenional comedy at present called The Truants, by Wilfred T. Coleby, whose work has previously met with marked success at the Kingsway. It touches lightly on one or two much-discussed subjects, and presents Miss Ashwell herself in the entirely new rôle of a distinguished lady traveller and authoress.

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES has decided upon Our Miss Gibbs as the title of the new musical play which he produces at the Gaiety to-night. "Cryptos" is the name assumed by the author of the book, the construction having been left in the hands of Mr. James T. Tanner. The lyrics are by Mr. Adrian Ross and Mr. Percy Greenbank, and Mr. Ivan Caryll and Mr. Lionel Monckton have been entrusted with the music. Old Gaiety favourites return with to-night's production, Miss Gertie Millar and Mr. Edmund Payne having the leading parts. In the cast are also found Messrs. George Grossmith, jun., O. B. Clarence, Robert Hale, Arthur Hatherton, J. Edward Fraser, J. A. Evelyn, F. Payne, and H. B. Burcher; and Misses Denise Orme, Jean Aylwin, Gladys Homfrey, Maisie Gay, Kitty Mason, Olive May, Adeline Balfe, Rosie Begarnie, Gladys Cooper, Julia James, Enid Leslie, Crissy Bell, Suzanne Selbourne, and Gertie Thornton.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER will revive The Prisoner of Zenda, with Miss Stella Patrick Campbell as Princess Flavia, at the conclusion of the run of The Builder of Bridges at the St. James's Theatre. The late Edward Rose's adaptation of Anthony Hope's story was produced at that house on Jan. 7, 1896, with Mr. Alexander as Rudolf Rassendyll, Mr. Herbert Waring as Duke Michael, Mr. W. H. Vernon as Colonel Sapte, Miss Evelyn Millard as Princess Flavia, and Miss Lily Hanbury as Antoinette.

MR. LEWIS WALLER will produce The Chief of Staff, a play in four acts by Ronald Macdonald, at the Lyric on Tuesday, Feb. 2. Mr. Waller will have the part of a colonel of a republican State of South America, and strong support will be furnished by Mr. William Haviland, Mr. A. E. George, Mr. Shiel Barry, Mr. Cronin Wilson, Mr. S. J. Warmington, Mr. Reginald Dane, Mr. Caton Woodville, Mr. George Courtney, Mr. Patrick Digan, Miss Auriol Lee, Miss Evelyn D'Alroy, and Miss Madge Titheradge.

MRS. LANGTRY has completed the novel on which she has for some time been engaged, and the work will make its appearance both in serial and book form. The title is "All at Sea," and the book is about 75,000 words in length. The novel will be signed both as Lady de Bathe and as Lily Langtry.

MR. BRANDON THOMAS has decided to postpone the revival of Good for Nothing, as Charley's Aunt is being played twice daily at the Aldwych Theatre, and the strain of additional rehearsals is too great. The stage, moreover, is required every morning for another production.

MISS EVELYN MILLARD will, at the end of the month, transfer The Adventure of Lady Ursula to the Criterion Theatre, commencing her season there on Monday, Feb. 1. Robert Hichens' new play, which it has been decided to call The Real Woman, will be produced later on. The cast will be a powerful one, as Miss Millard has already secured the support of Mr. Allan Aynesworth, Mr. Herbert Waring, and Mr. Henry Ainley.

MISS DECIMA MOORE'S success on the variety stage has equalled her achievements on the theatrical boards. Her recent appearance at the Tivoli, Manchester, was a triumph. First she sang a song, "Violets and roses," then she gave a recitation, "Riding through the broom," with orchestral accompaniment, and afterwards a dainty ditty with a whistling chorus, concluding with that ever-popular ditty "A husband's plea." The Manchester Guardian says of her variety début: "Miss Decima Moore's art—she excels in cameo work—does not suffer by such an entertainment as that which she is giving at the Tivoli, and the audience must benefit by an entertainment that is not only diverting but educative in good taste. Little songs charmingly sung, little recitations in which words are treated as things of beauty and thoughts are interpreted as much by play of face and dainty gesture as by speech, little carols whistled with the sweetness of a linnet's trilling—these are what Miss Decima Moore offers, and she won the audience on Monday to express themselves rapturously."

MISS EMMA AND MR. PERCY HUTCHISON have commenced their spring tour auspiciously. Their No. 1 London company of Lady Frederick opened at the Opera House, Cheltenham, on Monday to magnificent business. The cast includes such well-known names as Miss Eleanor Delaporte and Mr. Robert Minster, both sharing the honours in Mr. Somerset Maugham's brilliant success.

FOLLOWING Lady Frederick yet another of the Hutchison's acquisitions, namely Idols, the great Garrick success, will be presented at the Cheltenham theatre on Monday for the first time in the English provinces, the staging and entire production being under the personal supervision of Mr. Percy Hutchison, who is also playing to colossal business with Brewster's Millions. Miss Emma Hutchison, who is on tour with another London triumph, Mrs. Dot, reports excellent returns and enthusiastic receptions en route. Two new plays, it may be added, have been acquired by this enterprising management.

MRS. KENDAL, president of the Actresses' Franchise League, took the chair at the first general meeting of members on the 15th inst. at Miss Winifred Mayo's, 93, Oakley-street, and made a most interesting and amusing speech, in the course of which she cheered her audience, composed exclusively of actresses, by telling them "man is improving!" She also said he objected to women having the vote because they would at once become men, would never have any more children, and would cease washing! In a spirit, one must fear, of wickedness, she tentatively suggested there might be an age limit for the franchise—say, no vote before thirty. Amidst a storm of laughter, one pretty girl of about three-and-twenty was heard to express a fear that under such circumstances no actress would ever be able to vote.

IT was announced that the next public meeting for members and their friends would be held on Friday, Feb. 5, at three o'clock in Clifford's Inn Hall, Fleet-street, and that Mrs. Marion Holmes would be the principal speaker. At the close of the meeting Mrs. Forbes Robertson proposed a vote of thanks to Mrs. Kendal for so kindly taking the chair, and it was seconded by Miss Decima Moore. Miss Edith Craig proposed a vote of thanks to Miss Mayo for lending her drawing-room, and it was seconded by Miss Adeline Bourne.

MR. F. R. BENSON will produce a new one-act play written by his wife and Mr. H. O. Nicholson in the course of his forthcoming season at the Coronet Theatre. The piece is entitled A Midnight Bridal, and is adapted from Mr. Halliwell Sutcliffe's story. The scene is laid near Edinburgh, after the battle of Culloden.

MRS. MAT ROSSON, widow of the once-popular comedian, passed peacefully away at her residence on Sunday. For several years she was leading lady under her husband's management at Sadler's Wells, Astley's, and the Holborn Theatres, and in her earlier days she played lead with Barry Sullivan, Samuel Emery, Charles Pitt, and many other stars of that time. Latterly she was with Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer, playing Queen in Hamlet, Nurse in Romeo and Juliet, Mrs. Candour, Mrs. Hardcastle, Cornelia Carlyle, &c., and for some time she played the Duchess in Proof with Mr. and Mrs. Maclaren. Her last engagement was with Mr. T. Arthur Jones in The Girl of My Heart.

MR. SEYMOUR HICKS'S new musical play, The Dashing Little Duke, is being busily rehearsed, and will be produced at the Hicks Theatre on Feb. 17, after a week's preparatory run at Nottingham. Miss Ellaline Terriss will play the principal part, and will be supported by Mr. C. Hayden Coffin and Mr. Courtice Pounds. One of the scenes is laid at Versailles, in a room in the Palace, and we may expect a very pretty and picturesque spectacle.

MR. ARTHUR COLLINS was entertained to supper by his staff on Tuesday night. On the following morning the esteemed managing-director of Drury Lane Theatre left London for California, where his wife is staying.

MESSRS. CHARLES ROGERS and W. E. Wilson have decided to tour the sensational drama The Ladder of Life this spring.

THE report that Mr. Charles Boult, the popular general-manager of Messrs. Little and D'Arcy's The Forty Thieves pantomime, had been waylaid and robbed whilst returning home from the theatre at Coatbridge, on the night of the 15th inst., caused much consternation amongst Mr. Boult's many friends in the theatrical world. We are glad to be able to contradict the report, as Mr. Boult is perfectly well, and his money is quite safe.

THE matinée of Dorothy, to be given at the Waldorf on Tuesday, in aid of the Lord Mayor's Mansion House Fund for the sufferers in the recent Italian earthquake, will be under the patronage of H.S.H. Prince Alexander of Teck and other distinguished people. The Lord Mayor and Sheriffs will attend in State. All the principals, including Mr. C. Hayden Coffin, Miss Constance Drever, Mr. Arthur Williams, Miss Louie Pounds, Mr. John Bardsley, Miss Coralie Blythe, Mr. Lempriere Pringle, Miss Emily Spiller, Miss Betty Hardress, and chorus of sixty voices are giving their services.

MESSRS. E. D. and J. MAUNDY-GREGORY have taken a further lease of the Waldorf Theatre, where Dorothy is making a pronounced success. Messrs. Maundy-Gregory have in hand two musical plays, which will be produced in due course with the best cast possible.

"THIS WOMAN AND THIS MAN," a play in three acts, by Avery Hopwood, was produced for copyright purposes at the Bijou Theatre, Bayswater, on Monday, Jan. 18.

"A HIGHWAYMAN BOLD," a comic opera, in two acts, the words, lyrics, and songs by Harry Corrin and Bert Harding, and the music by Bert Harding, was produced for copyright purposes at the Hippodrome, St. Helens, on Tuesday.

A COMPETITION of a curious character has just taken place in Paris, violins being played behind a screen by well-known artists, in order to test the merits of the instruments. The result was that the prize was awarded to a violin by Bernaedel, a Stradivarius being second, and a Vuillaume third.

MR. FRANK CURZON will produce his new play An Englishman's Home at Wyndham's on Wednesday next. The author, appropriately enough, bears the pseudonym of "A Patriot."

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN, who has been far from well lately, is taking a longer holiday than usual. Mr. Norman, who is very fond of field sports in his leisure time, has been spending part of his vacation shooting in the West of England.

THE funeral of the late Mr. Arthur à Becket took place on Monday, the first part of the service being held in the Catholic Cathedral, Westminster. After the benediction on Sunday night the coffin was placed in the chapel of the Holy Souls, in the cathedral, and the following morning it was removed to the nave, where it was placed on a catafalque covered with a black pall on which was embroidered a white cross. At the base were placed a number of wreaths sent by members of the family, by the Institute of Journalists, and the staff of Punch. A Requiem Mass was sung with Gregorian music, Father Brown being the celebrant. After the service in the cathedral the body was taken by road to Mortlake, where it was interred in the Catholic cemetery.

THE next production of the Incorporated Stage Society will be a translation from the Russian of Turgenieff, together with a translation of I Diritti dell' anima, a one-act play by Guiseppe Giacosa.

MISS ANNIE HUGHES'S name in private life is Mrs. Fitzmaurice Lenon, not Tenon, as incorrectly given in our last issue.

THE Dramatic Productions Club have selected for their third essay a play in three acts, entitled Strangers Within the Gates, by Mr. H. C. M. Hardinge. It will be produced at the Court Theatre on Sunday evening, Feb. 7, and on the following afternoon at a special matinée, which is open to the public. The cast will be a strong one, and will include Mr. Malcolm Cherry, Miss Amy Brandon Thomas, Miss Maude Millett, Mr. Fred Lewis, Mr. A. E. Anson, Miss Blanche Stanley, Miss Granville, Mr. O. P. Heggie, and Mr. Douglas Homer. The action, which is begun in a hayfield on a Saturday, is carried to a garden, and is ended in a Rectory morning-room on Sunday afternoon. The play will be produced by Mr. Franklin Dyall.

MRS. PATRICK CAMPBELL wears only one dress in the new play Olive Latimer's Husband at the Vaudeville, but that one is of singular beauty. Over a close-fitting silver tissue under-robe is posed a dalmatic of black tulle, opened at one side to show the silhouette of the under-dress. The dalmatic is outlined with an embroidery of bright and smoked diamonds and opals, while the corsage of the under-robe is closely sewn with sparkling embroideries to match, giving the effect of a cuirass veiled by the black tulle over-dress. The sleeves are made of tulle to fit the arms as far as the elbows, with an edging of sparkling diamanté embroidery. Mrs. Campbell wears no ornament in her beautiful dark hair, but in her corsage is tucked a bunch of violets of two colours—palest Parma and deepest purple.

MISS HELEN FERRERS as Mrs. Finch is seen robed in a stately evening toilette of green velvet, with shoulder straps of diamonds, and a V-shaped décolletage, outlined by a white tulle modestie. The long cream lace sleeves are latticed down the back of the arms, and a single and very large purple anemone is worn at the waist. At the left side of the skirt there is just a touch of diamanté embroidery, in the form of straps that catch the draperies together.

MISS DAGMAR WIEHE looks charmingly girlish and pretty in an evening dress in shades of anemone pink and faintest mauve satin charmeuse. A short-waisted effect is given to the frock, which is trimmed with very beautiful white Irish "bébé" guipure, arranged in a long panel upon the skirt tapering off at the sides. The loosely-draped sleeves are caught in at the elbows, but separate to show the arms almost from the shoulders downward. The delicate mingling of faintest mauve with the pink of the robe in the form of a waist-band, with long ends gathered under diamanté buckles, which fall at the sides nearly to the hem of the skirt, gives an exquisite finish to the toilette.

THE ranks of the Follies at the Apollo will be strengthened on Monday by the return of Miss Gwennie Mars and Miss Effie Cook from Manchester, where they have been appearing with great success. Miss Mars brings with her a new song, "I love the Yankees," in which she gives an imitation of Mr. Harry Lauder.

MESSRS. A. AND S. GATTI will put on at the Vaudeville Theatre this afternoon, in front of Olive Latimer's Husband, a new one-act comedy, by Keble Howard, called The Dramatist at Home. Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Faber will play the two parts in the little piece.

THE Oxford University Dramatic Society will give performances of The Frogs of Aristophanes on Wednesday, Feb. 17, and following evenings, with the addition of several matinées. Sir Hubert Parry's music, composed for the 1892 production, will be employed.

THE English Drama Society will give performances of Robert Browning's Pippa Passes at the Fortune Playhouse, Brewer-street, on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday next week, with Miss Lucy Wilson as Ottima, Mr. Gordon Bailey as Sebald and Jules, Mr. Roderic MacLeod as Gottlieb, Mr. Guy Fletcher as Luigi, and Miss Lola Duncan as the Mother, and Miss Isabel Roland as Pippa.

As the result of an amalgamation between Messrs. Warden, Ltd., and the Belfast Hippodrome, Ltd., the Palace Theatre, Belfast, which has for some four years been devoted to variety performances, is about to revert to its old love and its former title of Grand Opera House. The theatre will be closed for one week at the termination of the pantomime Jack and Jill, so that renovations may be effected, and will re-open on Feb. 1 with Miss Ada Reeve in Butterflies.

THE Crystal Palace Bill has been passed by the Parliamentary examiners, and will be sent for first reading when Parliament assembles. The Bill enables the Crystal Palace Company to borrow £50,000 from the Public Works Loan Commissioners for the repair and improvement of the structure of the Palace, and also to borrow moneys for the redemption and discharge of all or any part of the Debenture stocks.

THE Lord Mayor presided at a meeting of Mayors and Town Clerks of the South London boroughs held at the Mansion House on Wednesday, to consider the future of the Crystal Palace. Nine out of the ten Mayors of South London were present, the company also including Mr. Ernest Schenk, chairman of the Crystal Palace Board, and Mr. Louis Sinclair, managing-director. After a long discussion, a resolution was unanimously carried in favour of the Crystal Palace being secured to the public in perpetuity as a national institution. It was further decided that full details of the proposals submitted to the executive committee formed at the Mansion House some time last year should be furnished to each Borough Council for its consideration, prior to the promised interview with the Prime Minister, the date of which is not yet fixed.

THE American production of Messrs. Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton's Drury Lane drama, The Sins of Society, will take place under the direction of Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger, at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, on March 1, with Mr. Vincent Clive—whose fine performance in The Marriages of Mayfair will be remembered—Mr. Oscar Adye, Miss Lucy Sibley, and Mr. W. L. Abingdon in the cast.

WE regret to record the death of Jenny Mason, niece of the late Charles Mathews and Mme. Vestris, who passed peacefully away at 17, St. James's-road, Brixton, on Saturday last in her seventy-second year. Miss Mason made her first appearance at the Lyceum under the management of her aunt and uncle. She was the Fairy Queen at Drury Lane for ten years in succession under the management of the late E. T. Smith. Amongst the other theatres at which she appeared were Covent Garden, Her Majesty's, Olympic, Strand, Astley's, Surrey Gardens, Old Cremorne, and many others. In 1857 she married the late Chas. Watkins, the celebrated photographer of Parliament-street, Westminster. She leaves two sons and a daughter to mourn her loss. The latter, Effie Mason, will be remembered as Little Buttercup of the Children's Pinafore Co., and also as Pitti-Sing in The Mikado. The funeral took place on Thursday at the Lambeth Cemetery, Tooting.

ENTHUSIASTIC scenes were witnessed on the last night of Mr. Wentworth Croke's first annual pantomime, Red Riding Hood, at the Lyric Opera House, Hammersmith. The pantomime was one of the most successful in suburban London, and every possible effort was made to continue the run, as the capacity of the house was taxed at every performance; but the pantomime was booked for three weeks in the provinces, and it was found impossible to cancel the bookings. Miss Kittee Rayburn made a great hit as the Prince, and was on the last night presented with no less than twenty floral tokens.

DURING the Palace scene Mr. Wentworth Croke appeared on the stage in answer to loud applause, and said:—"Ladies and gentlemen, after such a brilliant and amusing evening's entertainment I am quite sure you won't want to be bored with a speech, so I will be brief. First of all let me thank you all for your presence here to-night, and at the same time hope that I may see you all here this time next year. Secondly, let me thank you most heartily and sincerely for the way in which you have received my first annual Lyric pantomime. Before wishing you good-night, I should like to take you into my confidence, and tell you that through the courtesy of a brother manager we have secured the services of the best of principal boys for my next year's pantomime, your old and great favourite, Miss Kittee Rayburn. Ladies and gentlemen, not good-bye, but au revoir."

THE curtain had to be raised at least twelve times after the performance, and then, although the band had played "The King," and the fire-proof curtain had been lowered, the audience refused to leave the theatre until Miss Kittee Rayburn reappeared and spoke a few words of thanks for the wonderful reception she had had. Next Christmas Mr. Croke intends that his Hammersmith pantomime shall be even bigger and better, and he will run it entirely himself. Moreover, he will provide that it shall have at least six weeks' run.

IN order to celebrate the great success of Mr. Wentworth Croke's first pantomime at the Lyric Opera House, Hammersmith, a supper and ball were given at the Broadway Hall on the 14th inst. The chair was taken at midnight by Mr. Croke, who had travelled from Liverpool to be present, and he was supported by the entire pantomime company and the staff of the theatre. Many nice things were said by the heads of departments, and Miss Kittee Rayburn responded on behalf of the artists. After supper dancing began, and was kept up until the early hours of the morning.

MME. MELBA will sing in Naples in aid of the fund for the relief of sufferers by the earthquake. The famous diva arrived in England on Wednesday by the Campania, and during the passage, at a concert in the saloon on behalf of the Liverpool charities for seamen and their orphans, Mme. Melba played accompaniments to several songs. The concert realised £80, half of which was obtained by the sale of Mme. Melba's autograph photographs.

MR. A. VALENZA has opened a studio for voice production at 64, Via Tarsia a Piazza Dante, Naples. Three of the pupils of Signor Valenza at the School of Music he had in partnership with Signor Tito Mattei have decided to go over next month, with the object of continuing their training under his tuition. The number of English-speaking pupils studying in Naples is largely on the increase, and it is evident that students are beginning to appreciate the fact that the best place to improve the voice is where they can breathe pure sea and mountain air, and where the temperature never exceeds the limits of a charming and soothing mildness.

THE continued success of Little Lord Fauntleroy at the Court Theatre has induced Miss Mouillot to continue the matinées of this delightful play till the end of the month.

MR. PENNINGTON-GUSH has been engaged by Mr. Ernest Carpenter to play Ross Christian in the suburban tour of Pete with Mr. Matheson Lang and the Lyceum company. The tour commences on Feb. 1 at Dalston.

WE understand that Mr. Francis Laidler, the enterprising lessee of the Prince's Theatre, Bradford, has taken over from Mr. Walter Reynolds the Theatre Royal, Leeds, and that Mr. N. Hepworth, Mr. Laidler's able lieutenant at Bradford, is to be the resident-manager.

AT the Gaiety Theatre, Hastings, between four and five p.m. on Monday afternoon, the men engaged on the stage setting scenes for Mr. Walter Howard's Prince and the Beggar Maid, that day arrived, noticed smoke in the flies, and investigation discovered dense smoke under the stage. They at once lowered the fire-curtain, connected the hose, and found some shavings had ignited in the carpenters' shop, which were immediately extinguished without recourse to outside aid. The whole incident began and ended within twenty minutes, but someone had telephoned to the fire brigade, who, with commendable promptness, were soon on the scene. A crowd of some two or three thousand people collected outside the building, and excitement ran high as Mr. Scutt, the local manager, arrived on the scene. He was dining when the hasty news reached him, and, reaching the stage-door with difficulty through the crowd, received the only real damage, personally, for, slipping on the hose in the dark, he fell heavily on some other obstruction, breaking a tooth and spraining his hand. Every credit is due to both Mr. Scutt and his staff for their promptness in dealing with the emergency, as also to the local fire brigade for its readiness had help been required.

MESSRS. JAY AND MANN have secured from Mr. Frank Curzon certain touring rights in King of Cadonia. Their first tour will start August Bank Holiday next.

AT the Royal Academy of Music the Sainton scholarship (for violin) has been awarded to William Hubert Davies, a native of Aberaychan, Jean Stewart Norwell being commended. The adjudicators were Messrs. Josef Blaha, W. Frye Parker, and Hans Wessely (chairman). The George Mence Smith scholarship (for male vocalists) was secured by Gordon Albert Yates, a native of London. The adjudicators were Messrs. Walter Mackway, Thomas Meux, and Richard Cummings (chairman).

MR. G. BRYDON PHILLIPS'S Puss in Boots pantomime terminated a very successful engagement last Saturday at the Royalty Theatre, Chester. The bookings during the run were greatly in excess of his previous production, Little Red Riding Hood, although the run was just on a week shorter.

MR. EDWARD CRANSTON has sustained a severe loss by the death of his father, Charles Nosotti, at the age of seventy-eight. Although not in the theatrical profession all his life, he had taken a keen interest in it. He was a valued friend of the late Charles Kean, and numbered among his many acquaintances the late John Toole, Wilson Barrett, Dion Boucicault, the Le Clercqs, and the Swanboroughs, besides being well known in theatrical circles of the present day. He was full of reminiscences, and only a few weeks ago, meeting Miss Ellen Terry, he told her he had nursed her when a baby, whereupon the distinguished actress invited him to call upon her and talk over old times.

"THE BABES IN THE WOOD" at the King's, Hammersmith, is still attracting large audiences both at matinées and evening performances. Miss Winnie Browne, the popular and charming principal boy, is a great favourite, especially with the children. She has received hundreds of letters from juvenile admirers since the run of the pantomime commenced. Mr. James A. Watts is scoring all along the line as the Dame; his impersonation being decidedly clever.

MR. WILFRED COTTON'S principal Butterflies company terminated a four weeks' engagement at the Royalty Theatre, Glasgow, on Saturday, amidst great enthusiasm. Floral tributes were showered upon the ladies of the company. Mr. J. A. Robertson, the gifted composer of the music, had an ovation when he entered the orchestra. Mr. Louis Bradfield and his confrères were cheered to the echo; Miss Phyllis Monkman had to repeat her Papillon dance three times and at the fall of the curtain the audience linked hands and sang in true Scottish fashion "Should auld acquaintance be forgot."

THE hockey club run by the members of Mr. Norman V. Norman's company finished a most successful half-season at Christmas. Seventeen matches were played, of which ten were won and seven lost, forty-six goals being scored by the team and thirty-one against. The team was very successfully captained by Mr. Reginald P. Lamb.

THE annual supper and dance in connection with the Belfast pantomime was held (by permission of Mr. Fred W. Warden) in Ye Olde Castle on Wednesday night last. The guests included Mr. Fred W. Warden (managing-director, Grand Opera House and Theatre Royal, Belfast), Mr. James M. McCann (acting-manager, Theatre Royal, Belfast), Mr. W. S. Salmond (acting-manager, Palace, Belfast), Mr. B. G. MacLachlan (Manager for Messrs. Stoll), Miss Dorothy Ward (principal boy, Palace pantomime), Miss Kitty Baughton, Miss Ethel Ramsay, Mr. E. Elkan, and Mr. George Brooks. A merry party assembled in the King's Hall at midnight and enjoyed a recherché supper. Dancing commenced about 1 a.m., the music being supplied in first-class style by Messrs. Quilliam, Doherty, and Murphy, and was indulged in until 5 a.m., Mr. James M. McCann acting efficiently as "M.C." The entire proceedings were most enjoyable, and not a little of the success was due to Mr. James M. McCann, the popular manager of the Theatre Royal, Belfast, who was most indefatigable in his efforts.

A NEW addition has been made to the company of dancers in The Merry Widow at Daly's in the person of Mr. Georgie Mahrer, a Continental performer of high reputation. He has been given a small part in the popular comic opera, and appears among the animated throng at Maxim's where he indulges in a couple of novel dances, one of which ends with a travesty of the Apache movement. His partner is the graceful Miss Gabrielle Ray, and the interpolation gave so much pleasure on the opening night that it had to be twice repeated. Apart from the novelty alluded to, the performance goes with its customary gaiety, Miss Lily Elsie, Mr. Joseph Coyne, Mr. J. F. McArdle, Mr. W. H. Berry, and Mr. Robert Nainby repeating their clever performances to the delight of immense audiences.

MR. WENTWORTH CROKE, accompanied by Mr. Frank M. Boyd, has started on his 30-40 Peugeot car for a motor tour of the provincial pantomimes from Aberdeen to Plymouth, in search of talent for next season.

MR. CHARLES ESDALE played the part of Monty Brewster on Wednesday afternoon at Reading, at a moment's notice, owing to Mr. Percy Hutchison being indisposed, and was warmly complimented on his excellent performance of the exacting rôle.

MR. VINCENT CLIVE is sailing for New York to play the part of the hero in Sins of Society at the New Amsterdam Theatre, returning in time to start rehearsals at Drury Lane for Messrs. Raleigh and Hamilton's autumn drama.

MR. ARTHUR JEFFERSON, in connection with the recent matinée benefit performance in aid of the unemployed fund given in the Metropole Theatre, Glasgow, has received from the ex-Lord Provost, Sir William Bilsland, Bart., a kindly-expressed letter, enclosing photographs of himself and Lady Bilsland.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER'S cast of Samson, at the Garrick will include, besides Mr. Bourchier himself, Mr. Charles Bryant, Mr. Arthur Whitby, Mr. Kenneth Douglas, Mr. Leon Quartermaine, Mr. Bertram Forsyth, Mr. William Burchill, Mr. Charles Vernon, Mr. Alfred Bristowe, Mr. Douglas Imbert, Mr. Newton Dunne, Miss Violet Vanbrugh, Miss Marie Illington, Miss Edyth Latimer, Miss Margaret Vivian, and Miss Pamela Gaythorne.

MRS. FRANK BATEMAN AND GEO. CONQUEST, who have just scored such a success with the revival of The Crimes of Paris, have arranged with Mr. Arthur Shirley to write a new play for Mrs. Bateman, with a strong emotional part for that actress. The tour will commence at Christmas next at Southend-on-Sea. The partnership between Mr. Stuart Lomath and Mrs. Frank Bateman will terminate on June 5, and all communications should in future be addressed to "Bateman and Conquest."

AT St. Bartholomew the Great, West Smithfield, on Thursday afternoon, Mr. Frederick Baring Ranalow, the well-known light opera singer, only son of Mr. J. G. M. P. Ranalow, of Moorland, Nightingale-lane, was married to Miss Lilian Mary Oates, elder daughter of the late Mr. William E. Oates and Mrs. Oates, of Gestingthorpe Hall, Essex, and 14, Evelyn Mansions, S.W.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Poets and Music.

"BROWNING," said Sir F. Bridge in his address at the opening of the new session of Trinity College of Music on Tuesday, "rushed in where the other angels feared to tread, and discussed musical problems and introduced technical expressions with, I must say, very varying results. In 'Abt Vogler,' for example, he speaks of that master, as he improvises, 'sliding by semitones till he sinks to a minor,' a method of modulation which would be the very reverse of masterly; and 'I blunt it into a ninth' when it should be 'I sharpen it into a ninth,' finally atoning for it all by that immortal expression, 'the C major of this life.' Mr. Birrell in his edition has gone one better, for in a note to 'Master Hugues, of Saxe-Gotha,' he defines a fugue as a 'short melody.' I suppose his mind was temporarily distracted by efforts to promote harmony in Ireland."

"Vetted" Allusions.

"IF I might venture on advice, I should say, get any musical allusions 'vetted' by a musician. Some of the greatest have slipped for lack of such advice. George Eliot spoke of a sound as of 'a long-drawn organ stop.' An organ stop is a piece of wood with a knob on the end of it, which when drawn out an inch or two allows the wind pressure to enter a reservoir below a row of pipes. A 'long-drawn organ stop' can only mean a piece of wood which will draw out several feet, and the only sound it could emit would be a squeak if the mechanism within were rusty or dilapidated. Black in one of his novels describes how a young lady going to the piano dashed off Mozart's Sonata in A sharp, a key which, if it existed at all in practical politics (which it does not), would have a signature of four sharps and three double sharps."

Metal More Attractive.

MR. F. R. BENSON tells the following anecdote: "It was early one summer's evening, and I was dressing for Richard III., when I heard two little boys talking underneath the window of my dressing-room. One said, 'What is it to-night, Bill?' The other replied, 'It's Shakespeare's Richard the Third.' 'Who is he?' said the first lad. 'I know Henry Irving's Richard the Third, and Arthur Roberts's, and the Archbishop of Canterbury's, but I don't know Shakespeare's.' Now it happened to be a riverside town, and one of the boys said, 'Come on, I've no use for that kind of thing. We'll go down to the bridge and spit on the boats as they pass underneath.'"

The Secret of Failure.

"WHEN a singer," says Mr. Oscar Hammerstein in the Mail, "appears before half an audience or a very unresponsibe audience, she at once concludes that her failure is due to a conspiracy between the director and the public, quite forgetting the fact that her success means the director's success. She will believe that a green cat walked across the stage and 'hoodooed' the performance, or that a window is open at the right when it ought to be closed on the left, or that the stage-carpenter hammered on purpose during her big solo, or that the conductor made faces at her, or that, by remarkable manipulation, the director caused it to rain before the performance and the audience, as a result, got wet and in bad humour. She will rack her brain for every impossible reason for her failure, instead of trying to find out the real cause, which is herself. In all my experience I have never heard a star say frankly, 'I am bad in this part.'"

Stage Superstitions.

"ONE prima donna will not go on for a performance until she has dropped a dagger into the floor three times. If it sticks each time it is a good omen, and she feels that she will sing well and have big success. If not, it disturbs her during the whole opera.

"Another will not go on the stage until I have given her a quarter (1s.). She carries it during the performance. I might add that she saves the quarters.

"Some opera stars knock on the scenery before going on; others stamp on the floor three times. A curious superstition among them relates to the colour of green. Many grand opera stars avoid this colour as if it were poison. They won't wear green costumes, and detest operas with green rooms or palaces."

"Elevated" Enjoyment.

"PEOPLE who know the sort of plays produced in the English theatre in one of the European capitals during the tourist season will sympatise," says the Morning Leader, "with the retort of the Englishman who, after a satisfying dinner, appeared at the box-office demanding 'a shtall, the best shtall in the house, please.'

"The clerk, noting his crumpled and incoherent condition, would not give him one. 'But, my dear f'la, I inshist. I want shtall, see?' and he put down his money.

"'I can't give you the ticket,' said the clerk. 'You must take your money back.'

"'What's matter?' demanded the Englishman.

"'Well,' responded the clerk, 'you're drunk.'

"The Englishman gathered up his money with dignity. 'Of course, I'm drunk,' he said, cheerfully. 'D'you suppose I'd come to see this blamed show if I were sober?'"

Miss Nethersole on America.

MISS OLGA NETHERSOLE began her sixth American tour in Washington on the 11th inst., with a new play, by W. J. Hurlbut, entitled The Writing on the Wall. It is described as being "neither a Biblical play nor a problem play, but a real American play, dealing with matters of vital moment to America and Americans." Miss Nethersole appears as Barbara Lawrence, a New York society woman, who is interested in philanthropy and tenement reform. It is said that certain passages in the play are likely to be widely discussed in New York, for in the first act there is a plain exposition of the Trinity Church Corporation as the owner of slum tenements, and some outspoken lines that will create a stir. Miss Nethersole, in an address to the public, which has been given out in printed form, explained her reasons for discarding her familiar répertoire and appearing in a new and modern American play. Among other things Miss Nethersole said, "I have often been criticised for producing a certain 'class' of plays, and my answer has been that I have produced acknowledged masterpieces of the drama. Art, being without an ego, has no morals, and, as I see it, the true and absolute meaning of art is 'holding the mirror up to nature.' Now, however, I am going to break new ground, and, for a time at least, to devote my art to the American drama. It will perhaps be asked why I have not done so before. My answer is that in my judgment the real, the lasting, the vital 'American drama' has only lately been born, and if I may suggest what, to my mind, appears to be the inspiration of its birth, I would say that the 'old order of things,' the monopolies and tyrannies of business, are on the decline in the United States. The laws of the country are being observed and upheld. Money can no longer buy freedom for a man found guilty of crime. America is setting her house in order, and therein lies drama—drama that is vital, lasting, and interesting to the civilised world."

We shall be obliged if our readers will send us any amusing anecdotes they may hear, or accounts of any quaint incidents they may witness while acting or rehearsing.

"OLIVE LATIMER'S HUSBAND"

Play, in Three Acts, by Rudolf Besier, produced at the Vaudeville Theatre on Tuesday, Jan. 19.

Sir Charles Weyburn ..... MR. LYN HARDING
Colonel Mapleson-Finch .. MR. WILFRED DRAYCOTT
Berkeley Ogden ..... MR. CHARLES TROODE
James Morpeth ..... MR. JAMES HEARN
Doctor Wolfe ..... MR. LESLIE FABER
A Servant ..... MR. NORMAN WRIGHTON
Olive Latimer ..... MRS. PATRICK CAMPBELL
Mrs. Mapleson-Finch ..... MISS HELEN FERRERS
Doris Mapleson-Finch .... MISS DAGMAR WIEHE
Mrs. O'Connor ..... MISS ELSIE CHESTER
Nurse Cary ..... MISS BELLE NAPIER

Mrs. Patrick Campbell opened at the Vaudeville on Tuesday in a new play by Mr. Rudolf Besier entitled Olive Latimer's Husband. Mr. Besier is the author of The Virgin Goddess, which was produced at the Adelphi in 1906; and his latest effort is quite in harmony with the genius of Mrs. Campbell, who plays the principal part in a style which may well be termed inimitable. The piece is short—it only plays about a couple of hours—and the theme is a sad and bitter one; but Mr. Besier's treatment of it is so straightforward and sincere, so free from sensuous suggestion, and so ennobled by the spirit of suffering that the general effect is not repellant; and the interest from beginning to end is tensely sustained.

The action takes place at a country house. The owner, Harry Latimer, is lying seriously ill of typhoid fever. The history of his marriage with his wife Olive is a painful one. Her parents, Colonel and Mrs. Mapleson-Finch, are greedy worldlings, who are willing, indeed desirous, to sell their daughters to the highest bidder in the matrimonial market. Latimer fell passionately in love with Miss Olive Mapleson-Finch, and she was disposed of to him in the usual manner. Before marriage, however, she told him that she could never love him; but he was so infatuated that he consented to wed her in the hope that she might learn to do so in the end. Instead of this, she grew to detest him, and took as a lover a young man named Sir Charles Weyburn, an old school-fellow of Latimer's and his dearest friend. This is the situation when the curtain rises on a sitting-room at Brockham Lacey, with a second doctor being telephoned for, and a general atmosphere of anxiety and dread. The Colonel and his wife are exempt from these feelings, their minds being occupied with scheming for the sale of their second daughter, Doris, to an elderly and absurdly egoistical M.P., Mr. Berkeley Ogden. The Colonel, an easy-going, stupid creature, who lets all his acquaintances sponge on him, is under the domination of his wife, a hard, crafty, and merciless woman, who fully appreciates her husband's incapacity for intrigue. The doctor, an old friend of Latimer's, arrives, and discovers that the night before the patient made his condition dangerous by getting out of bed and writing a letter to Sir Charles. Mrs. Latimer, a Miss Cary, and Mrs. O'Connor, an old family servant, have been doing the nursing; which of them is responsible for Latimer having been thus allowed to leave his bed? Mrs. O'Connor says she never left the room, but admits that she fell asleep for a couple of hours. The doctor does all that he can to unravel the mystery; but he does not succeed in finding out the truth, which is that Mrs. Latimer came into the room while Mrs. O'Connor was asleep, and did not wake her, thus leaving Latimer uncontrolled. Olive imagines that her husband saw the hatred in her face when she entered, and that the letter he has written to Sir Charles contains an account of her heartless conduct; and she endeavours in vain to get the doctor to give up the letter. When Sir Charles arrives, his love for Olive is eclipsed by the pangs of conscience, for Latimer sinks and dies. The unhappy woman sees her sister about to make the same mistake in life as she—Olive—committed in marrying a man she could not love; and she violently opposes the sacrifice. Her mother and father—the latter is chronically impecunious, and hopes to borrow of his future son-in-law—are highly indignant; and Mrs. Mapleson-Finch continues to coerce Doris, to whom Mrs. Latimer makes a very eloquent appeal. Both Olive and Sir Charles suffer keenly under their punishment. He is tortured by remorse at the thought of his treachery to his friend; and she is in terror lest the reading of the letter shall kill his love for her. In the last act, driven to desperation, and determined at all cost to save Doris from a similar fate, Mrs. Latimer confesses that she wilfully left her husband unattended, wishing that he might die. Doris rebels, and refuses to marry Ogden. Olive demands from Weyburn the letter, which he has not yet read, and says she will read it aloud. To her surprise, it contains, instead of the expected denunciation, a confession of the writer's fault in marrying Olive as he did, and a wish that she may be happy with Sir Charles. But the experience she has gone through has killed her love for him, or, at any rate, made her feel that they must separate, though he departs saying that he shall always love her to the end. "Leave me alone with my husband!" says Mrs. Latimer, standing in a kind of trance; and on this impressive finale the curtain falls.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell is seen at her best in a character like this—nervously sensitive, highly-strung, and somewhat morbid. The delicate art with which she depicted the emotional anguish and the excited dread of the unhappy woman; the scorn with which she treated the mercenary parents and the petty and repulsive Ogden; the passionate affection of her pleadings with her sister; the devotion with which she flung herself into the task of Doris's enlightenment and defence; and the bitter energy with which she demonstrated her misery and revolt against circumstances combined to make Mrs. Campbell's Olive Latimer one of the most interesting and artistic performances that have been seen on the stage for some time. Mrs. Campbell's technique was never more sound and complete than it is at present. She has got rid of all her mannerisms, and what remains is pure art—simple, strong, and direct. Clad in some exquisitely appropriate gowns, Mrs. Campbell, with her willowy grace and pale beauty, was an ideal exponent of the part which she played so well. Mr. Lyn Harding enacted Sir Charles Weyburn with weight, strength, firmness, and directness. Mr. Wilfred Draycott, especially in his hunting costume, looked the ideal of a bluff, weak, self-indulgent sportsman, and acted with his accustomed ability and emphasis, the humour of the character being effectively developed. A highly-finished character-study was supplied by Mr. Charles Troode as Berkeley Ogden, the wig and make-up being especially admirable, and the general tone of the performance being smart, keen, and effective. Mr. James Hearn gave a capital rendering of James Morpeth; quiet and subdued at first, but developing into real vigour and depth of feeling when required, the reserved force of the embodiment giving it a most natural and impressive character. Mr. Leslie Faber was efficient as Doctor Wolfe; and Miss Helen Ferrers, magnificent in style, manner, and appearance, did justice to the hard worldliness of Mrs. Mapleson-Finch. A very winning representation of Doris Mapleson-Finch was contributed by Miss Dagmar Wiehe, who played the part with delightful ingenuousness and repose, her acting in the last part of the play being simple, but strong and expressive. Miss Elsie Chester's Mrs. O'Connor had an air of solemn mystery that well suited the rôle, and she delivered the denunciatory speeches of the old servant with a telling mixture of sorrow and indignation; and Miss Belle Napier was a tall and comely Nurse Cary. A special word of praise is deserved by the excellence of the orchestra.

The ever-popular Gondoliers was revived by Mrs. D'Oyly Carte at the Savoy Theatre as recently as the January of 1907, with Mr. C. H. Workman, Mr. Richard Green, and Miss Jessie Rose in the cast. The opera is one of the most delightful of the Gilbert-Sullivan series, and the spell of Sir W. S. Gilbert's libretto and the late Sir Arthur Sullivan's music has not vanished since the December of 1889, when The Gondoliers was produced, with Miss Decima Moore, who then made her first appearance on the stage at the age of eighteen, as the heroine. Miss Geraldine Ulmar was the prima donna, and Mr. Rutland Barrington returned to work at the Savoy, from which Mr. George Grossmith had seceded, the newcomers to the cast being Mr. W. H. Denney and Mr. Frank Wyatt. Miss Jessie Bond's Tessa, Miss Rosina Brandram's Duchess of Plaza-Toro, and Mr. Courtice Pounds's Marco Palmieri are quite well-remembered renderings. The Gondoliers, as has been well said, "is as spontaneous as the light-hearted laughter of the Sunny South and as luminous as an Italian summer sky." It is not the mere melodist who is heard in this charming score; the hand of the trained and expert musician is felt throughout in the most agreeable and admirable way. Sir Arthur Sullivan's delicate and insinuating musical humour is as irresistible in 1909 as it was twenty years since; and the composer's charming facility is well exemplified in the score, his fluent melodies being aided and embellished by his thorough knowledge of the orchestra and his remarkable instrumental resource.

The performance at the Savoy on Monday was marked by that delightful spirit of camaraderie between the players and the audience which has been created by Mrs. Carte's capital Gilbert and Sullivan revivals. It was a pleasant sight to turn one's eyes for a moment from the stage and to watch the individuals who composed the audience; to note the dreamy pleasure, the satisfied content which illumined the faces as their owners listened for the hundredth time to the exquisite "Take a pair of sparkling eyes" or the pathetic sweetness of "Kind sir, you cannot have the heart." If the performers had decided to satisfy the persistent demand for encores, the performance would have lasted till midnight. Each player, as he or she came on the stage, was greeted with enthusiasm; but the warmest welcome was reserved for those whose names have been longest associated with the famous operas—Mr. Rutland Barrington and Mr. Henry A. Lytton, although one might almost have imagined that Mr. C. H. Workman, who has put in some fine work during the two years he has been at the Savoy, was one of the old brigade, so tumultuous was the applause when he first made his appearance. Mr. Rutland Barrington as the Grand Inquisitor gives one of the ripest, the most mellow performances it is possible to imagine. His air of benevolent dignity, touched with rich humour, is truly superb, a feast of which one never tires. Mr. H. A. Lytton as Giuseppe, one of the Gondoliers, has not lost one whit of the freshness and charm which have always characterised his work, both at the Savoy and elsewhere. He has gained added clearness of articulation, and plays with an enjoyment of the part which acts like a tonic. As Marco, Mr. Henry Herbert sings with pleasing effect, though in acting he still has something to learn. Mr. C. H. Workman plays the Duke of Plaza-Toro on the well-known lines of dry, caustic humour, but manages, nevertheless, to infuse into the part some of his own distinctive personality. Miss Jessie Rose makes a very piquant little Tessa, both in appearance and method, and is much to be commended for her pretty, natural by-play. Miss Rose was apparently suffering from a slight cold on Monday evening; but, in spite of this, she was vociferously encored for her charming delivery of the song "When a little maiden marries." Miss Elsie Spain as Gianetta had many opportunities of displaying the full power and sweetness of her voice, which is a remarkably flexible one; and Miss Dorothy Court as Casilda was the daintiest, haughtiest little Queen imaginable, melting with bewitching tenderness in the arms of the faithful Luiz, earnestly played by Mr. Leo Sheffield. Miss Louie Rene is no unworthy successor of Miss Rosina Brandram, and has gained greatly in breadth of style and conception of character. Her fine contralto voice is fuller and deeper in tone, and her method even more attractive. The chorus is composed of sweet voices, the three Contadine, Fiametta, Giulia, and Vittoria, being pleasantly played by Miss Ethel Lewis, Miss Adrienne Andean, and Miss Beatrice Boarer. The scenery by A. Terraine and A. Warner is very pretty and artistic, and Mr. François Cellier conducts with his usual complete command of the fine Savoy orchestra.

BRITANNIA THEATRE.

On Monday, Jan. 18, the Drama, by Fred Moule, entitled

"GRIP OF THE LAW."

Large and appreciative audiences have visited this popular house to witness the exciting play Grip of the Law, which teems with thrilling incidents and appeals strongly to the taste of the patrons. It is smartly performed by the stock company. Mr. Harry Tresham ably represents the young cattle-dealer Dave Arkwright; Mr. H. Ryeland-Leigh is sufficiently despicable as the scoundrel Sergt. Frank Paul; an amusing impersonation of Zeph Sorrel, a stuttering detective, is submitted by Mr. H. G. Brandon; Mr. Herbert Young presents an artistic interpretation of Noel of the Night; an admirable character-study of Andy Blunt is given by Mr. C. Alan Hineson; Mr. Conrad E. Clark is admirably adapted to the character of Jacob Hockaday; Mr. Ivan P. Gore plays in a dignified manner as Colonel Digby Dunstan; Rose Hockaday is sympathetically undertaken by Miss Lalla Stanhope; Miss Florence Barnes is excellent as Marion Arkwright; Beulah Bliss is ably impersonated by Miss Edna Lester; and Miss Edith Rainleigh is an ideal Mrs. Baddiscombe. The drama was excellently mounted and smartly dressed. The orchestra, under Mr. F. W. Hatley, rendered some tuneful numbers during the evening, and a splendid evening's entertainment is terminated by some good pictures depicted by the Barrascope.

VOTES FOR ACTRESSES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—You close your article entitled "Votes for Actresses" in last week's Era with the words "Do actresses as a body desire the vote. That is the question." May I say to you and your readers that the question rather is, do actresses need the vote? and the answer is yes.

They need it, even if the disadvantages of not having it are apparently felt less by them than by some other classes of women, because they are women, and women need it as a moral recognition of their responsibility and stake in the affairs of their country, and as a public acknowledgment of their capability of judging and speaking for themselves on matters that concern them. They need it, too, even as men need it—for the education the responsibility of power brings with it.—Yours faithfully, A MEMBER OF THE A.F.L.

Jan. 18, 1909.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In view of the growing interest on Female Franchise, I enclose copy of some correspondence on the subject.—Yours faithfully, DAISY HALLING.

Jan. 18, 1909.

[COPY.]

"DEAR MISS HALLING,—I don't know if you are yet a member of the Actresses' Franchise League, but am sure you must be in sympathy with its objects. Whatever party you may already belong to, the A.F.L. is to be on such entirely non-party lines that I am sure I may ask you to give us the support of your name and sympathy by joining us. As a member of the sub-committee for 'stewarding,' might I ask for your further support as member (nominally, if you are too much engaged to work for it) of this committee? Its object is to form a band of actresses who will give their services when able as stewards at meetings for Woman's Suffrage—London or provincial. There are also other sub-committees for reciting, acting, and otherwise helping the cause. If you could aid these also, we should be glad.—Sincerely yours, "DOROTHY BARRINGTON."

"DEAR MISS BARRINGTON,—The pleasure I feel at the prospect of actresses taking interest in public questions is only equalled by my regret that I publicly oppose the measure for which the Actresses' Franchise League stands. My reason for standing aloof from the A.F.L. is this: Many people in the movement with which I am now associated, who are considered 'extremists' on other matters, yet advocate the limited Bill, believing that it is the shortest route to adult suffrage. If I thought so I should support it. As it is, I oppose it as being a middle-class movement, and I stand without compromise for Adult Suffrage. I play second to no one in appreciation of the courage displayed by my sex throughout this agitation; I am grateful to the Suffragette movement, too (while bearing it a grudge for robbing the Socialist platform of most of its women speakers), for the extent to which it has interested women in and brought them out into public life.

"With all the personal good wishes for the supporters of a Bill that are compatible with a disaffection which I may not dissemble for the Bill itself,—Yours sincerely,

"DAISY HALLING,
"Hon. Sec. Manchester Branch Actors' Union."

P.S.—Might one suggest that the name "Actresses' Franchise League" is misleading? How many actresses would be enfranchised under the limited Bill? How many actresses possess property? Alas, my poor sister, "props." in a franchise interpretation are not property. Of course, the altruistic view suggests itself: That women without property who would not get the vote should work to obtain it for women who possess property. Then, doubtless, the women who got the vote would say to the women who didn't get it, in the words of the heroine as she exits R. U. E., "May Heaven reward you, for I never can." A comfortable way of ridding oneself of responsibilities.

MR. COMPTON AT WOLVERHAMPTON.

Mr. Edward Compton's birthday was on the 14th inst., and a large and enthusiastic audience assembled at the Grand Theatre, Wolverhampton, to see him in A Reformed Rake.

Mr. Compton said:—Ladies and Gentlemen,—Very many thanks for your generous reception of A Reformed Rake to-night. The comedy is an especial favourite of mine, and the part of Harry Jasper particularly appeals to me—not because he is a rake, but because he is a reformed rake. You all know a reformed rake makes the best husband, and you have also seen to-night that he also makes the best tutor, the best friend, the best lover, and the best of good fellows. So if there are any rakes in this house to-night, let me appeal to them to take the lesson to heart, and go home and reform! And now as to my birthday, for it would be false modesty in me to pretend that I did not know you are here to-night partly to honour that occasion with your kind thoughts and remembrance, and to wish me across the footlights "Many happy returns." Believe me, I am very grateful to you, and not a little touched. You saw that beautiful wreath that was handed up to me, and when I tell you that it came to me quite unexpectedly from the members of my company, you will understand that I was deeply touched by that also. Birthdays are very pleasant things, I find, with only one drawback: People will worry about my age. Now, why should they? I'm sure I don't. It's an elastic arrangement with me. I'm just as old of a day as the part I appear in at night. On Monday I was about thirty, on Tuesday I was only twenty-one, last night I was twenty-five, to-night, as you heard me say, I'm eight-and-twenty, and I make it a rule never to go beyond thirty-five, which reminds me of a little anecdote. I was once talking to a pretty young widow—beware of pretty young widows—who was really thirty-five, but was passing herself off as twenty-six. Happening to mention that she had a boy at school, I quickly inquired his age, to which she, off her guard, replied "Twelve." "What?" said I, rapidly calculating, "twelve?" "Yes," said she, recollecting herself, "but remember, I was married at thirteen!" She had me, so I proceeded to have her. "Madam," I said, "the only other lady whom I call to mind as being married at that early age was Shakespeare's Juliet—and she also was a heroine of fiction!" And so, ladies and gentlemen, if you ever hear people exaggerating my age, because I've been before the public a long time, just say, "Ah, but remember, he began life at fifteen." And you will have this advantage over my lady friend, you will be telling the truth. Ladies and gentlemen, I thank you once more for your presence here this evening, and for your goodness to me always, and I wish you all a kind good-night.

In the course of the evening Mr. Compton was presented wih a laurel wreath.

WHAT LOVE CAN DO.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In your last issue Mr. R. A. Greene announces that he has written a play, not yet produced, entitled What Love Can Do. May I be permitted to say that my play, What True Love Can Do, was registered on July, 1906, and produced for copyright purposes the same year. Consequently, I think, although overlooked in the birthday honours, I have an exclusive right to my title.—Yours faithfully, BASIL YOUNG.

"THE LYONS MAIL" STORY.

Mr. H. B. Irving, whose very fine revival of The Lyons Mail has been such a gratifying success at the Shaftesbury, contributes to his admirable and interesting souvenir of the ever-popular and historic drama a scholarly account of the source of the play:—

"At about nine o'clock on the night of April 27, 1796," writes Mr. Irving, "the mail travelling from Paris to Lyons was attacked and robbed at the Bridge of Pouilly, near Lieursaint, distant some twenty miles from Paris. The guard and postilion were killed, and 7,000,000 livres in notes, nominally a sum of £300,000, that were being dispatched to General Bonaparte's army in Italy, were secured by the robbers. These had been, to all appearances, five in number; four had ridden out from Paris to the scene of the crime, whilst the fifth had travelled in the mail itself as a passenger. At four o'clock on the morning of the 28th, a man of the name of Courriol brought four horses, covered with sweat, to a stable in Paris; and on the same day one of the three horses that had been harnessed to the mail was found wandering riderless in the city, having no doubt served to carry back to Paris the fifth robber who had accompanied the guard and postilion in the mail coach.

"Courriol was arrested a few days later, and with him a friend of his of the name of Guénot. The latter was, however, speedily released; his account of himself appeared to be quite satisfactory, and the examining magistrate informed him that, if he would call at his office on May 10, his papers which had been seized at the time of Courriol's arrest would be returned to him.

"As Guénot, on the appointed day, was making his way to the magistrate's office, he met a friend, one Joseph Lesurques. They were fellow citizens of Douai, and had both held municipal appointments in their native city; but Lesurques, having acquired by fortunate speculation a sufficient independence, had quitted Douai, and, with his wife and children, taken up his abode in Paris. Guénot told his friend how he had been accidentally involved in the recent crime that was the talk of Paris, and asked him to accompany him to the magistrate's office. Lesurques consented, and the two entered the magistrate's waiting-room. The room was filled at the time with witnesses from Lieursaint and its neighbourhood, who had been summoned to give evidence as to the movements and identity of the four horsemen seen at various points on the road from Paris during the afternoon preceding the crime. No sooner had Guénot and Lesurques entered the room than two of the witnesses declared that they recognised in these men two of the horsemen whom they had met on the day of the robbery of the mail. So positive were their declarations that both Guénot and Lesurques were arrested, and after a prolonged investigation sent for trial, along with Courriol and three others accused of complicity in the crime.

"The principal evidence against the prisoners was that of the thirteen witnesses from Lieursaint. Of these thirteen, seven positively identified Courriol, five Lesurques, and one Guénot. One of those who identified Lesurques swore that he remembered him the more distinctly as having given him a piece of string with which to mend his broken spur. The defence of Lesurques consisted in an alibi, to prove which he called a number of friends who had seen him in Paris at different times during the day of April 27. Among these he called a jeweller from whom he had made some purchases on that very day, which happened to be Floréal 8 in the Revolutionary calendar then in use in France. As corroborative evidence the jeweller produced his day-book. It was handed to the judge, who immediately, and with great indignation, called attention to the fact that in the entry relating to Lesurques the figure 9, or some other figure, had been erased and the figure 8 substituted. This erasure, which from the very circumstance of the production of the book may well have been the result of an error at the time the entry was made, and not a subsequent attempt at clumsy deception, sealed the fate of Lesurques. His other witnesses were not credited. To his plea that his independent means made his guilt unlikely, the judge, whose hostility towards him had been painfully evident throughout the trial, retorted that it was only the small crimes that were committed by the poor, that the great crimes were the work of the rich. Lesurques and Courriol were convicted and condemned to death, Guénot acquitted. Courriol, as he left the court, declared that Lesurques was innocent, and had taken no part in the crime.

"Supreme efforts were made to save Lesurques from the scaffold. Courriol and his mistress both protested that Lesurques had been mistaken for an arch-criminal and prison-breaker named Dubosc, who had been the prime organiser of the attack on the mail. He bore, they said, a strong resemblance to Lesurques, which, on the occasion of the robbery of the mail, was intensified by the fact that Dubosc, though a dark man, was wearing a blonde wig, that made his hair appear the same colour as that of Lesurques. Courriol gave the names of the five concerned in the crime. They were, besides Dubosc and himself, Vidal, whom some of the witnesses had mistaken for Guénot, Durochat, who had ridden in the mail-coach, and Roussi, an Italian. But all efforts to save Lesurques were in vain. He and Courriol were executed on Oct. 30, the latter exclaiming on the scaffold: 'I am guilty, but Lesurques is innocent.' Lesurques left the following letter addressed to Dubosc, which he asked to be inserted in the newspapers:—'I pray you, in whose place I am to die, rest content with the sacrifice of my life. If ever you are brought to trial, think of my children's disgrace, their mother's despair, and put an end to the misery caused by our fatal resemblance.'

"One of the magistrates who had investigated the case was so convinced of the truth of Courriol's statements and the innocence of Lesurques that he determined to hunt down and bring to justice Dubosc, and the other three accomplices in the murder. Two of them, Durochat and Vidal, were tried and executed, the one in 1797, and the other in 1798. Durochat admitted the innocence of Lesurques, and said that it was Dubosc whose broken spur had been mended on the day of the crime. The latter had been arrested at the same time as Vidal, but contrived to break out of prison. It was not until late in the year 1800 that Dubosc was rearrested and brought to trial. To establish his likeness to Lesurques the prisoner was made to put on a blonde wig in court. In spite of this, only one of the witnesses from Lieursaint who had originally identified Lesurques, admitted her error; the others, whether from fear or stupidity, declared themselve quite unable to recognise Dubosc as one of the four robbers. But there was strong evidence to prove his guilty association with Courriol and the other assassins, both before and after the crime. The jury, by way of compromise, convicted him as an accessory before the fact. He was condemned to death and executed, but, hardened to the last, made no confession of his guilt. Four years later, Roussi, the Italian, was arrested, and tried and condemned as one of the actual assassins. Before his execution he confessed the innocence of Lesurques."

HIS MAJESTY THE KING visited the Empire Theatre on Monday night and witnessed the performance of the ballet A Day in Paris.

MR. W. S. PENLEY on Monday, Jan. 19, at the Public Hall, Exmouth, produced a new comedy, entitled The Bluebottle, in which he appeared as the Hon. Archibald Chippendale.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, JAN. 13.—The Battle, a drama, in four acts, by Cleveland Moffett, has scored a decided success at the Savoy Theatre. It deals with the eternal conflict between capital and labour, and shows the weak points in the armour of the social idealists, the while it depicts the central character—a "trust magnate"—as a man of many admirable qualities, even though he once burned a rival oil factory. The dialogue is controversial, and is at times calculated to move those who hold strong views on either side to an expression of assent or dissent, as the case may be. In fact, the editor of a Socialistic magazine did rise in his seat and attempt to address the audience at one of the earlier performances of the play, and for several minutes quite a lively scene was enacted. With the exception of the aforesaid "magnate," all of the characters are poor people. The author shows how some of their theories "work out" when they are put to the test, and at the same time unfolds a dramatic story of a father's love. On the opening night the author denied that he was trying to preach or teach or to scold anybody, and declared that his only object was to provide an agreeable evening's entertainment. John Haggleton, a multi-millionaire, is a self-made man. He owns a number of tenement houses of the poorest and most insanitary type. At an early stage of his career his wife left him because her nature revolted against his piratical business methods, and took their son with her. The youngster has been brought up on social-settlement teachings in the poorest quarter of New York; a kindly old Socialist named Gentle having befriended the mother before she died, and then adopted the child. When the play begins, the young fellow has grown to manhood, and is a master diver known as Philip Ames, who has devoted himself to the cause of Socialism and reform. Gentle uses his knowledge of the relationship existing between his foster son and John Haggleton to bring about an interview with the rich man in his—Gentle's—wretched home, the object of which is to show the millionaire the evil of existing conditions and the opportunities to effect improvements on humanitarian principles. On being brought face to face with his son, who is kept in ignorance of the relationship, Haggleton is greatly moved. Gentle improves the opportunity by making some pointed remarks that strike home and have the effect of softening the callous nature of the man whose one aim has been to acquire an immense fortune at any cost. He believes, however, that Gentle is all wrong in his Socialistic ideas, and, acting on a sudden impulse, undertakes to give him a practical illustration of how the poor could help themselves if they had sufficient force of character. He was about to sail on his yacht, but he orders the captain to sail without him, in order that his change of plans may not become known. Then, under an assumed name, he comes to live in the tenement with Gentle and the rest of the poverty-stricken household. The first thing he does is to sell several articles of furniture and an unused sewing-machine for thirty dollars, and with that amount of capital he proceeds to build up a successful business. When the curtain goes up on the second act the squalid living-room has been completely transformed. The dirt and disorder have vanished, and the place looks clean and homelike. By the time the act is ended, a co-operative bakery has been formed and is doing well. Philip is foremost in carrying out Haggleton's schemes, and several of those who inveighed most bitterly against the combinations that crush out the lives of small enterprises are profiting under the arrangement, and suggesting how to make the business pay. One of them even goes so far as to advise using more yeast and less dough, and another, who has violently denounced the whole scheme, promptly changes his tone when he is offered a situation as foreman at a higher salary than he has ever earned. In the third act the apartment has been turned into an office, and the profits are steadily increasing. Philip has been completely won over to his father's ideas about business, and he finds himself arguing for expediency and the rights and wrongs of things from about the same point of view as the multi-millionaire. But the time comes when Haggleton's identity is disclosed, and he is obliged to confess that his wife abandoned him because he planned the destruction of a rival oil plant. Philip then declares that he will have no share in wealth that has been acquired by such criminal means. But at this juncture a man, crazed by his daughter's disgrace, which he attributes to poverty, rushes in with a pistol and fires at Haggleton. The son throws himself in front of his father, and is badly wounded, and during his illness the two are drawn together. In the last act everybody is apparently willing to make concessions, and Haggleton announces that he will devote a large slice of his fortune to the amelioration of the condition of the poor. The question is, how can this be done without demoralising those whom he wishes to befriend. One suggests model tenements, another a home for consumptives, and a third an ideal colony in the country. But all three are silenced by arguments proving their schemes impracticable. Only the capitalist can solve the problem. They must leave it to him. He walks over to his desk, takes out a roll of papers, and announces that he has already solved it. "Now, my plan is this——" he says. And as they gather round him the curtain falls. Mr. Wilton Lackaye's John Haggleton is a strong and interesting portrayal. Mr. H. B. Warner plays Philip Ames, and makes him the most likeable character in the play by his manliness and sincerity. Gentle, the Socialist, is admirably acted by Mr. E. M. Holland. Miss Elsie Ferguson, Mr. Gerald Griffin, and Mr. Charles Abbe distinguish themselves in prominent rôles.

ARTILLERY THEATRE, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Jan. 18, the Comedy, entitled "THE PRIVATE SECRETARY."

Messrs. Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth are ever ready to look after the welfare of their patrons, and are ably assisted in their endeavours by Mr. Chisholm Taylor, the acting-manager of this theatre. With a view of increased comfort to all on both sides of the footlights, additional heating apparatus has recently been installed and steam radiators have been placed in convenient positions, both in the auditorium and on the stage. The evergreen comedy The Private Secretary (Eugene C. Stafford's company) is paying a visit here this week, and the whimsical young clergyman is as conducive to hilarity as ever he was, and, in the hands of Mr. Donald Price-Evans, the Rev. Robert Spalding is a mirth-provoking character. Mr. W. Hargreaves submits a good study of Mr. Cattermole, and draws many a hearty laugh. Mr. Frederick Tyrrell stands out prominently in the part of Mr. Sidney Gibson; Mr. Herbert Garthorne makes a suitable Douglas Cattermole; Harry Marsland is capably undertaken by Mr. Geo. Edwards; Mr. Frank Stanley is successful as Mr. Marsland, M.F.H. Miss Nan Macrae is a charming Edith Marsland; Eva Webster is capably played by Miss Janet Warden; and Miss Marie Scharning imparts much humour to the character of Mrs. Stead. The comedy is preceded by a farce, entitled The Wild Man from Borneo, the characters of which are ably sustained by Mr. Herbert Garthorne, Mr. Geo. Edwards, Miss Janet Warden, and Miss Nan Macrae.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. Fred S. Jennings, the general-manager of the Lyric Opera House, Hammersmith, was presented on Saturday night last with a massive silver cigar cabinet, as a mark of esteem from Miss Kittee Rayburn.

THE NEW PAVILION, WIGAN.

In order to meet a long-felt want in the district, the Wigan Entertainments Company are erecting the above hall on the vacant land next to the Technical School, in Library-street. One of the principal features of the building is the immense width of the roof, and the entire absence of centre columns. This, of course, is the governing factor of any hall, as there are then no obstructions to the view of the spectators. In order to achieve this result, the whole weight of the roof is carried on four specially designed steel principals, 112ft. clear span between the walls, and which are built up of rolled steel tees and angles, riveted together by means of gusset plates. The principals, though light and airy in appearance, weigh six tons each, and are supported quite independently of the walls on steel stanchions 29ft. long, the total height from the floor to the ridge being 71ft.

The total length of the building is 134ft., and the roof boarding and slating is carried by means of fifteen lines of 8in. rolled steel joist purlings, secured to the rafters of the principals, and running the full length of the building. These are also braced by an ingenious arrangement of diagonal steel tie-rods. Of course, in designing an enormous roof like this special care has to be taken to ensure the whole of the steel skeleton being self-contained and self-supporting. This has been done in such a manner that the walls and coverings are merely adventitious, and the stability of the steel work in no way depends upon these. One of the chief advantages of this system of roof is that the whole of the steel framework can be erected before the building of the walls is commenced. A complete system of diagonal bracing is introduced into the steelwork so as to prevent any movement or vibration under the extreme stresses which such a large roof would be subject to in gales and stormy weather.

At one end of the building is a large gallery, 90ft. long and 27ft. wide, which is supported on steel girders connected to cast-iron columns and the vertical stanchions in gable framing. At the other end of the building is the stage, which is carried on a framework of steel stanchions and girders. The two side galleries, 14ft. wide, are carried upon a system of steel girders so arranged that the stanchions supporting the same only occur at intervals of 20ft., thus presenting practically no obstruction to the floor view. The crowning feature of this structure is the large steel dome, 24ft. in diameter, surmounted by a smaller hemispherical dome, on which is placed one of Shorland's latest extractors, the top of which is 85ft. above the ground level.

Another feature is the floor, which is laid in maple, so that the hall can be used for roller skating, a pastime which at present is the rage in all the large towns and cities. The hall is also so constructed that it can be used for political meetings, dances, concerts, also as a circus or music hall. It is expected that the holding capacity will be 3,500. The whole of the steel work has been designed, manufactured, and is being erected by Messrs. J. Booth and Sons, Hulton-lane Steel Works, Bolton; the brick and wood work by Messrs. John Johnson and Son, Caroline-street, Wigan; the cement and plaster work by Messrs. J. B. Johnson and Co., Liverpool; and the slating by Messrs. J. Liptrot and Sons, Pemberton. The building will be electrically lit, and will be heated and ventilated on the best and latest principles known to modern science. Externally, the structure will be carried out in a similar manner to the recent Franco-British Exhibition buildings, and will undoubtedly prove a pleasing architectural addition to the town.

MR. ALBERT LAYTEN will shortly produce a new musical comedy sketch, entitled The Belle of Ostend. The book is written by Ivan P. Gore, and the music has been composed by Frank Bradsell.

MLLE. GHITA CORRI, who is now touring the Lancashire and Yorkshire towns with the greatest success, has recently included "boys" in her deservedly famous song-scena Character Types, and alternates her Eastern Princess with an Italian peasant lad, and her rough Scotch fish-wife with an early Georgian Cavalier.

TRINITY COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

On Tuesday afternoon at the Trinity College of Music, Mandeville-place, Manchester-square, before a number of the professors and students of the college, Sir Frederick Bridge, M.V.O., delivered his inaugural address as chairman of the board.

Sir Frederick, who was greeted with cheers, said, "I have done a great many things in the course of a long life, but I never before have been called upon to address the students in a great musical institution. I am engaged at the Royal College of Music, but only as one of the staff, and I have never had time or inclination to become the head of a big educational centre such as this. Here I occupy a post which suits me down to the ground. I have not much to do, that is one thing; I can do it as I like, that is another thing; and I can do it when I like, that is still another thing." Sir Frederick, in making a graceful allusion to the late Dr. Turpin, for many years a great friend of his, said, "He was a devoted servant of the College and a kind friend and adviser of the young student, and I rejoice to think I have been considered worthy to fill his place." Sir Frederick also spoke of the value of personal effort, and quoted a text of Solomon: "'Seest thou a man diligent in his business, he shall stand before kings; he shall not stand before mean men," and advised the students to hand the text in their bedrooms. He also advised making "Don't grumble," a text, and hanging that up. Sir Frederick caused much amusement by saying, "I have long been connected with the College as honorary organist, but never allowed to play." In his remarks on what to study the learned organist strongly advised taking up more than one branch study, and learning counterpoint, which would not be found so extremely difficult. A knowledge of the great masters—Beethoven, Schumann, Mozart—was also important, as well as some acquaintance with literature, but not the game of bridge. The audience laughed when Sir Frederick said: "I am sick of the name of bridge. I cannot change my name, but I am sick of the game, and think it does much harm. Too much time is also wasted on athletics, in themselves good, but not when men stand smoking pipes while other fellows play games such as football." The students among the audience were highly amused when Sir Frederick, speaking of music, said: "For heaven's sake, don't let it make you into an æsthetic, long-haired prig. Don't let your hair grow long, or dress in some abnormal kind of German costume with a large flowing tie. Dress like reasonable human beings. Apprenticeship is also an excellent institution. I myself was apprenticed to a cathedral organist." In speaking of vocalists Sir F. Bridge said: "Singers should study not only the chief parts of a work, but the secondary parts as well. Their first chance will be, no doubt, to take a secondary part, but if they are ready for the first their opportunity may come sooner than they think. If, however, they insist on taking the first part, and then fail, it is hopeless to expect another chance." To these remarks of the speaker pupils ought to pay special attention, as they are most important. So many vocal students only condescend to learn the famous airs or scenas in an oratorio or opera and know nothing of the other parts. Sir Frederick continued his address by saying: "In music, of course, there must be brains. If you have not got brains you may as well give up music. You remember the great artist who, on being asked how he produced such beautiful colours, replied 'With brains!' This institution gives a number of scholarships, and I am sure they are bestowed upon worthy people. Scholarships are a trust; it is money placed into your hands, and it ought to return in credit to the institution. If not, you are cheating a bit, and you must not cheat. I have been so long connected with music, and I speak from my heart, as I know where the weak spots are, so I say to the pupils before me, Work, work, so that in the long run you may reflect credit upon the Trinity College of Music."

GAMAGE'S NEW MAGICAL THEATRE (Manager, Mr. Will Goldston).

"The Magician" says that the ceremony of opening the new theatre contained within the vast structure of Gamage's immense stores took place some time ago. The proceedings commenced with a champagne lunch, to which over one hundred prominent members of the Press sat down. Mr. A. W. Gamage made a genial host and a capital chairman. In an interesting speech, he gave some details of the firm's progress during the past years, and an outline of his company's plans for the ensuing twelve months. It would really seem that instead of resting upon the laurels of so many years' successful trading Gamage's have only just started. What the capacity of their business will be in ten years' time it is quite impossible to conjecture.

Lunch and speeches being finished, the guests were entertained with some examples of Mr. P. T. Selbit's fascinating legerdemain, which proved highly amusing and technically excellent. Mr. Will Goldston acted as stage manager, and all went well.

The theatre itself is a handsome fireproof building capable of accommodating three hundred people. A clear view of the stage is obtained from every seat, each row being raised above the one in front. The stage is quite commodious and well equipped for the convenience of illusionists; the lighting arrangement is perfect, it being possible to reverse the proscenium battens to dazzle the audience for black art effects, and to obtain as much brilliance or as dim a religious illumination as may be required for other purposes. Without the slightest doubt this is the finest magical theatre of its kind in the world.

Amongst those who visited the theatre during the first week of the opening were: Harry Houdini, Carl Hertz, Barney Ives, Gustave Fasola, Ramses, Herr Wingard, Horace Goldin, Walter Henderson, "Alvaro," "Hercat," and F. H. Pedgrift.

A GAY assembly enjoyed the festivities provided by the Covent Garden ball during the early hours of Saturday morning last. Mr. W. Clarkson secured second prize for a striking dress, entitled "A Favourite Pantomime." "The Season's Festivities" was an effective pink satin dress, with pictorial emblems of skating carnivals, fancy dress balls, and children's parties.

THE Jedburgh Town Council, on the 13th inst., discussed a communication received from the Clerk of the Peace of Roxburghshire, pointing out that Jedburgh Public Hall was not licensed for the performance of stage plays, and that, unless a licence was obtained, parties giving such performances would be liable in penalties. The Council agreed to have the hall licensed for three months to cover the remainder of the present winter season. It is understood that the Act is to be put in force throughout the county of Roxburgh.

A. E. VINDER.—Faust, a tragedy in a prologue and five acts, adapted and arranged by W. G. Wills from the first part of Goethe's tragedy, was first performed at the Lyceum on Dec. 19, 1885, and ran continuously until the French play season the following year (1886). The run of Faust was continued until April 22, 1887, when various revivals were given, Faust being retained for certain nights and matinées only. Messrs. H. B. Conway and George Alexander both played the hero, and Martin Harvey filled the part of a soldier. Miss Ellen Terry's understudy as Margaret at the time was Miss Winifred Emery, who took the part several times. The piece was produced at the Star Theatre, New York, Nov. 7, 1887, with Henry Irving and Ellen Terry in their original parts of Mephistopholes and Margaret. It was revived at the Lyceum in 1888 and 1894.

THEO DE BOUWMEESTER.—The piece you refer to is Heard at the Telephone, a translation, in two acts, of Au Téléphone, by MM. De Lorde and Foley, and was produced at Wyndham's on March 1, 1902. Mr. Charles Warner played the part of the distracted husband, who listens in agony through the telephone to the shrieks of his wife, who is being murdered by Indians. Mr. Warner gave a condensed version at the Palace and at the Coliseum. We have been unable to trace the production of the piece in Paris. You could write to Mr. Charles Warner, at the Green Room Club, or care of The Era.

C. H. J.—Write to Stationers' Hall, London, E.C., for the necessary forms. The fee is 5s. each for registration of copyright and performing right.

GARNHAM.—Mr. Arthur Nelstone is not performing in London at the present time. The last time we heard of him he was in the Colonies. See notice above.

LE TORT.—We cannot find any mention of Thomas Benton. Possibly you mean Robert Bensley, a celebrated actor in his day, who made his first appearance at Drury Lane Theatre as Pierre in Venice Preserved?

THEATRE ROYAL, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Jan. 18, the Drama, entitled "THE GIRL WITH THE ANGEL FACE."

The company of Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and James Willard, which is appearing here this week in the drama The Girl with the Angel Face, is composed of members of no mean ability, which accounts in a large measure for the good business qualities of the play. The mounting is a noteworthy feature, the various scenes being well executed. The drama is heartily received by large audiences. The strenuous part of Angel Leigh, the girl with the angel face, is cleverly essayed by Miss Florrie Green, and whether she be depicting the innocent and loving girl or the hating and murderous woman she is equally successful, and deserves high praise for an impressive rendering. Mr. H. Naylor Grimson offers a careful study of Thomas Wentworth; Stephen Arkwright has a capable representative in Mr. Austin Mortimer, and although an unsympathetic part, scores well; Mr. Fred C. Evison as Jasper Death imparts a good deal of comedy into the character of that scoundrel, which is well received; Mr. J. L. Mann gives a good portrayal of Martin Flood; the Rev. Gordon Cross is ably undertaken and made the most of by Mr. Dobell Lyle; Mr. Dicky Bird is amusing as Jim Bates; James Govett is well portrayed by Mr. Henry Lee; Miss Phyllis Dailley infuses much pathos into the part of Ena Wentworth; Miss Gem Lloyd shows to advantage as Nellie; Miss Mildred Carr is happily suited to the part of Mollie Maitland, and displays much talent.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

A LARGE number of people connected with both branches of the profession will regret to hear of the death of Mr. Arthur Lawrence, late bill inspector at the Leicester Pavilion Theatre, which took place at the residence of his brother at Gloucester early on Saturday morning last, at the age of forty years, from acute consumption. The deceased man, who had had every attention shown to him at the Gilroes Home for Consumptives, near Leicester, was discharged a few weeks ago as incurable, and the end came as above mentioned.

MR. LAWRENCE had been touring agent for some prominent companies, and also bill inspector at the Cardiff Theatre. He later entered the service of Mr. R. E. Liston (now acting-manager of the Leeds Theatre) at the Empire Music Hall, Leicester, being associated there with Mr. Joe Lawrence, the present acting-manager for Mr. Frank Macnaghten at the Pavilion, in the same town. After Mr. Liston's retirement he entered the service of Colonel Winstanley at the Royal Opera House, Leicester, where he remained for a considerable number of years, and finally he was engaged by his old friend Mr. Joe Lawrence as bill inspector at the Pavilion. The deceased man was always attentive to his duties, and carried out his work in a thorough and conscientious manner, and as a window-biller he was probably the most successful man in the profession in Leicester. His wife predeceased him about twelve months ago, from the same complaint.

THE funeral took place at the new Gilroes Cemetery at Leicester on Wednesday afternoon, when a number of sorrowing friends and comrades in the profession were present to pay a last mark of respect to one who had always had their esteem. The coffin was carried to its last resting-place by the following gentlemen :—Messrs. Frank Burdett, Bob Caswell, Andrew Humberstone, Sam Burley, and Fred King, his most intimate friends.

WREATHS, including many from the relatives, included one from Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lawrence (Pavilion Theatre), the staff of the Pavilion, the amalgamated staffs of the various places of entertainment, and Mrs. Wherry.

MESSRS. A. R. DEAN AND SONS, of Birmingham, are fully maintaining their prestige as the world's theatre decorators and furnishers. As theatre furnishers, upholsterers, cabinet makers, carpet manufacturers, iron founders, bar fitters, and fibrous plaster manufacturers, they hold a unique position, their work being found in most of the buildings of note throughout the kingdom. During the last thirty years A. R. Dean and Sons have either completely or partly furnished upwards of 1,842 public buildings, and last year alone 108 theatres, halls, hotels, and other edifices were either completely or partly furnished by them. A record which has not been approached by A. R. Dean and Sons before was thus gained, fully 98 per cent. of the contracts for this class of work last year going to the enterprising firm. Notwithstanding the immense amount of work entailed in completing these contracts, A. R. Dean and Sons take a proper pride in the fact that every contract was completed to time, and invariably gave the greatest satisfaction. This year A. R. Dean and Sons intend to beat their past records. Their contracts in hand already include the whole of the re-upholstery and re-carpeting of the Alhambra Theatre, Paris; the complete reseating of the New Holloway Hall, Holloway; the seating of the New King's Hall, Tooting; furnishing and seating of the New Hippodrome, Ilkeston; complete re-upholstering of the Theatre Royal, Ilkeston. The whole of the plastic and decorations and furnishing throughout at a cost, if required, of £2,000, of the New Royal Hippodrome, Blackburn; and the furnishing throughout of the New Palace Hippodrome, Dundee. A. R. Dean and Sons have made a study of the requirements of picture shows and similar exhibitions, and last year seated twenty-two picture palaces, including most of the Electric Theatre Company's. The fact that the services of Mr. A. F. Windibank are retained as manager of the theatre department is an assurance that this class of work will have the most expert attention.

MR. HERBERT LISLE, manufacturer of trick and novelty instruments, has removed to 209, Camberwell New-road.

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN on Monday sent a charming and sympathetic letter containing postal orders to the well-known skater, Chevalier T. H. Crowther, who has been, and still is, suffering severely from rheumatism. An influential committee is now arranging to give him a bumper benefit.

VULCARIS, who is now well known in the North as well as in various parts of his native England as "the Scottish Grossmith," begins a series of popular once-a-week "vaudeville sit-round" concerts in the Trades Hall, Aberdeen, on Saturday next.

THE success achieved by Miss Bessie Butt as Dandini at the County Theatre, Kingston, is gratifying to all who have taken an interest in the career of this clever young artist. As this is the first principal boy rôle essayed by Miss Butt, Mr. Peter Davey must congratulate himself on the undoubted success of his experiment.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, JANUARY 23, 1909.

THE INFLUENCE OF THE DRAMA.

Those whose work lies behind the curtain, and whose minds are riveted upon the task of artistic representation, often fail to realise the serious view which is taken of the drama by many in the audience. It is the fashion to affect complete disillusionment as to the mimic life of the boards; but a play, to the young, the unsophisticated, and the imaginative is a very real and influential thing, and its importance in forming character and opinion can hardly be over-estimated. A striking proof of this statement was supplied on Tuesday, when the report of the divorce action brought by a Mr. LOCKE against his wife ELLEN was published. The unhappy woman, in a letter written to her husband, alluded to the struggle which had been going on in her soul, and to the deep effect which had been made on her by seeing one of Mr. HALL CAINE'S dramas at the Lyceum Theatre. Mrs. LOCKE wrote:

Do you remember me seeing Pete? God only knows what I suffered that night. Only I knew it was no use confessing to you. I have tried, with Pete's help, four times to break through this, and be a good wife to you.

There are numerous well-authenticated instances of the effect of a dramatic performance upon the conscience. The well-known scene in which Hamlet uses a play to "try the conscience of the king" was probably based on an actual occurrence; and the memory of LILLO'S tragedy of George Barnwell is connected with an interesting incident which was at one time frequently referred to as a proof of the valuable moral lesson which may be taught by a play. The drama of George Barnwell was based upon a ballad printed in the seventeenth century, and supposed to be founded on fact, and is an account of a young, unsuspecting man being seduced by the allurements of an artful courtesan. It was, after its production at Drury Lane in 1731, a great favourite at country theatres in the old days, and was usually performed once during the holidays, every season, at Covent Garden and Drury Lane. It was so successful when first produced at the latter theatre that it was performed for twenty nights to crowded houses; and QUEEN CAROLINE sent to the theatre for the manuscript, in order that she might peruse it. The tragedy was considered as a useful admonition to youth; and on one occasion at least it appears to have been the means of rescuing a young man from perdition. This was during the Christmas holidays in 1752, when Mr. ROSS played George Barnwell and Mrs. PRITCHARD Millwood. A few nights afterwards, Dr. BARROWBY, the physician to St. Bartholomew's Hospital, was sent for by a young gentleman in Great St. Helen's, who was apprenticed to a very eminent merchant. He found him very ill, and, as he suspected, of a complaint beyond the reach of medicine. The nurse told him that he sighed at times so very heavily that she was sure something lay heavy on his mind. The doctor requested to be alone with the patient, when after much solicitation he prevailed on the youth to unbosom himself. He said he was the second son of a gentleman of fortune in Hertfordshire; that he had formed an improper acquaintance with a female, which had caused him to embezzle and expend money belonging to his employer to the amount of £200. Two nights before the doctor saw him he had seen Mr. ROSS and Mrs. PRITCHARD play in George Barnwell, and was so forcibly struck with the coincidence between his own case and that of Barnwell that he had not enjoyed a moment's peace since, and wished to die, that he might avoid the shame which he saw hanging over him. The doctor offered to intercede with the father of the young man for the money, and assured him that if he failed in getting it by that means that he would furnish it himself. The father, who had been sent for, soon arrived. The doctor took him into a private room, and, after explaining the whole cause of the son's illness, entreated him to save the honour of his family and the life of his son. The father instantly went to his banker for the money, while the doctor returned to his patient, and informed him that everything would be arranged to his satisfaction, as his father would soon return with peace and forgiveness, and never mention or even think of the subject again. The youth, relieved from the load with which his mind was oppressed, soon recovered, and afterwards became a very eminent merchant. Mr. ROSS, the actor who was so instrumental in saving this young man, and who related the circumstance, said he never knew either the gentleman or his name, but that for nine or ten years afterwards he always received on his benefit a sealed note, enclosing ten guineas, with these words: "A tribute of gratitude from one who was highly obliged, and saved from ruin, by seeing Mr. Ross's performance of Barnwell."

The influence of the stage on simple and unformed characters is much greater than is generally supposed, and it works as strongly by inference and allusion as by actual suggestion. It is not so much what is dealt with in a drama as the spirit in which the subject is treated which improves or injures the spectator. We have frequently met with reported instances of the influence of a dramatic performance upon the heart and mind of an individual, turning him or her from the wrong path to the right one. It would be interesting to have these collected, if only as a plea for the much-abused drama. If any of our readers remember, either in themselves or in others, a change of heart being created by seeing a play, we shall be much obliged if they will write to us and describe the incident. It will not be necessary to disclose identity; and under the shield of a nom de plume the most intimate disclosures may safely be made.

A MERCY MATINEE.

A large and distinguished audience was liberally entertained on Tuesday at the Garrick Theatre, kindly lent by Miss Evelyn Millard, for a matinée in aid of the League of Mercy, of which Princess Christian is a patroness. Included in the programme were three new pieces from the same pen—that of Mr. Cyril Twyford. Each dealt more or less seriously with marital infidelity, the strongest being the one-act play entitled 009 West. It tells how a husband, suspecting that his wife is unfaithful, compels her to ring up on the telephone "009 West," the number of her alleged lover, and to speak to him while her husband listens. By this means the husband's worst fears are confirmed, and, retiring to an adjoining room, he blows out his brains. The author was well served, Mr. Leslie Faber playing with striking power as the outraged husband, and Miss Granville employing her dramatic skill effectively in the varied phases of a difficult rôle.

The second piece made a pretence of being a comedy, and was called Thin Ice. The precarious surface hinted at in the title is trodden by a young husband, who has acquired the habit of staying out at night, and propitiates his adoring wife by presents of jewellery. Acting on the advice of a friend, the wife decides to have a night out, and effects a similar compromise with her spouse by leaving him a gift of a gold cigar-case. The young man is thus brought to book before he has gone too far, and the omniscient friend is reconciled to an admirer who had momentarily asserted his independence. Well-known artists were again included in the cast, but the material at their disposal was very poor. However, Mr. Chas. Quartermaine played the recalcitrant Benedict with commendable care. Mr. Thos. A. Braidon, under whose direction the matinée was given, used his light comedy gifts to all possible purpose as a weak young wooer; and Miss Alexandra Carlisle, Miss Francis Vine, and Miss Elsie Williams appeared in the feminine parts.

An episode entitled Kiddie furnished the third novelty. Husband and wife have obtained a divorce, and the former has been given the custody of their boy. The mother comes to plead to be allowed to keep the child, and in course of conversation convinces her husband that she is innocent, a sort of anti-climax being furnished by the arrival of a telegram saying that "Kiddie," who has been ill with diphtheria, is dead. The performance was welcome for an effective rendition of the husband by Mr. Henry Ainley, who acted in his usual artistic style; and Miss Susanne Sheldon invested with emotional power the part of the ill-judged wife, Mr. Herbert Dansey appearing in a minor rôle.

A miscellaneous programme of high-class quality was also provided, the singing of Signor Manrico Bacci, of Miss Julia Caroli, and of Mme. Hortense Paulsen giving infinite pleasure. Miss Helen Mar told many yarns with her customary humour, Miss Phyllis Bedells gave the skipping-rope dance from the Empire ballet; and Mr. Maurice Farkoa sang four of his daintily-rendered songs, two of which were due to recalls. An eagerly-awaited item came at the end, when Miss Lily Elsie and Mr. Joseph Coyne fascinated all with the Merry Widow waltz, which had to be repeated. Judging by the size of the audience, the society for which the matinée was given should benefit substantially

THE eminent German composer Herr Paul Lincke has been sojourning in London for the greater part of a week, and has spent his time visiting matinée and evening performances at the principal West End theatres. The distinguished musician, whose "Luna" waltz is now the vogue in Germany, France, Belgium, Austria, and America, made some trenchant remarks on the apathy of British composers and the matter of lost royalties.

HE said: "What has surprised me here is that English composers have no organisation for the collection of fees for the public performance of their works. The society in France is most helpful to musicians in this respect, and a similar institution has lately been started in Germany. Several people ask—Why should the composer be paid for the performance of his work? You go to a concert and hear big artists interpreting noble compositions. At such a concert everybody is remunerated—vocalists, orchestra, conductor, programme sellers—except the man whose works you are listening to. Is this fair? A band plays in a restaurant and makes a name for itself by playing popular airs. Do the composers benefit one penny?

"THE French society, which has now been in existence some fifty years, originated in a curious way. A poor composer whose song was the rage of the day went to a café in Paris and ordered refreshment. His composition was sung, and aroused tremendous enthusiasm. People had gone there specially to hear it. When the waiter came to him for payment the musician refused to settle. The manager was called. He agreed that people had attended on purpose to listen to the work, but he did not see why he should entertain the composer.

"OUT of the action that naturally followed there came the establishment of the French society. The organisation is well known in this country, for Mr. Alfred Moul, the present managing-director of the Alhambra, used to be its English representative. But why don't you Englishmen form one of your own? Some of your brilliant composers would then materially add to their incomes."

"HOW WOMEN ARE SLANDERED."

Drama, in Four Acts, by T. G. Bailey, produced at the Victoria Theatre, Broughton, on Jan. 14.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The theme of the above drama is the endeavour of a woman to obtain her ends by getting a scapegrace to assist her in damaging the character of his own sister (who is really a good woman), and the author has worked up a pretty story, keeping the audience on "tip-toe" of expectation throughout. Lieut. Sterling, a young soldier who had gained the coveted Victoria Cross, had protected Madge Gilroy some times before the opening of the play from the brutality of a man she was living with, and she had formed the resolution to marry her preserver. The lieutenant, however, was attached to Maud Warberton, and his affection was returned. The first scene is laid in Squire Warberton's garden, and an interview between the Squire and his son Bob shows the latter to be a gambler and a thief and a thorough disgrace to his family. The old man refuses to give him money, and tells him he will not have anything more to do with him. Maud (his sister) tries to persuade him to start a better life, and he promises to do his best if she will get him some money. Madge, whom he has known as "the Marchioness," arrives, and, seeing Maud in the company of a young man, determines she shall have Sterling herself. The lieutenant and Maud, however, plight their troth, the Squire giving his consent. Madge and Sterling meet, but the young man will have nothing to do with her. Bob quarrels with a shady sort of individual known as "the Parson." The former shoots at his adversary, but misses, and is himself stunned by a blow from "the Parson." The next moment Madge, picking up the revolver, shoots the Parson, and places the revolver in the hand of the unconscious Bob. He revives, and Madge tells him that unless he does as she commands, namely, abducts his sister Maud and takes her to a house of ill-fame, she will see that he is hanged. He defies her, and leaves. Madge rummages in the dead man's pocket, and is discovered thus employed by a man called Sober Joe.

Eight years elapse, and Act II. finds Madge paying Sober Joe to keep silence. Bob—now a complete wreck—having been haunted with the idea that he is a murderer, comes to ask Madge to help him. She promises on condition that he obeys her command. Sterling has been married eight years to Maud, and is away at the war, where he has become a Major. Maud is presiding at a children's party when Madge appears and gives the young mother to understand that her brother is a murderer, demanding her place as the price of Bob's freedom. The Major, welcomed back by a crowd outside, returns. Madge accuses his wife of infidelity, and adds that the children are not his. Maud's lips are sealed by the thought of the brother's crime, and she is banished from the house. The father keeps the girl, while the boy chooses to go with his mother.

In the third act Sterling has taken Madge to keep house, and, the little girl being in the way, Madge takes every opportunity of frightening her with a mask and cloak until she becomes ill. A nurse is engaged, and the child recognises her as the mother. It is decided to watch for the bogey woman, and Maud finds out and horsewhips Madge, taking the child away. Ten years afterwards Madge, still indulging her infatuation for Sterling, gets a letter sent to say Maud has been killed abroad, and Sterling goes to Italy to find the children, taking Madge with him. Madge and Maud meet, and Madge denounces her before the other guests as a woman whose reputation will not bear investigation; but Maud's son Jack comes to her side and vindicates his mother's honour. Meanwhile Sober Joe, having met with an accident, grows remorseful, and tells the truth about the murder and the way Maud acted to save her brother from the hangman. In the last scene Madge endeavours to shoot Maud, but is herself stabbed by the demented Bob.

The acting was excellent throughout. Miss Ella Thornton as Madge played with much ability; Miss Phyllis Relph portrayed the virtuous Maud in excellent style; Mr. Leonard Robson as the Lieutenant was every inch a fine young soldier; and clever acting of the scapegrace Bob was done by Mr. Ellersley Pyne. Mr. J. F. Fox as Jimmy Chipps, a chauffeur, policeman, shopkeeper, &c., took every opportunity of keeping the audience amused, and was well assisted by Miss Tilbury George as Patty. Miss Dorothy Dewhurst made a good Master Jack Sterling; Mr. Clifford George carefully acted the Squire; Sober Joe was in the capable hands of Mr. Walter Clifford; Mr. George Morton ("the Parson"), Miss Doris Pease (little Rosie), and Miss Florence Manners (Annie Body) gave good support. Several specialities were done in the first scene of the fourth act—the grounds of an Italian hotel—by Miss Ena Moore, a graceful Spanish dancer, Miss Clare Wolverson, vocalist, and Mr. J. F. Fox. The play is produced by Messrs. Watson and Owen, and the staging is all that can be desired. The curtain had to be raised many times, and at the end the author had to appear and acknowledge the enthusiastic plaudits.

THE O.P. Club have had to stop issuing any further tickets for the forthcoming Merry Widow Dinner.

OVER 200 of the local unemployed were entertained on the 14th inst. to a substantial mid-day meal by Mr. S. Winks, the energetic resident-manager of the Grand Theatre, Halifax. The guests were welcomed at the theatre by Mr. Wm. Robinson, the managing-director of the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd., and Mr. Winks. The guests were afterwards entertained to musical selections, and stayed to the matinée of Mr. J. Gar-Kiddie's pantomime, Little Bo-Peep, spending a thoroughly enjoyable afternoon.

THE children's turn came on Saturday afternoon, when 400 poor youngsters were invited to a similar repast. Despite the fact that a bitterly cold northerly wind was blowing accompanied by heavy falls of snow, the children began to assemble by 10.45, and continued to swell the hungry crowd until noon. Four hundred tickets had been distributed, but a number presented themselves at the doors without the magic pasteboard begging for admittance, and none were turned away. After the meal Mr. Winks conducted his visitors through several popular songs and choruses, and invited all to see Bo-Peep. The pantomime was thoroughly enjoyed. The artists had little chance with the popular songs, the youngsters taking up the refrain at once, and singing lustily to the bâton of the conductor. Mr. Winks is hoping to be able to give a similar treat to-day (Saturday).

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, Jan. 21.—Ernest Reyer, the celebrated composer, has passed away at the age of eighty-six, after a short illness. Like Berlioz—whose place he took on the Journal des Débats—he was not "a prophet in his own country," and the knowledge that he was so little appreciated by his countrymen embittered his life. The fact that he was a staunch supporter of Wagner at a time when the German master's very name was tabooed in France added to his unpopularity, and it was only after his great works Sigurd and Salammbô received official consecration by being produced in Covent Garden and at the Théâtre de la Monnaie in Brussels that it dawned upon the French public how absurd their attitude had been towards a man of whom his country might be justly proud. From that moment honours were showered upon him, and although Reyer's music is beyond the comprehension of the ordinary playgoer, the latter now listens to it reverently, which is more than that playgoer's father did.

ONE night, at a musical soirée at the house of a celebrated chocolate manufacturer, a musical banker was asked to "oblige the company" with a valse of Chopin. He did oblige, and whilst he performed I heard a lady behind me whisper in an admiring tone to her neighbour, "Doesn't he play beautifully for a millionaire?" There was deep philosophy in those words, of which the good lady, of course, was quite unaware. But I suddenly remembered them a few days ago when I attended the first performance at the Théâtre du Jardin d'Acclimatation of Les Roses du Calife, a one-act opera by the Princesse de Polignac. But what kind of house is the Théâtre du Jardin d'Acclimatation, and who is the Princesse de Polignac? The "Jardin d'Acclimatation" is the French equivalent for the Paris "Zoo," and boasts of a hall where popular concerts are given every Sunday afternoon. As to the Princesse de Polignac, her title speaks for itself. She is a great lady passionately fond of composing, and anxious to see her works produced. Ordinary mortals, with nothing but their talent to recommend them, have to wait several years before they are lucky enough to come across a manager willing to take them in hand. But the great in this world apparently know how the thing has to be done, for they always find an obliging manager, and, if necessary, papers ready to publish laudatory notices. For all that, I am glad to say that the Princesse de Polignac's composition is not at all bad—even for a princess. Her work shows distinct merits that raise her above the ordinary amateur, and the orchestration especially denotes no little skill on her part. The same compliment cannot be paid to M. de Dubor, the librettist. His story is naive. He shows us a Caliph so fond of his roses that he has issued an edict that anyone plucking one of his favourite flowers is to be put to death. One night Nosiba, the favourite lady in his harem, has made an appointment in the gardens with Nabegha, the Caliph's nephew, with whom she is in love, whereupon the Grand Vizier, mistaking them in the darkness for thieves, hits out with his sword and kills them. As an excuse for his stupidity the Grand Vizier makes the Caliph believe that the young couple were stealing roses, and that he performed his duty in despatching them; and the Caliph, lamenting the death of his favourite lady and of her companion, says that they were fated to die, and he philosophically orders the dances that had been interrupted to continue.

WITHIN the last few weeks wild rumours have been afloat that Mme. Réjane intended to withdraw from the management of the theatre that bears her name. It was even said that a gentleman from Marseilles was prepared to take over the house and make it the home for operettes. As these statements may prove prejudicial to Mme. Réjane's interests, it is but right you should know that there is not an atom of truth in them. It is impossible to say where and how they originated, but Mme. Réjane is anxious that her friends should know that she has not the slightest intention of parting with her house.

UNDER the auspices of the theatrical society "L'Inédit," an excellent comedy called Notre Fille, by M. André Paysan, was produced at the Théâtre Fémina. The plot is as follows:—M. and Mme. Lehidel, shopkeepers in a small provincial town, want their daughter Lucie to marry Jacques, a youth adopted by a deaf millionaire maiden aunt, whose money he is to inherit. Lucie does not care for Jacques; in fact, she thinks she is young and pretty enough to wait until the man of her choice should come upon the scene. M. and Mme. Lehidel, however, with the characteristic narrow-mindedness of provincial tradesmen, study only their own interest, inasmuch as they want to employ Jacques' money to develop their business. When Lucie sees that her parents' egoism is proof against her entreaties, and that she will be compelled to accept Jacques who will ask for her hand that afternoon, she takes a bold and curious resolve. She applies for help to Pierre, a youth studying medicine in Paris. He and she have been playmates, and she knows she can trust him. Having explained to him the nature of her trouble, she says: "You must confirm my statement that you are my lover—a statement that will frighten Jacques and his deaf aunt away!" The startled Pierre is not at all anxious to play this risky comedy. But Lucie coaxes him into submission, and when Jacques comes to ask for her hand the girl, pointing to Pierre, says that she is that man's mistress. The scene that follows baffles description. Jacques grins on the sly, and seems to treat the affair as a capital joke. But Mme. Lehidel faints, her husband behaves like a maniac, whilst the deaf aunt tries in vain to obtain some information as to what has occurred. Before this storm Pierre and Lucie beat a hasty retreat. In the next act we meet Pierre and Lucie in Paris, where they are living like brother and sister. Lucie has gone to a small restaurant in the Latin Quarter and is waiting there for Pierre, when, to her surprise, Jacques enters and joins a party of students and girls at another table. Lucie can hardly credit her eyes, for she fails to recognise in that bright, witty fellow the apparent dullard who at home looked so meek and mild. Jacques at last catches sight of her, and we witness a charming scene between these two people, who for years have been living almost side by side in the provinces, and, having remained strangers, now suddenly understand one another. They leave the restaurant engaged, and when the prodigal daughter returns home her parents forgive her escapade.

THE Théâtre Mévisto has given us four plays, of which Le Reprouvé, a drama, in two tableaux, by M. M. L. Aurenche, alone deserves special mention. The scene is laid in the mountainous district of the Ardèche, in the house of an old peasant, an upright man. Jean, his eldest son, has just returned from the regiment. His morals have become very loose, and when his mother remonstrates with him he lifts his hand to strike her, whereupon his father throws him out of the house. Ten years elapse. The mother has died from grief; and one night Jean, tracked by the police, returns home. He is so altered that nobody recognises him except the father, who forgives his erring child. But Jean does not want to bring further dishonour upon the family. He seizes a gun, rushes out into the darkness, and whilst the father and the other members of the family recite the prayer for the dead a faint shot is heard in the distance. Nobody except the father will ever know that the miscreant who blew out his brains was Jean.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Jan. 21.—Of all the English melodramas produced at the Luisen, in the adaptation of Herr Siegfried Lutz—and they are many—this is perhaps the most successful. It met with an enthusiastic reception, and has been much praised by the critics. The genuine English fun, including the novel Punch and Judy scene, showed up in pleasant contrast to the graver scenes, while the "moral" of the play—which is much in the style of the German volks-piece—appealed convincingly to the audience. The interpretation was good all round, and the chief artists were frequently applauded by open stage. At the close of the third act Herr Lutz was called before the curtain by unanimous consent, and, amidst loud applause, several wreaths were handed up, one of which bore the inscription in gold letters: "From the British Dramatists' Association to their Champion in Germany."

ANOTHER highly-successful English play was Mr. W. S. Maugham's Mrs. Dot, which was produced at the Royal Schauspielhaus on Saturday. The house was crowded, and in one of the Imperial boxes sat the Kaiser and Kaiserin with their youngest son, Prince Joachim. That their Majesties enjoyed the amusing piece as much as anyone was obvious by the heartiness of their laughter and applause. It was a pity the author was not present to witness the success of his piece. The acting was very bright, Herr Vollmer (Blenkinsop), Herr Boettcher (Freddie Perkins), Herr Somerstorff (Halstane), Frau Butze as Lady Sellenger, and last, but by no means least, Fräulein von Mayburg in the name-part, being entitled to unstinted commendation. There is no doubt at all that Mrs. Dot will enjoy a long lease of life at our State theatre.

HERR KAINZ is with us once more, having deserted the Imperial Burg Theatre at Vienna for a month's season at the Berlin New Schauspielhaus. The famous actor opened on Sunday evening with Julius Cæsar, for which performance all tickets had been sold many days before, and could easily have been disposed of twice over. The Mark Antony of Herr Kainz is too well known to need description. It is sufficient to say he achieved a great triumph, and met with a welcome from his Berlin admirers (who have never become reconciled to his leaving them) such as must have delighted him.

THE Lessing Theatre is determined to try its hand at farce, and, after one or two failures, has at last reached the summit of its ambition. In the French burlesque-farce Der König, whose joint authors are Messrs. De Caillavet, De Flers, and Arène, the management has made a very decided hit. Regardless, therefore, of the amiable ridicule cast by the critics upon the new departure of this hitherto classic house, Herr Brahm pursues his novel course, and would be foolish to do otherwise when results prove so extremely satisfactory as in the present case. Among the delighted audience sat Dr. Richard Strauss, who sought and found in heartiest laughter relaxation from the cares of the Elektra rehearsals.

NOT only German drama and literature, but the whole German nation has sustained an irreparable loss in the sudden death of Ernst von Wildenbruch, who passed peacefully away last Friday at his Berlin residence. Wildenbruch was only sixty-three, and full of work and energy when struck down by apoplexy. It is not saying too much when Wildenbruch is termed the greatest German dramatist of modern times, as he was one of the most conscientious and hard-working. His historic play König Heinrich (which had so unprecedented a run at the Berliner some ten years ago) was one of the most effective works ever produced on any stage. Wildenbruch was often accused of glorifying the Hohenzollern race, but it must be remembered that he himself was a scion of that race, and his ardent patriotism nobody would attempt to deny. His historical play Die Quitzows was performed hundreds of times at the Royal Schauspielhaus, always to crowded houses. He enjoyed the favour of the reigning family until an unfortunate incident occurred. At a performance of König Laurin, one of Wildenbruch's later plays, the Kaiserin was present with several of her sons. Her Majesty took exception to certain scenes, and left the house in the middle of the performance, accompanied by the Princes, and the author was never restored to his former favour. Never being a time-server, this did not affect Wildenbruch much, but he left Berlin as a permanent residence soon afterwards, and settled at Weimar. He was married to a daughter of Carl Maria von Weber, a most charming and cultured lady, who shared in all her husband's work and triumphs. Wildenbruch was one of the most generous, warm-hearted men that ever existed, and his loss is mourned by thousands. He was interred with unusual honours at Weimar, and expressions of deep sympathy have been received by the widow from the Kaiser, the King of Saxony, the Emperor of Austria, and many more distinguished persons.

"HE AND SHE."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In your issue of the 16th you stated that Miss Ellis Jefferies was about to appear in a play of mine entitled He and She. Will you allow me to correct this statement? The play is by Mr. George Bellamy and myself, and it is now called No. 2.—Yours faithfully,
London, W. SYDNEY BLOW.

"LE MALADE IMAGINAIRE."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—If only to clear the reputation of Mr. Mathew, M.A., with whose version of Molière I am not familiar, I feel it my plain duty to plead guilty to any eccentricities of translation that existed in the adaptation played by me and my company at Clifford's Inn Hall on the 13th inst.

Of the eight translations that I found at the British Museum, several were admirable, but none actable. I therefore took the liberty of translating the play myself.

This fact was not stated on the programme from a foolish feeling of modesty that assailed me as to my name figuring too many times upon the same sheet. I am only surprised that my own personal shortcomings did not blind your critic's eyes to the baldness of the text.—Yours faithfully,
15, Clifford's Inn, E.C. KENELM FOSS.
Jan. 22.

MARTIN ROLAND was specially engaged to play Auguste Rose in the farce Born to be Loved at the Albert Hall Theatre last Tuesday.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

THE attention of sketch producers and artists generally is drawn to the newest feature of The Era Annual, viz., the complete casts of music-hall sketches produced during the period between Dec. 1, 1907, and Nov. 30, 1908, and these are supplemented by an alphabetical index, which we feel sure will often prevent plagiarisms of title.

ANXIOUS to learn the exact truth concerning Mlle. Genée, who was said to have fractured a rib, the directors of the Empire despatched a cable on Tuesday to the popular dancer, who on Wednesday replied in the following terms:—"Am perfectly well. Accident insignificant. Thanks!" The reassuring information will be heartily welcomed.

HIS MAJESTY THE KING, who paid a visit to the Empire Theatre on Monday evening, showed the greatest interest in the ballet A Day in Paris, using his opera glasses very freely. His Majesty remained until the end of the performance, so that he might see the Bioscope pictures of the Ruins of Messina, the Italian Cavalry, and the Aldershot Review, and only left when "God save the King" was being played.

MR. SEYMOUR HICKS and Miss Ellaline Terriss finish their joint engagement at the Palace to-day. Mr. Hicks will be seen at the London Coliseum as Scrooge and in other Dickens characters early in March, when he will fulfil a six weeks' season. Mr. Hicks will have the support of an excellent company.

MR. CYRIL CLENSY, who first scored with his mimicry in the production of My Darling, and afterwards made a successful appearance at the Tivoli in December, 1907, is to give his impersonations at the Palace next week. It may not be generally known, but Mr. Clensy plays the 'cello exceedingly well.

MISS HILDA ANTONY has been specially engaged by the management of the Empire to take up the part of Kathleen Mahoney in Mr. W. J. Locke's little play A Blank Cheque, when Miss Evelyn D'Alroy resigns it to take up her engagement with Mr. Lewis Waller. Miss Antony's early career in London was in connection with the production of Bluebell in Fairyland, and she recently played Elizabeth in The Education of Elizabeth.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD H. LUCAS, those clever exponents of characters from Dickens, left Waterloo on Sunday last at 10.35 for Southampton, en route for New York, where they open on Feb. 1. Several friends were present to bid them a brief farewell, and Mrs. Lucas carried with her to their specially reserved carriage two handsome bouquets, one being from the audience at the Hippodrome, Ipswich, where they were appearing last week. The Lucases, it may be mentioned, have taken across the Atlantic over two tons of luggage, including new scenery and the veritable piano and desk owned by Charles Dickens. Their success in the States is assured.

MISS HENRIQUETTE MAUDE, the little New Zealander, who is appearing at the London Pavilion with most gratifying success, will recite next week the verses written on the subject of the jockey boy, who, meeting with an accident, was left dying on the Melbourne racecourse while much concern was shown as to the condition of his mount. The incident excited much comment during Miss Maude's visit to the Australian city.

"TO-MORROW"—always a most beautiful spectacle—has been made very much more interesting and funny than it was on the opening night. Mr. Sydney Blow retells the story in a way that gives it even a touch of pathos, and the introduction of Mr. Fred Walton, the famous impersonator of the toy soldier, in a couple of scenes, is indeed a happy thought. The Brothers Fratellini are also pressed into the service, and keep the kiddies chuckling with laughter by their drollery in well-conceived animal impersonations. Miss Fatmah Diard, too, sings delightfully as the fairy.

MISS SYDNEY FAIRBROTHER, a delightful actress in characters associated with what is technically known as low comedy, and her company will present at the Coliseum, on Monday, a realistic sketch, entitled Artful, by Sidney Blow and George Bellamy, the authors of the sketch to be produced on Monday at the Palace Theatre by Miss Ellis Jeffreys and Herbert Sleath. Miss Fairbrother, who recently played Charlotte Siddons, the showwoman, in The Gay Gordons, is sure of a hearty welcome.

IN the midst of peace-making and many meetings Will Oliver has discovered what he describes as a little wonder as a boy comic, Cliff Diamond, who is the son of that well-known comedian, Harry Clifford. The youngster is only eleven and a half years, but Will says he reminds him of himself in his boyhood's days. He has been secured right and left, and managers should keep their eyes on the little Diamond.

THE fashionable craze of roller skating has claimed for its latest victim Mr. Auguste Van Biene, the famous 'cellist. The veteran hero of The Broken Melody returned this week for a London season, and every afternoon has been taking lessons at the Empress Hall, Earl's Court. Quite a good story is told of his initial efforts to master the gliding pastime. At the outset Mr. Van Biene had one or two bad falls, and, as he assisted the famous musician to rise, one of the rink instructors remarked in what he meant to be a consoling way: "Ah! sir, roller skating is not as easy to learn as fiddle playing, is it?"

MRS. BROWN POTTER made her American vaudeville début at the Lincoln-square Theatre, New York, last week, and drew big crowds. Her opening is unique and to American vaudeville audiences decidedly novel. Mrs. Brown Potter rendered Eugene Field's "Little Boy Blue" and several other pieces most charmingly, and each selection was followed by hearty and prolonged applause. This week her "Poems of Personality and Passion" include Dagonet's "Ostler Joe," which Mrs. Kendal gave with such power and pathos back in the eighties at the Albert Palace, Battersea, nuder the management of "Bill" Holland.

MISS VESTA VICTORIA, who is fond of a joke, has been gravely giving an American journalist an explanation of how certain of her best songs originated, and the account, which was reproduced in the Daily Chronicle of the 19th inst., caused much amusement to Fred W. Leigh and Henry E. Pether and to Fred Murray, the well-known London song-writers, who are responsible for the songs mentioned.

SAID the fair artist: "Most of my songs are the result of some chance remark, some haphazard encounters, with a serious idea inverted. 'Waiting at the church' was the result of a wedding I saw in the East-end of London. 'It's all right in the summer time' occurred to me because in my garden at home there are a number of classic statues, nude figures, some of them holding harps or water-jars, and other useless ornaments of the Greek period. Someone said to me 'That lady would be more comfortable if she were dressed,' and I answered offhand, 'Oh, it's all right in the summer time,' and from that the song was evolved. The best types I find among the coster people of London; they are a constant source of material for comic songs."

THE strike at Cork has been settled amicably, and consequently the picketing of the Palace there is discontinued.

MASTER MAX DAREWSKI, the boy conductor and composer, opens at the Palace, Manchester, on Monday.

THE directors of the Hackney and Shepherd's Bush Empires, Ltd., recommend a dividend for the final half year at the rate of twenty per cent. per annum, free of income tax.

THE Empire (Portsmouth) shareholders are to be congratulated on the latest dividend resolved on at the annual meeting on Saturday. It is at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum.

THE annual Liverpool pantomime ball, arranged by the Royal Court and Shakespeare managers, will take place on Thursday evening, Feb. 4. The tickets are limited in number, and discretion is exercised as to their distribution.

UNDER the style of Samson and McNeil, Ltd., a company has been registered, with a nominal capital of £9,000, in £1 shares, to acquire the New Palace Theatre, Northampton. There are reports of other amusement enterprises in the town.

THE directors of the Manchester Hippodrome and Ardwick Empire, Ltd., recommend an interim dividend at the rate of ten per cent. per annum, free of income tax; and the directors of the Leicester Palace Theatre, Ltd., recommend a dividend, for the final half year, at the rate of seven and a half per cent. per annum, free of income tax.

DR. WALFORD BODIE last week, at the Palace, Tottenham, again broke all records. On Saturday night alone over 8,000 paid for admission, many hundreds waiting for the second house before the overture of the first house had hardly commenced. The doctor finished his wonderful performance amidst scenes of unbounded enthusiasm. This week he is again creating a furore at the Palace, Grimsby.

LEONI CLARKE, the world-renowned "cat king," has returned, after an absence of nearly two years, to his old headquarters, The Two Brewers Hotel, Northampton, where he will be pleased to renew his acquaintance with old friends and meet with new ones. He will have the able support of Mrs. Leoni Clarke, well known and respected in the profession as Chrissie Angus, the celebrated burlesque actress, who is looking as well and as handsome as ever.

MR. JOE PRINELLA (of the Prinellas) died very suddenly at Belfast on Monday night. Mr. and Mrs. Prinella arrived in that city on Monday from Aston, Birmingham, viâ Greenore, and not feeling very well, Mr. Prinella was unable to rehearse at the Royal Hippodrome, for which their Farmyard scena was billed. Dr. O'Malley (Belfast) was called in, but, as stated, Mr. Prinella passed away about 7.30 p.m. on Monday, the cause of death being bronchial asthma and heart failure. Mr. Prinella, who was but thirty-one years of age, was interred in the City Cemetery, Belfast, on Tuesday, and much sympathy has been expressed with the widow, left totally unprovided for.

COUNCILLOR E. H. BOSTOCK, of the Zoo-Hippodrome, Glasgow, on Saturday last gave a special matinée in aid of the Italian Disaster Funds. An excellent programme was arranged, including views of Messina before and after the earthquake, while the Hippodrome's variety company was augmented by Mr. W. F. Frame, "the man you know," and other artists. On Friday the Pavilion, Glasgow, followed suit, in aid of the same deserving cause, with an absolutely phenomenal array of talent from all the halls and pantomimes in Glasgow and Edinburgh.

MISS VESTA TILLEY, the wife of the well-known music hall proprietor and agent, Mr. Walter De Freece, has consented to lay the foundation stone of Messrs. Sherwood and Co.'s new Hippodrome in Wakefield. The building which is to be erected will accommodate 2,500 people, and no expense is to be spared in the decorations and furnishing, and it is intended that the new house shall excel in beauty and cosiness the Messrs. Sherwood's other property, the Opera House, Wakefield.

A LEASE of the Palace Theatre, Brighton, has been secured by Messrs. Jay and Mann from Lady Day next. The house has been redecorated and recarpeted, and a very handsome wind and rain shelter has recently been completed down the entire length of the pier at a cost of several thousand pounds. The playgoing public are to be admitted to the Pier free of the 2d. toll they have hitherto paid.

MESSRS. JAY AND MANN will personally manage, and will introduce an entirely new policy, with the intention of making the Palace Theatre the most popular house of entertainment in Brighton. The theatre holds 1,500 people, and over £100 in money at ordinary prices. Every seat in the house commands a perfect view of the stage.

BY the kindness of the directors of the Portsmouth Empire Palace the able-bodied patients of Milton Asylum and inmates of the Portsmouth Workhouse were entertained at a special matinée on Thursday (14th). Practically the whole of the artistes filling the bill at last week's performances very kindly gave their services, and their efforts met with unstinted applause.

THE Mayor of Portsmouth (Councillor J. Baggs), various members of the Board of Guardians, and the Asylum Committee were in attendance, and during an interval in the performance the directors of the Empire kindly distributed gifts of tobacco to the men and oranges and sweets to the women.

OWING to the refusal of certain of the debenture holders of the Birmingham Gaiety to consent to the request of the company to give time for the payment of the interest due on Nov. 30 last, and they now having demanded payment of their debentures, it has been deemed necessary by the trustees for the debenture holders, under the terms of the trust deed, to appoint a receiver and manager of the business, and so as to protect the estate they have appointed Mr. Frederick A. Badman, of 3, Snow-hill, Birmingham, as such receiver and manager.

MR. BADMAN has considerable practical knowledge of the working of the Gaiety, as well as concerns of a similar character, and is so heavily interested as a debenture holder as well as a shareholder that the business will be conducted by him (with the approval of the trustees) in a manner conducive to the good of all concerned. Messrs. Criddle and Criddle, of Collingwood-street, Newcastle-on-Tyne, are the solicitors for the trustees.

MR. G. D. BRADBURY and Mr. Fuller, manager and stage-manager respectively of the Palace and Hippodrome, Warrington, were presented on Sunday with purses of gold on their severing their connection with the above place of amusement. Mr. Lathom (chairman), in warmly congratulating Mr. Bradbury on his recovery from his recent illness, expressed his regret that both gentlemen were leaving the district, a regret shared by the recipients, who gracefully voiced their thanks for the honour shown to them.

THE directors of the London Coliseum recommend a final dividend for the second half of the year at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum free of tax.

MISS BESSIE BUTT'S success as Dandini at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston-on-Thames, has brought her many offers for next Christmas, but she has not yet definitely settled.

MISS CISSIE CURLETTE has left England for Australia, to fulfil an engagement with Mr. Harry Rickards, made by Mr. Tom Pacey. When she returns she is fully booked till 1912 by the same agency.

MR. MARTIN ADESON, who is playing most successfully the part of Widow Twankey at the Theatre Royal, Leeds, will be going to Australia in the course of the year. He is in want of a good, smart duologue for lady and gentleman, to play about twelve minutes.

MR. CHARLES COLLETTE, who has thoroughly recovered from a severe attack of gout, appears on Monday and during the week at the New Palace, Plymouth, with a budget of new songs, including "Down by the rippling tide."

AT the 592nd meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. held on Wednesday afternoon at the offices of the Association, with Mr. George B. Sinclair in the chair, a new agency at the London Hotel, Weymouth, was fixed up. The weekly financial statement showed thirty-two new members and a cash total of £50 14s. 6d.

LIEUTENANT FRANK TRAVIS, the popular ventriloquist, who has been seriously ill, has now taken a turn for the better. For the present all communications intended for him should be addressed care of Mr. W. H. Armstrong, solicitor, 1, Renfrew-road, Lambeth, S.E.

"THE STADIUM" is the name of an up-to-date production that is now in active preparation, and which is to be produced by the John Leopold's company. This combination is one of the very few that is certain of success either on the variety or theatrical stage. Vim and versatility are its chief characteristics.

MRS. MICHAEL NOLAN wishes to thank, through our columns, Mr. and Mrs. George Barclay (Miss Kate Carney) for their great kindness, and brother and sister artists for numerous telegrams during her husband's recent serious illness; also all those friends who kindly called. She wishes to add that her husband is very much better.

MR. GEORGE RANKEN ASKWITH, the author of the Award resulting from the music-hall strike of January, 1907, has been appointed arbitrator to settle the dispute between artists and agents.

MR. GEORGE RANKEN ASKWITH, K.C.

THE new Comptroller of Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks was waited upon on Friday by the representatives of the Federation—Messrs. W. H. Clemart, William Lee, Joe Elvin, and Wal Pink—accompanied by Mr. C. J. Doughty; and the representatives of the Agents' Association—Messrs. Hugh J. Didcott, George Barclay, Emanuel Warner, and Will Oliver—accompanied by Mr. Woodhouse, of the firm of Stanley, Woodhouse, and Hedderwick, solicitors. The arbitration is to take place on Feb. 10, 11, and 12.

"A MAGDALEN MARRIED," an intense dramatic episode written by Paul Barry-Lewers, was produced on Wednesday evening at the Middlesex by Miss Elizabeth Watkins with so much success that Mr. Graydon has booked it for the week commencing Feb. 1. A notice will be found in another column.

WE regret to hear that Miss Topsy Sinden has been suffering from an attack of ptomaine poisoning, which has, however, yielded to treatment, and she is now back at the Prince's, Bristol, where her attractive dancing is winning golden opinions from all lovers of the best traditions of pantomime.

WE regret to state that Miss Hilda Coe, of Hilda and Beatrice, is lying seriously ill at her home in Tunbridge Wells from blood poisoning, following acute influenza contracted last week whilst performing at the Theatre Royal, Oldham. She has been obliged to cancel Harrogate this week and future engagements.

CARL HERTZ had the misfortune of nearly having his motor-car destroyed by fire last week. One of the assistants at his garage overfilled the tank, spilling some of the petrol. A few minutes later the chauffeur, in lighting the front lamps, dropped a piece of the match. This immediately fired the petrol on the ground, and the flame, trailing to the tank, set the car in a blaze. By the quick action of the attendants and the use of fire extinguishers and sand the fire was speedily put out, but not before the car was much damaged. One of the attendants was also seriously burnt. It was marvellous that the car was not entirely consumed. Happily it is insured.

THE secretary of the Music Hall Home (Ben Woodger) on behalf of the committee desires to thank Smith and Johnson for parcel of clothes, the manager of the Canterbury for taking a pence-box, Sidney Lawrence (The Gem, Great Yarmouth) for donation and for also taking a pence-box, Chas. Weldon (Hippodrome, Leeds) for handsome photo and booklet, and Geo. Gulliver for photo. The secretary will gladly send a card to any friend who is willing to try and collect for The Era Appeal Fund. The Home is in great need of help. The committee meetings are now held at the Empire, Camberwell, on the first and third Thursdays in the month.

THE great Chung Ling Soo sailed last week for Australia to tour the whole of New South Wales, under Mr. Harry Rickards' management. This engagement was made by Tom Pacey, of Brixton.

MISS GLADYS HUXLEY, who has just returned to England from a highly successful engagement in South Africa, will renew her triumphs at the Oxford on Monday, Feb. 1, with new songs.

A SPECIAL general meeting of the Terriers' Association will be held at the Three Stags' Hotel, Kennington-road, S.E., on Friday, Feb. 5, at 1.30 p.m.

THE following matters will be considered:—(1) The increase of the income of No. 2 account by the transfer of particular funds from No. 1 account, or otherwise; (2) Alteration of Rule 14, by deleting in paragraph one the following words: "if he be more than six months in arrears"; (3) Terrier Millis's Commonwealth Scheme.

TERRIER HARRY BANCROFT sails for Africa on Saturday, and will leave Waterloo station at 11 a.m. Terriers are invited to be present.

ROMA AND ROMANI, the classical musicians, have been compelled through illness to cancel their contracts at Belfast and Dublin. It is hoped they will be able to resume at Liverpool on Feb. 1. These reservedly popular artists are booked well into 1914.

THE Town Clerk (Mr. Hugo Talbot) has presented to the General Purposes Committee of the Brighton Town Council a report on the Bill now pending in Parliament for a Casino and Marine Palace, and the construction of a pier facing West-street.

IT is pointed out that in the Session of 1884 a Bill to authorise the building of a pier at the same place was considered by a committee of the House of Lords, who rejected it without calling upon the opposition to tender evidence.

THE limits of deviation in the present scheme would enable the promoters to acquire a considerable number of valuable properties, including the Corporation's sheltered hall at the bottom of West-street, a building which formed part of the King's-road widening improvements. It is much used by visitors in the summer, and is practically the only free shelter available to the public on the beach in inclement weather.

LETTERS had been received from the owners of property asking what action the authorities intended taking; and it was resolved "That the Town Clerk do take all necessary steps on behalf of the Corporation to oppose the Bill in Parliament, and that he be authorised to retain agents, counsel, and witnesses in that behalf." Since this report has been issued it is understoond that the promoters have written to the committee asking them to "suspend judgment" on the scheme until they have had an opportunity of offering full explanations to the Council.

THE song "Afraid to come home in the dark," which is making such a hit in pantomimes this year, was sung for the first time in England by Miss Maidie Scott at the Argyle, Birkenhead, on March 2, 1908. Miss Scott was asked by the publishers in America to sing it in England, and she has done so continuously since the above date. At the present time she is making a very great success with it in the Marlborough pantomime.

"THE Man from Manchester," Morny Cash, opened at the Oxford on Monday last for a month's stay. In his new number, "A song of a shirt," Mr. Cash has made an undoubted discovery, and his distinctive method and ability should soon sing this song, which is really comic and quite free from vulgarity and indelicacy, to success. His second song deals with a policeman and a lost child, and as the latter is head and shoulders taller than the former, the fun can be imagined.

As a result of the publicity given to the spiritualistic séance of Mr. and Mrs. Tomson, at a private house in Park-square, Regent's Park, and its consequent train of divided opinion as to the genuineness of the mystery, the management of the London Hippodrome has arranged for Mr. and Mrs. Tomson to give demonstrations of their power or skill next week, commencing on Monday. They will appear before a self-appointed committee of the audience, so that the vexed question of spiritualism or trickery may be settled once and for all. Already several well-known people interested in the occult have volunteered their services to act on the committee, but anyone from the audience is welcome.

THE second annual dinner to the staff at the Hippodrome and Grand Theatre, Stalybridge, was held at the Wellington Inn, Caroline-street, on Friday, Jan. 15. Among the guests were Mr. James Fioni and Mr. Louis Ellison (proprietors of the theatre), Mrs. Ellison, Dr. and Mrs. James, Mr. and Mrs. John Harwood, Mr. and Mrs. A. Clark Sutton, Mr. Thomas Revill, Mr. W. A. Jackson (manager) and Mrs. Jackson, Mr. Breakwell (musical director) and Mrs. Breakwell, Mr. Walter and Miss Jackson, and Mr. Harry Horsepool.

DR. JAMES, in proposing the toast "Success to the Hippodrome," wished it "long life" and triumphant days. Mr. Fioni, in a happy manner, responded, and his remarks were adequately endorsed by Mr. Ellison. Mr. W. A. Jackson, the resident-manager, also gave his support to the toast.

FOR the comfort and convenience of patrons part of the Shepherd's Bush Empire has been converted into winter gardens. A large square space adjoining the waiting-rooms has been utilised in a manner that is both ingenious and artistic. With glass dome roof, and walls painted in delicate colours, in keeping with the decorative scheme of the house, the "gardens" are sure to become a feature. Wicker settees, set off by palms, are there in abundance, and during the cold weather the room is heated by electric radiators. From the roof hang uncommon-looking electroliers, with powerful lamps. The cycle room, where the machines are stored free of charge, is next the winter gardens.

ON behalf of the committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., Miss Melinda May (Secretary) wishes to gratefully thank the following:—Mrs. Joe Elvin, for her great kindness in collecting £4 0s. 4d.; Mrs. Waller (Keen and Waller), collecting 5s.; Mr. Keen (Keen and Waller), giving and collecting 5s.; Mr. Tom Fancourt, collecting 2s. 6d.; gift of new clothing, Miss Blanche Glave (Mayoress of Holborn), through Miss Lottie Albert; Mrs. Herbert Shelley, for baby's bonnet; Mr. Joe O'Gorman, for second parcel of clothing (through the Sisters Macarte); Mrs. James Horne, parcel of clothing; Sir William Treloar, for kindness and letter, which have helped a little crippled boy into his home at Alton free of any charge; Miss Melinda May, collection, 2s. 6d.; Miss Maude Mortimer, collecting 10s.; Mr. Pony Moore, warm underclothing; Mrs. Bransby Williams, box of clothing; Miss Lottie Albert, fourteen baby's new socks; basket of oranges from Mrs. Ernest Collins. Will all members of the Guild please communicate with Miss May, and send an address that will find them for the next two weeks. All friends of the charity are heartily welcome to tea and receptions held every Wednesday from 4 to 5 o'clock.

THE report that is being circulated that the arena at the London Hippodrome is to be abolished is entirely false and without the slightest foundation.

MISS ELLIS JEFFREYS and Mr. Herbert Sleath will appear on Monday at the Palace in a comedy sketch, which is the joint work of Messrs. Sidney Blow and George Bellamy. It is entitled No. 2.

MISS ALICE MAY will appear with Mr. Francis Daniel and company on Monday at the Middlesex in the production of a new sketch, Fireman Bloggs.

MISS RAY MASKELL, the charming comedienne and dancer, has a bright and tuneful number in "Under my big umbrella," which is written by Mr. Ted E. Box and Phil Mervyn. She has been scoring with it on her tour, and opens with it at the Palace, Reading, on Monday.

MR. F. WARDEN REED having entirely recovered from his recent illness, is at the Hippodrome, Richmond, this week, with his original duologue Married or Photographed? in which he is supported by his wife, Miss Jennie Stevens. He is meeting with his customary success. Next week he returns to the Marina, Lowestoft.

MR. ERNEST DE VERE, the well-known variety and dramatic agent, of 72, Waterloo-road, has been recently much annoyed by someone impersonating him in the provinces. He would be much indebted to anyone who can give him any information concerning this person, who is going about with fraudulent intent, and he desires to warn artists against him.

THE committee responsible for the arrangement of the programme to be given at the evening concert, on behalf of the testimonial fund to Mr. Fred Millis, at the Empire, Camberwell, on Sunday, Feb. 14, report that they have already secured the kindly services of several eminent performers of theatrical and variety fame, and they hope to be able to announce these names next week. All the private boxes have already been sold, and there is a brisk demand for stalls and circle tickets.

WE omitted last week to mention that Mr. Harry Blake is the Hon. Treasurer of the Testimonial Fund and has collected a goodly amount for the same. Mr. Walter De Frece has joined the Grand Committee and sent a donation, while every music hall society has given its patronage and support to this most deserving cause, and the ladies of the M.H.L. Guild have very kindly promised to sell programmes at charity prices.

THE popular Harry Bancroft and his charming wife, Emmie Ames, are leaving for South Africa on Saturday next. An engagement for eight months has been made at the Empire, Johannesburg. Mr. Bancroft is well known in music hall and Masonic circles. There is sure to be a large muster of friends at Waterloo Station on Saturday next at 11 o'clock, to wish the travellers "Bon voyage." The train leaves to convey passengers to the s.s. Armadale now by the Southampton Docks.

DR. WALFORD BODIE, the well-known entertainer, will appear in a new rôle, namely, as a novelist and author, his latest venture being a series of startling, weird, and wonderful hypnotic tales, which will appear for the first time in next month's Pearson's Novel Magazine. They will be entitled "Harley the Hypnotist." The first of the series is "The Duke and the Dancer." Pearson's are also arranging with him for another series of occult tales to run in Pearson's Magazine.

MR. TOM JONES, the Welsh comedian, who has been so much to the fore recently, is this week adding fresh triumphs to his already long list at the Bedford, where his genial style and very carefully chosen songs are meeting with real solid success. Tom Jones informs us he has received several tempting offers for America, which are under consideration. So far as we know America has not yet heard a Welsh comedian, and we would predict a fine reception for Jones on the other side of "the pond."

THROUGH a bereavement Miss Julia Seale was unable to appear the other evening in La Petite Bohemienne, and her part of Manuel was filled, and well filled, at a few hours' notice by Miss Gina Cormani, who has long been a reliable dancer in minor rôles at the Alhambra. Another instance of a recognition of talent by Mr. Alfred Moul is that of Miss Carlotta Mossetti, who eight years ago became an apprentice, and for the last two years has been a pupil of Signor G. Rosi, who has specially prepared her for solo dancing, somewhat after the style of Signori Cecchetti and Vincenti. Miss Mossetti will make her first appearance in the romantic ballet Paquita on Monday.

MR. HERBERT DARNLEY, in his recent examination in bankruptcy, ascribed his failure to losses on theatrical speculations, being out of work, and cost of living. Cross-examined as to some songs he had recently written, and which, it was alleged, were being sung now with great success, he stated that he had sold them outright for £2 2s.

THE Queen's Hall, Birmingham, which Messrs. Moore and Kennedy opened on Dec. 26 of last year as a picture palace and vaudeville show, was originally the famous preaching house of George Dawson, who ministered there from August, 1847, until his death in 1876. Previous to his ministry at the Church of the Saviour, for so it was called, he was pastor at Mount Zion Baptist Chapel, Graham-street, where, however, his theology proved too wide for the limits of denominational life, and in a comparatively short time he ceased his connection with the Baptists. Then his friends and followers, for they were legion, banded together, and secured the neighbouring site in Edward-street Parade, the first sod being cut on July 14, 1846.

THE PARADE at that time was the fashionable part, with the open country at hand, not the busy, grimy part it is to-day. For about thirty years then, it continued to be the Mecca of those who could find no adequate spiritual comfort elsewhere, until his death, when its glory departed, for Dawson was a man whom it was impossible to replace, and the congregation scattered. The Rev. George St. Clair took up the pastorate, but in vain; he, nor others who succeeded him, could "draw," and for the last ten years the Primitive Methodists carried it on, and so it lingered, until Messrs. Moore and Kennedy, with that acumen which has distinguished all their ventures and enterprises, secured the place, and are doing very well with it.

IT is worth recording that at the building of the edifice George Dawson had it so fashioned that if it failed as a "tabernacle" it would be easily adapable for manufacturing or other uses, but it paid—till his death. It is a broad, long, and roomy building, which the present holders are making more and more adapted to their uses as a picture and variety show, and that without interfering with their entertainments, which they carry on daily and nightly. It is situate very handy in the midst of a thickly congested neighbourhood, and just a few yards, happily, out of the way of the heavy traffic and shops also, therefore the queues in no wise hinder the shopkeepers. Although a statue is erected to Dawson in Chamberlain-square, his grave, up till thirteen months ago, was marked but by the plainest of flat stones, without even an inscription. But a year ago his remaining followers erected over it a handsome granite obelisk to his memory.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

MR. J. ELMER STYGLASS has at the Alhambra been singing with distinct success those two successful songs of Messrs. Francis and Day, "Some day, when dreams come true" and "I'm afraid to come home in the dark."

THE gaiety of London will be considerably added to on Monday next, when the incomparable Vesta Tilley opens at the Palace Theatre. The "London Idol," as is her wont, will sing several new songs during her stay in town, including the one Messrs. Francis and Day have just issued, entitled "That's the time a fellow wants his ma."

MISS ADA REEVE, at the Shakespeare, Liverpool, has been adding to her laurels by her exquisite singing of Fred W. Leigh's fine song "In Goo-goo Land," a number which Messrs. Francis and Day have published. The well-known house are also issuing the popular lady's song "Find the man."

EDGAR BATEMAN, whose humorous duet "'Do you remember?' 'How can I forget!'" is going great in many pantomimes, as is his "Coster's pony" in the safe hands of Mr. Gus Elen at the Oxford, has just written, in conjunction with Alf. Ellerton, a song for Mr. George Formby, entitled "I didn't 'let on.'"

MESSRS. B. FELDMAN AND CO. are receiving dozens of letters daily from artists all over the country who are anxious to be on the "good things" which they unwisely missed at the start.

"I LIKE YOUR OLD FRENCH BONNET" is a song by Mellor, Lawrence, and Gifford, which is gaining rapidly in popularity, and bids fair to at least equal, if not eclipse, that renowned song, "You shall live in a chalet" by the same trio. Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. have very great faith in this excellent chorus number.

THERE is an enormous demand for copies of "Tiny seed of love" from all over the country, so large that Messrs. B. Feldman and Co. find it difficult to supply the orders fast enough. This sensational song is now in its fifth edition, and Messrs. B. Feldman have probably broken all records by handing their printers an order for 50,000 copies just to be going on with.

MR. TOM JONES has just secured an excellent Welsh song from Mr. Will Hyde, entitled "Tim, from Tonypandy." It has a sparkling refrain, and should prove a welcome addition to the Welsh comedian's already large batch of successful songs.

THE COLISEUM.

Packed houses are the order of the day and night at the popular Coliseum, and it is evident that the crowded appearance of the stalls and dress circle is largely due to the return of Mr. Albert Chevalier, in Behind the Scenes, an adaptation of Le Père de la Débutante, which he produced in August last at the St. Martin's-lane house. The same title was used by Mr. Felix Morris for his three-act version of the same piece (which inspired H. J. Byron's Prompter Box), produced for the first time at Brooklyn, U.S.A., in February, 1895, and reproduced at the Comedy Theatre, in July, 1896. Mr. Chevalier's Achille Talma Dufard shows to advantage the finished art of a great comedian. The anxiety of the old actor for his daughter's appearance, his diplomatic servility, his blatant flattery, and his business acumen, are all points in an impersonation that lifts the comedy of the halls into a higher plane. Such acting is exceptional, but then it is the "exceptional" that managers like Mr. Oswald Stoll are ever seeking. Mr. Chevalier is again well supported by Miss Mabel Garden, a winsome Rosa Dufard; by Miss Daisy Irvine, a duly imperious Celia Fitzjames; and by Mr. Austin G. Melford, who plays exceedingly well as Mr. Flat, manager of the Corinthian Theatre. Mr. Harry Brett and Mr. Arthur Brankstone also lend effective aid as the stage-manager, Mr. Vamp, and the dramatic author, Mr. Parnassus.

Another favourite returns in Madame Alice Esty, who on her previous visits to the house has been associated with the production of scenes from Cavalleria Rusticana and Trovatore. This time, however, she sings operatic excerpts in a drawing-room set, but does not impersonate. As a contrast to her more serious work she is singing "No, sir," "Comin' thro' the Rye," and Arline's well-known air from The Bohemian Girl, "I dreamt that I dwelt." Her reception is very enthusiastic. The same adjective may be applied to the greeting given to Miss Marie Dressler, who is putting in a week or two at the Coliseum, previous to taking up management at the Aldwych. We have nothing new to chronicle in connection with her turn, which has all the comicality and drollery first noted by us during the American artist's engagement at the Palace.

A particularly fine musical turn is that of Eli Hudson, Olga, and Elgar. Mr. Hudson is an admirable flautist, and so is the younger lady—a pupil of his presumably. The other lady sings Sir Henry Bishop's songs with considerable facility, her trills and runs being finely rendered. Still another musical turn of surpassing merit is submitted by "Ye Colonial Septette," advertised as "America's greatest musical act." Mr. Charles Edwards is a remarkable cornet player, reminding one of the late Jules Levy by his facile triumphs over the acknowledged difficulties of his instrument. The ensemble in a pot-pourri of operatic airs is admirable, and the tone of the brass beyond reproach. The majestic "Pilgrims' Chorus" from Tannhäuser is followed by the "Soldiers' Chorus" from Faust, and the rendering is certainly inspiring. The sextet from Florodora, "Tell me, pretty maiden," is another popular item, in which the performers play the melody while presenting the famous scena. The company includes Mr. Charles Edwards (cornetist), Mr. William Galpen (basso), Mr. Raymond Evans (trombonist), Miss Nettie Coburn (cornetist), Miss Viola McGibeny (violinist), Miss Lillian Garris, and Mr. Charles Harris. The "act" is called "An Olde Tyme Halloween," and gains much by its setting, though Miss Lillian Garris in her delivery of the prologue is not distinctly heard in the circle. Hester's Mystery, Mr. Pinero's earliest comedietta, is being presented by Mr. Horace Pollock and company, which includes Miss Pattie Groves, a downright and amusing Nance Butterworth, and Miss Elizabeth Dundas, a fresh and impulsive Hester. Mr. Horace Pollock is decidedly funny as Mr. Owen Silverdale, and other parts are efficiently handled by Mr. E. P. Kinsella and Mr. Edmund Pollock. Miss Lily Burnand scores with her latest successes, in which she displays her customary charm; the Trentanovi Sisters present a clever transformation gymnastic act; Bert Woodward is responsible for an intrepid cycle act; and Saharet, Australia's greatest dancer, continues her success.

MISS ALMA GALLIMORE, of the Gallimore Trio, was on Saturday last presented with a handsome bouquet of flowers, bearing the following inscription:—"To the dark-eyed beauty of the Gallimore Trio, from many Bradford admirers."

MR. FRANK LYNNE has made a record hit in the part of Binbad in the pantomime of Sinbad the Sailor at the King's Theatre, Sunderland. The pantomime is now on its fifth week, and going stronger than ever.

THE sketch noticed last week at the Palace, Battersea, entitled The Hour of Peril, was written by Mr. Ivan P. Gore, and not by Mr. F. C. Robson, who, however, produced it.

V.A.F. GENERAL MEETING.

The third annual general meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation was held on Sunday evening at Terry's Theatre, Mr. WILLIAM LEE presiding, supported on the stage by Mr. Joe Elvin, Mr. W. H. Clemart (general secretary), Mr. C. C. Bartram, and other members of the Executive Committee. The CHAIRMAN, in his opening address, made an appeal to the meeting for amicable conduct in the matter of the agents' dispute, and his remarks in this and other respects met with the enthusiastic approval of his hearers.

After the secretary had read the notice convening the meeting,

The CHAIRMAN rose, amid loud applause, to make his address, in the course of which he said: "There are many things I could speak of, but, under existing circumstances, I think it would be wiser to remain silent. The agency dispute has been going on for sixteen or seventeen weeks, and at last we had had the pleasure of meeting the representatives of the Agents' Association. We sat for two days, the first meeting lasting four hours and the second three and a half. We met them on a perfectly friendly footing. The few remarks that were made at the opening conveyed to the agents that we came there with open minds to settle, if possible, the dispute which had been going on for some time. In those seven and a half hours not a harsh word was spoken. I cannot tell you more at present, because to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock we meet the representatives of the Agents' Association again. I trust that you will be satisfied with the remarks I have made, and I hope that you will follow the example I have myself set to-night not to allow anything of a contentious nature to enter into anything that may be said to-night. The Executive Committee intended to carry on to the end the dealings with the agents on a perfectly friendly basis. They go there to-morrow to settle matters, and, if necessary, they would remain there until the following morning. I wondered if, in the days to come, we might not resort to other methods. I wondered if it was possible, if a dispute should arise in the future between a proprietor and the V.A.F., or between an agent and the Federation, to go to their proprietor or agent and say, 'Suppose you meet a deputation representing the V.A.F. and let us see if we cannot get around the table and quietly discuss matters to see if we cannot arrive at a satisfactory conclusion. If we cannot, find a third party to come in to act as a so-called arbitrator, and see if we can stop not only His Majesty's law costs, but the legal gentlemen from getting us to support them in the future.' I will be frank with you on this occasion. You all have weaknesses; you do not think deeply enough upon the various questions that are placed before you. On the stage behind me there is a number of the members of the Executive Committee. These gentlemen have been placed there by you. Now, do be careful, before placing them there, to think first. If I tell these gentlemen what to do they do it for me. In justice to them let me at least stand at their back, and stand by them under any and every circumstance. We are on the eve of a new election, and you will find on your voting paper a number of the names of members of the Executive Committee who are retiring and are going up again, and, in addition to them, you will find a number of new names. Let me impress this upon you: Look carefully down that list. I could prove, if I desired, that you have acted wrongly in the past; let us see in the coming year if we cannot keep perfectly clear from any trouble with agent, proprietor, manager, or anyone else. There are many things that might be done with the Federation in the future. There should be a great many improvements, and if we have the time to devote to those objects, possibly the results in the end might be a lot more satisfactory to us. I regret that the meeting is not a larger one, for I think that all the members of the Federation who are in town should attend on an occasion like this."

The Chairman asked for volunteers to act as scrutineers, and out of several gentlemen who offered their services the following were appointed:—Messrs. Fred Mason, George Fredericks, Curtis Leo, and Will Hurst. Two tellers were also appointed.

Mr. W. H. CLEMART, the general secretary, said:—Mr. Chairman, Brother and Sister Artists,—Before reading my report I should just like to say that if what Mr. Lee has spoken of is going to come off, I can see myself drawing my salary for nothing. I hope you will do it. The year 1908 has undoubtedly been the most arduous and the most critical in the history of the Variety Artists' Federation. On January 1 the rule requiring the consent of the Executive Committee and a donation of 2½ per cent to the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund for the gratuitous services of members at charity matinées, anniversaries, and managers' benefits came into being. Very many managers have asked for and obtained this consent, and in many cases the 2½ per cent. has been forgone. As is well known, Mr. Oswald Stoll has not seen his way to approach the Executive Committee, but has proceeded to give charity matinées with the assistance of non-members and members of the theatrical profession; in a few cases he has obtained the services of a few of our members, who have been immediately expelled for breach of the rules. The first matinée took place at the Grand Theatre, Birmingham, on Jan. 25, when not one member of the Federation appeared. Moss' Empires, Ltd., gave a donation of £100 to the charity involved, and to show that the object of the rule was not uncharitableness, the Federation also gave £100. On March 27 an attempt was made before Mr. Askwith to come to some arrangement with Mr. Stoll, but unfortunately, although the Federation representatives were agreeable to accept Mr. Askwith's suggested solution, Mr. Stoll remained obdurate, and consequently the position to-day is unchanged. All through the year there has been much rumour and talk about a big combine of music-hall proprietors which Mr. Stoll was forming, with the intention, no doubt, of combating the influence of the V.A.F., but up to now it certainly seems as far off as ever. There has, however, been a combination of the interests of Messrs. Walter Gibbons and Thomas Barrasford, with what success time alone will show. The arbitrator, Mr. G. R. Askwith, has been approached on more than one occasion in reference to certain managers' conduct in treating the award, Messrs. Barrasford, Wilkes, De Frece, Tozer, Richards, Graydon, and Peacock being the managers concerned. On Jan. 1 the entrance fee became £1.1; there is no intention at present of increasing it further. In February Mr. Stoll threatened a "lock-out," but nothing came of it. On March 8 the now defunct Artists' Protection League, under the generalship of Mr. Frank Gerald, held a meeting at the Empire, New Cross, to protest against the V.A.F. policy on the charity matinée question, and on the same evening the cream of the profession assembled at the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund dinner at the Criterion and subscribed nearly £1,000 to the charity. On May 7 Mr. Askwith, the arbitrator, gave a decision that no salary could be tendered an artist in less multiples than 10s., this being intended to somewhat counteract the managers' attempts at reducing salaries to fit the matinée payment. On July 12 a dinner was given to Messrs. O'Gorman, Pink, and Clemart at the Boulogne Restaurant, at which they were each presented by Mr. Joe Elvin, on behalf of the Federation, with a diamond medallion in recognition of their services at the arbitration. On July 31 Mr. Askwith decided against Mr. Tozer that "turn" contracts must have "turn" bars, and that it was a breach of the Award to bar a "turn" contract for the whole of the county of London. On Aug. 19, after another meeting, at which the managers were against proved to be at fault, Mr. Askwith expressed some displeasure, and intimated that he had no time to keep going over the same ground, and since then the managers have certainly been a little—not much—more careful. On Sept. 10 the Artists' Protection League was expelled from the Trade Union movement. On Sept. 21 the Marriages of Mayfair was produced at Drury Lane. The piece contained a scene which was objected to by the Variety Artists' Federation and the Grand Order of Water Rats as being an insult to the music-hall profession. Mr. Arthur Collins, after being approached by these two bodies, had the scene very much modified. In October the V.A.F. and the De Frece circuit nearly came to war owing to the insertion of a clause in the managerial contract empowering the manager to deduct commission. After a lengthy correspondence an ultimatum was issued by the V.A.F., which resulted in the De Frece management on Oct. 29 consenting to delete the clause objected to "under protest." On Nov. 3 Mr. Monte Bayly resigned his position as general secretary of the V.A.F. We now have to thank our affiliated societies. We thank the White Rats of America for the many and great assistances which they have rendered to our members when in America. We also thank the International Artists' Lodge and its President, Mr. Konorah, who made a special journey to be here last Sunday from Berlin to give us his support. We thank our very numerous agents in the provinces who assist us at our meetings and attend to keeping all our papers and stamps together. We thank also our solicitor, Mr. Eugene Judge, who is of great assistance to us. And we also thank our counsel, Mr. Charles Doughty, who so ably fights for us. Last year—I see in the report of the General Secretary—there was a vote of thanks to the General Federation of Trades Unions. I do not think we will pass one to-night. On Jan. 16 a sub-committee to deal with the agency question met for the first time, the members being Messrs. Joe O'Gorman, Wal Pink, Fred Russell, R. A. Roberts, George D'Albert, James Allinson, and W. H. Clemart, but owing to the amount of attention that had been given to the charity matinée question not much was done in this matter. But after many earnest appeals from the members' meetings, an arrangement was made, and on Aug. 27 a meeting was held between the sub-committees on the agency question, and many of the leading agents attended the offices in Wellington-street. This was the first and only meeting between the artists and agents until they met again at the House of Commons during the dispute. On Nov. 20 a deputation waited on the L.C.C. to place before them the agency question, and to pray that regulations should be made whereby all agents should be registered. The deputation was well received and listened to most attentively. The decision of the London County Council has not yet been given, but is not expected to be delayed long. I do not propose to say anything more about the agency question while it is sub judice; your Chairman has told you all that there is to be told. I can only say now that I trust the year which we are entering upon will be one of peace—but peace with honour.

In the absence of Mr. Daly, Mr. Clemart also read the balance-sheet, thus:—

W. H. MCCARTHY, Accountant.
Jan. 12, 1909.

We have compared the foregoing summary of receipts and payments with the books of the Federation, and certify the same to be correctly prepared in accordance therewith. We have duly vouched the payments and verified the cash at bank and in hand. (Signed)

JACKSON, PIXLEY, BROWNING, HUSEY & Co.,
Chartered Accountants.
58, Coleman-street, London, E.C.
Jan. 14, 1909.

W. H. CLEMART, General Secretary.

MR. ALBERT VOYCE proposed, and MR. CURTIS LEO seconded, that the balance-sheet be passed as read. This was unanimously agreed to.

MR. BARTRAM presented the Performer balance-sheet for 1908. The total cost of production for printing, paper, office, and sundry expenses for the year of fifty-three weeks was £5,118 0s. 10d. The total income from advertisements, including the reading case and date books, and after carrying forward the substantial sum of £500 against discounts, possible bad debts, &c., is £5,725 8s. 11d., leaving a balance of profit of £607 5s. 1d., an increase over the balance of profit of the preceding balance-sheet (April to December, 1907) of £439 3s. 3½d. The amount is carried to the balance-sheet from a profit and loss account, to law charges, £274 7s., the balance being a net profit carried to the balance-sheet of £382 18s. 1d.

On the proposition of Mr. GEORGE FREDERICKS,

FRANCIS, DAY, & HUNTER'S SONG BOOM.

"SHE SELLS SEA SHELLS."

"OH! OH! ANTONIO."

"SUE, SUE, SUE."

"COME, BE MY RAINBOW."

"BOMBADIER."

"EVERY FELLOW'S IN LOVE WITH A GIRL."

FRANCIS, DAY, & HUNTER, 142, Charing Cross Rd., London, W.C.

seconded by Mr. HORACE GOLDIN, this was also passed unanimously.

Matters concerning new rules and amendments to existing rules were then placed before the meeting. The agenda paper contained a notice of motion to the effect that "Rule 30 re granting of loans, be rescinded." The rule read—"At the discretion of the Executive Committee a loan may be granted to a member in full benefit for the purpose of travelling to an engagement on the presentation of contract for such engagement, a receipt being given as promissory note, &c."

The CHAIRMAN pointed out that the reason for rescinding this rule was that it had been abused to a very great extent in the past. The cash outstanding on loans of this description amounted to £195 5s. 11d., and most of it could be written off as a bad debt.

Mr. HARRY MASON spoke against the amendment. It was, he thought, open to the committee to expel any members of the Federation who were so dishonourable as to shuffle out of their liabilities when they were in a position to meet them. On the other hand, the Federation had been able to perform many helpful services by means of this rule

After a brief discussion the CHAIRMAN stated that as the proposer of the amendment was not present, he would not proceed with it, and Rule 30 therefore remained as it was.

Another motion ran: "That Rule 25, paragraph 5, making it necessary to have resolutions which are to be placed on the agenda for general meeting passed at members' meetings, be rescinded."

Mr. SMYTHSON, who proposed the resolution, pointed out that a member could put his ideas before the Executive Committee, who could lay them before the general meeting. On the other hand, and under this rule, a member might go to a big meeting in Manchester, have his proposition thrown out, then submit it to a gathering of two or three at a small place like Wigan, and have it passed.

Mr. BARTRAM said that the rule was originally framed with the object of avoiding a deluge of suggestions which would cause the agenda paper at a general meeting to reach an unnecessarily congested state.

Mr. FRED W. MILLIS seconded the resolution.

Mr. FRED HERBERT also spoke on the subject. He thought that any member should be eligible to put any motion on the agenda paper, the Executive Committee to be vested with the prerogative of refusing to accept it in the event of the motion being ill-considered, unnecessary, or of a flippant character. He heartily supported Mr. Smythson's proposition.

The motion was then put to the meeting and declared carried.

The concluding item on the agenda was a motion —"That on no account shall any blackleg, or member, expelled during the past, present, or any future dispute, be reinstated into the Federation."

Before the motion was formally put to the meeting, Mr. Russell asked that it be allowed to be set aside. He thought that the Executive Committee had ample power to deal with any question arising out of the conduct of a member. It was, on another point, highly desirable to preserve unanimity at the meeting, as the Chairman had requested in his opening remarks.

Mr. FRED HERBERT expressed the opinion that no notice of motion should appear on the agenda paper, unless it was accompanied by the name of the mover.

As the proposer of the resolution was not present, and the feeling of the meeting was opposed to the suggested new rule, the Chairman ruled the matter out of discussion.

Mr. CLEMART proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. J. Forbes-Robertson for the use of his theatre for the meeting, and this was carried with acclamation.

Mr. JOE ELVIN, in submitting a vote of thanks to the Chairman, spoke in terms of high praise of the able manner in which Mr. Lee had presided over the gathering, and the Chairman's acknowledgment brought the proceedings to a close.

V.A.F. AND AGENTS.

A meeting took place at 29, Leicester-square, on Monday, between the representatives of the Variety Agents' Association, viz., Messrs. Hugh J. Didcott, George Barclay, Emanuel Warner, and Will Oliver, and the representatives of the Variety Artists' Federation, viz., Joe Elvin, William Lee, Wal Pink, and W. H. Clemart.

After some discussion, the following agreement was signed by all parties present. The joint application to the Board of Trade has already been despatched:—

Agreement entered into on behalf of the Variety Artists' Federation and the Variety Agents' Association by their accredited representatives.

1. The undersigned, having plenary powers, undertake on behalf of their respective associations to give full and honourable effect to the terms herein stated and to the award of the arbitrator.

2. The Variety Artists' Federation agree that all moneys due to the members of the Variety Agents' Association from artists, whether retained by proprietors or otherwise, shall be paid over to the agents who are members of the Variety Agents' Association at once.

3. The appeal against the decision of Mr. Justice Darling, as to the assignment of commission, to be by consent withdrawn, the Variety Artists' Federation to pay the costs.

4. The Variety Artists' Federation shall announce in manner provided in Clause 2 hereof that artists are now at liberty to sign all outstanding contracts with any member of the Variety Agents' Association which have been arranged during the dispute or that may be arranged pending the arbitrator's award.

5. It is hereby agreed that both parties hereto shall join in an application to the Board of Trade to appoint an arbitrator pursuant to Section 2 (d) of the Conciliation Act, 1898.

The following matters are referred to the arbitrator:—

(a) The maximum amount of commission an agent shall be entitled to charge an artist for engagements made.

(b) Whether agents' commission notes may contain a provision that the artist authorises the proprietor or manager to deduct the agent's commission from their salary weekly and pay it to the agent.

(c) Whether agents may stipulate with artists that they shall pay commission on re-engagements, and, if so, to define the time limits thereof, if any.

(d) No artist shall act as an agent directly or indirectly, and no agent shall also act as an artist.

Dated, this 18th day of January, 1909.

W. H. CLEMART.	HUGH J. DIDCOTT.
WILLIAM LEE.	GEORGE BARCLAY.
JOE ELVIN.	EMANUEL WARNER.
WAL PINK.	WILL OLIVER.

Business may now be immediately resumed on the following conditions:—(1) Commission which is owing must now be paid over to any member of the Variety Agents' Association. (2) No commission must be paid to any agent who is not a member of the Variety Agents' Association, or who is not a Variety Artists' Federation Agent, until he has signified in writing to the Executive Committee his willingness to do business "subject to the Arbitrator's Award," yet to be arrived at.

SIGNING CONTRACTS.

Members can now sign contracts with any agent who is a member of the Variety Agents' Association, or who is a Variety Artists' Federation Agent, but only on the condition that the "Office Copy" is endorsed:—"Subject to the Arbitrator's Award."

NEW YEAR'S COLLECTION FOR THE MUSIC HALL HOME.

In again directing the attention of our readers to The Era New Year's Shilling Fund on behalf of the Music Hall Home we are in the happy position of being able to associate with the appeal thus being made the name of the foremost music hall comedienne—Miss Marie Lloyd. It seems scarcely necessary to remind our readers of the deep interest Miss Lloyd has ever taken in matters affecting the welfare of her brothers and sisters of the variety profession. It is her desire that her "year" will be marked by a considerable increase in the subscriptions of previous years, and she therefore, through The Era, commends the Music Hall Home to the charitably-minded. Mr. Thomas Barrasford, the President of the Fund, is again this year exerting himself in its behalf, and this fact is sufficient indication that he is satisfied as to the way in which the institution is being conducted, and that he considers it worthy of support.

Mr. Ben Woodger, the secretary of the Music Hall Home, tells us that in 1907 the inmates averaged ten, but that in 1908 there have been as many as twelve. The address of the Home is 31, Wilson-road, Camberwell, and there the matron (Mrs. Fruin) busies herself for the comfort and convenience of her "family." At present there are eleven of these, and the desire is to increase the number, which can only be done when sufficient funds for the purpose are collected. During the past twelve months three or four of the inmates have recovered their health and strength sufficiently to enable them to look for engagements. These secured, they left the Home, and the vacancies thereby created were immediately filled up. Now, this Home requires keeping up, and it cannot be kept up on air. There is no need for us to refer to all the good work which has been performed by the institution in the past, as that must for the most part be within the recollection of our readers. The ages of the inmates range from fifty to seventy-six. In all probability these men will be maintained in the Home until the day of their death, and their funeral expenses paid for out of the funds of the Home.

The Era New Year's Shilling Fund is the main source of income to the Home, and this means of sustenance is added to by the donations of artists, either given directly, or through the collecting boxes through which many managers of variety theatres collect pennies from "dead-heads" and from artists who desire free admission.

Anyone can be supplied with a collecting-card by sending a postcard to Mr. Woodger.

Briefly, we may once more repeat that the objects of the Music Hall Home Fund are to provide shelter for deserving members of the variety profession who have been stricken with poverty or illness in their declining years, or who have in other ways fallen on evil times. Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, the hon. treasurer, will be pleased to receive filled-up collecting cards addressed to him at The Era, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C., and to acknowledge them in these columns.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

LONDON PAVILION.

Mr. Frank Glenister is rightly proud of having introduced many prominent performers of all nationalities to West-end audiences at the Pavilion in Piccadilly, and, if we may judge by her receptions during the week, it is certain that the latest newcomer to that house, Miss Henriquette Maude, who started an exclusive engagement on Monday, is a turn of exceptional interest, and has secured more than an ephemeral popularity. A world's tour of 55,000 miles is, as Dominie Sampson would say, "Prodigious!" and one scarcely associates a wee woman with such a feat. But Miss Maude, if she is decidedly petite, possesses grit and determination in no ordinary degree, and the belief in herself that induced her to set out alone some five years ago on a self-imposed task of travelling through the hemispheres has been completely justified. She tells simply and naturally a plain, unvarnished tale of her travels and adventures—of her advocacy of the case of a jockey boy, who was left dying on the Melbourne racecourse; of her meeting, after traversing miles of desert, with Texan cowboys and Indians, with just a hint of the chivalry and kindness of both; of her voyage to the South Sea Islands; of her work as a foreign correspondent at Chicago; and of many other events. The lecture, which is interesting not only because of its matter, but also on account of the "little travelling girl's" clear elocution and excellent English, is admirably illustrated with lantern slides. A more dramatic test of her power comes with her recitation of Frank Desprez's fine poem "Lasca," which holds the house completely—a rare thing, indeed, with a mere recitation. Mr. Glenister has added considerably to the interest of this love-story of the prairie by his special stage-setting, which accentuates the romantic nature of the poem and the picturesque appearance of the reciter, who wears the regulation mocassins and "jumper" given to her by the kind-hearted Texan boys. If we are not much mistaken, our little New Zealand cousin is going to be very popular in London.

A number of old favourites contribute to the general programme, and many of them are fulfilling return engagements. Messrs. W. T. Ellwanger and company are once more amusing the Pavilion audiences with the comedy sketch The Peacemaker; admirers of Mr. Arthur Roberts revel in the fun of the sketch Till Sunday, which gives him all the needed opportunity for impersonations; Mr. Chris Richards is a wonderful eccentric dancer; and King and Benson have an excellent show in "Around the Town," the gentleman singing with fervent expression "With all her faults I love her still," and the lady archly advising the spindle side of the audience on "how to become popular." Mr. Harry Ford's present répertoire is hardly likely to maintain his reputation as a comedian; Mr. Fred Hastings, Mr. Ambrose Thorne, and Mr. Edwin Boyde find plenty of admirers; Tom and Marie Moframo are as popular as ever in their entertainment; Mr. Alfred Long, a newcomer, has a pure alto, which is very pleasant to listen to; Mr. Gilbert Girard's animal mimicry is effective; Ilanvarr and Lee sponsor a pretty club-juggling show, which bears the title of "The Golfer and the Maid"; Mr. Jock Whiteford repeats his success as a Scotch comedian; Miss Daisy Jerome wins popularity for her song "The little pat of butter on the floor"; and Francis and Alfred, the Three Laurels, and Marcel and Boris are other turns in a fine bill.

The work of the orchestra here under Mr. Bond Sayers is most artistic.

SADLER'S WELLS.

Master Day seems to have set the pace for all time in the matter of diabolo manipulation, judging by his exceedingly clever performances this week at Sadler's Wells. His demonstration affords remarkable evidence of skilfulness in the handling of the toy and of a knowledge of the art of balancing. His spinning of the diabolo on the straight string, and again with one hand turning round, as well as the remarkable series of circles which he causes, are an achievement upon which he may be congratulated. The Singing Jockeys, a troupe consisting of eight boys and their trainer, appear in an amusing vocal act, in which we get some entertaining patter and some capital vocalism. The songs, "We'll be partners for the day," "Red Wing," and "It's love, love, love," are most pleasingly rendered. Mr. Dan Merritt, "the champion drummer," distinguishes himself by his performance of Scottish and other selections; and Miss Amy Saville, a dainty comedienne, wins the highest appreciation for a delightful turn. Miss Queenie Dell, a young lady with a most attractive appearance, showed that she possesses a sweet voice by her interpretation of "I'm full of music and it must come out," which has a most enchanting coon melody. Her second number is "My pretty little Kick-a-Poo, I do love you," and she concludes her turn with a smartly-executed step-dance. This artist should certainly be heard of in the future in a prominent way. Mr. Harry Ford makes his appearance on the stage as an elderly dame, who indulges in some bitter comment concerning "her" husband and his requirements, for this extravagant man wants butter instead of the lard with which his faithful spouse had adorned his crusts of bread. Then the inconsiderate brute desires to be permitted to have a pipe, and to these and sundry other yearnings the wife replies, "What do you want them for I'd like to know." Mr. Ford's succeeding item—during the recital of which he appears dressed as a comical dude—concerns the amusing experiences of a man with a lady who wishes to get married. The title of the song is, "What a find!" and Mr. Ford's whimsical manner whilst delivering it is in itself a source of merriment. The Sivronis submit an exceedingly entertaining burlesque act, and Lorne and Vallance, the well-known musical comedians and dancers, are also worthy of commendation. Mr. J. C. Manley, a descriptive vocalist with a tuneful voice, touches the hearts of his hearers with his sentimental ditties, "My darling mamma" and "My gal Sal," and the Two Lillies are seen and admired in speciality dances, their skipping-rope dance being particularly effective. Raymond's Bio-tableaux include a series entitled The Spanish Lover.

"A MAGDALEN MARRIED."

A Dramatic Episode, by Paul Barry-Lewers, produced at the Middlesex, on Wednesday, Jan. 20.

Capt. Lord Frank Tremarten MR. GUY ADDISON
Vance Vallam ..... MR. LIONEL GADSDEN
Lady Marie Tremarten MISS ELIZABETH WATKINS

We cannot imagine a more unmitigated blackguard than Vance Vallam, brother of Lady Marie Tremarten. He had in the past lived upon the proceeds of his sister's shame, but for some few years, during which Marie was married to a nobleman unknown to Vance, the sister had managed to elude her brother. Now, however, he turns up at her husband's residence, taunts her with having been once known as "Merry Marie," of Piccadilly, and demands that she shall get for him money from her husband. Realising what this may lead to, and fearing that in the event of her refusal to do anything for him, he will, as he has threatened, give certain information to her husband, Lady Marie determines, for the sake of the happiness of her child and her husband, to put an end to her life. She mixes some poison with her wine, but before drinking it, goes to kiss her little son for the last time. In her absence from the room her brother enters, and seeing a full wineglass on the table, puts it to his lips and quaffs the liquid. On Marie's return, he repeats his demand for money; she declines again, and he is about to go in search of her husband in order to reveal to him the scandal of his sister's past, when the poison begins to take effect, and he expires without having made a full confession. Miss Elizabeth Watkins displays an appropriate expression of tragedy as Marie, and Mr. Lionel Gadsden as her brother, and Mr. Guy Addison as her husband, submit suitable representations.

MISS GLADYS HUXLEY.

Miss Gladys Huxley, the charming vaudeville artist, arrived in England last Saturday, having concluded her South African engagements at Johannesburg with Messrs. Hyman on Christmas Day. Miss Huxley, who, by the way, is a niece of the late Professor Huxley, commenced her professional career in musical comedy. She was eventually induced to try her luck on the vaudeville stage, and made an instantaneous hit. After a tour in the provinces, she re-opened at the Oxford, London, with a song called "Won't you go with me to Gogo?" and her rendition of the song pronounced her to be an artist of unqualified ability. Having deputised at the Tivoli, she was immediately engaged for a long period. During Miss Huxley's stay in Johannesburg she made a host of friends, with the result that on the closing night of the engagement she received numerous valuable presents. On the voyage home she made a short stay at Madeira, and an incident there suggested the subject for a song, of which she composed the chorus, and on her arrival here she commissioned Mr. J. F. Lambe to write the song for her, the music being completed by J. Chas. Moore. It is called "Won't you come to Madeira with me?" It was at once secured for publication by the National Publishing Co., 132, Charing Cross-road, and will be introduced by Miss Huxley at the Oxford when she opens there on Feb. 1. The chief hobby of the young lady (exclusive of her professional business) is motoring. During her stay in South Africa she visited Pretoria and various other places sight-seeing. Miss Huxley is well booked up, and bids fair to be one of the leading lights of the vaudeville stage.

A YOUNG man named James Emms had to answer at the Thames Police-court on Tuesday a charge before Mr. Chester Jones, of assaulting Charles Chappell, assistant-manager at the Queen's, Poplar. The prosecutor stated that while leaving the hall with the stage-manager on Monday night the prisoner, who was a pest to the hall, came up and insisted on fighting him. The witness told Emms to go away, when he dealt him a blow in the right eye and also kicked him. Police-constable 811 K stated that he saw the prisoner being detained in the pit of the music hall and his coat was off. The prosecutor's right eye was nearly closed, and he also complained of having been kicked. The prisoner, who had been previously convicted for assault, refused to give his name and address. Mr. Chester Jones fined the prisoner 20s. or ten days.

MUSIC-HALL CELEBRITIES.

MISS FRANCES LETTY.

The title of "Chorus Queen" has been assumed by Miss Fraces Letty, who hails from America and has won an enviable reputation on this side of the Atlantic as a singer of chorus and coon songs, and as a wooden shoe dancer. Miss Letty, with her sister, came over here when only seven years old, under a contract to dance at Covent Garden and Her Majesty's Theatres. Leaving the theatres to join her sisters on the variety halls, she played seven years with them in variety and pantomime. Her success as principal boy induced her to start in her single act, and by dint of ability, energy, and perseverance, she has steadily risen to the position she now holds. Miss Letty has been an outstanding feature on every programme, and this success has led her from chorus songs to the production of scenas, all of which have been very successful. Her latest song scena, entitled Quit this House, Mr. Nigger, and Go, written by Leslie Race, composed by A. D. McFarlane, and staged by John G. Barton, introducing the original novelties, the silent coon and the dancing chickens, has caught on immensely. Miss Letty was the originator of the first sequel to Moving Day, which she played with great success on the Moss' tour and principal halls. She has played all the principal theatres and variety halls in Great Britain, including Moss, Barrasford, Macnaghten, Bostock, and United County Theatres tours, and is presently playing at the Hippodrome, Peckham, under contract to Mr. Walter Gibbons. She has played in pantomime at Sunderland, Manchester, Leicester, Glasgow, and Surrey and Stratford, London. She possesses a large number of chorus songs, including such successes as "Does anyone want a girl?" "I'll wait for you," "Pack up your trunk and go," "Have your ears been burning, Mr. Jackson?" and "Back, back to Pimlico." Miss Letty recalls with pleasure an occasion when at the Hippodrome, Brighton, she was requested by Mrs. Barrasford, by desire of the Duke and Duchess of Fife, to sing a song she had featured on a previous visit, namely, "I wouldn't leave my little wooden hut for you," and being cordially thanked for so doing. Miss Letty is booked a long way ahead, and starts on March 1 another tour of Moss' Empires, returning to London in October. Her business is being attended to by that well-known agent, Mr. Tom Claxton.

[Photo by Bustin.

MISS FRANCES LETTY.

ROYAL STANDARD.

Mr. John Henderson and company are here this week at the Royal Standard in an extremely interesting sketch dealing with Canadian life. It is the story of a post-house tragedy in the Rockies, and the scene is placed in Alberta. We dealt fully with the playlet on its production some time ago, and we then took occasion to commend the piece to the notice of our readers. Mr. John Henderson, who, by the way, is the author, still appears in his original part of Packman-Carrier Sandy McFarlane, and a fine, sturdy Scottish character he makes of it. Mr. Frank C. Mason appears in the rôle of the desperado, Racehorse Charley, and acts up to the vigorous and daring pretensions of the individual he is representing. Miss Mary Stafford-Smith furnishes an interesting impersonation as Postmistress Lizzie Sinclair; and Mr. Leonard Lorraine suitably enacts the rôle of a troop sergeant-major of the North-West Mounted Police. The sketch is appropriately mounted. Miss Amy Saville, a chic comedienne, has a most entertaining ditty in "Will you go to Sligo?" which she delivers with much spirit; Campbell and Burns are uproariously funny with their patter; the Seymons show themselves to be astonishingly clever in a novel equilibristic act, which is mainly composed of smart feats of hand-balancing and juggling; Clare and Pastor offer many attractive little items in their comedy, vocal, acrobatic, and instrumental scena, and the versatility of the troupe is a matter of general eulogistic comment among the audience; Miss Gladys Witton, the girl contralto interests the house with her vocalism as applied to such songs as "Could not you love a girl like me?" and "A long time gone." Her voice is expressive and tuneful, and she has a most pleasing appearance. Mr. Kyburn-Dellar presents a sketch entitled The Flaming Hussy, in which Miss Edith Blande portrays the character of a somewhat adventurous woman, Mr. Kyburn-Dellar appearing as the once-upon-a-time lover. The playlet is excellently acted. Miss Ina Lorimer, the Scottish comedienne and dancer, sings in refreshing style a couple of numbers, one of which bears the name "I'm lost in London." Her exhibition in the direction of the terpsichorean art is also praiseworthy. The Toreadors are submitting their exceedingly laughable burlesque, A Spanish Bull Fight, the humorous qualities of which seem to gain on acquaintance. Mr. Laffan B. Jolly—surely a play upon words if ever there were one—creates a veritable infection of hilarity with the aid of his laughing songs. Is it because he is in nature as well as in name a laugh-and-be-jolly gentleman, or because he has extraordinary control of his risible faculties that Mr. Laffan B. Jolly indulges in such uncontrollable fits of merriment? Mr. Jack M. Tucker and company give an able singing and dancing performance in their scena The Page, and Mr. Walter King is extremely funny in his remarks on the subject of a henpecked husband, and his bit of burlesque as a woman singing and dancing is most enjoyable. Mr. John Lloyd and Miss Helen Bourne, tenor duettists, render a good account of themselves with such songs as "Alice, where art thou?" "The white squall," and "Anchored." The Edisonograph projects several up-to-date films. Mr. Maurice Volny, the assistant-manager, and Mr. Frederick Allwood, the musical-director, do good work in their respective spheres.

THE BEDFORD.

A very strong programme is to be found at this cosy hall this week, and packed audiences are the rule. There is a good all-round programme, which comprises a great variety of turns. Mr. Ben Nathan is making a welcome reappearance in an amusing play, The False Prophet, described as a fantasical comedy. Mr. Nathan appears as the old Jew Abram Levy, who believes the end of the world is at hand, and gives a very amusing delineation of the character, which causes endless laughter. Miss Fanny Robina, who makes a very gratifying appearance, has a cordial reception for her two songs, which are given with all her accustomed verve, and it is pleasant to hear this popular artist again. Cling and Clang provide a very bright turn with a deal of mirth-provoking patter and finish off with some smart dancing, which earns much applause. Harry Harris is clever as a mimic, and his imitations of Sam Mayo, Gus Elen, and others meet with much success. Florrie Cooper is a very charming singer, and her song about the stars was beautifully rendered, and met with hearty approbation. The Sages are a very entertaining couple, who interest and amuse with song and dance.

Miss Dorothy Grimston and company are presenting Mr. E. Phillips Oppenheim's dramatic sketch, The Money Spider, which tells of an incident in the career of a millionaire trust magnate who so nearly meets his death at the hand of a man who is being ruined by his trust manipulations. Miss Grimston plays the part of the millionaire's wife in dramatic fashion, and she is ably supported by the members of her company. The sketch scored a great success, which was well merited, for it is strongly written and most powerful. A very fresh turn is that provided by Mr. Tom Jones, the Welsh comedian, who is rapidly coming to the front, and he has a style of his own, and causes endless laughter as Clara Ap-Morgan, who chatters away on all topics in a thoroughly Welsh fashion. Frevoli and Deep give a clever acrobatic act. The lady partner is a very clever and graceful performer, and does several marvellous feats with amazing dexterity. Mr. Sivroni, described as an entertainer, gives several imitations, his most successful being that of Chirgwin, which was remarkably true to life. Those popular favourites the Four Burnells are always welcome here, and they are giving their diverting scena On the Links, which is screamingly funny, and keeps the audience in a roar of laughter.

A very novel scena, entitled After the Play, is being staged here by Mr. Jules Garrison. It is a little story of life behind the scenes. It is Christmas Eve, and the theatre deserted. Only the manager is left on the stage at the theatre, and he is visited by a crowd of newsboys, to whom he gives a little entertainment. Mr. Garrison plays the part of the Manager, and he is assisted by a crowd of local newsboys, two of whom deserve special mention, for they displayed much talent. This sketch is distinctly original and capitally played, and its success was most emphatic. Mr. Ken Jones, a comedian of much originality, appeared as an extra turn, and scored with his song "I don't think." Jack Roland, baritone vocalist, and the Bioscope complete the bill. Mr. Donald Brown is as courteous as ever, and indefatigable in looking after the welfare of all his patrons.

EALING HIPPODROME.

Mrs. Lewis Waller with The Admiral's Lady is winning the hearts of all comedy lovers this week with her inimitable presentation of the, if sometimes impulsive, always lovable Lady Rumblow. Mrs. Waller has here a rôle in which she simply revels, and there is all the breezy air of the quarter-deck about this altogether irresistible "lady admiral." She is, by turn, câline and seductive in her passages with the Duke of Villaflors, resolute and, in the end, triumphant with his Duchess, and in her temporary defeats she enlists the sympathy of her audiences, who always hope for and glory in her ultimate victory. Such sterling work is only too rare upon the variety stage.

"I don't care if there's a girl there" sings Mr. C. R. Whittle when, on his road to prison, he learns that Suffragettes will bear him company, and the rousing style with which his audience takes in hand the chorus of this phenomenal success of the Star Music Company shows why it has "caught on" from Land's End to John o' Groat's. Next he carols off, "I want you to see my girl," and again gallery and pit join in with a heartiness that makes even Mr. Whittle glow. Grey and Walford have an uproarious fun producer in their boxing-bout, and that humorous duet of patter and song, "Uncle died and left us all his pills," fairly convulses the house. Miss Rosie Archer, mimic at the piano, gives "Impressions," her excerpts being Miss Vesta Tilley, "When the right girl comes along," and Miss Victoria Monks, "I wish I had a pal." Both presentations are well received. Miss Violet Ashcroft sings sweetly of "Tell me, sweetheart" and "Two lads were speaking," and with a handsome costume makes an enchanting stage picture. Mr. Arthur Rose produces The Actor's Last Call, a pathetic episode ending with the death of the old player in his effort to represent his favourite character of Shylock. The vocal scena of Verno and Voyce, Rosebud Wins, well serves its purpose in showing that one good turn deserves another. This "200 to 1" chance proves most acceptable, and both comedians are loudly applauded. The methods of Mr. Ted Cowan are somewhat like those of a certain "immobile one," but his two numbers, "Pushing" and "Anything is better than nothing," do not suffer from the association. The Imperial Bioscope exhibits some startling films of the Messina earthquake.

TOM LOVELL AND HIS DOG.

EXTRACTS FROM THE LONDON PRESS.

Mr. Tom Lovell, a member of Fred Evans's troupe of pantomimists, was about giving his Newfoundland dog a bathe in the Thames last Sunday week, when a child about seven years of age fell into the water by Westminster-bridge, and was being carried by the rushing tide through one of the arches. Mr. Lovell immediately sent his dog in, and it succeeded in grasping the child by the clothes, and held it until a boat put out and rescued it. Several gentlemen who saw the occurrence intend presenting the dog with a collar.—Era.

THIS INTERESTING EVENT IN THE LATE TOM LOVELL'S LIFE HAPPENED IN 1873.

SHOWMEN'S GUILD.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Showmen's Guild, which was exceedingly well attended, took place on Wednesday afternoon at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, the chair being occupied by Mr. Patrick Collins, the president, who was supported by the Rev. Thomas Horne, chaplain to the Guild, Mr. Strong, hon. solicitor, Mr. Watson Wright, Parliamentary solicitor, and Mr. T. Hurst, hon. secretary; while others present were Councillor E. H. Bostock (Glasgow), Messrs. J. W. Bostock (London), J. Dooner (Wales), S. Hancock (Plymouth), Marshall Hill (Conley, Glos.), James Manders (London), Wm. Murphy (Newcastle), T. E. Read (London), Jacob Studt (Gloucester), Wm. Taylor (London), D. Turnbull (Belfast), F. Turner (London), H. J. Wallis (Liverpool), B. Howden (Boston), Geoghegan Bros. (Manchester), Forrest Bros. (London), R. Holdsworth (Leeds), J. Westray (Manchester), Chas. Abbot (London), J. Crighton (Norwich), Anderton and Rowland (Sheffield), Wm. Le Neve (London), Harrington Bros. (Manchester), Andrew Purchase (London), E. Holland (Manchester), Mellor Bros. (Oldham), Fred White (Manchester), Alf Ball (London), E. Ball (London), Prince Samonda (Manchester), Messrs. M. Thompson (Leeds), G. Marshall (Bradford), H. Kemp (Leicester), R. H. Williams (Preston), Councillor G. T. Tuby (Doncaster), Messrs. M. Brannan (Doncaster), Dunwell Johnson (Leeds), John Collins (Liverpool), Plinston Bros. (London and Warrington), R. Shippobottom (London and Manchester), H. Hughes (Birmingham), H. Street (Sheffield), H. Powell (Newcastle), E. Hussey (London), G. Saunders (London), W. Slatter (London), M. Sanders (Norwich), Tom Taylor (London), J. Chadwick, A. Chamberlain, Mr Whatham (agent for W. Foster and Co.), Mr. C. Burrell, jun., for Messrs. C. Burrell and Son, Mr. L. A. Hackett (agent for Baxendales), Mr. Ballam (agent for R. Garrett and Sons), Mr. Affleck (agent for Savage Bros., Ltd.), Mr. Wentworth (agent for Marenghe et Cie, Paris), Wm. Kemp (agent for the L. and N.-W. R.), Mr. T. Smith (agent for the G.C.R.), Mr. Brimmell (for Brimmell's, Stroud), and many others.

The CHAIRMAN, in opening the proceedings, said: Ladies and Gentlemen,—In taking the presidency, I know that I am undertaking a big work. To follow the Empire's greatest showman is a task beyond my power. But knowing as I do that I shall receive every assistance from the committee and the great workers in our cause, the chaplain, Mr. Hurst, the hon. secretary, and a hundred others whose names I could mention—with these good men and true behind me I have no hesitation in bidding you go forward. You may rely upon me to do all in my power to forward the great work in hand. I have to propose a vote of thanks to the retiring president, Lord George Sanger. He takes with him our love and best wishes, that he may be spared many years to enjoy his well-earned peace and retirement. The chaplain will second the resolution.

The Rev. T. HORNE, who was loudly cheered on rising to speak, said: The resolution before us now reads thus:—"This meeting of delegates of the Showmen's Guild, assembled at the World's Fair, London, for its eighteenth annual meeting, tenders to Lord George Sanger, the retiring president, heartfelt thanks for his services to the whole body of vandwellers, showmen, and amusement caterers. They place on record with profound respect and admiration their sense of his untiring zeal, great influence, and unstinted liberality in their interests and in the life of the humblest member of the fairground community. They wish him, in the eventide of life, all peace and abundant blessings." In seconding the resolution I wish from the bottom of my heart to convey it to a friend with whom I have worked for well-nigh twenty years in the interests of all in Showland with the greatest amity. With the profoundest admiration for his great ability, liberality, and keen interest in all that concerns the people who follow the fair. George Sanger has built up for himself an imperishable name. When the great men of the Victorian Era are put in their proper positions and the historian of the future marks the really great leaders of men, account will have to be taken of George Sanger. Cradled on the road from the earliest days of his life, passing through the vicissitudes that build up character and make personality, George Sanger has stood for all that is truest and noblest in Showland. As a loving son, as a faithful husband, as a staunch and untiring friend, as a leader of his fellows, as a benefactor to his people, George Sanger will remain for ever the Empire's greatest showman. He thought of those whose interests were as great as his own, and he thought of those who were unable to give but would give if they could. I addressed the following lines to him on his resignation:—

I cannot, nay, I cannot bring
My tongue to say "Farewell,"
Nor would I have the bells of life
Ring out so sad a knell.
I would not break the fellowship
So strong through many years,
How we won the children's bread
And dried the widow's tears,
How we buckled armour on,
And fought with foemen dire,
How we vanquished ignorance,
And quenched fanatic fire.
. . . . . .
So ask me not to say "Farewell,"
My veteran comrade brave;
'Tis time enough to say "Good-bye"
Beside an open grave.
. . . . . .
In the glory of life's setting sun,
My brother, take thy rest;
Well hast thou fought, and well hast won
Thy guerdon with life's best.

I welcome you in the chair, sir. You are not too young to be labelled and marked, and I label and mark you here to-day, sir, as the monarch of British showmen. If ever a man has earned by means of hard work, tremendous ability, readiness to see and to grasp the meaning of every emergency, the right to a crown of triumph, then that man is Patrick Collins.

Mr. T. WATSON-WRIGHT, the Parliamentary solicitor, moved the following resolution:—"That this meeting of showmen delegates of the Showmen's Guild of Great Britain in public meeting assembled at the World's Fair, Islington, protests against the Movable Dwellings Bill. We claim as lawful traders to be under and obedient to the ordinary laws of the realm; we deny that special inquisitorial and liberty-destroying legislation is needed for our trade and mode of life. If the promoters of the measure want to penalise gipsy life, let them make their object clear by calling it a Gipsy Encampment Bill, or by an exemption clause stating that gipsies and not showmen are meant." Mr. Wright stated that the promoters of the Bill were making a grave mistake if they imagined that in attacking the show they were removing a great injustice. It had long ago been decided that showmen were legitimate traders, and this Bill was mere faddist legislation. They had in the past dealt with many legal cases, and the majority of the results were in their favour. These cases could not have been fought without the aid of the Association.

The Rev. T. HORNE seconded the resolution. He pointed out that the Bill proposed that every movable tent or habitation should be registered, numbered, marked, and listed, and the licensing or registering authority should be the county or borough council. The Guild would not fight the Bill if it were merely a legislative or licensing Bill. The objectionable point about the Bill was that it was an invasion of their rights as citizens of the greatest empire the world had ever seen. Every van at present was under the Health Acts, with all their amending Acts. There was not a single Act of Parliament which applied to houses of stone that did not equally apply to the caravans of the travelling showman.

Mr. A. A. STRONG, LL.B., the hon. solicitor, also spoke in support. He thought that the showmen should not be negligent over this matter.

The resolution was then put to the meeting and declared carried unanimously.

Mr. FRANK TURNER proposed a resolution as follows:—"This meeting thanks Vice-President T. E. Read, lessee and director of the World's Fair, for his kindness in permitting us to hold our meetings and giving us the assistance he does."

Mr. THOMAS HURST seconded, and the resolution was carried.

The Rev. T. HORNE announced that Mr. Patrick Collins had marked the first year of his presidentship by contributing £50 to the funds of the Society. The chaplain then referred to the report already published in The Era. They had serious financial engagements to meet, and they would not be able to meet them without doubling their last year's income, which amounted to over £500. When it was considered that one corporation alone, having behind it the money of the ratepayers, would lavish from £1,000 to £2,000 on a case, it was a remarkable thing that the Showmen's Society, with its extremely limited income, could successfully oppose great corporations. He appealed for funds, and trusted that his hearers would respond generously. Mr. Horne then stated that a copy of the following resolution would be sent to the Oldham Corporation:—"That this annual meeting of delegates of the Showmen's Guild, drawn from all parts of the United Kingdom, protests against the Oldham Corporation Bill asking for a monopoly of fairs in the borough boundary."

At the close of the meeting the following members were enrolled:—

AMERICAN RINK, DUNDEE.

This magnificent rink was auspiciously opened on Friday evening, the 15th inst. The rink, which is situated in Melrose-terrace, is the second largest in the world, being only surpassed by that at the Olympia, in London. The interior of the establishment is most striking. An area of 25,000 square feet is the space allotted for the skaters, and the surface is as smooth as glass. The rink proper is a costly undertaking. Maple, of which the surface is entirely composed, was imported direct from America, and the strips, if laid end to end, would encircle the entire city. The flooring is carried on joists running cross-ways. On top of this is laid a special pine floor, which is superimposed by the maple. This is laid in a peculiar manner, so that the skaters have the lengthwise of the grain in the same direction in which they skate all the time. The maple floring was afterwards treated by a special electric sand-paper machine, which makes the floor equal to the smoothness of glass. Mr. Bert Crump, the courteous manager of the rink, is most painstaking in seeking the comfort of the large number of patrons who attend at the various sessions. Some are extremely shy to venture on the "ice," but the instructors are very attentive and patient, so that their pupils soon make rapid progress. Everything is got up on a grand scale. There is seating accommodation for over a thousand spectators, and for the skaters there are cloakrooms with attendants, and even most polite youths to fasten on the skates. A splendid military band discourses stirring and appropriate music. The managing-directors are Messrs. C. P. Crawford and F. A. Wilkins, and the manager is Mr. Bert Crump.

PRESS APPRECIATION OF THE SHOWMEN'S GUILD.

We have recently examined some extremely interesting note-books and Press cuttings of the year 1890, dealing with the opinions of the general public and the Press with regard to the then extremely novel enterprise of showmen banding themselves together in a trade union.

Two special articles in the Manchester Guardian of Thursday, Jan. 14, the day after the Guild's meeting in that city, very fully embody our own opinion of the enormous strides in the show and fairground industry during the past twenty years. The writer, with keen insight into human affairs, thus expresses the tremendous change in Showland:—

"The showman as seen walking with lordly stride in the splendour of his gilded palace on the fairground, to the hissing of naphtha flares, the banging of drums, and the blaring of brass, and the showman as seen in his quieter private life are two people far apart. One looked in vain at the annual meeting of the Showmen's Guild in the Memorial Hall, Manchester, yesterday afternoon for the familiar frock coat, for the shining hat with the rakish tilt over the eye, for the expanse of linen and watch chain, and for the splendour of breast stud and finger ring. These things all go, apparently, with the extinguishing of the flares and the 'last' repetition of the National Anthem, and in plain daylight the showman becomes quite a homely man. A hard hat, or even a cap, and an inconspicuous overcoat, is splendour enough for him then. Even more than that. He becomes positively a shy, retiring man—one needing coaxing at a public meeting to induce him to take any seat other than one right at the back, one needing calling twice or thrice by name before he will consent to undergo the publicity of a seat on a platform; one who, though able perhaps to shout 'Walk up, walk up' or 'Three shots a penny' with ear-splitting facility, will hesitate, and perhaps even blush, at the sound of his own half-whispered, 'I beg to second the motion.'

"But whether retiring or not in private life, the showman has a keen idea of men and things in so far as they affect, or threaten to affect, his calling, and, his shyness once overcome, he seems well able to put clearly and to the point his view of questions in which he is concerned. The function of the Showmen's Guild is to protect the interests of showmen and van-dwellers, and on measures of this sort several effective little speeches were made yesterday. First of all, however, came the business of bidding good-bye to a president of the Guild who has done perhaps more than anyone else to put the body in the strong position it now holds among showmen. This is Mr. Lord George Sanger. He is now eighty-two years of age, and is retiring from the presidency of the Guild after many years' great service. The speakers seemed to take it for granted that everyone knew all that he had done for the Guild, but one was able to gather that, both by personal work and by liberal money gifts, he had virtually kept the society afloat in its earliest days. The showman's feeling towards him is evidently most cordial, for his name was appalauded at every mention."

Lord George Sanger's Leadership.

The same paper has a leading article, commenting on the strong personality of the late president of the Guild—George Sanger. Again we notice the kindly endeavour of the writer to get inside real show life, and to express a well-founded opinion. Speaking of the bad old times when the octogenarian Sanger was a youth, he tells of the hard life of the nomadic entertainer of the people in the early forties of the nineteenth century. It is all so very good that we reproduce it:—

"'Lord' George Sanger has ceased to be president of the Showmen's Guild, and some affectionate good-byes were said to him at the annual meeting in Manchester yesterday. For eighteen years Mr. Sanger has been the Guild. He made it and brought it successfully through a very delicate infancy, and he leaves it at the beginning of a crisis, it is true, but quite able to take care of itself. A year ago at the Agricultural Hall in Islington Mr. Sanger described with gusto the vast improvement that had taken place in the character and standing of the trade since he began it, seventy years ago. The lively little book of reminiscences that he has written is full of stories of insult from village hooligans, who assaulted their vans and smashed the mantelpiece ornaments, which are sacred, but not infrequently got a warmer reception than they bargained for. In those days every showman had to be something of a general, or at the least a leader of guerilla; Mr. Sanger has himself described how his father stood for two hours with a blunderbuss in his hand while a Chartist procession filed past him near Newport, fully prepared to take the risk of firing it should these enemies of property attack his particular vested interest. The days of outlawry are over, and the Guild is discovering that even extreme respectability gives no sort of security against the solicitude of legislators and the regulations of local governing bodies."

The Movable Dwellings Bill.

Speaking of Lord Clifford of Chudleigh's Bill and the opposition of the showmen thereto, the leader-writer remarks:—"We think there is something in their objection to police inspection of their vans, which they regard as an indignity and a violation of the principle that an Englishman's house is his castle. The fact that his house is on wheels should not make any difference to common law rights. If the showmen will make it quite clear that they have no objection to their vans being visited by sanitary or school attendance officers, they will have a good chance of defeating the clause in the Movable Dwellings Bill providing for police inspection, which has caused them such annoyance."

The Daily Telegraph has this interesting comment on what it conceives to be the present case of the showman:—

"Rapidly though the old English fairs are disappearing, yet still more rapidly are others, of a more modern character, being started, and it is estimated that throughout the country between 20 and 30 per cent. more fairs are held now than in the beginning of the last century. The change that has taken place is far-reaching, and in the eyes of his patrons the showman is no longer the hero that he was once considered. It is with but little anticipation that his coming is awaited, and the event is soon forgotten. The fact is, enterprising music-hall managers have created a taste that is not easily satisfied. Nearly every country district is within comparatively easy reach of a music-hall, and it is quite the thing nowadays after attending the market to spend the evening at one of these houses of entertainment. Then there are the peep-shows and innumerable cinematograph displays, all of which encroach upon what the showman formerly regarded as his legitimate preserve. With this opposition he cheerfully contends, for he regards it as he regards all competition.

"But for several years he has been threatened in another way. There have been brought before Parliament many Movable Dwellings Bills, and the latest is that of Lord Clifford of Chudleigh, which was introduced last session. This Bill provides for the registration of all tents, vans, and the like used for habitation, and also for the registration of the age and sex of persons allowed to use them. The measure further provides that the inspecting officer shall be the police constable or school attendance officer. It is to the policeman in the capacity of inspector that the showmen object, and at the annual meeting of the Showmen's Guild, held yesterday (Jan. 20) at the World's Fair, resolutions of protest were passed with unanimity. In the speeches it was made quite clear that these men have no objection whatsoever to registration; the only point to which they offer opposition is that the power of inspection should be in the hands of a police constable. At the present time, it was explained, a van is subject, in regard to inspection, to precisely the same regulations as a dwelling-house. The medical officer for health, the sanitary inspector, and the school attendance officer had all the right of entry. It was now proposed that these duties should be taken out of the hands of competent men and thrown upon the police constable. These were the chief objections put forward by the showmen.

"In conversation with a representative of this paper, the Rev. T. Horne, chaplain to the Guild, said that as regards education there was little difficulty. The vast majority of showmen had fixed homes, and very few children of an age to attend school accompanied the vans. It had been proved to the satisfaction of the Board of Education that fewer children of this class than of any other evaded the regulations. Where there happened to be a number of children gathered together for any length of time, as, for instance, at the World's Fair, a school was at once started."

The Morning Post, in a brief but interesting report of the annual meeting of the Guild at the World's Fair, deals with the proposed class legislation of Lord Clifford of Chudleigh in very clear terms. We quote the report in full, that our readers may have in their possession the evidence of the prominence that is now given in the public Press to the gatherings of the Showmen's Guild:—

"The eighteenth annual London meeting of the Showmen and Van-dwellers' Protection Association, or Showmen's Guild, was held yesterday (Jan. 20) at the World's Fair in the Islington Agricultural Hall, with Mr. Patrick Collins, of Walsall, who has succeeded Mr. Lord George Sanger as president of the Association, in the chair. Mr. Watson Wright, of Leicester, solicitor to the Guild, moved a resolution condemning the Movable Dwellings Bill introduced in the House of Lords by Lord Clifford of Chudleigh on behalf of the County Councils Association, as a serious menace to the means of livelihood of showmen, an uncalled-for aspersion on their character, an unwarrantable invasion of their family life, and an unmerited attack on their liberties. While van-dwellers and showmen as lawful traders were prepared to acknowledge obedience to the ordinary law of the land, they denied that special inquisitorial and liberty-destroying legislation was needed for their trade and mode of life. If the promoters of the Bill desired to destroy gipsy life, why not revive the old feudal law, which made it a crime to have no settled abode, and introduce a bill to abolish all gipsy encampments and to compel gipsies and other nomads to settle in towns and villages? With the death of that professional philanthropist George Smith, of Coalville, they hoped that they had got rid of the interfering persons who desired that the home life of van-dwellers—just as respectable citizens as those who lived in houses of bricks and mortar—should be liable to invasion by policemen or inspectors at any hour of the day or night. Unfortunately, this had not been the case; and they were still frequently called on to defend their rights and liberties. During recent years the Association had presented twenty-five petitions to Parliament against Bills of local authorities containing proposals objectionable to van-dwellers, and in fourteen cases in which the petitions had been heard the objectionable clauses had been eliminated. During the coming session they would have to oppose four other Bills promoted by the Corporations of Oldham, Bury, Folkestone, and Greenock, giving to those local authorities the power of registering, licensing, and inspecting all movable dwelling vans or tents used for habitation. In view of the fact that they were already amenable equally with dwellers in houses to the provisions of the general law in these matters, van-dwellers were not prepared tamely to submit to any such provisions. The Rev. T. Horne, Guild chaplain, in seconding, remarked that while van-dwellers had no objection in principle to registration, licensing, or the visits of the medical officer of health, the sanitary officer, and the school attendance officer, they did most strongly object to the executive functions of these persons being transferred to flat-footed Giles, the man in blue, often ignorant and always officious, who was taken from the plough-tail and turned into a policeman. The resolution having been adopted by acclamation, a hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Lord George Sanger, past president of the Guild, for his services to the whole body of van-dwellers, showmen, and amusement caterers, as well as for his untiring zeal and unstinted liberality in the interests of the fairground community.

The Triumph of Organisation.

NEVER since the origination of the Vandwellers' Society (the valuable suggestion of Mr. F. H. Pedgrift in 1888) has there been greater enthusiasm and interest in its beneficent work manifested than that seen at both the Manchester and the London annual meetings. The delegates in attendance were from all parts of Showland—from Ireland, Messrs. Turnbull, Toft, and Piper; from Scotland, a representation too large for particular enumeration; from Wales came John and Jacob Studt, R. Dooner, the Bullins, the Dantes, and the Freemans; from the West of England, Miss Hancock, Messrs. Anderton, Marshall, Hill, and others; from the North Round, Wm. Murphy, G. T. Tuby, R. Holdsworth, H. Powell, M. Brannan, C. C. Campbell, and a crowd of others; from the Midlands, a big contingent to do honour to the new president, Mr. Patrick Collins, of Walsall, these including P. Ross Collins, H. Hughes, D. Johnson, H. Street, and others; from the Yorkshire Round, the Marshalls, Powells, Harringtons, Howdens, and many others; from the Liverpool and Cheshire Round, Messrs. J. Collins, H. J. Wallis, E. Holnd, and others; and from the Manchester Circuit, Messrs. Hurst, Geoghegan Bros., Whiting, Plenston Bros., Mellor Bros., R. Shippobottom, R. H. Williams, H. Kemp, and others—a real parliament of Showland.

The Fellowship of Showmen.

IT will be remembered that an attack was made upon some showpeople at the thriving village of Coed-poeth, near Wrexham. The showmen (it is said in self-protection) fired upon the mob, and wounded several persons. The showmen were arrested for firing upon the people, and the trial is about to take place. In order that competent legal assistance may be rendered these showmen—Cook by name—a subscription list has been going the round of the winter fairs. Up to date the result is as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
A whip round at the meeting of British Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union	4	10	0
Collected at the Iona-street Carnival, Edinburgh, by Messrs. T. Day and H. Strand, sen.	4	2	0
Collected at the World's Fair, Agricultural Hall, Islington, by Messrs. W. Wilson and L. Read	14	2	6
Collected at Simon Square, Edinburgh, per Mr. J. Evans	3	4	6

Other subscriptions bring the total amount received up to the end of last week to over £60. Mr. Frank Mellor, of Oldham, is the treasurer to the fund.

KINEMATOGRAPH REGULATIONS respecting the use of the Kinematograph in Theatres and Halls, also the Regulations respecting the use of Limelight, can be had, price 1d. (by post 1½d.), from The Era Offices, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C. All those who handle the Cinematograph or Limelight should possess a copy of these Regulations.

CINEMATOGRAPH PLAYS.

THE COPYRIGHT QUESTION.

In the Court of Appeal, on Thursday, Lords Justices Vaughan Williams, Farwell, and Kennedy heard the case of "Karno v. Pathé Frères, Ltd.," which was an appeal by the plaintiff from a decision of Mr. Justice Jelf, who tried the case without a jury.

The question was, shortly, whether the plaintiff had a copyright in a pantomime sketch, which was performed chiefly in dumb show, but with a certain amount of "gag," of which there was no book of the words or stage directions, and which was not capable of being printed as a literary piece, and whether it was or was not a "dramatic piece" within the protection of the Copyright Act, 1833. Mr. Justice Jelf held that it was not, and therefore that the defendants had not infringed the plaintiff's alleged copyright by selling and offering to sell a cinematograph film which produced on a screen all the incidents of the sketch.

Mr. Scrutton, K.C., said that he appeared with Mr. Mackinnon in support of the appeal. His client, Mr. Fred Karno, was the proprietor in Great Britain and Ireland of the sole right of representing or performing a farce or pantomimical sketch, entitled the Mumming Birds; or, Twice Nightly. The defendants, in whose favour judgmen had gone in the Court below, carried on business as makers of and dealers in cinematographs and films and accessories, and they had made and sold a cinematograph film which, when worked on a screen, substantially produced a representation of the incidents on which the Mumming Birds was founded as to be an infringement of the plaintiff's copyright in that piece, if the piece was capable of being the subject of copyright. Whatever might be the legal position of the piece, it certainly was a very paying property.

The defendants, it seemed, said Mr. Scrutton, had seen the plaintiff's troupe act this piece, and they got together a similar troupe in France, and after many rehearsals took a cinematograph, films 330 feet long, of a performance. This film they included in their catalogue, drawing the special attention of public entertainers to it as being one of their most amusing productions. This announcement proved to be correct, and it was sought after by many music-hall managers and produced all over the country at various places of public amusement. This fact greatly diminished the value of the piece to the plaintiff, because either by accident or design the films had often been exhibited the week or so before at the halls at which the plaintiff desired to give his sketch, and he was told that his sketch would not draw because there had been a cinematograph production of it quite recently, and people did not care to pay to see the same thing twice.

Lord Justice Farwell asked if the defendants called their piece by the same name as the plaintiff advertised his under.

Mr. Scrutton replied that the defendants catalogued it under the name of At the Music-hall. The defendants by their defence raised three points, each of which their lordships would have to decide. First they said that the depicting by means of a cinematograph of the gestures of actors on a screen was not a "representation" of a dramatic piece within the meaning of the Copyright Act, 1833. The learned judge found that point in favour of the plaintiff. He attended at the Oxford Music-hall a special private performance. The plaintiff first presented his piece, and then the cinematograph "representation" was given, and the judge, to make quite sure that the film representation really represented what the plaintiff's company had acted, encored it.

The second point was this, assuming this to be an infringing representation, the defendants said they had not made the representation or caused it to be made, and that the plaintiff's right, if any, was against the "showman." At first his lordship was inclined to decide against the defendants, but finally, following a decision of this Court, he held that the defendants would be liable for the acts of the showman as being their agent. That was important, because the plaintiff could hardly rush all over the country, taking proceedings against this man and that, and obviously he should be entitled to stop the original offender.

Thirdly, the defendants said: "Assume we are wrong on both the first and the second defences, nevertheless you cannot restrain us from continuing to exhibit these films, because the representation by cinematograph cannot be a 'dramatic piece' within the meaning of Section 1 of the Act of 1833, since the term 'dramatic piece' means a composition which is capable of being printed and published. It cannot consist of scenic effects and dramatic situations without words. And that is all that this representation is."

That, continued counsel, was the decision in "Tate v. Fulbrook," which was decided in 1908 by this Court, consisting of Lord Justices Vaughan Williams, Farwell, and Kennedy. "If that case is held by your lordships as governing this case," added counsel, "argument from me is useless, and the matter must go before a higher tribunal. My submission is that Mr. Justice Jelf misunderstood your lordships' decision, and carried it further than your lordships intended. It is to get a ruling on that point that I so gladly came before this Court of Appeal, as I thought it would be better to get your interpretation of the judgment than that of the other division of the Appeal Court on it."

Lord Justice Vaughan Williams: That was a decision on the facts of a particular case. You say this is the best possible Court to come to for an interpretation of the judgment. I think it is the worst Court you could have come to. (Laughter.)

Mr. Scrutton replied that he would reserve his opinion until their lordships had given judgment.

The learned counsel then deal with the law of copyright, and mentioned that the question was of great importance, because there was an invention which had nearly been perfected by which a gramophone would be worked with the cinematograph, and therefore "words" would be added to the gestures depicted on the screen.

Mr. Mackinnon followed on the same side.

At the close of the appellant's case,

Lord Justice Vaughan Williams said they would not require to hear Sir Robert Finlay, K.C., and Mr. E. A. Bennett for the respondents.

His lordship then gave judgment. He said that he agreed with Mr. Justice Jelf that the action could not be maintained. It was not necessary to go into the case at any length, for it was clear to his mind that the defendant had not "represented or caused to be represented" the alleged piratical performances, and had not, therefore, been guilty of that offence under the Copyright Act. That disposed of the question as it came before that Court.

The lords justices concurred, and the appeal was accordingly dismissed with costs.

THE popularity of the American Roller Rink at Olympia continues unabated, and it has become quite the fashionable resort in London. Each afternoon a large number of well-known theatrical people are amongst the keenest of the skaters, one of the latest converts being Mr. George Greaves. On Tuesday night there was a skating "Cinderella," which was in every way a complete success, and the next special feature will be a "Barnyard Carnival" on Feb. 2, when all skaters will appear in rustic costume.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 1906. Effect on Theatres and Music Halls. By Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor. Price 6d. Published at The Era Offices, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

FILM GOSSIP.

Showmen and Managers throughout the United Kingdom, and in every English-speaking country, will find in this column particulars of some of the best and newest Films in the Market. Many of these Films we have seen ourselves, and can confidently recommend showmen to add them to their list of attractions.

Pathé Frères.

AT THE ZOOLOGICAL GARDENS, LONDON.—This subject has a very strong appeal in view of its educational interest. It is unnecessary to describe it at length, but we may say that the photographic quality is perfect. The different scenes show arctic bears playing water polo, zebras, giraffes, hippopotami, eagles, brown bears, monkeys, reindeer, bison, rhinoceros, pelicans, flamingoes, beavers, secretary vulture, black hornbill, capybara, hyenas, the walrus pond, and the den of lions.

VERCINGETORIX (GAUL'S HERO).—It was the custom in Gaul for the daughters of the chiefs to choose their future husbands. The first picture shows the table which has been laid for the betrothal, and the guests seated round it. The bride appears, holding in her hand, according to custom, a cup, which she offers to Vercingetorix. His rival cannot restrain his wrath, and he challenges the happy young man. They fight. Vercingetorix unarms his opponent, but he grants him his life in order not to blacken the day of his betrothal with a crime. The traitor swears to avenge himself on the young chief, and for so doing he offers his services to Cæsar, promising to lead the Roman army to the Gauls' camp. The Romans, led by the traitor, arrive before Alesia, and, after a great battle, they take the town. Woe to the vanquished! The Gauls are defeated and taken prisoners. They have to come before Cæsar and give up their arms to him. Vercingetorix rides on his spirited horse to Cæsar's camp, and throws his javelin, helmet, sword, and shield at the conqueror's feet. Roman soldiers tie up the hero's hands and take him away, amidst the hootings of the crowd. Vercingetorix is imprisoned, pending his being put to death. His wife enters, and throws herself into his arms. There takes place a scene during which love and despair struggle for the upper hand. While his poor weeping wife is still with him the executioners enter, and, performing their duty, they strangle the hero in his prison.

A CHILD'S LOVE.—Mr. Skittish has a charming and loving wife, and a pretty little daughter who loves him tenderly, but this does not prevent him from making love to a dancer, who makes him very jealous on account of her fickleless. Such things will happen sometimes. Poor Mrs. Skittish has a vague idea that her husband is carrying on this flirtation, and she does her best to make him abide by her side. The frequency of the quarrels that ensue at home causes the little girl to puzzle her young brains over her mother's sadness. She at last guesses that someone has bereaved her of her dad's affection—that dad of her's, who was so happy and nice before but is now so sullen and indifferent. She devises a plan. She manages to take to the dancer the bouquet her father is sending to her, and showing to the woman a photograph representing her father and mother tenderly united, she causes the kind-hearted and sprightly girl to write immediately to Mr. Skittish a letter, which she entrusts to the little one. In it she says that she will go away, and Mr. Skittish understands at last that his happiness lies at home between his wife and child.

A PUZZLING ENIGMA.—Mr. Gregory, a hale and hearty old man, wishes to marry, and he inserts an advertisement in the paper. The very same day he finds on his desk the following letter:—"Why should I not be the partner that you are wishing for? I am told that I am pretty; moreover, I have some money. My heart is full of a love that does not dare to disclose itself. Look about you, beckon me, and I am yours.—A Bashful Girl." Mr. Gregory now speculates as to who that nice little woman can be who has thought of him as her possible husband in spite of his fifty years, but he does not notice that his woman servant looks at him lovingly while serving him at breakfast. Mr. Gregory goes out, for he thinks that he will be fortunate enough to meet and recognise the sender of the message. Passing on the stairs one of his charming neighbours he thinks that she is his anonymous friend, and, showing her the letter he supposes her to have written, he makes ardent love to her. The lady cries for help, and a forcible kick from someone behind sends him down the steps. This time he sees his laundress in the street, and he begins pouring his story into her ears. At this sudden proposal the laundress pushes him into a bucket full of water, and this cools him down a little. Mr. Gregory looks very piteous and dejected, but as he is walking along there comes down just in front of him a rope ladder, which unfolds its coils most temptingly. This is poetry indeed! Now he is sure to find his future wife up there, at the other end of the ladder, and, like Romeo of old, he carefully ascends to where he feels sure to find his Juliet. He is greeted by two housebreakers, however, and the ruffians deal him such heavy blows that they leave him unconscious on the floor while they make good their escape from the policemen, who, finding Mr. Gregory alone in the room, arrest him. But he is soon released, and he mutters softly to himself on his way home, "Such a puzzling enigma! I dare not hope to ever solve it now!" He understands everything at last when his servant presents him with two big bags full of gold, asking him to take her heart upon the bargain. Mr. Gregory is dumbfounded at first; then he smiles at the money, makes a face at the woman, and, after due consideration, accepts both.

A GOOD MAN.—Peter is a steady workman and a good man. He loves with all his heart pretty Louise, who, being a flirt, does not mind having a chat with a young townsman on a holiday in the village. Louise is now the mother of a little child, whose father does not care to acknowledge it as his. She is always sad, and Abbé Gerlis, the priest of the village, is very sorry for her, and tries to help her to carry the heavy burden thrust on her young shoulders with kind words and gentle advice. Peter, who has always looked upon the Abbé as a faithful friend, unfolds to him the whole story of his scorned love. The Abbé, in his turn, tells him of the crushed hopes of h's old sweetheart; and as Peter has never ceased for a moment to love her, he forgives everything and opens his arms to her. She accepts with gratitude and humility the shelter which is thus afforded her.

CHAUFFEUR AND CABWOMAN.—A chauffeur, having had a bust up, is seen in the street by a cabwoman, who immediately falls in love with him, and he with her, and she helps him out of his difficulty by taking his machine in tow. They are married shortly afterwards, but after a time they quarrel, and emphasise their arguments with the whip and petroleum cans. To escape the present state of affairs the chauffeur boards his motor-car and runs away; but she climbs up to her box and follows, and at new accident to the motor-car delivers the poor husband into the hands of his infuriated wife.

KATE'S BIRTHDAY.—It is Kate's birthday, and Robert, her sweetheart, is so hard up that he cannot offer her the least keepsake. Kate calls upon him with an eager face, but Robert turns his pockets inside out in a very expressive manner, and in order to make her dry her pretty eyes he promises to go to his old aunt and ask her for a cheque. The old lady is so wrapped up in her little dog Jack that her heart and safe are closed against the entreaties of her nephew, who leaves her in a state of great excitement. But at the door he sees the dog, which a servant is leading, and he has a brilliant idea. He cuts the lead, and, without remorse, kidnaps Jack. The old lady is so upset at the loss of her dog that she causes the following notice to be circulated:—"Lost, a black and white dog, answering to the name of Jack. Whoever brings same to 7, Faith-street, will receive £4 reward." Thanks to this little trick, Robert is enabled to give Kate the coveted bracelet.

Gaumont Films.

THE POTTER'S DREAM.—The potter has bad luck. He has no money to buy fuel for his fire, so has to use the furniture. Falling asleep he sees various representations of old china, on which the figures, in the dress of the nationality and period shown, come to life. On waking he rushes to the furnace, and discovers the fire out, but on searching he finds a beautiful plaque in Japanese art. The scene closes with the Goddess of Plenty smiling on the potter and his friends.

LITTLE TICK THE 'TEC.—Tick engages rooms at an hotel. He stands his boots outside the door to be cleaned. During the night burglars visit the premises, and all the boots are stolen, with the exception of Tick's. While arguing over his boots, and struggling for possession, the soles stretch. Morning—the boots searches for boots, but finds there are none with the exception of Tick's. These he cleans. When Tick requires his boots he is astonished to find they have grown, but making the best of a bad job he goes to search for the burglars. Catching one, he flattens him with his long boot against the wall, and finally catches the other in a restaurant, where some great fun occurs, and, handing the burglar over to the police, makes a bow to the audience.

LILY'S COUGH MIXTURE.—Lily has a bad cough, and the doctor orders medicine. Lily declines to take it unless everyone in the house, including the doctor, tries it first. Even then she is not satisfied, so her mother asks policemen, painters, &c., to prove to Lily that the medicine is not nasty. Everyone that has tasted it is shown later in terrible pain. Lily has the laugh of the situation, and with a smile of satisfaction throws away the medicine.

DANCING FURNITURE.—Mr. Johnson brings home a gramophone and tries various records—the waltz, the cake walk, the Dead March. During the various renderings, the furniture dances to time around the room, and pictures on the wall assume various expressions. The servant entering, finds the room upside down, and, guessing the cause, hurls the machine from the window on to the head of a passer-by.

THE LOST NEW YEAR'S DINNER.—Jack and Alice are newly wed, so pa and ma invite them to dinner on New Year's Day. Being a trifle late, they instruct the chauffeur to make up the lost time. Unfortunately for them, when putting on a spurt he runs into a suburban police "trap," and they are taken before a pompous and self-important local Justice. In the meantime pa is having some trouble with the turkey. Sometimes pa scores, sometimes the bird, so that ma's well-meant advice is anything but pleasing to the old man. However, matters cool down, and the preparations for the reception are completed. So pa and ma tidy up a bit and await the arrival of the newly-wedded pair. Returning to our young friends, we find them the centre of an interested group in the Police Court. When their case is called hubby discovers that he has come out without his purse, and, being unable to pay the fine, they dine on bread and coffee, making a resolution never to be late again, spurt, or forget their money.

A PERSISTENT SUITOR.—The tender passion rules the same the world over. Whatever the clime, or race, or colour, the course of true love seldom runs smooth. A pair of dusky lovers have many trials owing to the opposition of father. Jim is a fearless coloured dandy, determined to win Gladys, the Deacon's daughter. The Deacon, somehow, does not care for Jim, so a state of war exists. Jim keeps the old man bordering on a frenzy all the time, so that when pa catches him in the parlour Jim just gets round to the kitchen to meet Gladys and continue the game. After many hairbreadth escapes, the Deacon decides to make up as a ghost. Waylaying Jim in the woods, Jim just saunters along, and, instead of being scared, he gives the Deacon the best run he had ever had in his life. The failure of this idea worries the Deacon, and, running dry of ideas, Jim becomes more determined. Gladys' love grows stronger, and the grand finale comes when the Deacon falls from the roof of the meeting-house, where he had gone to escape Jim. Upon recovering consciousness, he decides to bestow his blessing on the couple, and Jim and Gladys are happy.

CINEMATOGRAPHING EXECUTIONS IN FRANCE.—"If the guillotine," wrote M. Claretie in the Temps a few days ago, "continues to operate, it will have to do so behind closed doors, and this will not be over easy in an age of snapshots and cinematographs. I do not despair," he added, ironically, "of seeing a cinematograph execution, just as we see the cinematograph life-saving at Messina and the destruction of the walls of Reggio." The Minister of the Interior has issued a circular pointing out that special precautions were taken to prevent the cinematographing of the quadruple execution at Béthune but that it was reported that, either by subterfuge or by surprise, clichés had, notwithstanding, been taken. Even if this were not the case, faked films might possibly be exhibited. The circular points out that the mayors has full powers to prevent these representations, and they are instructed to act in the interests of public order.

CINEMATOGRAPHY IN BARCELONA.—Our Barcelona correspondent writes—"After Paris and London, Barcelona must surely come next in the order of importance with regard to cinematograph matters. There must be at least thirty halls here catering solely for this class of entertainment. Some of these are magnificently decorated, and the price of admission is very low, viz., one real (about 2½d.) for a show lasting from forty to fifty minutes. All the largest manufacturers of films, recognising the importance of this town, have offices here. The most notable films that have been showing here during the past fortnight are The Assassination of the Duke of Guise, performed by the leading artists from the Comédie-Française, Paris. This is without doubt the finest film yet produced, and the interest is increased by the proprietors giving to each person entering the hall a five-page booklet describing the history of the tragic event. There is also showing a film that is undoubtedly simply invaluable for exhibition in hospitals or to doctors or medical students. It is a film depicting the operations of Doctor Doyen; but no self-respecting English proprietor would ever dream of showing it to his audiences."

A GOOD FILM RENTAL CONCERN SHOULD COMBINE THE FOLLOWING POINTS.

1. IT SHOULD BUY THE BEST.
2. ,, buy for Customers not for itself.
3. ,, have perfect system of control.
4. ,, never offer same film twice to one Customer.
5. ,, not disappoint Customers.
6. ,, deliver films promptly.
7. ,, always be open.
8. ,, have experienced staff.
9. ,, maintain a high standard programme.
10. ,, not keep any film more than sixteen weeks in use.

THE SHOWMEN'S ANNUAL SUPPER AND BALL AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

No event in the calendar of Showland is more surely marked with red letters and set out in bold big headlines than the supper and ball at the World's Fair. Some sixteen years ago it occurred to the London showfolk that the best method of showing hospitality to their provincial confrères would be that which "delighteth the heart of the Briton wherever he may be"—"a festival dinner." Linked with this was the kindred good idea of a ball, so that all sorts and conditions of show men and show women might gather (at least once a year) and share in the amenities of social life.

As it was impossible to break the fixed order of the daily business at the World's Fair by a dinner at the usual hour for high meats and flowing eloquence, it was decided to fix the dinner for midnight, and to call it a supper, and that the supper (dinner) should be followed by a ball, where young men and maidens—yea, and even children of older growth—might disport themselves, as all children love to do, to the sound of sweet music, and in the rhythmic measure trip the light fantastic toe, euphemistically termed the terpsichorean art.

The Rapid Evolution of Social Ideals.

Sixteen years ago, when these gatherings commenced, it might have been possible for the uninitiated to observe the outward and visible signs and to hear the audible attestation of the fact that it was a festival gathering of showpeople. To-day we make bold to assert that if the same people could be transferred by the magic of the genii of the ring to the Savoy Ballroom, and the uninitiated could be kept in ignorance of the class of people who were enjoying themselves, they would not be able to tell that the crowd of "Fair women and Brave men" before them had been gathered from the four ends of showland to meet upon the common ground of the banqueting hall and the ballroom.

The Advance Preparations for the Supper and Ball.

As soon as the World's Fair had got into its accustomed stride, and the huge aggregation under the dome of the immense hall at Islington had settled squarely into business, then it was that the working committee for the supper and ball was constituted, and the business of providing in advance for the entertainment of their coming guests was commenced with that enterprise and experience for which the lessee of the World's Fair, Mr. Read, is famous.

It is a hard-working committee, and has only got one drone in the hive of busy bees, and that is its President, the Rev. Thomas Horne, who, like a wise parish priest, leaves to the laity everything that can be better done by the layman. The chairman is Mr. Read, treasurer Mr. W. Metcalf, secretary Mr. C. Day, and the other members of the committee are representative of all that is best and brightest in the social world of Showland—to wit, Messrs. H. Read, Frank Turner, W. Le Neve, T. Knighton, C. Hyatt, J. Hastings, W. Taylor, E. Hussey, W. Wilson, Fred Bibby (Manchester), W. Hussey, H. Taylor, J. Tronson, W. Slatter, A. Ball, J. Wentworth, A. Dashwood, T. Hurst (Manchester), J. Thomas, and S. Mellor (Oldham). With such a gallant crew under good Captain Read, the good ship "Hospitality," favoured by good breezes, was bound to sail gallantly into the haven of supreme success.

The Guests Assemble for Supper.

At a quarter before midnight the guests assembled. At the high table were the President, the Rev. T. Horne (the Guild Chaplain), on the left of the chairman Mr. T. E. Read, on his right was the chief guest of the evening, Councillor E. H. Bostock, Esq., of the Glasgow Zoo and of Wombwell menagerie fame, Mrs. T. E. Read, Mr. and Mrs. Hanneford, Mr. Greenwood, Mr. C. Fowler, Mr. Frank Mellor, and other guests.

Other distinguished guests present were: Mr. P. Collins, President of the Showmen's Guild; Mr. J. W. Bostock, New York; Councillor G. T. Tuby, Doncaster; Mr. John Whiting, Manchester; Mr. T. Hurst, Hon. Sec., Showmen's Guild, Manchester; and the following gentlemen on the Guild Executive Council:—Messrs. E. Farrar and Mrs. Farrar, J. Crichton, E. Geoghegan, J. H. Geoghegan, J. B. Butlin and Mrs. Butlin, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Ross Collins, Messrs. Frank Turner (Hon. Guild Treasurer), H. J. Wallis (Liverpool), J. Hastings, W. Le Neve and Mrs. Le Neve, Mr. and Mrs. W. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Hussey, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. and the Misses W. Taylor, Mrs. Powell, Mrs. Panton, Messrs. A. Dashwood, Thompson, Slatter, Cooper, and over two hundred other guests, consisting in the main of the aristocracy of Showland, and forming an assembly comparable with any gathering of English men and women in the land.

The Loyal Toasts and Speeches.

In admirable time, with his controlling hand upon the safety valve of possible over-exuberance, and himself a martinet in brevity, the CHAIRMAN proposed the loyal toasts, which were duly honoured. Mr. READ then proposed the toast of the evening, "Success to the Van-dwellers' Society," and in doing so he remarked that he felt it an occasion of great pleasure and no little honour that he should be able to welcome them again as he had done upon previous occasions, and as his revered father had done before him. He welcomed them with all his heart. (Cheers.) He was glad to be able to announce that the World's Fair this year had broken all previous records, both as to numbers passing the turnstiles and as to business done by the vast army of showman tenants. (Applause.) Further, he was proud to announce that he had secured a lease extending over several years of the building for the World's Fair, and as he had catered with whole-hearted endeavour for the public and the showmen using the Fair in the past, so they might rest assured that nothing would be lacking on his part to assure the prosperity of the Fair in the years to come. (Great enthusiasm.) He proposed success to the Van-dwellers' Society, and coupled the toast with the name of the Guild Chaplain, Mr. Horne. (Great cheering.)

The Guild Chaplain Responds.

The GUILD CHAPLAIN, in acknowledging the compliment paid him, referred briefly to the early days and struggles of the Showmen's Guild. He paid a warm tribute of admiration to Mr. James Bostock, whom he was proud to meet again. (Cheering again and again renewed.) Mr. James Bostock was amongst that little hardworking band of earnest-minded showmen who were the founders of the Van-dwellers' Society. (Applause.) During the twenty years since the formation of the Guild things had progressed rapidly, rightly, and mightily in Showland. The showman of to-day was not regarded with dubious eye as in the bad days of the past. An honoured guest at their table was Councillor Edward Bostock, of Glasgow, another honoured guest was Councillor G. T. Tuby, of Doncaster, and last, but certainly not least—the well-worn tag came glibly to his tongue—another honoured guest was Mr. Patrick Collins, of Walsall, the monarch of modern showmen, and the President of the Guild. (Great cheering, again and again renewed.)

He begged them to remember that not only was the Van-dwellers' Society entering upon its twentieth year in the sturdy strength of manhood, but, to use another simile, the Showmen's Guild was the mother of all trade organisations in Showland. These societies banded together to secure sectional interests were, he was happy to think, doing good work, each in its own place and order. (Applause.)

Let them never forget the pioneer society, the Guild, that all efforts of combinations in Showland had their fount and origin in the old Van-dwellers' Association. He, therefore, with all his heart and soul responded for the dear old Society, of which he was proud to be its very insignificant Chaplain. (Loud cries of protest and applause.)

Let them remember that the very fact that eminent showmen were sharing in the responsible work of local government, and undertaking the full burdens of citizenship, was the pledge and bond of the upward trend of all that was best, of all that stood for God, and for good in Showland. (Tremendous applause, during which the reverend gentleman resumed his seat.)

COUNCILLOR BOSTOCK, in response to an appeal from the Chaplain, delivered an admirably worded speech, in the course of which he referred to the fact that the honour he now enjoyed of being a councillor for the second city in the Empire was conferred upon him without any seeking or effort on his own part. He had been selected and elected without a contest. (Applause.) He freely confessed that being now utterly absorbed in the large undertaking of his permanent Hippodrome and Zoo at Glasgow and other music hall and hippodrome ventures throughout Scotland, that he no longer travelled with the show. None the less, he was proud of the distinction of being a showman. (Cheers.)

He could go back to the days when he took his part in the hard work (day by day) of the menagerie, and there were many there who remembered how arduous and absorbing that work was. (Hear, hear.) This was his first visit to their festival supper and ball. It was a great pleasure to him to be amongst them, a pleasure that he hoped to be able to enjoy upon many future occasions.

He thanked them heartily for the kind reception they had accorded him, and assured them that no effort on his part would be lacking to help in the good work of making Showland a better land than he and many others had found it. (Great applause.)

Rousing Speech from James W. Bostock of America.

In response to the call of the Chairman, Mr. J. W. BOSTOCK, England's greatest showman in America, came forward, and received a warm ovation of admiring cheers from many friends. He began an admirable speech by disclaiming any fame or credit as a founder of the Vandwellers' Society, for several years prior to the introduction of the first Movable Dwellings Bill in 1880, and again in 1890, he had been on the Continent with his show. On his return he found that his fellow-showmen were engaged in a life-and-death struggle for their rights and liberties as citizens and for the security and sanctity of their home life. There was a man who could honestly claim to be a founder of the society, and that was the man who met him on landing in England from the Continent and told him the whole miserable story of George Smith's aspersions upon the life of showpeople. That man was—Joe Caddick. (Great applause.)

Inspired by Mr. Caddick, he had done at the moment all that lay within his power to defend his brethren of the road from the calumnies heaped upon them by fanatics and faddists of the stricter sort. (Cheers.)

Since then, for fifteen years, he had been a wanderer, but he could assure them never a deserter—(applause)—for although his work was in America, his heart and sympathies were fast bound with his friends in the Motherland. (Great applause.)

President P. Collins Responds.

In response to numerous calls, the new President of the Guild, in a bright little speech, emphasised the pregnant points of his presidential address delivered in the Hall the previous day. He observed that there was no doubt that the Press and public of this country had vitally changed their views and opinions with regard to the life of the travelling showman. He was old enough to remember the time when they were regarded as rogues and vagabonds, and that the good people of a good many towns they visited kept careful watch and guard of their portable goods, under the mistaken terror and misapprehension that the travelling showman might help himself without purchase to the good things close to his hand. (Applause and laughter.) He devoutly thanked God that those days were passed and gone, and that now, instead of being regarded with alarming suspicion, they were welcomed in every town and village through the length and breadth of the land. (Great applause.) It was the work of the Showmen's Guild, uplifted and guided by the personality of their revered and reverend champion—the chaplain—that had brought about this tremendous change. (Great applause.)

He bade them go forward fearlessly, for they had the people of show-loving England behind them. He was firmly convinced that great and enduring as their success had been in the past, that there was still greater enterprises before them. (Great cheering.)

The Ball Commences.

True to its appointed time the Ball began. The scene as we witnessed it from the top step of the wide entrance hall to the ballroom was one of great attractiveness. Beautiful women, gallant men, sweetest strains of music. Your faithful chronicler, although satiated with the mental banquet, the flow of soul, and the ebullition of wit and eloquence, was man enough to desire that, Faustus-like, he might regain his youth and tread the mazy measures of the "Merry Widow" waltz.

The passing of your chronicler was indeed a parable of the restraining hand of Father Time.

The Yuletide Fair at the Crystal Palace.

CHARLES HYATT'S enterprise at the Palace, Sydenham, is still going strong. On Saturday last his up-to-date riding machines, galloping horses, racing birds, home-training bikes, the flying trapeze, or, the slide for life. Other taking novelties include the haunted house, the Suffragette chase, juvenile motor-cars and swings, and fine range of park swings.

THE minor novelties provided by Mr. Charles Hyatt and on exhibition in the Novelty Court include dart and roll-up boards, pulley board, racing motors, American ring board, shooting range, air-guns, and the latest craze, the Hoop La frames, footballers' delight, the Penny Kick.

A BIG feature of interest is the colossal picture by Alfred Smith (the celebrated painter) of the Brooklands Motor Track. It is 72ft. long and 12ft. high. It contains thousands of figures viewing the motor races, and is altogether a work of art far in advance of the usual mural decorations at fairs in quarters for the winter season.

Boswell's Circus at Chesterham.

BOSWELL'S Stage Circus, from the London Hippodrome and Coliseum, opened at the Victoria Rooms on Monday last, and packed houses, both at the afternoon and evening performances, have been the rule. The performance is just the kind to please young folks, and their elders might do worse than renew their youth again by the delights of the circus. The animals are well trained and perform their tricks in a wonderfully sagacious manner. The antics of the clowns provoke hearty laughter, and the fun caused by the revolving table and the circus riding school is hilarious. The programme is seasoned with several good variety turns, notably Mons. Morrow, juggler and conjurer, and Kame Yasuda, the wonderful Jap. The latter performs the daring feat of walking up a rope blindfold with his head enveloped in a sack to the roof of the building and then sliding backwards. Two comic ponies, Billy and Bobby, who sit down at tables and eat their food like human beings, and a clever little dog who runs on the spinning table at top speed and jumps over hurdles kangaroo fashion, are other acceptable items in a mammoth programme.

ATTACK ON BOLTON FAIR.

SOME STRICTURES AND A REPLY.

The good people of Bolton, who regard their New Year fair with very special favour, must have been surprised to find their local weekly newspaper, the Journal and Guardian, indulging in some animadversions upon their famous local festival.

The writer, in a recent article, "Round the Fair," says: "They're here again! Usual flitting for us again. Confound the fair; it's nowt but a loss to us who stond here week after week when fair times come round. Flitting about always upsets business.' There is no doubt that the shopkeepers and Wholesale Market tenants look upon the fair with dissatisfaction. Indeed, tradesmen on Victoria-square are annoyed and injured to an extent the Markets Committee do not realize. It is doubtful whether any county borough in England of importance would permit its most magnificent square to be the theatre of the intolerable noise of steam-organs and vocal sensational displays, creating a veritable pandemonium. The whole exhibition is behind the age, and the paltry sum realised out of it by the Markets Committee is no justification for the wrong done to shopkeepers concerned, nor to the detcrioration of Bolton's finest square, and the insult to our magnificent Town Hall. It is not possible to imagine that the Manchester City Council would devote Albert-square for a day—still less a week or more—to such a purpose, and why should Bolton continue a custom unworthy of the period in which we live? But for this year we must take the fair as we find it, with all its failings and folly."

Again: "A few days before the fair really starts the market and square begin to lose their well-ordered looks. Curious-shaped timbers of booths and other erections rise from one end to another. Men whose accents sound queer to our ears uplift the glaring and gaudy canvases, and wooden and canvas roofs and walls everywhere abound. At various hours of the day and night caravans arrive of all sorts and all sizes. Some are bright and clean as a new pin, others wear that neglected, happy-go-lucky sort of look as if they were in keeping with their owner's status and desires. The old-time one and two-horse travelling-van is largely giving way to the monster erection drawn about from place to place by the fine road-engines employed for this purpose, and when stationary for the generation of electricity for lighting and other purposes, and so reduces the demand on the local gas mains very considerably."

"These strolling entertainers, here to-day, to-morrow scores of miles away, keep themselves usually very much to themselves. In fact, they seem rarely to leave their places of abode except for the necessities of life. They do certainly bring some little business into the town, even if it is not directed into the pockets of those who have to remove their wares for their convenience. Their presence in these places is a source of revenue to the town which the Markets Committee will not readily dispense with. Whether they could be more suitably accommodated in another place is still a matter for debate, but certainly their present stand is bad enough in wet weather for pedestrians; what it would be under other conditions, where a more faulty flooring prevailed, one trembles to think."

"The 'Original Pea Saloons' and the usual well-advertised delicacy for tickling the palates of the young people, 'ice cream,' are, as usual, to the fore, and the number of booths erected for games of chance of various kinds, from the elusive cigarette to the canary and cage, are greater than ever. The itinerant vendors of toys and small wares, and the usual fortune-telling birds, weighing-machines, toffee-makers, and cheapjacks, phrenologists, and all the usual hangers-on of a fair are again a feature. The indispensable photographers with their vans are, of course, in evidence. The shooting-galleries present very little in the way of change; they are, however, quite as gay and beautiful as ever. The old "hobby horses" have been replaced by weird-headed nondescript birds and motor-cars; the swings are more luxurious than ever, and quite as attractive. All the fun of the fair and the usual crowding and pushing, together with the sloppy market—all alike are as uncomfortable as usual to the general looker-on."

"ROUND THE FAIR."

A Reply to Some Strictures.

To the Editor, Bolton Journal and Guardian.

SIR,—A number of showpeople who are residents of Bolton have drawn my attention to some remarks (humorous and otherwise) in an article under the title "Round the Fair." The humour is, without a doubt, witty and original. The imaginary conversation between the writer and an aggrieved regular tenant of the market hits off doubtless what the ordinary man, who is selfishly concerned for his own interests, and takes no broad or liberal view of life, would express. The old, old grievance of the market tenants and the wholesale traders, when examined in the dry atmosphere of actual truth and commercial values, amounts to this—that the market tenant, whether wholesale or retail, takes his standing or stall with the knowledge, either explicit or tacit, that when the pleasure fair comes round he has to stand on one side, and let the showmen carry on his trade, and the people who want to buy pleasure and amusement obtain it, just as they would obtain potatoes in the open market.

There would certainly be a grievance if the market tenants were charged for the time that they have to clear out and let the showpeople in. But as there is no such exaction on the part of the Market's Committee, Mr. Potato Merchant's grievance is very much like that of the farmer who supplies him with tubers; it is a healthy sign (of a sort) of the innate tendency of the average man to tilt a lance against anything that appears to interfere with his rights and privileges.

The Argument as to What Manchester Does.

The writer of the article implies that Bolton is quite half a century behind Manchester, and that Manchester has an enlightened and progressive policy with regard to the people's popular fairs that Bolton (still somewhat in the dark ages) does not possess. A little investigation of the history of the case would show to the writer that Manchester, nearly forty years ago, influenced by a wave of economic and puritanical false doctrine, obtained powers in a so-called Improvement Act to prevent the holding of a fair inside a one-mile radius of the present city hall.

The Showmen's Guild came into being twenty years ago, about twenty years after Manchester obtained its extraordinary powers. The poor nomadic showman of those bad old times had no champion to speak up for him and no organisation to defend his rights. If any city or borough to-day asked Parliament to sanction a ring-fence within its boundary, inside of which no fair or exhibition of a temporary character could be carried on, such Corporation would speedily find that the showman is neither without voice or remedy in Parliament.

British Fairs Not Dying Out, but Increasing.

A careful computation has been made of the number of fairs in existence to-day and the number that obtained fifty years ago. This investigation was carried through by the writer of this letter. The result was to demonstrate that in the great industrial belt of England, stretching from Leicester to Newcastle-on-Tyne, fairs have increased and multiplied over 30 per cent. In some of the Southern Counties, where the people have been driven from the land in the search for bread to the great industrial centres of the North and the Midlands, a certain number of old historic fairs, for lack of people to attend them, have fallen into desuetude.

The writer who, perchance, may have formed his opinion of British Fairs from some of these out-of-the-world pleasure fairs of the people, would do well to correct those impressions by visiting some of the great town Fairs of England. I commend to his careful mind Nottingham Goose Fair, Hull Fair, Gloucester Fair, Birmingham Fair, and Holbeck Feast (Leeds). Perhaps Oldham Wakes, Rochdale Rushbearing, Blackburn Fair, Burnley Fair, and at Easter time the four great suburban Fairs of Manchester, held just outside the one-mile radius, but for all practical purposes as much in Manchester as though they were held in St. Anne's-square, would open his eyes to the importance of such Fairs.

The Argument as to the Quality and Variety of the Shows.

The writer seems to object because the good old ghost show has gone, and that various delights that marked his callow youth are no longer travelling our Fairs. We are all built that way, and cast a wonderful halo of glory around the things of the past. The truth is, that if we could by any possibility be cast back into the glorious times dead and gone, we should be the very first to realise their insufficiency.

It cannot be too often insisted upon that Bolton in its policy of endeavouring to provide by its pleasure Fairs for the open-air amusements of the people, is acting in line with the London County Council and progressive Corporations like Leeds, Birmingham, Liverpool, Bradford, Nottingham, Leicester, King's Lynn, Gloucester, Norwich, York, Hereford, Hull, and a hundred more that could be quoted.

The Sum and End of the Matter.

The fact is that the travelling showmen caters for a real want of the community—popular and cheap open-air amusements. It is no argument to say we have the theatre and the music-hall and the picture palace ever with us. The exact student of men and things will soon discover the essential differences between fairs, feasts, and wakes, and theatres, variety and cinematograph palaces. Our people do not want at all times to be under the compulsion of sitting still and waiting to be amused. The young men and maidens, aye, and even the staid matron and the greybeard, at times want to take their own part and share in the common amusement. They want to rub shoulders with their neighbours bent on the same enterprise; they want to taste the delightful excitement of being whirled through the air on the saddle of fabulous animals; nay, they even like the weird medley of sounds that the Fair brings, and they would not have it otherwise. They are just out to enjoy themselves, and they do it, and my advice to the aggrieved market tenant is, "go thou and do likewise."

The Showmen's Guild of Great Britain represents an industry that directly employs seventy thousand persons, and is closely linked with a dozen other industries, employing even a larger number, the people who make and sell to the showmen their working plant and the articles used in their business.

I therefore confidently put the case for the showmen before the broad-minded and large-hearted Boltonians, and I have every confidence that your contributor of the article "Round the Fair," will next year not sadden his New Year's greetings with strictures and reflections upon an honourable craft and enterprise that existed even before the enterprising journalist came into being.

It takes many things to make up a world, but the greatest thing of all things is "Charity."—Yours ever, for God and for good.

Honorary Chaplain, the Showmen's Guild.

MR. KIRALFY'S SHARES.

On Tuesday the affairs of Shepherd's Bush Improvements, Limited, came before Mr. Justice Swinfen Eady in the Chancery Division on the petition of Edward Roehrich, stockbroker, for the compulsory winding-up of the company.

Mr. Younger, K.C., for the petitioner, said Mr. Roehrich was a shareholder of the company to the extent of 130 shares out of a total of 4,130, and the only other shareholder was Mr. Imre Kiralfy. The petition was based on the allegation that the substratum of the company had gone.

Mr. Kiralfy had made himself responsible to the company for considerable sums of money, but it was quite impossible for the petitioner, who held such a small holding, to recover by reason of the overwhelming majority of the votes held by Mr. Kiralfy, and it was necessary, in the interest of the petitioner, that a winding-up order should be made, so that these matters might be inquired into. The main allegation against Mr. Kiralfy depended upon his interest in Exhibitions, Limited. Shepherd's Bush Improvements, Limited acquired the land on which the Franco-British Exhibition was built. The land was acquired for a ninety-nine years' lease from the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and a lease was granted to the Franco-British Exhibition for the term of the exhibition.

The allegation in the petition was that Mr. Kiralfy informed persons interested in this company that it was impossible for them to have any interest in the side shows which were to be brought out, and that it was impossible for him to have any interest in them, by reason of the position he occupied as administrator-general of the exhibition. Ultimately a company, called Exhibitions, Limited, in which Mr. Kiralfy and his family held the whole or the preponderating interest, had the benefit of a number of side shows, at which a great profit was obtained.

Mr. Buckmaster, K.C., in opposing the petition, said the allegations therein were not sufficient to support a winding-up.

His Lordship said it was alleged in the petition that the object for which the company was formed had now been accomplished, that the substratum of the company had gone, and that under the circumstances the company ought to be wound up. The company was formed to acquire, and did acquire, land at Shepherd's Bush on a lease for ninety-nine years from the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and still held that lease. There was an option, now vested in Mr. Kiralfy, the time for exercising which had not yet elapsed, under which he might, if he pleased, acquire a lease of the land for five years at a very substantial rent—it might be £10,000 or thereabouts. How could it be said that the substratum was gone? It might be that other exhibitions would be promoted and held on the land.

In his Lordship's opinion there was no foundation for saying that the substratum of the company was gone. Then it was alleged that Mr. Kiralfy had made a large profit—a secret profit—which he might be compelled to account to the company for, and the petitioner said that as 4,000 out of 4,130 of the shares of the company were held or controlled by Mr. Kiralfy, it was no use asking for a meeting to be summoned, because the result of the meeting would be a foregone conclusion. It seemed to his Lordship that the petitioner was in a dilemma with regard to that. In any case, the winding-up order was not the proper way of enforcing a claim of this kind. The petition therefore failed.

The Social Evening at the World's Fair.

THE Guild Chaplain's At Home is a big and most gratifying success. The great congregation on Sunday last listened to the Chaplain's short sermon with rapt attention. The singing was most hearty and congregational. It will be necessary next year to requisition a much larger room for the Guild service and the social gathering.

STORIES OF SHOWMAN LIFE.

By the Rev. T. HORNE,
Chaplain the Showmen's Guild.
"UNTO THE THIRD AND FOURTH GENERATION."
[Copyright.]

I am contented to modify my theories and to adjust so-called scientific principles by the known and correlated facts of everyday life.

For example, only a few years ago we were slaves to the awful bondage of a theory of heredity—a theory, as then expounded, which left us without hope of escape. You were fettered and held in the horrid tentacles of a law of human life (with all its mutation of the physical and the psychical) that postulated—

"As you were born so must you be
All through the ages of eternity."

My story of showlife, true in all its essential elements, is, like most things when we get down to their real abiding factors, both a refutation and a striking proof of the fallacy on one side and the truth on the other of heredity. Here I bid you notice with me another vital principle of human life—the amazing complexity of being. We are never really elemental, never really simple. The more we know of the providence of events the truer and fuller is the revelation to our mind:—"That there's a divinity that shapes our ends, rough hew them as we may." To point the above moral we tell you this story.

When the Great Exhibition of 1851 was being held in Hyde Park the showmen of England tried to run a pleasure fair within easy access of the Park. This venture turned out an utter failure. Amongst the showmen nearly ruined by the enterprise was the famous conjurer Adolphus Delpho, Master of Magic and Eastern Pyschometry. He was Delpho the first. There are Delphos still in showland "unto the third and fourth generation."

In a real sense Delpho the First was a master of mysteries; in very fact himself a mystery. He came in the brotherhood of the showground unheralded and unknown. He had no sponsor, he sought neither friendship nor fellowship, a silent man as far as his neighbours in showland were concerned. Men sought to know him, but beyond the barest demands of business convention he remained the same unknown inscrutable man that people first found him.

His wife, professionally known as Mme. Orakla, was quite as great a puzzle to showland as her clever husband. That wise showman and student of character, Nelson Lee, named them the "Double Sphinx," and the name stuck.

There is one great mystery of life that often reveals things hidden, and that revealer is Death. It was so with the Delphos.

* * * * * *

Charterhouse School in the year 1852 had for its most brilliant scholar a youth called Philip Fawster. He had just won the most valuable prize of the last term of his time at Charterhouse—a scholarship at Oriel College, Oxford. All the world was bright and full of glorious promise for the clever Carthusian when the crisis came—a crisis of revelation.

Philip was told by the Master of Charterhouse to prepare himself for most serious news.

"Nay, nay, my boy, you will need a man's courage now. Your poor mother is waiting to tell you the news herself. God help you to bear it."

Rushing away to the guest-room, he there, with one glance at the dear sorrow-stricken face of the mother he loved with all the fond ardour of his young life, saw and knew all there was to tell. His father was dead—the loving, tender, lion-hearted father was dead. He knew it. What need, then, for words?

He gathered that frail, delicate woman into his young strong arms. He kissed her white face and her tear-laden eyes.

What need for words. Here was a veritable sacrament of human life. The outward sign and symbol of the inward and spiritual grace of things.

"My son, my son, how can I tell you?"

"I know, I know," he whispered. "Poor little mother."

Then a great sob burst its bounds in the brave lad's breast, and the tears—thank God for tears—mingled together.

* * * * * *

Yes, the revelation had to come. The brilliant Charterhouse scholar, Philip Fawster, was just and only the showman Prof. Delpho's son. The mystery was now seen and known of all men. The showman and his wife had toiled for years to give their only child a better chance (so they expressed it) than ever had been their luck to have. Oh, the apparent irony of events! Death, indeed, seemed to be the leveller. Philip Fawster had been brought up in total ignorance of what his father and his mother were.

Their little cottage at Hampton, where Philip was born, had always been the sanctuary of his life. His grandparents were always at home when father and mother were away.

"My son," said the devoted father, "shall never know, if I can help it, the toil and struggle that has marked our life. One thing I am quite determined about, he shall never be a showman. At least I will save him from that."

Father and mother, and the old people at home, all were in the plot to keep the lad in total ignorance. So it was when the Eternal Reaper Death put in his sickle, and the reaping in that sorrow-stricken home at Hampton was with tears.

Philip was made of the right stuff. He had a heart of gold.

"Say no more about it, mother dear; to regret it is a reproach on the blessed dead; there will be no Oxford for me; my place is now by your side."

Here he kissed his mother's wan face.

"You dear little mother, I shall take the dear, dear father's place. I will learn to follow in his footsteps. I pray God that I may be a worthy son of so good and noble a sire."

"My boy, my boy," was the heart-cry of the mother.

"Why weep for me, mother? I feel that I am only doing my duty, yet beyond duty is love—love, my sweet mother. You toiled, he toiled, for me; it is now my turn. I gladly follow in his footsteps, and by your side.

So it came to pass that Philip Fawster, the brilliant Carthusian and the scholar-elect of Oriel College, Oxford, without any apprenticeship save and only (and was not that enough?) what his mother taught him, became Delpho the Second.

Old showmen remember him well. Never before his time nor since has showland had his equal. Heart and soul he put into his work, and brilliant work it was. Is not the story of Delpho the Younger written in the chronicles of the kings of Showland? and are there not Delphos "even unto the third and the fourth generation" in our midst to-day?

COWELL'S Phœnix Theatre at the Carmarthen Pleasure Fairground continues to attract large audiences. On Monday evening London's Worst Woman was presented; Tuesday evening, The Face in the Moonlight; Wednesday evening, The Corsican Brothers, followed by the laughable farce The Lily of Carmarthen; Thursday evening, The Maid of the Mill; and on Friday evening St. Patrick's Eve. For Saturday afternoon a children's pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, was announced, and for Saturday evening The Unknown. The various plays are very creditably staged, and the company possess histrionic ability of a high order, several fresh engagements having been made during this week.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

INVENTIONS.

[The particulars furnished below of recent applications for patents are taken from the official records. Correspondence is invited with our readers on all matters relating to new ideas and inventions, with a view to affording them advice and assistance. Letters should be addressed to the Manager, Inventions Department, "The Era," 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, London.]

Inventors and others who have no business representative are invited to communicate with the Manager of the Inventions Dept. as above.

APPLICATIONS.

39.—Norman Russell Booth and Joseph Hamer, of Halifax. System, more particularly applicable to stage electric lighting, for maintaining the electric circuit of incandescent lamps burning in series, on failure of one or more such lamps, and which system allows the lamps thus burning in series to be dimmed without interruption of the circuit.

50.—Francis Martin Duncan, of London. Improvement in the preparation of plates and films for the production of coloured pictures by means of photography.

147.—Percy Sheard, of Droitwitch. Prevention of damage by fire or heat to objects projected by any form of optical or magic lantern.

171.—Walter Stephen Shephard, of London. Improvements in or relating to musical instruments.

187.—Francis Henry Harrison, James Weir Black Ross, and Henry Bebbington, of London. New or improved attachment for sporting rifles and the like.

233.—George William Strong, of London. Handrest and tone-improver for mandolines and stringed instruments of a like nature.

326.—William Mountsteven Gillard, of London. Improvements in and relating to the production of illuminated photographs for advertisements and the like.

367.—John Leach, of Manchester. Device for practising "putting" as played in golf; applicable also as a game.

376.—Walter Cottrell Parkin and Alfred Williams, of Sheffield. Improvements in the manufacture of non-flammable celluloid.

453.—Rotary Photographic Co., Ltd., and Ferdinand Von Madaler, of London. Improvements in and connected with moving picture taking, viewing, or projecting apparatus, and in the production of reduced image picture thereof.

454.—Emile André Gautier, of London. Improved means for training horses and the like.

516.—Fred Thomas Harris and Lionel Pearce, of London. New form of construction for amusement purposes.

561.—Thomas Richard Atherton, of Bolton. Fastenings for slide-doors to be used as emergency exits.

COMPLETE SPECIFICATIONS ACCEPTED.

658.—Amalgamated Radio-Telegraph Co. and Maskelyne. Reproduction of pictures, drawings, and the like at a distance.

13,848.—Feiler. Aerial flight chutes.

ABRIDGMENTS OF SPECIFICATIONS.

18,903.—Games. Dorwald, R., of Schaumburg-Lippe, Germany.

A frame (1) carries a number of receptacles (2), each of which turns on a horizontal axis (12). The frame rotates on a vertical rod (3) mounted on a receptacle (4). Connected with the rod (3/ are a receptacle (5) and a conical tube (6) which carries a guide for a bar (7), adapted to be raised by means of a push-bar (8) and a lever (9). In playing, objects are placed in the receptacles (2), the frame is rotated, and the bar (8) depressed, thus causing the rod (7) to strike one or more of the receptacles (2), so that the objects fall through the slot (11) into the receptacles (5 or 4).

18,945.—Kinematographs. Musger, A., of Steiermark, Austria.

In apparatus in which the picture projected from a constantly-moving film is rendered optically stationary by the movement of a series of rotating mirrors forming a prism (1), the axis (2) of this prism is perpendicular to the plane of incidence of the light and in a straight line with the axis of the objective (3).

19,037.—Amusement devices. Foulds, J., of Oldham.

A continuous train of cars (c) is run on an overhead rail (a) arranged helically about a tower (b). A car in passing from *a*1, through *a*2, back to *a*1, goes twice round the tower. The vehicles may be driven electrically or by motor. A platform (f) is provided at any suitable point.

19,276.—Roundabouts. Barker, R. W., of London —(Amusement Co. of America, New York, U.S.A.)

A circular platform (f) of highly-polished hard wood is mounted at the top of a vertical shaft (m), which turns in bearings (d, *d*1). Brackets fixed to the platform carry flanged rollers (*f*1) which are adapted to run on a rail (c). The platform is rotated from a motor (e) by a rope (o), which, by its slipping, causes the starting to be gradual. Encircling and enclosing the track (b) is an inclined slide (g) extending from the flooring (a) to a point beneath the edge of the platform. Persons sit or lie on the platform, and the motor is started. As the velocity of rotation increases centrifugal force causes the occupants of the platform to be projected on to the slide (g). A net (j) prevents injury to the person due to contact with the hard ground at the bottom of the incline.

FINANCIAL.

SAMSON AND MCNEILL.—Dec. 28, £9,000 (£1) (3,000 preference). To acquire the freehold theatre or music hall at Northampton known as the New Palace Theatre. Agreement with M. O. H. Imeson. Private. New Palace Theatre, Northampton.

TO STAGE MACHINISTS AND ELECTRICIANS. — The Manager will be pleased to receive particulars of any new stage appliances or ideas for same for illustration in this column.

Can You Invent?—Do you wish to know of prizes offered to inventors valued at £10,000, £5,300, £5,000, £4,000, £1,000, £400, £300, £200, £100, and £50? If so, then get a copy of Patents and Designs, a newspaper called into existence by Mr. Lloyd George's Patents and Designs Act, 1907, which lately came into operation. Patents and Designs, price 2d., can be had at all bookstalls, newsagents', and at the Publishing Office, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

THE PARAGON.

Mr. Joe Elvin in his ever-welcome sporting sketch Over the Sticks is occupying premier place at this admirably-conducted establishment in the East End of London. The vast stage affords him excellent opportunity for producing the skit in a most realistic manner, and of this fact Mr. Elvin has taken every advantage, attention being paid to the smallest details. The Weighing Room at Kempton Park is very realistic, while the Racecourse, wheron a contest takes place with real hurdle-racers, is wonderful. Mr. Elvin's well-known humour is fully appreciated, and in the chief rôle he is certainly seen at his best. He is ably supported by a clever company, who work well together. Many a hearty laugh will be obtained from the novel and exceedingly humorous race-card relating to the above, issued by the popular manager Mr. Mark and his genial assistant Mr. Pierre Cohen.

The Romps, a bright set of talented young ladies, supply an interesting item which is greatly enjoyed, for it consists of good singing and acting, while much genuine humour is displayed in the rendering of their finale—an opera in five minutes. Mr. Alfred Lester in his burlesque skit, A Restaurant Episode, causes shrieks of laughter; there is not a dull moment the whole time he occupies the stage, every move and sentence causing a laugh. Miss Gwen Howard as the customer acts perfectly. The Athlones, athletes, perform many difficult feats, the strength of the taller partner being extraordinary His posing and display of muscles, which is not overdone, is very artistic, and obtains for him a good reception. The Three Sisters Thurban provide an enjoyable turn with their singing, dancing, instrumental selections, and a rattling display on the kettle-drums. These young ladies are quite at home in all departments of their entertainment, which is greatly varied and very popular.
